POETRY

A SONG TO A SWEET SINGER.

Sing, bobolink, in the meadows,
My love is lying near,
And spread, day lone, your rainbow song;
It may be she will hear.

She sang as you sing, O wood-thrush,
As you sit in the dusk alone,
Your sad, sweet lay to the spring day
Hath the peace of God in its tone.

Sing, flowers in the measured valley,
Your song of the quickened sod,
Sing, stars of the night with your fine flung light,
Of the infinite valleys of God.

Sing, shepherd, in the twilight,
Sing, pine by the breezes whirled,
In all your airs are longing prayers
From the deep heart of the world.

I sing of the faith that liveth
In the brave, old heart of man,
O ages long it hath filled his song
Since the ancient school began.
—Irving Bacheller, in The Delineator.

HYMN OF HATE.

By nature I lean to the gentle and kind
I would not do harm to the meanest of the flea;
To grief or misfortune I'll never be blind
And the least sign of sorrow in you[illegible] to me;
But there's one past I hate—or would make me see red;
I would boil him with oil or simply him on hooks;
I would out-Nero Nero to see him dead
The pest who makes notes in the library books.

I have read of some crimes that would made me turn pale;
I have heard of the misdeeds of Hyde and Kidd;
I know that split blood can tell many tale,
And I've read nearly all of what Jesse James did.
In the course of my life I have been quite a lot
Of pirates and such like are with great crooks;
But there's one crook I know who must be hung or shot—
The pest who makes notes in the library books.

I'd fain be a highbrow; I'd fain read deep;
A treatise on Einstein would fill me with joy;
The reading of light stuff will put me to sleep,
And with less than old Plato my brain will cloy;
But I cannot be wise, for my efforts are vain,
So I'll stick to cheap verse, with its ranting of brooks;
For studying science, all in vain,
By pests who make notes in the library books.

I'm not above joy in a play upon words
And Harry L. Meacles can fill me with glee;
I'd like old John Burroughs, who wrote well of birds,
But all such, I fear, must be foreign to me;
So it's back to Zane Grey, for 'tis there I will stick;
From Plato to Meacles, whatever one looks,
One comes across notes, and they're pencilled in thick,
By pests who make notes in the library books.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Customer — Good-morning! Have you Dickens' Cricket on the Hearth?

Shopman—No, madam; but I can show you a very good table tennis set. — Answers.

Maiden lady (to druggist)—Is your cold cream good for wrinkles?

Druggist—Madam, it would take the wrinkles out of corrugated iron.—Good Hardware.

I call that rank ingratitude.
What new?
After I teach that girl to swim she goes to another fellow for a graduate course.—Boston Transcript.

Victim (awaiting his turn with the dentist, and bored with ancient magazines provided)—I say, I rang to ask you if you've got The Times for April 2, 1906. It seems to be missing.—Humorist (London.)

Mamma (to small hopeful)—Roland, you should not ask the lady how old she is; it is not polite.

Roland—I wasn't trying to be polite, mamma. I just wanted to know.—Chicago News.

Husband—One night while you were away I heard a burglar. You should have seen me going downstairs three steps at a time.

Wife (who knows him)—Why, was he in the room, then?—Judge.

What did she say when you proposed?

She said, Glub-blub.
What does that mean?
Hard to tell.
Was she laughing or crying?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Bobby," said the teacher sternly, "do you know that you have broken the eighth commandment by stealing James' apple?"

"Well," explained Bobby, "I might just as well break the eighth as have the apple and to break the tenth and only covet it."—Forecast.

Dr. F. W. T. Huenzer, a botanist of Amsterdam, has found pearls in cocoanuts. The gems are round, perfect in form, milk-white, but lack the iridescent sheen of the oyster pearl. They are very rare and difficult to obtain, for the natives of the tropical islands prize them highly as talismans and are reluctant to part with them. They are formed by a process similar to that which produces shell-fish pearls. Certain cocoanuts are "blind," that is, they do not have the three eyes at the end, to one of which the embryo of the seed is normally attached. Caged inside the nut and unable to develop normally, the embryo becomes incrustated and covered with lime salts the milk of the cocoanut.

DEMOCRATS MAY CONTEST BUTLER SEAT IN SENATE

Appointed by Governor Cox to Take the Seat in the Senate Made Vacant by the Death of Senator Lodge, William M. Butler is Threatened With Question of the Constitutionality of the Act Under Which He Was Appointed—Democratic Contention is That An Appointment Extending Over Two Years Might Not Be Considered "Temporary."

Boston Nov. 13.—William M. Butler, who led President Coolidge's campaign for nomination and as chairman of the republican national committee, conducted the party's campaign in the recent election, will take the seat in the United States senate made vacant by the death of Henry Cabot Lodge, it may find it challenged by the democratic state organization on a question of the constitutionality of the act under which Governor Cox appointed him today.

Filing with a legislative clerk late today a bill which would strike out of the statutes the law enacted two years ago which gives the governor the power of appointing a senator to serve until the next state election Charles H. McGlue, chairman of the democratic state committee, said there was no objection to Mr. Butler being named for a "temporary" period. The democratic party does feel, he said that an appointment extending over two years passes the period that might be considered "temporary" and violates the federal constitutional amendment providing for direct election of United States senators.

The legislature which comes in in January is asked to repeal this provision and efforts will be made to bring about an election between January 1 and the convening of the next congress on March 4, the chairman said.

The supreme court of the United States may be petitioned on the same constitutional ground, he said.

Under the law as proposed by Chairman McGlue's amendment, the governor may make a temporary appointment to fill a vacancy but must cause precepts to be issued forthwith for an election.

It is understood that Governor Cox had before him when he informed the commission of Mr. Butler as senator-designate today, an opinion from William E. Dorman, counsel to the state senate, that no judicial question could be raised and that the governor was acting entirely within the law.

The appointment of Butler, announced to him by the governor over the telephone just before noon and to newspapermen a few minutes later, was not unexpected. "I hope I may be useful," was his word of acceptance, combined with thanks.

A former member of the legislature, in which he served twice as president of the senate, Mr. Butler had been taking only a passive part in politics since the death of Senator W. Murray Crane with whom he had been active as lieutenant, until the lines were being drawn for this year's campaign. Then he indicated that he would contest for the republican nomination to succeed David I. Walsh, democrat, but when President Coolidge asked him to take over the campaign of winning delegates to the Coolidge cause for the republican national convention he relinquished his plans.

It was generally understood after the election that Mr. Butler would have a place in the cabinet after March 4, but the death a few days ago of Senator Lodge left a vacancy the filling of which by his appointment was understood to have been favored by those close to the president in his home state.

ALLEGED GEM SMUGGLER EXPLAINS HIS POSITION

New York, Nov. 13.—Arthur Medianski, wholesale jeweler, appeared before federal authorities today with the announcement that he was "the Medianski" described by the treasury department at Washington yesterday as the ring-leader in a huge smuggling venture which involved Mrs. Theresa Mors, whom "Kid McCoy" is charged with having murdered at Los Angeles.

The Washington report was that Medianski was in flight to foreign lands to escape prosecution. The jeweler, through Myron Sulzberger, his attorney, declared he had no intention of leaving the United States.

His connection with the case, said Medianski, was that of an expert on gems and antiques. Because he had served as purchasing adviser to the late Mrs. Mors and her husband Albert in Vienna five years ago, he said, he was called as a witness to identify valuable imports government operatives discovered among Mrs. Mors' effects after her death.

"I met Mors and his wife in Vienna in 1919," the jeweler related. "Mors showed me a letter of credit for $100,000 and retained me on a commission basis, to help him purchase tapestries, rugs, paintings and other works of art for his store on Fifth avenue, New York.

"He also asked me to keep an eye out for any valuable pieces of jewelry that would make nice gifts for his wife. Mors purchased thousands of dollars worth of merchandise and to my knowledge it was shipped by American express through the United States customs.

"He also obtained many good gems.

"When I met Mors later and asked how the New York business was going, he said 'Rotten. I'm even paying rent.' I said I hoped he had not lost through my purchases for him, and he said, 'Oh, no, I sold all these things at a big profit in Holland and France.'

"Two special customs agents from New York came to me after Mrs. Mors was murdered, told me they had brought from California certain merchandise that had been smuggled into America after I had purchased in Vienna through me, and asked me to identify the pieces. I did so as far as I was able, serving as a voluntary witness."

Although the treasury department reported having seized and identified smuggled jewelry valued at $250,000, Medianski declared that Mors had used in Vienna only half of his $100,000 letter of credit for the purchase of merchandise for the New York store, and that the jewelry ostensibly purchased for Mrs. Mors would amount to only about $30,000 more.

NOTABLE AT TAGGART'S HOTEL AT FRENCH LICK

French Lick, Ind., Nov. 13.—Thomas Taggart's hotel here today became the stamping ground of notable figures in democracy with the arrival of Governor Smith of New York, who was accompanied by several friends.

Although Governor Smith insisted he is here only for a rest, following his strenuous campaign for re-election, the fact that Mr. Taggart, dean of Hoosier democracy, is here recovering from an operation performed in Boston, and George F. Brennan, leader of the democrats in Illinois, is expected tomorrow, gives rise to reports that almost anything may transpire in the next day or two in the political line.

MRS. HARDING REMAINS IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Marion, O., Nov. 13.—The condition of Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, who is critically ill at White Oaks farm here, was reported tonight by her physician, Dr Carl W. Sawyer, as unchanged. Her condition this morning was reported as "not so well," following a "very restless and painful night."

RITES OF R. C. CHURCH DENIED DION O'BANION

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Members of the O'Bannion family were today denied the right to hold a church service over the remains of Dion O'Bannion, slain gangster Cardinal Mundelein through Bishop Edward Hoban, however said he would permit O'Bannion to be buried tomorrow in consecrated ground in Mount Carmel cemetery.

The funeral of the murdered florist-gang leader, is expected to surpass in point of floral decorations and the number of persons in attendance, the funeral held today for Michael Merlo, Italian labor leader, and friend of O'Bannion. It was Merlo's name that was mentioned by one of the three slayers a moment before the florist was shot dead, and the police have held the theory that Merlo's henchmen, released by the death of their leader, may have been the killers.

Mayor William E. Dever, tonight took a hand in the inquiry into the cause of the murder when he ordered every known gunman in the city to be arrested immediately. This action, he explained, followed the assertion of Louis Alterie, confidant of O'Bannion, that he would "shoot it out" with the murderers if he ever found them.

While assistant state's attorneys were quizzing suspects today a warden of the city jail came in to inform them that a man, who was later identified as Ernest Breckbois, 50, had jumped four floors to his death from a window near State's Attorney Robt. E. Crowe's office. The man had previously asked to be presented to Prosecutor Crowe, saying that he carried important information. He carried a membership card of the Street Cleaners' union, of which organization Michael Corazzo, sought as the keystone factor in the O'Bannion murder case, is the president.

INVESTIGATING EXPLOSION IN GRAND RAPIDS P. O.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 13—Federal agents investigating the possibility that a bomb wrecked the Grand Rapids main postoffice late yesterday afternoon taking a toll of three lives and injuring 13 persons, announced tonight that they had in their possession a threatening letter that might lead to some tangible clue to the method used and to the parties implicated.

The letter was found by Ensign Harold McDonald, of the United States naval reserve force, in his automobile a short time before the explosion. Although for the most part, the words on the letter are blurred and almost ineligible, the word "disaster" and "death" are quite clear. A man's picture accompanied the note and federal agents are now scouring the city in an attempt to place that man under arrest.

Federal agents investigating the explosion are positive that it was caused by a bomb. Officials of the local gas company, after exhausting all tests, announced this evening that they did not believe it possible that gas caused the explosion.

RHINELANDER—JONES MARRIAGE A SURPRISE

New York, Nov. 13.—New York society was startled today by the disclosure that Leonard Kip Rhinelander, 22, son of Philip Rhinelander, a member of one of this state's oldest families, had married on October 14, Miss Alice Beatrice Jones, 23, a nurse maid and daughter of George Jones, a New Rochelle taxicab driver.

Details of the wedding were meager but it was learned that the ceremony was performed by Mayor Scott of New Rochelle in his office. Since then, the newly-wed couple have been living at the home of the bride's parent, with Mrs. Rhinelander's two married sisters. One of them is the wife of Robert Brooks, a gardener, and the other of a man known as "Footsy" Miller, a laborer.

Opium Conference

Geneva, Nov. 13—(By the A. P.)—Comedy and tragedy mingled with melodramatic swiftness in the international opium conference today when, as the culmination of hours of exciting debate, the conference decided to adopt no resolutions whatsoever concerning the opium evil in China. Dominating the entire discussion was the dramatic manner in which Japan posed as the champion of China.

REP. HILL ACQUITTED OF LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 13.—Representative John Philip Hill, of Baltimore, who today was acquitted of charges of violation of the prohibition law, by a jury in the United States court, declared after the verdict, that the findings gave him an opportunity to go before congress and demand modification of the Volstead act, and the passage of his 2.75 per cent. beer bill on the grounds that the Volstead act, in its present form discriminates and is unfair.

The indictment against Colonel Hill accused him of the illegal manufacture and possession of wine and cider and maintaining a nuisance in his home. The latter charge was dismissed at the direction of Judge Morris A. Soper on the ground of insufficient evidence.

United States Attorney Amos W. W. Woodcock, who conducted the prosecution, refused to comment on the verdict and said the case was ended so far as he was concerned. Other officials of the district attorney's offices were reported as saying that Judge Soper's ruling on fruit juices did not apply to home brew, which is a product of malt and hops. That is still illegal, it was declared, if it contains more than one-half per cent. alcohol by volume.

The jury which took Colonel Hill's case yesterday afternoon wrestled with it in the jury room for 17 hours. The long battle, it was related by one of the jurors, was caused by two jurors who held out for a verdict of guilty. One of them gave in at 1 a. m. and joined the majority.

The gray light of early morning was streaming through the windows over the tired jurymen when the juror holding out finally surrendered and joined with the others in signing the verdict, it was said.

The decision was sealed and delivered to the court at the opening of the forenoon session. The courtroom was jammed with spectators and the corridors there were scores of men and women who were unable to get inside. The verdict, read by the clerk of the court, said:

"The jury finds the defendant not guilty of the matters in which he stands indicted."

There was a murmur among the spectators which was quickly checked by a bailiff. Colonel Hill was warmly congratulated as he made his way out of the court room and in the corridor he was met by a vociferous throng with everybody trying to tell him at the same time how pleased they were with the verdict.

300 PERSONS ON ISLAND OF JAVA KILLED BY EARTHQUAKE

Batavia, Java, Nov. 13—(By the A. P.)—The island of Java has been severely shaken by earthquakes. Already 300 persons are reported killed and countless are missing.

The earth shocks extended over Wednesday and part of today. Many native towns in the Kedu district, a central residency of Java, have been destroyed by landslides. One village completely disappeared into the river.

The shock centered in the health resort of Wonosobo, where all the buildings collapsed.

Java, in the Malay archipeligo, is the seat of government for the Dutch East Indies. As Java was created by violent seismic convulsions, so, from year to year it is subjected to similar disturbances, less violent, but sufficient in times past to have destroyed much life and property.

In 1919 the volcano of Kaiut erupted and caused many deaths. Variously estimated at from 15,000 to 50,000. Besides Kalut there are many active volcanoes in the island, with its 48,000 square miles. Some of these seismic disturbances have been accompanied by heavy floods and landslides.

MORE APPOINTMENTS BY PREMIER BALDWIN

London, Nov. 13—(By the A. P.)—Premier Baldwin today appointed another batch of junior members of his government. Captain Sidney Herbert will be the prime minister's parliamentary private secretary. Sir Geoffrey Butler will be private secretary to the air minister, Sir Samuel Hoare.

Captain Herbert was born at Newport, R. I., in 1890, his father, Sir Michael Herbert, being British ambassador to the United States at that time. Sir Geoffrey Butler's wife is the daughter of J. Leverine Jones, of Philadelphia.

The Zinovieff affair, having lain dormant since the elections, is again in the limelight. Mr. Chamberlain, foreign secretary, in a speech at Glasgow confirmed that the government had appointed a committee to make further inquiries, as the matter had been left in a very peculiar position by the government's predecessors. Supplementary information, he added, had been obtained, which had failed to reach the labor government in time for its inquiry, and when the committee had reported the government would decide what action to take.

STABBED BY NEGRO ON CROWDED SUBWAY PLATFORM

New York, Nov. 13.—George J. Boser, 31, was stabbed four times and probably fatally wounded tonight by Leroy Demon, 27, a negro, when he remonstrated with Demon for knocking down Boser and a woman on a crowded subway platform, according to police.

Two subway passengers seized Demon and disarmed him. A crowd of men and women surged about the negro striking and kicking him with cries of "Kill him, Kill him." He was saved from the infuriated mob by a patrolman.

MERIDEN EXPERIENCING HICCOUGHING EPIDEMIC

Meriden, Nov. 13—Ten authentic cases of hiccoughing have been reported by physicians here to date, with unofficial reports of many additional victims of the epidemic. Two local men have just recovered after three day attacks and another is on his third day of hiccoughs. Several others have had two day visitations.

Views by Coolidge on Agricultural Plight

Given in Address Before Meeting of the Association of Land Grant Colleges—Reviews Conditions.

Washington, Nov. 13. — President Coolidge declared in an address tonight before the annual meeting of the Association of Land Grant Colleges that the government would omit no effort to prevent a repetition of recent misfortunes involving agriculture, but asserted that the farmer also must readjust his methods of production and marketing "until he comes within sight of the new day."

It was the first public address Mr. Coolidge has made since the election and was devoted to a discussion of agriculture, which is the principal subject before the college representatives at their conference. The president expects to outline his views of farming conditions more extensively next Monday in opening the conference of the agricultural commission which he recently appointed to formulate recommendations for the permanent stabilization of the industry.

The immediate problem, the president said in his address tonight, is to bridge over the difficulties resulting from abnormal and war-stimulated surpluses, while, he added, preparation must be made also for the time fast approaching when "we are likely to be one of the greatest of the agricultural buying nations," the hope, he declared, in organization and methods which look to economies and efficiencies in producing and distributing.

Meanwhile, the president urged that the educators and farm leaders turn their attention to scientific marketing. The agriculture problem today, he insisted, is not on the side of production, but on the side of distribution. Too little thought has been given to this phase, he added.

"Up to the present time," Mr. Coolidge continued, "the main emphasis of our agricultural education has been placed upon production. I believe that was right, because unless there is economy and efficiency in production there is no need for thought in any other direction. But our experience of the last few years has demonstrated that it is by no means enough. The farmer is not only a producer, he is likewise a merchant. It does him no good to get quality production; in fact, it may do him harm, unless he can likewise have scientific marketing. I want to see courses in cooperative marketing and farm economics alongside of soil chemistry and animal husbandry. I want to see a good farmer on a good farm raise a good crop and secure a good price."

The farmers must face the problem of the future, coming possibly in a generation, Mr. Coolidge declared, when this nation will be preponderantly commercial and industrial.

"In a very few years," he said, "the natural increase of population and the inevitable tendency of industrialization will place us among the nations producing a deficit rather than a surplus of agricultural staples. We were fairly on the verge of that condition when the World war gave a temporary and artificial stimulation to agriculture which ultimately brought disastrous consequences. Even today if in making up our balance sheet we include our requirements of coffee, tea, sugar and wool we already have a considerable agricultural deficit. It may not be generally known, but even now we consume more calories of food in this country than we produce. The main reason is that we do not raise enough sugar. Our only agricultural exports of consequence are cotton, meat products and wheat; and as to the two latter, it must be plain that the scales will shortly turn against us. We shall be not only an agricultural importing nation, but in the lives of many who are now among us we are likely to be one of the greatest of the agricultural buying nations.

"In this lies the assurance to the American farmer that his own future is secure enough, but he must readjust his methods of production and marketing until he comes within sight of the new day. Our immediate problem has been to carry him through the intervening period of abnormal and war-stimulated surpluses.

"After that, we shall face the real problem of our long future: the problem of maintaining a prosperous, self-reliant, confident agriculture in a country preponderantly commercial and industrial. It has been attested by all experience that agriculture tends to discouragement and decadence whenever the predominant interests of the country turn to manufacture and trade. We must prevent that in America. I believe the land grant college is the main great agency for its prevention. It has added a new element to the equation which has never before been in it. You must make that element decisive. It is true there are some countries in which the balance of these elements had been so well maintained that agriculture has continued to flourish alongside industries and successful commerce. But these are found where the population is approximately static and the community comparatively self-contained. It is not our destiny to be a community of that kind. We must look forward to a long-continuing increase of population. We must realize that our relationships with the outside world, already enormously important, will increase in number, complexity and importance in their influences on our social structure.

"We cannot begin too soon to prepare for the future. It may seem contradictory to suggest that in a time when we are embarrassed with surpluses of which markets are not easily to be found, we must begin to plan for exactly opposite conditions. But it is not really a contradiction. The organizations and methods which look to economies and efficiencies in producing and distributing will be equally useful, equally necessary in either set of circumstances. To fail in establishing these instruments will commit us to that most inexcusable of economic sins, a deliberate policy of sheer wastefulness. And wastefulness, whether in disposing of a surplus or permitting a deficiency in the end can only result in calamity.

"Finally, you will remember that America has but one great staple product. We till the soil, we operate our industries, we develop transportation, we engage in commerce, we encourage the arts and sciences; but these are only means to an end. They are all carried on in order that America may produce men and women worthy of our standards of citizenship. We want to see them endowed with ability and character, with patriotism and religious devotion. We want to see them truly American. While ready and eager to contribute a generous share to world welfare, we want to see them honest, industrious and independent, possessed of all those virtues which arise from an adequate moral and intellectual training joined to experiences which come from the open country."

In his address Mr. Coolidge paid tribute to the services of the late Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture, whom he characterized as "an ideal public servant who met the difficulties that came to him day by day, and through his industry and intelligence found for them wise solutions."

Germany Welcomes Election of Coolidge

Sentiment Expressed by Foreign Minister Stresemann in Course of Campaign Speech.

Dortmund, Germany, Nov. 13 (By the A. P.)—Approval of the election in the United States of President Coolidge was freely expressed by Foreign Minister Stresseman in the course of a significant campaign speech before the convention of the German peoples' party here today.

The foreign minister's utterances, in their totality, constituted a sturdy defense of the policies enacted and pursued by the present government, especially in connection with the nation's foreign affairs. The speaker left no doubt in the minds of his party colleagues that the principles which have heretofore guided the government in its conduct of internal and foreign affairs must rigidly be adhered to.

Discussing the recent election in the United States, and American-German relations, Minister Stresemann said:

"From a German viewpoint we have every reason to welcome the decision of the American voters. This decision constitutes an unmistakable verdict of approval of the present American government's policy of friendly co-operation with Germany. It vouchsafed further cultivation of the policy of amity between both countries."

The foreign minister said he believed the present American policy indicated a conviction in the United States that such co-operation is not purely a German affair, but one calculated to serve international economic interests in general.

To American initiative and perseverance he ascribed the success of the Dawes plan and the London conference, which, he said, had since been further sealed through the unexpected success reflected in the heavily oversubscribed portion of the German reconstruction loan in the American money markets. These material manifestations of American good will, the foreign minister believed, also are relations to which the recent successful trans-Atlantic flight of the ZR-3 contributed a happy element.

The speaker expressed strong satisfaction in French loyalty regarding the evacuation of the occupied zones, which, he said, justified confidence that her further obligations would also promptly be fulfilled in accordance with the treaty of Versailles and which would be the best test of the allies' good will.

Alluding to the various commercial treaty negotiations with England and other countries, Minister Stresemann emphatically denied that Germany would shortly flood foreign countries with German goods and exclude foreign goods from Germany by prohibitive tariffs.

The foreign minister claimed that a recent inspection proved that Germany had disarmed and that the government was therefore justified in expecting and demanding that within a short time control shall be taken out of the hands of the interallied commission and transferred to the League of Nations.

He complained of the apathy shown concerning Germany's entering into the league, and contended that an unarmed nation, in the midst of an armed Europe, could not possibly renounce its last means of protection afforded it by its right to neutrality, even though it were a member of the league.

BABY ELEPHANTS ENTERED RESIDENCE IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Nov. 13.—Three baby elephants, part of a vaudeville act at a local theatre, today scored such a smashing hit in private life that their owner, Don Darrah, of New York, was held in $300 bail pending repairs to certain property in the northeast section of Philadelphia.

The trio of pachyderms, confined at night in a garage, early today took offense at sounds from a balky motor-car, snapped their chains, and sallied forth, with the car owner leading the procession at a spanking pace.

Fragrant whiffs of breakfast being prepared by Mrs. Anna Dammore in her kitchen halted the elephantine section of the parade, and the trio of tuskers investigated by uprooting the fance. Mrs. Dammore gazed out her window a second, and then, with three young Dammores, hastily sought the roof. The elephants came through the back door, taking it with them.

"Babe," one of the runaways, burned his trunk on the a tove, seized that article by its underpinning and gave it a course in callisthenics. The other elephants wrecked the icebox and splintered the furniture as accompaniment. "Babe" then headed an exodus from the Dammore home.

Police meanwhile summoned Darrah, who returned his charges to the theatre yard.

Influential Orientals were using every means to end the war, said the tongsmen, and prospects were bright that a peace pact soon would be signed.

FURTHER RETRENCHMENT IN NATIONAL EXPENDITURES

President Coolidge Has Issued Instructions That Total Department Estimates For 1926 Must Not Exceed $1,800,000,000, Exclusive of the Public Debt and Postal Service Requirements—Herbert M. Lord, Director General of the Budget, Requests the Chamber of Commerce of New York to Enlist in National Economic Campaign.

New York, Nov. 13.—Asserting that ordinary expenses of the government had been cut in half during the first three years of the budget system, Herbert M. Lord, director general of the budget, tonight charged the chamber of commerce of the state of New York, in annual convention, to enlist in a campaign for popular support of further drastic national retrenchment.

In 1924, said Mr. Lord, federal expenditures were $2,196,571,000 less than in 1921, the last year before budget control. Seeking to illustrate what this saving meant to the nation he pointed out that two billion dollars was equivalent to:

Half the gold coin and bullion in the United States at the present time, the entire savings of 12,300,000 depositors in the nation's savings banks over a 20-month period, the value of all passenger autos, trucks and motorcycles manufactured in this country in 1922.

"It exceeds the amount paid in dividends by all the railroads of the United States for five years," Mr. Lord continued.

The budget chief said the government hoped to end the current fiscal year with a surplus, but that "had it not been for providential presidential vetoes $126,000,000 would have been added to expenditures this year and our hope for a balanced budget would have gone a-glimmering."

President Coolidge already had issued instructions, said Mr. Lord, that total departmental estimates for 1926 must not exceed $1,800,000, exclusive of the public debt and postal service requirements.

"I am sure the departments and establishments in Washington understand that as far as the directors of the bureau of the budget is concerned the instructions of the chief executive will be reflected in actual performance," said Mr. Lord.

All this expense-classing by the budget bureau "may be monotonous music to people in the federal service but it should be sweet harmony to the taxpayers," continued Mr. Lord.

GOV. TEMPLETON PROCLAIMS THURSDAY, NOV. 27, AS THANKSGIVING DAY

Hartford, Nov. 13.—America's prosperity, peace and happiness are cited by Governor Templeton, as material reasons for thankfulness in the annual Thanksgiving proclamation issued today, which designates Thursday, November 27, as Thanksgiving day in this state. The proclamation points out the Thanksgiving day has been a Connecticut institution since the early days of the Colonies and urges all to renew the bonds of family and home and to give earnest thanks on that day for blessings received.

The proclamation is as follows:

"Our country has greatly prospered from coast to coast we are a united happy people. Never has our material welfare been greater. Never have the comforts of life been so widly distributed among our citizens. Liberty and learning are the heritage of all. Peace and plenteousness are within our borders.

"Gratitude befits commonwealth and individuals alike. In accordance with ancient usage and the law of the state, I designate Thursday, November 27, next, as a day of public Thanksgiving.

"From earliest times people of Connecticut have met together once a year in church and home to give thanks to the Author of their blessings. It is fitting that they do so. Religion and the family have ever been the foundation stones of American life. Without them no nation can live, no prosperity can endure. Around them this festival has always centered. To their perpetuation it is dedicated.

Let us therefore on this day, in the manner of our fathers, gather to renew the bonds of family and of home, and give thanks to God for all those good things which so bountifully he has bestowed upon us.

CHARLES A. TEMPLETON,
"Governor."

FAILED IN HOLD UP ATTEMPT THEN COMMITTED SUICIDE

New York, Nov. 13.—William E. Burns, 34, an unemployed chauffeur, attempted his first "stick-up job" today, bungled it through nervously and committed suicide after he had accidentally wounded his intended victim, Miss Nellie Hansell.

At midday, Burns entered an office building at Fifth avenue and Fifty-seventh street in the uptown "dead line zone" recently imposed by the police against known crooks, and proceeded to the offices of Wallace D. Tusten, a jeweler. Miss Hansell, Tusten's secretary, was alone in the place. She placed her hands above her head when Burns held a gun in her face. His hand shook nervously and the gun fired. Miss Hansell dropped to the floor.

Evidently convinced he had killed his victim, Burns placed the gun at his temple and shot himself. He was dead before aid could be summoned.

Miss Hansell, shot in the mouth, was but slightly injured, her teeth having deflected the bullet.

Burns had five children and his wife again is to be a mother in a few months, the police said.

11 YEAR OLD BOY WAS GIVEN VERDICT OF $400

New Haven, Nov. 13.—Eleven year old Frank Galinus of this city was given a verdict of $400 against Mrs. Adelia Baronsky by a jury in civil common pleas court today. Counsel for the boy charged that on July 18, 1922, the boy had gone into the cellar of the house where Mrs. Baronsky lived to get his ball and bat. The boy said that the woman had closed and locked the door, leaving him in the dark. It was charged that because of his confinement in the damp cellar he contracted tonsilitis. In addition, it was claimed by the boy that he was beaten with a broom.

Replying to the charges, Mrs. Baronsky said that she was ill in bed on the day in question. The boys outside made so much noise, she said, that she got up out of her bed and began to close the cellar door so that they would not enter the cellar. As she was closing the door, she claimed, the Galinus boy ran out of the cellar.

John Coppola, charged with manslaughter, was committed to the state reformatory at Cheshire by Judge George E. Hinman in criminal superior court today. The evidence showed that he and Dominick Lombardi got into a dispute over an automobile and in a fight that followed Coppola attacked Lombardi with a knife, inflicting a fracture of the skull.

TO ENDEAVOR TO WIN PEOPLE FOR SOCIALISM

London, Nov. 13.—"Our work now is to win the people for socialism," is the slogan in an appeal issued by the independent labor party, which is in the nature of a personal appeal signed by the former Premier, Ramsay MacDonald, R. Smillie, Labor M. P. for Morpeth; John Wheatley, minister of health in the MacDonald government; Miss Margaret Bondfield, parliamentary secretary to the labor department in the MacDonald government; J. W. Axton, Labor M. P. for the Bridgeton division of Glasgow, and J. Sutt, Labor M. P., for the Mile End division of Stepney.

The appeal is to all socialists who supported the labor cause in the recent general elections. The results of the election, the appeal states, show that the first object of the labor party was largely achieved in that the liberal party had ceased to be an effective force in the political life of the country and that the workers' organizations were solidly behind the labor party.

After stating that the labor party's work is to win the people for socialism, the appeal says:

"We must show that socialism is not a destructive force, encouraging antagonism to existing institutions, but a constructive force making for order and true harmony, based on justice and service; that the labor party is the only party whose program is founded on beliefs that will lead the world to peace and disarmament.

"We must convince the electors that only by substituting the new motive of service and the new method of scientific organization for the old disorderly scramble for private profit, is there any hope of seriously tackling evils such as unemployment and unmerited poverty, of rebuilding national prosperity.

"While the labor party in parliament is doing its its work as the opposition, the socialists in the country must be educating the electorate and preparing the necessary organizations for such a victory in the next election as will give labor a clear majority."

MISS SCHNEIDER IS TO APPEAR IN COURT MONDAY

New Haven, Nov. 13—Miss Marjorie Schneider, driver of the automobile in which Charles G. Rogers, bond salesman of this city, and nephew of Mrs. Ogden M. This was the assurance given today by Jacob G. Goodhart, the girl's attorney. The warrant prepared by Prosecutor Ward Church, of North Haven after an investigation of the case, has not been served on the girl and probably will not be until Monday morning when Miss Schneider and her counsel appear in court.

SOCIAL WORKER TELLS OF DANCE HALL PROBLEMS

Boston, Nov. 13.—The problem of the dance hall is a problem not only of the public dancing places but of private dansants and parties, Miss Mary E. Driscoll, field agent of the National Civic federation, said in an address before the Massachusetts conference on social work today. "Debutantes may be observed dancing in a manner that would not be permitted in a public dance hall. The underworld and the poor do not represent all the problem," she said.

"Back to the home for recreation" should be the slogan of parents and social workers, the speaker thought. "Take the cover off the old piano," she urged. "Get out the phonograph or banjo; rediscover the candy-pull as a source of fun." Community entertainments in the form of toboggan chutes, city granges, ward and precinct activities were recommended.

Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 5 p. m.

The two-season champion Windham High school gridiron warriors will be feted at a repast in violation of football condition rules, at a special meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club next Thursday evening. The supper will start at 6.30 and a special program of interest to the boys will be carried out. The regular Tuesday noon meeting will be omitted next week. The vote to extend the players another complimentary testimonial following the precedent established last year, was taken at the meeting of the club Thursday noon. President Harry W. Standish read a report of the attendance for the district. With an attendance contest in full swing, the Willimantic club climber in one month from second to last position to seventh standing, with an average for that period of 91 3-10. A letter of appreciation for expression of condolence by the club following the death of Rev. John E. Clark was received from the brothers and sisters of Father Clark. Announcement was made of a play to be presented in New London by Rotarian and Mrs. Jim Hammond and several members signified their intention of attending. Dr. R. Bullock Jones was designated to compile melodies for a new and larger song book for the club. The meeting was halted for a moment to allow Jim Bath time to pay a fine. Valentine L. Murphy spoke in regard to the meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Civic association in Norwich this (Friday) evening. Several of the members will motor down with Jim Bath. The meeting was then turned over to Jim Bath, chairman of the entertainment committee. With a practical joke in which he termed all prominent democratic nominees an extinct species, he introduced Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. Captain Fenton who took the hint with typical composure brought out a volume of laughter in his opening statements. His speech was of complete nature, embracing a few words regarding the remarkable increase in the number of those who exercise the right of franchise and leading into an appeal for the moral and financial cooperaffon of the members in the Red Cross roll call and the Near East Relief fund campaign. Relative to the great work of these organizations and the lesson which every citizen should derive from Armistice day, Mr. Fenton said "We should go forward, get behind all of these movements and not think of the cost. He was given a rousing cheer. There being several minutes left before the close of the meting, Representatives Tim Weatherhead and Charley Pomeroy who were swept into office in the great G. O. P. landslide, were called upon for remarks. Tim said that now that the job of being elected was over his next step was to see how much of his platform he could put through. Charley's usual humor was reflected in his speech and he let the club into the secret of how he collected the "farmer vote." Adjournment was taken at 1.45.

A local politician threw a new and unexpected sidelight on the possible candidates on the republican ticket to fill the unexpired term of the late United States Senator Frank B. Brandegee, when he pited the name of Marcus H. Holcomb, ex-governor. Working on the basis of a dark horse being brought forth the politician argued that the former governor's name was likely to be advanced at the last moment.

The Methodist church societies are about to complete arrangements for a mammoth Christmas bazoor an drade exhibit and a parish fair is being planned by the organizations of St. Paul's Episcopal church. All of these projects are regarded as appealing and with everyone doing his or her part the individual cost will amount to but a slight assessment.

$396.71 was the gratifying sum received from Forget-Me-Not day contributions in Windham last Saturday. Mrs. John Reilly who supervised the sale of the flowers was especially active in securing this large amount. Misses Alice Rosen and Betty McIntosh were the leading button-holers, collecting in combination $53.07. MYSTIC

The case of the new cement road through Water street, while it is a splendid road and the sidewalks which adjoin it are a great improvement, emphasizes more than ever the blindness of the corner where the new roadway end. The road here turns quite abruptly to the left and the road beyond is almost completely obscured by the Bray house which stands on the corner and very near the road. The road at this point is not any too wide and with the trolley track on the side makes a very narrow turn. It is to be hoped that whenever additional road improvements are considered by the state that this corner will be widened in some way or something done to eliminate the blindness of this corner.

WESTERLY WOMAN TELLS OF STOCK MISHAPS

The stock market adventures of Mrs. Alice Bolles of Westerly, R. I., were part of the evidence this week in New York disclosed to United States District Judge Augustus N. Hand and a jury at the conspiracy and mail fraud trial of William S. Silkworth, former president of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, and seven other defendants. The indictment developed out of the failure of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell, brokers, who went into bankruptcy for $4,000,000 two years ago.

Mrs. Bolles testified that the day before the failure the Raynor firm continued its business without any intimation to would-be investors that the house was in precarious financial condition. She said that in April, 1922, shortly before the failure, she called at the New York offices of the firm and put up $500 for the purchase of Radio common. A few days after the purchase she received a confirmation order through the mails, and some time later she deposited 40 shares of Pierce Oil as collateral for the purchase of additional Radio common.

After the last transaction she visited the Raynor offices. She testified that on that occasion she had talked to a man with red hair. That was the best she could do in the way of description. Elaine J. Nicholas, one of the owners, has red hair and when Mr. McCoy asked him to stand up, Mrs. Bolles identified him as the person to whom she talked.

The day before the failure, or on April 28, 1923, Mrs. Bolles said that she instructed the firm by telephone to sell her holdings. That some day, she continued, word came from the Raynor office reporting that the stock had been sold at $ 7-8. The next day when she telephoned, she was told that the firm had failed.

Another woman witness was Miss Mary Ryan, a trained nurse, of Knapps Creek, N. Y. She testified that she had invested about $175 with the firm and had received back about $50. Townspeople in Knapps Creek who had great faith in the Raynor house, induced her to speculate, she testified.

You often hear of "born cooks." Most "born cooks," however, select their material with great care. Many of the "born cooks" have told us that until they tried Snowdrift they never knew a cooking fat could be so sweet and fresh.

There it will connect with a train running on the present schedule to Worcester. The motor car will leave Putnam on the return trip for New London at 1.44 p. m. after conecting with a car arriving from Worcester. Life Is Worth While if old folks are well

To be well, avoid chronic constipation. The laxative for old people is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

IT would be of great benefit to elderly people if they realized that all their complaints are aggravated by constipation, as constipation is a form of congestion that affects the brain, nervous and muscular systems.

Headaches develop, aches and pains become worse, and rheumatism more painful. If you keep your intestines free from poisons you will find yourself happier and without those disorders usually associated with advancing age.

It is a mistake for old people to take strong cathartic pills, as they are seldom necessary and their repeated use requires larger and larger doses. Likewise the taking of "candy cathartics" is bad, as many of these contain a coal-tar drug that often causes skin eruptions; and if you have taken salt waters you know how dry and weak you felt afterwards.

The fact is elderly people need only a mild, simple laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is gentle in action and free from griping, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. Use it awhile and you will soon be able to dispense with medicines of all kinds.

feel constipated, have a headache, biliousness, flatulence, dyspepsia, night cramps, or in any other way feel out of sorts as a result of not having had proper elimination.

More elderly people use Syrup Pepsin than any other laxative, and Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is not an experiment with old folks, as it has been on the market over 30 years and is today the largest selling laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles being sold annually. Buy it with the understanding that it will do as we state or your money will be promptly refunded.

Mrs. Wesley Davis, 819 26th St., So. Bellingham, Wash., and Mr. A. E. MacLellan, 1209 Sixth St., N. E., Washington, D. C., believe it has added many healthy years to their lives. Get a bottle at a nearby drug store and try a spoonful the next time you

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. For those who this concern, we think some good reference to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them prepaid by mail. Do not inclose postage. It is free.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Mitchell Greene surveyed a new 7-passenger sedan after it had been in combat with a state road fence bordering Dark Lantern Hill, four miles east of here, Wednesday night, and decided that the machine had not improved in the incident.

He was happy, however, over the fact that all the members of his party came through the accident without a scratch, after being in for what could easily have been a fatal affair.

Mr. Greene is a live poultry dealer living in New Bedford. He was driving from New York to that city when his car went out of control on the dreaded hill, skidded, swung over and plunged through a fence, swirled around and raked its side along the rails, ripping out a fence post and tearing down a section of fencing. One section of plank about five feet in length pierced the radiator shell and rammed its way through the side of the hood. The car had a damaged bumper, bent mudguards, twisted radiator, dented hood and other marks of the crash forward.

Greene said that he had put the car into second speed before starting down the hill. The highway surface was wet and slippery at the time and a heavy fog obscured vision. He was coming down at not over 15 miles an hour, he claimed, when the car "danced" a bit and so jammed on his brakes, which were exceptionally efficient. The locking of the rear wheels by the application of the brakes caused the car to swerve across the highway and hit the fence.

With assistance from a motoring party that happened along the Greene party got underway with the damaged car, which remained in running order and statred for home. With Greene were his wife and two sisters-in-law.

The car is damaged to the extent of probably $150, as the body is dented and repainting will be required because of pain scraped off by contact with the fence.

The fire that destroyed the A. G. Tillinghast and Son store building at Plainfield Wednesday night pointed to the extreme danger of total losses by fires that may occur at this time in territory where there is no adequate water supply. Wells in the vicinity of the Tillinghast property are in some instances bone dry as the result of the long drought. It is likely that the property destroyed at Plainfield could have been saved without much damage had there been an ample available water supply. As it was, the fire departments who worked on the blaze had to do the best they could with such meagre supplies of water as were available with chemicals.

Reveling in the delights of such a beautiful autumn day as was Thursday, it would be difficult for one to imagine that on a corresponding day—November 13—in a year just after the Civil war 15 inches of snow fell in this territory. Judge James N. Tucker of East Killingly recalled this storm Thursday afternoon while speaking of the present remarkable fall weather and sundry other things pertaining to it. Out of memory Judge Tucker was unable to definitely fix the year of this early heavy snow storm but said it was either 1866 or 1867. That storm marked the beginning of heal cold weather and what Judge Tucker describes as a very durable winter. On March 7 of the following spring, Judge Tucker was in Danielson and heard it recounted here that some of the snow that fell on the previous November 13 still remained on the ground. These were the days of what the present generation describe as old fashioned New England winters. "It would appear there has been a remarkable change, although scientific observers of the weather and students of old weather records say that, in the course of a century, there have been many peculiar seasons, with the average for the entire period very much the same.

They came from hither and beyond, and during the afternoon automobiles bearing registrations of six different states were noted parked in the vicinity of the sale. The people of Plainfield learned a big lesson as a result of the disastrous fire of Wednesday night at the A. C. Tillinghast building. The property of the village is dependent on the Lawton Mill fire truck for fire protection. The fire chief is under orders of the mill. Something should be done or the town of Plainfield will be entirely wiped out by a little flame that could easily be put out with a small fire force under orders of one fire chief, and not half a dozen or so. The property owners need to secure some fire protection and not be dependent wholly upon the mill fire apparatus.

Was skeptical of Kellogg's Bran until it gave him back his health

Naturally Mr. Carter—whose letter follows—was skeptical. He had tried practically everything for the relief of constipation. All had failed. But Kellogg's Bran brought him permanent relief, just as it has done for thousands of others. Read his letter:

Gentlemen:
I am 43 years old, and have been for years a great sufferer from constipation. I had to resign a clerical position because of rushes of blood to my head, some of which caused me to fall to the ground. I took an outdoor laboring job and tried for the first time, skeptically I admit, your Krumbled Bran. The result had been wonderful. I began to be normal after I had been on the Bran about three days. No more enemas, no more Old Dr. Sound-So's Pills, Epsom salts by the ton, etc., ad infinitum! You have the most wonderful product for constipation I have ever seen or tried. Yours very gratefully,
L. T. Carter, 294 Nineteenth St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, does not irritate the intestines like drugs and pills. It acts exactly as nature acts. Eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to relieve permanently the most chronic case of constipation, or your grocer will return your money.

You will like the exclusive, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Sold by all grocers. Made in Battle Creek.

PICKING AN INTERIM SENATOR.

Governor Cox of Massachusetts has acted promptly and wisely in the choice he has made of a United States senator from that state to succeed Henry Cabot Lodge. No surprise will be occasioned by the fact that he has chosen William M. Butler to fill out the unexpired term of two years. Mr. Butler comes from the southeastern part of the state, while Senator-elect Gillett comes from the western. He is known as a man possessing the necessary qualifications for the office and a republican in whom full reliance can be placed to uphold the administration.

It is strange how some things work out. When the preparations were underway for the senatorial campaign Mr. Butler was disposed to run a candidate against Senator Walsh. The benefit of Mr. Butler's services was sought by President Coolidge in the conduct of his campaign and he gave up his ambition to become senator to perform such duties. How successful he was in the management of that campaign is fully understood. He gained no small honor in that connection and he had been strongly mentioned for a cabinet post up to the time of Senator Lodge's death, and now he is picked for the upper house of congress and a service which he has been desirous of rendering.

It is to be noted in this instance what a contrast exists between the manner of filling a senatorial vacancy in Massachusetts and that in Connecticut. Senator Brandegee died last month but his successor will not be determined until the middle of next month. Senator Lodge died last week and Massachusetts already has his successor ready for service. For Connecticut it means the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars. For Massachusetts there is no expense at all. It was this very point of eliminating needless and large expense that caused Massachusetts to put the authority of filling such a vacancy in the hands of the governor. Perhaps Connecticut will rise to the situation some day.

THE COMING CONGRESS.

In reaching the decision to undertake no new tax legislation at the session of congress which opens the first of December it is apparent that the administration is desirous of cleaning up the necessary business that must come before the short and closing session of this congress. It likewise seeks to avoid some of those questions which have and which still can provide the obstructors with an excuse for blocking legislation and handicapping the government.

It is true that there has been a presidential election in which the people of the country have voiced their sentiment. It was an election which repudiated those who have been responsible for bloc and obstructionist tactics, but there are those still numbered as members of congress, who are not going to be influenced by that expression. The real effect of the election will be felt upon the next congress, and there's no telling what some of those who will complete their service at Washington next March would do if given a chance to embarrass. Even if there are not enough of those who will go to hold up the administration's programme there are still enough of those who can be expected to join in such activities to make trouble.

There are numerous appropriation measures which must be acted upon at this session. If such a programme is attempted as would revive some of the old contentions it is easy to visualize a deadlocked situation in which certain insurgents would be happy to lead. The very fact that the endorsement given to the Coolidge policies by the country wouldn't be sufficient to drag certain of the trouble makers away from their chosen course. If the tax revising legislation isn't raised at this time the way will be left clear for the enactment of more business than would be the case in trying to get some legislators to respect the wishes of the big majority of the people as disclosed by the vote on the fourth of November. The aim is to make headway instead of inviting obstacles during a limited session.

PROTECTING BUS PATRONS.

All through the existence of the trolley car there has been a constant demand for legislation concerning it, its operation and the company responsible for it that proper protection might be given to the passengers being transported and the public in general. Safety measures in this respect gained recognition quite the same as they have in others.

Busses haven't taken the place of all the trolleys but they are coming into greater use every year, and from such things as are happening to them it is no secret that they must be surrounded, with the same, or similar, means of protecting their patrons.

It was only a few days ago that a bus carrying passengers caught fire on Long Island and it was necessary for firemen to cut into the vehicle before the patrons could be rescued. There was only one exit for use, even in case of an emergency, and certainly a burning but was enough of an emergency for those shut in by the flames.

Perhaps it is unusual for a bus to catch afire, but it is to be realized that they all carry a supply of fuel that is highly combustible and when fire gets to the gasolene there is bound to be serious trouble. In the case of this Long Island bus carelessness in filling the gas tank while the engine was running is given as the cause for the fire. That reveals one of the many reasons why there must be rules and regulations for the operation of such vehicles and a rigid adherence to them after they are established. It is quite as necessary as it is for a motorman to respect signals and obey orders.

If the busses have thus far escaped the protective requirements that are demanded of trolleys it is probably because they are less numerous and have escaped, fortunately, just such experiences as that one on Long Island. For the proper protection of the many the need of safeguards is evident, and in time it will be as obligatory for the passenger-carrying bus as for the trolley car to pay strict attention to them.

CONFIDENCE ESTABLISHED.

When a report that comes from Washington pictures the president as seeing an era of prosperity it is a logical result of the outcome of the election. It shows that the country has responded to the chance to assure itself a government that will mean stability and that will through its soundness and common sense lend encouragement to a long period of business activity.

It is no secret that industry has been waiting to find out what could be expected. It is well known that large orders have been placed for goods that would mean the operation of plants to the capacity, but that such orders have been contingent upon republican success at the polls. When orders have been given subject to cancellation if there was any other outcome it could be no more clearly stated what inspired confidence and where it rested.

Orders which would have been held up had there been any other outcome are now effective. The effect of republican success has been noticeable in several directions. Business is not afraid to go ahead. It gets that degree of assurance from the November 4 result that lends encouragement. It realizes that it can take the brakes off and speed up production once more. That is something that would not have been shared in business circles had the election promised an upheaval and the introduction of radical policies, to say nothing of those which had been tried sufficiently and found wanting.

The outlook is made promising by the result and there's an added amount of confidence that is created by the faith in the outcome with which the president looks forward to the days immediately ahead.

CROSSING DEATH LISTS.

It is a mistake to suppose that engineers view nonchalantly the long death list that has resulted from accidents at crossings. If we were to read their minds we would no doubt find them quite as nervous on the approach to such points, especially the unguarded ones, as is the motorman of a street car when approaching that intersection where children are sliding down hill.

It is not difficult to appreciate their attitude when the American Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in Indiana goes on record as favoring a state law that would require all autoists to come to a stop before crossing a railroad track. Such a law is no different than what some states have provided. It calls for the provision of a certain degree of protection by the very person who needs it. It insists upon a display of respect for the danger at such points and is aimed at the decreasing of that too great toll at such points.

It is better to stop even if there is no train coming, than to take any chances where there is. When there are signals, flagmen or gates the stop requirement would simply preclude the possibility of getting caught on the tracks with a stalled engine, crashing through the gates, running down the flagman or forgetting to look for a signal. Death's crossing and Death's corner can be applied to the many places. In the interest of reducing that total of 14,413 deaths last year in automobile accidents there should be a willingness on the part of the drivers and those who ride with them to devote the brief time required to stop to a greater degree of safety. The engineers appreciate the need of such protection.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There is nothing to indicate that the president needs any help in the picking of his cabinet members.

When Dr. Hutchinson says "your car adds to your life," it may be admitted with a generous sprinkling of ifs.

The man on the corner says: No one ever suspected that it would be the water that would show a shortage.

In five Idaho precincts not a vote was cast election day. Possibly they were all democrats and knew it would be useless.

Remember the republican caucus tonight. Send the right delegates to pick the next United States senator from Connecticut.

If we can judge from the advance in the price, the reported success of the coast guard against the rum runners isn't exaggeration.

It is interesting to note that Emma Goldman has about faced on soviet Russia, but that doesn't gain her admission to this country.

An 18-year-old Providence youth shot and killed his stepmother when she asked him to bring up a hod of coal. It is, of course, too much to expect children of 18 to do anything these days.

Twelve adults and twelve children were killed by autos in Massachusetts last week. How large a death toll must there be before more effective action is taken by the courts to check such waste of life?

NOTHING BUT MONEY

Young Mrs. Lane stood on the porch watching little Janet come dancing up the walk from her very first party. To be sure, it had been only across the street, but Janet had gone alone for the first time in her short four years, and her yellow curls bobbed with excitement as she ran into her mother's arms.

"It was a wonderful party, mudder," she chattered. Mrs. Lane hugged the little body close and tucked back a soft, golden curl.

"Darling, mother's so glad you had such a lovely time"—she stopped suddenly and held Janet off from her. "Janet, where is your new hat? Oh, dear, you didn't——" The small girl dropped her eyes and wrinkled and her cheeks grew pinker.

"Now, mudder, listen." She talked very fast and looked anxiously into her mother's troubled eyes. "I can 'splain it to you easy. There was a nice little girl at the party, her father keeps a strickly fresh-eggs shop; she said so; an' she didn't have not any single hat!" Janet patted her mother's face lovingly and beamed at her as one who has settled a vexed question satisfactorily.

"Janet," Mrs. Lane frowned in despair. "I could shake you! How many times have you been punished for giving away things which you need yourself? What gets into you——"

"But, mudder dear!" the child's lips were trembling now. "I know I promised, but she did need it! An' I've got another perfeckly good hat——"

"Nonsense!" Her mother's voice was sharp with anger. "I shall punish you by taking away your best doll for a month, as I told you I should."

Mrs. Lane sighed helplessly. How could one teach a loving, warm hearted child the ins and outs of giving? After some moments of explanation, Janet wiped the tears away happily and smiled lovingly at her mother.

"Oh, what's the use?" groaned Mrs. Lane, and she crept into her garden to calm her soul by gazing at her prize rosebush.

"It will be just right next week for my party," Mrs. Lane murmured, bending over the fragrant buds.

One fine morning a few days later she again waited in the garden, calling Janet, whom she had not seen for an hour.

"I do believe she has been next door, seeing that cranky old lady again!" she said to herself. "What she sees in her!"

The golden head shone through the hedge. "Mudder," began a happy voice.

But Mrs. Lane was staring in horror at her rosebush.

"Oh!" she cried. "My lovely roses! Who cut them?" Then she looked at Janet. The child's face was scarlet, and she looked down at her little red shoes.

"Janet Lane, did you dare to cut those roses?" Mrs. Lane's voice was trembling with anger. Janet nodded, miserably. She gave one glance into her mother's eyes, then threw herself into her mother's arms, sobbing bitterly.

"Oh, mudder, don't look so awful!" she wailed. "I had to give 'em to Mrs. Bush, 'cause she's terrible poor! She ain't got anything!"

Mrs. Lane shook the child in exasperation. "Poor? That old woman is worth a million! What on earth——"

"But, mudder, Jake said the poor old cuss——"

"Janet!" said her mother sternly, but Janet sobbed on.

"I didn't say 'old cuss,' mudder, but Jake did. He said there wasn't a single person in the whole wide world cared if that old woman died! No one loves her, or lives with her or anything! Jake said she has nothing, not a single thing, just money!"—the little voice broke, and Janet raised stricken eyes to her mother.

"I like her, mudder. She gives me cookies; an' her little girls, every single one, they've gone to live in heaven, she tol' me that. An' at night, mudder," the sobs came fast, "she sits in the window—an' watches you put me to bed—she sits there alone, in the dark!" Janet gasped. "Why, mudder, she's, I 'spect, the poorest woman in the world! She hasn't a thing, only money! So I has to give her the roses, don't you see?"

Mrs. Lane looked up at the great, empty house, then down at the little golden head in her lap. She blinked away the tears.

"Yes, precious," she said gently. "I guess she is poor. Mother's glad you gave her the roses!"—Exchange.

After making a success of this venture he entered Wall Street as an official of a bank where the chance for rapid rise was good and the opportunities for personal initiative many. In six years he had made a record that led to his election as vice-president of the First National Bank; and there he attracted Mr. Morgan's attention and approval. In 1911 he joined the Morgan forces and has since been reckoned one of the chief factors in the great banking firm. During the war he had a conspicuous part in raising loans for the Allies.

Burton Had to Earn His Way

When Marion LeRay Burton refused to give up his ideal for an interest in a business in which his success was assured, he was called a fool.

As a news boy who had come from his native Brooklyn, Iowa, he hustled the streets of Minneapolis. He also piled wood, raised pigeons and did any odd job, all to pay his way while gaining an education.

Obtaining a position as clerk in a drug store at $2.50 a week, he continued to study. Within a year he was earning $3.50, and he mastered pharmacy sufficiently to pass the state examination while he still was in his first year of high school.

At 19 he entered Carleton Academy at Northfield, Minn., and later attended Carleton College, earning his way by teaching Greek at the academy and doing any other work he could obtain.

During the vacation seasons he worked in the drug store in Minneapolis and was so successful that the proprietor offered him a half-interest in his two stores. But Burton decided that he wanted to be a college president and would not forsake his plan.

"Marion, you're a fool," his employer told him.

Returning to the college, Burton worked his way through his final year, and was graduated at 23. The day after commencement he married a classmate and the bridesroom and bride as principal and matron took charge of little Windom Institute where duties were many and compensation modest.

Three years later he entered Yale and made his way by preaching. Offered a life position as professor of philosophy by the regents, he still refused to desert his ideal. Graduated at 33, he became assistant professor there for one year, then accepted a call to be pastor of the historic Church of the Pilgrims of Brooklyn, N. Y.

At 36 he came president of Smith's College, at Northampton, Mass., and as head of the largest woman's college in the world made a marked success. At 43 he was chosen president of the University of Minnesota, in Minneapolis, at a salary of $10,000 a year. Three years later he was made head of the University of Michigan.

And President Coolidge selected Burton to make the speech placing his name before the Republican convention.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

LIVERPOOL

The last city to have its Civic Week at the Wembley Empire Exhibition was Liverpool.

"And Liverpool," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society, "has seen more visiting Americans than any other English city while, it is safe to say, these Americans saw less of Liverpool than they did of any other place in Europe.

"They know that the city has miles and miles of docks; that the world a general unloads upon these docks vast quantities of raw materials, no mean part of which are the cargoes of grain, cattle, cotton, tobacco and meats from the United States. They also know that the busy factories of Lancashire, Yorkshire and the Midlands converge their wares upon these docks; pouring out into the world commerce stream shiploads of woolen and cotton, machinery and metals.

"The flags of sixty steamship lines which ply in and out of Liverpool were on display at Wembley. Two other features of the exhibit were horses and art treasures.

"The Liverpool dray horses are famous. Never ending lines of trucks drawn by these handsome, massive animals move along Liverpool's streets between docks and warehouses and railway stations. The trucks are the type known as 'lorries,' which originated in this city.

"Annually the city has a spring carnival at which parades of the horses form a principal attraction. At Wembley one Liverpool horse is reported to have registered a pull of 21 tons and then, with a second horse, to have exceeded the capacity of the register, which was 29 tons.

"The art treasures were from Liverpool's museum, wherein may be found a gallery of paintings, an aquarium and a public library. The most beautiful building in the city, however, is not the museum, but St. George's Hall, which even though it has been called a piece of 'coal-smoked Greek architecture,' is impressive for its fine, simple and dignified lines. It was the conception of a 24-year old architect.

"One of the notable collections of the museum is that of Joseph Mayer, a silversmith, and in this collection is a box of silver coins with a label bearing an interesting story. When the juvenile Joseph was walking with a relative in the fields one day a ploughman turned up several coins. The relative offered the boy a reward if he would decipher the inscriptions. The boy earned that reward and became so interested in relics of that sort that he became a distinguished antiquary.

"Liverpool once was a city of slums but, even before the World war, the city corporation had begun tearing down unsanitary dwellings and putting up low-price tenements for its workers. There are more than 25,000 dock workers here and more unskilled labor and racial strains, than in any other city of England. It has an abundance of parks and many of these are partly given over to the ancient game of outdoor bowling, which flourishes here as it does nowhere else in England.

"A novel sight akin to the old time curb market in New York, is the spot known as the 'Exchange Flags' where port merchants transact much of their business during seemingly casual meetings. Liverpool also has a famous institution, 'The Seaman's Orphanage,' known to sea travelers because many of the great liners carry an 'orphanage box' to collect funds for this institution, and some of them give entertainments for its benefit.

"Geography played an unmistakable part in the fate of Liverpool. It is located 3 miles from the open sea, up the Mersey River, which widens from a width of less than a mile into a 3-mile wide basin. King John founded a town here, but even in the early eighteenth century when its first dock was built, it had only 5,000 people. It engaged in slave traffic with the Spanish main, and played a stellar part in the romantic days of smuggling of rum, sugar and tobacco. Its prosperity really began in 1840 with the establishment of regular steamship service between the Old World and the New.

"One of its principal articles of export to America, up until the time of the World war, were our immigrant citizens. It was a pioneer port of English emigration and, in addition, many of the American immigrants from Spain, France, Russia, Poland and the Baltic region embarked here.

"There are nearly two-score consulates in Liverpool; that of the United States, it will be recalled, was distinguished by the service of Nathaniel Hawthorne. The Gladstone family have lived here for generations. William Ewart Gladstone was born here, and relatives still are active in the city's affairs.

"Birkenhead, across the Mersey, is a busy city and would be known as an important port in its own right even if it were divested from its overshadowing neighbor. Though there is a tunnel connection the ferries between constitute the busiest in England."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hamilton Holt and the League

Mr. Editor: I notice a day or two ago that Hamilton Holt of Woodstock was almost a unanimous choice of Windham county democrats for United States senator. I have had something to do with democratic politics for more than 40 years, and cannot believe that even a small percentage of Windham county democrats will even consider the candidacy of a man who is pledged to advance the disgusting, un-American democratic party wrecking league of nations.

Cox tried that game and Harding defeated him by 7,000,000.

The last two weeks of the campaign, Davis sprung the same old un-American gag, and democrats by millions voted for Coolidge. If the democrats expect to poll even a respectable vote, Hamilton Holt or any other "English idea" candidate will have to be quietly but firmly chucked into the trash barrel where the league of nations has long ago gone

Stories That Recall Others

'Twas Her Name

She had just won her divorce case and asked for the restoration of her maiden name.

"And what is your maiden name, madam?" the dignified judge inquired.

"Guess," she replied.

Somewhat taken aback the judge cleared his throat, grasped his glasses and asked again, and got the same reply.

Rising to his feet and leaning across the desk sternly into the woman's face, he said, "Madam, this is no guessing contest. Another flippant remark and you will be guilty of contempt.

"But that's my name—Susie Guess," the woman replied meekly.

Cod Liver Oil Now In Tasteless Tablets

Greatest Flesh Builder

No more weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest, when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of magnesia.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor — another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child, aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months, and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets. Lee and Osgood or any good druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only sixty cents for 60 tablets.

"Get McCoy's the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablet."

WILLIMANTIC R. R. CRASH FOLLOWED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Nov. 14.—East-bound track No. 2 of the New Haven railroad and the neighboring track of the Central Vermont railroad were blocked for several hours at a point just east of the Willimantic yard limit opposite Winter street after 12.30 o'clock this morning when Engine No. 3305, bound for Boston, and drawing a long string of coal and freight cars, jammed into the rear of another train stopped on the track, and bound for Providence.

The second train was drawn by Engine A. P. 2-3504.

The coach and one freight car on the last named train were splintered to kindling wood and caught fire. The permanent and volunteer forces of the local fire department answered to a call and worked for over two hours to extinguish the blaze. The coach was empty of occupants and there were no injuries recorded. The trucks of the coach and car were forced underneath two empty petroleum tank cars, derailing these and throwing one partly onto the next track. The third tank car was also thrown off the track.

The wrecking crew from East Hartford arrived shortly before 2.30 a. m., and started the work of clearing the tracks. Traffic was switched over to the Air line track during the tie-up.

AUTO OWNERS EXCEEDED BY INCOME TAX PAYERS

Connecticut is the only state in the Union where there are more income tax payers than automobile owners, according to a survey of the automobile ownership situation in the country which has been made by the chamber of commerce of Akron, O. In New York state, with the next best record, the numbers almost balance—1,103,332 motor vehicles and 1,102,748 taxpayers, the figures being for last year.

As against 6,800,000 income taxpayers in the United States, 15,400,000 automobiles are registered in the several states, making more than two automobile owners for each income taxpayer. Up to November 1, the state motor vehicle department of Connecticut had registered 214,303 motor vehicles, and, in stocking up with registration plates for 1925, a total registration approaching a quarter million is anticipated.

In all but three months thus far this year, motor vehicle registrations in this state have exceeded those for the corresponding months of last year. January was the record month, Nearly 85,000 pleasure cars and over 22,000 commercial motor vehicles were registered during that month, as against 37,754 pleasure cars and over 3,000 commercial cars registered in April, the second best month for registrations. The registrations for May, June and September, 1924, showed a falling off from the registrations of the same months of last year, but the gains were so great in the other months as to make the registration total for the first three-quarters of this year 35,284 in excess of the total for the same period of 1923. The accident rate has been kept from increasing in the same proportion, by the efforts of police and safety organizations in co-operation with the state motor vehicle department. On the first of April, the increase in fatal accidents in 1924 over 1923 was 46. By October 1, this increase had been cut considerably more than half, the increase on that date over the fatal accidents up to the same time of last year being only 22.

IN NEW LONDON JAIL ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Lorenzo Belli, 28, of Mystic, alias Lawrence Beally, was taken to the county jail in New London Thursday night by State Policeman Watson on a mittimus issued by Coroner J. J. Desmond to hold the prisoner on a manslaughter charge, pending the coroner's investigation of the automobile accident on Derry Hill, Montville, last Sunday night when Joseph Kutia of Uncasville was fatally injured. Belli was driving an automobile that struck the motorcycle ridden by Kutia, who died two days later in the Backus hospital here.

Contrary to the report published in a New London paper that Belli had been presented before Justice of the Peace William Smiddy in Montville Wednesday night, the justice said on Thursday night that he had not yet seen the prisoner and he did not know when Belli would be brought before him.

JEWETT CITY MAN HEADS TEXTILE ASSOCIATION

The second annual meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association was held this week at the Plainfield Community house. The membership is made up of overseers, superintendents and agents of mills in eastern Connecticut. The reports of the officers showed that the association is the largest organization of textile overseers in existence, in spite of the fact that it is but two years old. Thirty-two mills are represented in the membership. The retiring president, Harry Richardson of the Aldrich Bros. mill, Moosup, presided at the meeting and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Norman Parkhurst, overseer of carding of the Ninigret mill, Fiske Rubber Co., Jewett City; vice presidents, Fred P. King, master mechanic, Goodyear; George M. Robinson, master mechanic of the Quinebaug Co., Danielson; Leroy Bennett, of the Aldrich Bros. mill, Moosup; Harry C. Crandall, Lorraine Co., Westerly; Walter King, Beechmont mill, Mechanicsville. Prentice W. Chase of the Ashland Co., Jewett City was re-elected treasurer and was also elected secretary.

The reports showed that the funds have been well handled and that the association is in excellent shape, financially and socially. A buffet lunch was served after which there was an interesting talk by Fred L. Babcock, editor of Fibre and Fabric, on his visit to the Southern Textile Show at Greeneville, South Carolina. Fred Hicks of Canterbury entertained with a "rube" sketch that made a hit with the members.

ARREST ON CHARGE OF SELLING LIQUOR

Harry Rosenberg, 39, who lives on Aqueduct street and runs a small grocery store at 39 West Main street, was arrested at the store early Thursday evening by Sergeant Thomas Murphy and Officer John Donovan on the charge of violation of the liquor law. A glass with its contents of what is alleged to be liquor is in the hands of the police as evidence of a sale of liquor. A West Side merchant gave bonds of $1,000 for Rosenberg's appearance in the city court.

FELLOWSHIP WAS SUBJECT FOR CHURCH CONFERENCE

The conference of churches held at Plainfield Congregational church Wednesday was attended by one hundred and seventy people. The church interior has been entirely renovated and the conference had not been held there for two years for that reason. Rev. William Prentiss, the pastor, presided. A voluntary played by Mrs. Henry Leach of Wauregan on the new Lawton Memorial pipe organ opened the services. Rev. Ralph E. Knight of Canterbury offered the invocation, closing with the Lord's prayer. Rev. William Muttart of Preston City read the Scripture from Jeremiah, sixth chapter. Mrs. Henry W. Fontaine sang The Peace of God, by Gounod, as a solo. Rev. J. P. Richardson of Pahcaug offered prayer. Rev. Roderick MacLeod of Hanover, who is soon going to Norwich, N. Y., preached the morning sermon. Peace, peace, and there is no peace was his text. He called the false prophets of Jeremiah's time wishful thinkers. They did everything but prepare for peace and destruction overcame them. He applied the same thought to people of the present day, and gave two helps. First, acquaintance with facts and second, preparation for peace. He said we could help first as a conference by putting ourselves on record as in favor of disarmament, and second, as individuals. Peace may be promoted in the world by always working for peace in the home. We must reconstruct our lives to love all men. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. William Fryling of Wauregan.

Dinner was served in the vestry of the church, Rev. Truman D. Childs of Ekonk asking the blessing. In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Fryling conducted the praise service, Rev. Mr. Childs read the Scripture, Where shall wisdom be found, and offered prayer.

The clerk, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox of Jewett City, read the record of the last conference and called the roll. There were eleven from Griswold, twenty-two from Hanover, sixteen from Jewett City, twelve from Lisbon, twenty-six from Preston City, forty from Plainfield and thirty-nine visitors. Mr. Prentiss asked for remarks from the laymen as this conference was based on Fellowship. Mr. Muttart spoke of the social aspect of the conference, and made the motion that gratitude be expressed for the hospitality of the church and for the music and addresses. George A. Ross of Lisbon spoke in reminiscent way of his connection with the Plainfield Academy Alumni and of the friendly arguments called forth by listening to the addresses. Mr. Prentiss introducing Scout Executive F. A. Benton of Norwich, who gave a brief outline of the Boy Scout benefits, saying that their broad and intensive programme all makes towards the whole plan of world peace. After the offering was received Mrs. Cecil L. Butler and Miss Helen P. Gallup sang a duet, Watchman On the Hills of Zion, by Kirkpatrick.

The first address of the afternoon was by Rev. Walter B. Williams of Danielson, One's Own Programme, was his subject. It is or is it not advisable? Jesus did not fail to give His opinion of a person who is still drifting. He asked men to use their reason to think out and plan the life before them. The budget system is very popular in families and municipalities. Why not in individual lives? There must be a goal if there is a programme. Seek ye first the Kingdom of God. Programmes should give due proportions. He closed with the reading, I have a Rendezvous with Life. Miss Florence L. Leach of Wauregan played a violin selection by Bach. Rev. G. Avery Gates of Hampton spoke on Our Young People. He said the ultimate goal of churches today should be to create a group of men and women inspired with Christian citizenship in the minds of boys and girls. Are not our young people worth more than any other interest in the world? We must work through the group instinct. Another way to foster and help the inmate desire of responsibility. It is for the good of the church that the young people be given positions to fill. Another is the instrument of hero worship. He spoke on the church school and recommended that a woman director be appointed to visit the church schools and create a feeling of responsibility in the children.

Our task today is to make our young people the center of churches. It is the period when we are creating the men and women of tomorrow.

Mr. Prentiss thanked the Friendly society for the carnations, chrysanthemums and red berries which they furnished for the decorations and also asked for a vote of thanks to the busy ministers who had taken the time to come and speak. The conference closed with benediction by Mr. Prentiss.

MAKING 500 INSPECTIONS OF SERVICES DAILY

The 12 special inspectors for the water department are making inspections of about 500 services daily, which are revealing some leaks which, when corrected, will do something toward cutting down waste in the present water shortage. It is probable also that householders who knew they had leaky fixtures have seen to it to have them made tight before the inspectors arrive, so that the special inspections are serving their purpose in saving water.

In preparation for installing the permanent pumping station near Trading Cove brook, President John J. Corkery has purchased 3 1-4 acres of land from James Rogers, near a back road leading from Salem turnpike. The new electrical pump that will be used will probably be received in about two weeks and it is believed that the pumping station can be installed ready for operations in three or four weeks from now.

There is still a 40 days' supply in Fairview reservoir, and a small amount of water is trickling in from Dog Meadow.

CHARGED WITH SALE IN LIQUOR VIOLATION

Tony Debarros, living in the basement of the house at 9 Forest street is under arrest on the charge of violation of the liquor law there Thursday night. It is alleged that he sold a pint of moonshine which the police have as evidence. The arrest was made by Sergeant Thomas Murphy and Officer John Donovan. Debarros was unable to get bonds.

NEED FOR SOCIAL SERVICE WORK IN THE ORIENT

Hartford, Nov. 13.—The effect of the rapid industrial growth of Asiatic countries on Christian missionary endeavors was made manifest here today as leading missionary speakers at the annual meeting of the Atlantic division of the Woman's Board of Missions stressed the need of social service work in Chinese, Japanese, Indian and African cities.

The final session of the board will be held tomorrow morning and will be addressed by Rev. Willis H. Butler and Miss Margaret S. Welles, of India.

At the business session of the board today Brooklyn, N. Y., was chosen as the meeting place for the next annual gathering. The board also voted to attempt to raise $396,200 for "pledge work."

War and politics in China were termed minor problems by Mrs. Lawrence Thurston, presiden tof Ginling college, Nanking, China. Mrs. Thurston addressed the afternoon session on "What Next in China."

DEBATING THE POLITICAL FUTURE OF CAILLAUX

Paris, Nov. 13.—The political future of Joseph Caillaux, former premier of France, who was banished from Paris and certain portions of France following his conviction of treason, today was the center of an interesting debate in the senate on the amnesty bill which was voted by the chamber of deputies at its last session.

Opinions were divided as to whether the senate would follow the lead of the chamber in reopening the political door for the former premier.

Dr. Walter M. Dickie, director of the anti-plauge committee, said authorities have the situation well in hand.

BATTLING THOMAS KNOCKS OUT GANS IN SEVENTH ROUND AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Nov. 13.—Baltimore Joe Gans of Norwich must have experienced something akin to the feeling of the gladiators of ancient Rome facing the wild beasts of the Colleseum when he was thrown into the ring here Thursday night with Battling Thomas, the Boston black demon. It must be conceded that Baltimore Joe is a good fighter with plenty of nerve, but was so entirely outclassed in a bout scheduled to go eight rounds that the majority of those who saw him fight were sorry that he had to absorb so much punishment before his seconds tossed a towel into the ring in the seventh round, bringing an end to a very one-sided contest. Thomas is as tough as the make them. He bored into Gans with a speed and effectiveness of an electric drill working on a ledge, and it was evident from the first that Gans, game fighter that he is, had no chance at all. Nevertheless, the crowd gave Gans an ovation as he left the ring, for he is as game as they make them. He really stayed three rounds longer than there was any excuse for staying, possibly to give the crowd a run for its money.

On the whole, the boxing card staged at the Casino Arena Thursday night was about the best ever seen here. Al Sears of East Boston beat Bobby Kelley of Waterbury in an eight round bout that went the limit. In the second round the flashing right by Sears opened a cut over Kelley's left eye. This wound bled profusely throughout the entire bout and while a minor injury, was without doubt a big handicap to Kelley. In the fourth round one of Kelley's seconds tossed a towel into the ring as a token of defeat but Kelley disdainfully waved an opportunity aside and continued to fight and really did better in the last half of the bout than he had in its early stages. He took a severe beating from Sears, who is a boxer of class, and who easily merited the decision that Referee Billy Conway of Hartford awarded him.

The first preliminary, a six round affair, was won by Bud Shea of Colchester against Jackie Serge of Hartford. These boys fought each other to a standstill and were practically both out on their feet when the final bell rang.

The second preliminary was probably the best ever seen at a boxing match in Danielson. Young Deroster of Woonsocket winning with a knockout over Young Baker of Sterling in the third round. Both of these boys displayed unusual class and gave a slashing exhibition from bell to bell.

Thursday night's card was good enough in every respect to have graced some New York sport club. The fight fans got more than a run for their money and were highly pleased over the fine exhibition that Promoter Barber had arranged for them.

ACADEMY CLASHES WITH CHAPMAN TECH SATURDAY

Tomorrow afternoon on the Academy campus the Red and White team will face the Chapman Tech eleven in the final turn of the league. This will be the second time that these teams have met this season. In their previous contest, which was played at the beginning of the football season, the New London team emerged as victors.

The local eleven is out to even matters with their rivals and are determined to win from the league leaders. The players are putting every effort into their practice to be able to do their level best in the contest and to turn the tables on their rivals.

From their victory over Plainfield High on Monday, the improvement of the team from previous performances was evident. Coach Aitkens has, without any doubt, produced a fighting squad.

On Thursday the first team went into scrimmage against the second string players for the only scrimmage of the week. The first team played a snappy game and ran circles around the scrubs. The players seem to be in fine condition for a hard struggle. Today there will be a final signal drill for 30 minutes.

This game is a deciding contest in the Interscholastic league. If Chapman Tech wins, they will be the football champions of the league. The Academy team will do everything to deprive them of their place at the head of the league. That the Tech team is beatable has been proven by Windham, who dented the Tech record last week. The locals will try to do the same.

A large delegation of students and football fans will be on hand to cheer the home team to victory. The visitors also plan to have a large crowd on hand to witness the contest. A hard fought contest is assured and expected.

The game will start at 2.30 with the following lineup: Haslam c, Gilman or Polsky rg, Hagberg or Stefano lg, Scott rt, Lukowski lt, Carlin re, Hollander le, Williams qb, Higgins lhb, MacGowan rhb, Hinrichs fb.

BINGHAM WILL NOT PLAY AGAINST PRINCETON

New Haven, Nov. 13.—That Shep Bingham, the regular end on the Yale varsity football team, will be unable to play against Princeton Saturday was apparent at the Yale field today, when the squad had its last practice before leaving tomorrow morning for New Jersey. Bingham's knee, which was injured some time ago, has not come along as rapidly as it was hoped and the coaches decided today that it would be unwise for him to play Saturday. It is expected that he will be in shape for the Harvard game the following Saturday. Bingham was at the field today but took no part in the practice. He will go to Princeton with the team and will take part in the light workout in Palmer stadium tomorrow afternoon. But when the whistle blows Saturday it is expected that the left end post will be held down by Ted Hart, who won his letter last year and who has played in several games this season. The loss of Bingham is considered by the Yale squad as a serious one, as he played against both Princeton and Harvard last year and is rated a fast, hard-striking end. Hart, who is a senior, is 20 pounds lighter than Bingham. He comes from New Britain and was prepared at the Taft school. Stanley Gill, another left end on the squad, weighs 10 pounds more than Hart, but has not had the experience that the former Taft school player has had.

The balance of the Yale lineup for the Princeton game, judging from the signal drill this afternoon, will be as follows: Luman, right end; Joss and Butterworth, tackles; Sturhahn and Root, guards; Lovejoy, center; Bunnell, quarterback; Pond, Allen and Cottle, backs.

The team will leave for New Jersey tomorrow morning and the college body will turn out to escort them to the train.

SUB BASE TO PLAY PROV. COLLEGE SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 13.—A football squad of nearly 30 men will depart for Providence on Friday, where the Submarine base will furnish the opposition for the strong Providence college eleven on Saturday. This game will mark the third annual meeting between the teams, with the Submarine base eleven leading with two clean-cut victories in as many attempts against the college eleven.

Regarding the Sub Base eleven as an eleven that is worth a place on a team's schedule near the close of the season instead of the opening game or second contest of the season, the Providence college management has respected the prowess of the gobs to a great extent. For the placing of the tars next to the last game of the season shows that the locals have won a definite place on the Providence college football schedule. And when the tars will invade the Capitol City of Little Rhody it will be that same fighting aggressive eleven which has made its departure from this city on two previous occasions. And from all that can be expected from the college eleven is a game fight, for the sailors are out to win and nothing can daunt them now.

Providence college suffered a humiliating defeat at the hands of Colgate, and with Tryon, formerly of Suffield, leading the attack with two touchdowns, Providence college went down to a 37-0 defeat. But of course the gobs cannot be compared to a machine like Colgate, but still the Whalers' chances for a victory are good. The fact that the Sub Base started their winning streak at the expense of this team two years ago, they are determined to keep up the good work.

There will be no changes in the personnel of the team in the opening lineup, but the substitutes which will wend their way into the contest will be many. For there are many players on the sidelines who are just as good as the men in the game, and a substitution will not materially affect the success of the Base advance upon the Providence college squad. A small band of rooters will accompany the gobs to Providence to cheer them on to a victory.

STONINGTON MEETS BULKELEY IN CROSS COUNTRY TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 13.—Bulkeley is the only obstacle in the path of Stonington cross country runners for a clear title to eastern Connecticut honors. Fresh from its victory over both Chapman Tech and Westerly in the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic track meet held on Armistice day, the Stonington harriers are quite confident of taking the dual meet with Bulkeley on Friday at Stonington.

The race will be run over the same course that the Armistice day meet was held, and though Maggs, who was the winner for Stonington in the run, negotiated the distance in exceptionally good time, he will find some opposition from Captain Jimmie Granata of the Orange and Black team. The recent ruling that no player on the football team could participate in the meet will hit the locals hard, for there are several long distance runners who give great promise of developing into real stars. Among those are LeBlanc and Sheffott. LeBlanc is especially noted for his ability to traverse cross country field and considerable opposition from him would be expected in this meet. He showed up exceptionally well in the interclass meet held last month, and except for the reason that he is ineligible to participate in the meet because he is out for football, will lose a chance for Bulkeley to press Maggs hard for his individual honors.

The meet is expected to get under way at 2.30 o'clock.

WHITE COX BEAT GIANTS IN LAST GAME AT PARIS

Paris, Nov. 13.—The Chicago White Sox today turned the tables on the New York Giants by defeating the latter 8 to 7 in the last appearance of the two American baseball teams in exhibition games at the French capital.

The game was replete with heavy hitting, although played in cold weather. The day was dark and dismal. The pitchers found it hard to get warmed up, while the infielders appeared loath to place cold fingers in the way of sizzling line drives.

The summary:

White Sox	0	7	0	0	0	0	1	0	—8	8	0
Giants	0	4	0	0	0	1	0	2	0	—7	13	2

FIRPO IS SLIPPING BACK VERY FAST

New York, Nov. 13.—The pugilistic star Luis Angel Firpo appears to be settling with the sort of meteoric rapidity which marked its rise.

On top of his decisive defeat in September at the hands of Harry Wills, the decisive setback given Firpo last night at Newark by Charley Weinert has put the famous Argentine's fistic stock at the lowest ebb it has been since he made his sensational debut here in 1922.

Critics who saw Weinert, an acknowledged second-rater, batter the big South American with ease last night generally attributed his poor showing to lack of condition. They gave credit to Weinert for the skill with which he completely outboxed and outguessed his giant opponent but were unanimous in declaring that Firpo was not the same fighter whose terrific right blasted a path through heavyweight ranks in 1923 and who had the title within his grasp when he knocked Jack Dempsey, the champion, out of the ring at the Polo Grounds.

A variety of factors figure in the downfall of the erstwhile Argentine idol, according to observers, but chief among them are his failure to condition himself properly or to put himself in the hands of a competent trainer. Mental worries, brought on by harassing legal difficulties, were blamed for Firpo's showing against Wills but he had no excuse of this sort last night.

Firpo's temperament, most critics aver, has mitigated against his continued success in the ring. Confident of his own strength and ability and convinced that he was the most competent guid of his ring carer, the big South American has steadfastly refused to put himself in other and more experienced hands, for a time he submitted to the training methods of Jimmy DeForest, veteran ring mentor, who guided Firpo through his first few success a year ago, but DeForest's procedure eventually proved irksome to the "Wild Bull" and he severed their relations shortly before his battle with Jess Willard in July, 1923.

As a result of his aversion to accepting American ring methods, Firpo is credited with having made little scientific advancement in the period of two and a half years he has appeared here Shorn of his powerful right in his fights with both Wills and Weinert, his performances have been only slightly less crude than when he waged his first battles in this country.

Firpo's future plans are uncertain. He has several more fights in prospect in the Metropolitan district and elsewhere during the winter, including offers for Tex Rickard for matches with Quintin Romero and George Godfrey at Madison Square Garden.

ILLINOIS MAY PLAY TEAMS IN EAST IN 1925

Chicago, Nov. 13.—(By the A. P.)—A home-and-home game with the leading eastern football team next fall and in 1926, will be scheduled by Coach Robert Zuppke, of the University of Illinois eleven, it was learned here tonight when the Illini entrained for Minneapolis to meet Minnesota Saturday.

As the probable winner of the 1924 western conference championship, Illinois has been considered as a likely opponent for several eastern teams for a game in 1925, and it is said, overtures have been made by the University of Pennsylvania, which stands alone undefeated among the eastern teams this year, as the Illinois opponent in Philadelphia in 1925.

If the game is scheduled, Coach Zuppke and George Huff, director of athletics, will insist upon a home-and-home agreement, so that Pennsylvania may come west to play in the new Illinois stadium with a seating capacity of 67,000 in 1926.

The likelihood of an eastern game for the Illini next fall has almost eliminated talk of a meeting next year between Illinois and Notre Dame, and the fact that the post-season invitation of Notre Dame this year was at once negatived by Zuppke under the conference rule forbidding them. Two years ago Ohio received permission to play on the Pacific coast at Christmas, on the stipulation that such permission never again would be granted another "Big Ten" team.

Alumni of both Illinois and Harvard have been working for an agreement for a game next fall between these schools, but the extent of the negotiations has not been revealed. The "Big Ten" football schedule makers meet here December 6 to arrange games for next year.

Volleyball League Organized.

A new volleyball league was organized in the business men's gym class at the "Y" yesterday afternoon, and the opening games proved unusually fast and exciting. There are four teams, captained by H. E. Robbins, A. G. Bliven, A. Finlayson and Dr. A. J. LaPierre. The games are played every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon and men interested in seeing this popular game played are invited to visit the association.

Standing of the teams:

	W.	L.	P.C.
Cubs	3	0	1.000
Yankees	1	2	.334
Braves	1	2	.334
Giants	1	2	.334

Terris Wins.

New York, Nov. 13.—Sid Terris of New York, knocked out Mel Coogan, of Brooklyn, in the sixth round of a 12-round bout here tonight. The weights were Terris 133 3-4, Coogan 133 1-2.

Spalla Posts Challenge Money.

Milan, Nov. 13.—Erminio Spalla, Italian heavyweight, today deposited 2,000 lire with Giacomo Grassi, vice president of the International Boxing union, as a guarantee of the authenticity of his challenge to fight Jack Dempsey for the world's championship.

BASEBALL IS MORE HIGHLY APPRECIATED BY FRENCH CHILDREN THAN BY ELDERS

Paris, Nov. 13 (By the A. P.)—It remained for the children of Paris to appreciate the game of baseball, when their elders had failed to do so. Lustily-lunged crowds of French war orphans—boys and girls—today cheered the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox as they played their final game in Paris, and many of them were even keen enough to see the fine points of the play.

There was whistling and applause from the youngsters in the second inning when the Giants tallied four runs, and still more bedlam when the White Sox during their time at bat made seven tallies. Again pandemonium broke out in the seventh when the Giants, who had scored a run in the fifth, brought in two more runs and tied up the game 7-7, and when the Sox immediately afterwards scored again with what proved to be the winning run.

The orphans attended the game by invitation of Managers McGraw and Comiskey, who had been disappointed by the failure to the grown-ups to show any interest in the sport.

That the playing took a great hold on the French children, who were from seven to 12 years old, was made evident when the giant shortstop, Jackson, failed to grab a hot ball. The urchins yelled almost in chorus, "Oh, what a shame." The little girls remained dignified throughout the game, but the boys were boys. That they were watching the technique of the play was seen toward the seventh inning when one of the lads was overheard to remark: "Ah, now I see. If the ball arrives at first base before the batter then the batter is out." This astounding progress in comprehension of the American national game was hailed gleefully by all the French-speaking American fans nearby.

The cry of "Death to the arbiter!" shouted by some carefully coached French youths, rather nonplussed Umpires Ed Walsh and Walker until it was explained to them that the words were merely the equivalent of the American bleacherite shout of "Kill the umpire."

The honor of throwing out the first ball for the game fell to 16-year-old David Ger—r, a Boy Scout and pupil of the Paris American high school, who, because of his four and a half years' residence in Paris, was impressed by Hughey Jennings into slanting Hughey's "Ee-yahs" and "Two gentlemen out" to France's young hopefuls.

Today's game evens the overseas series, each club having six wins to its credit. The players will leave here Saturday for Rome, after which their trip will be purely a sight-seeing one.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED AT DARTMOUTH-CORNELL

New York, Nov. 13.—Two armies converged upon New York tonight. Down from the New Hampshire hills came the Hordes of Hanover, while from Ithaca the Cornell host set forth the two forces to meet in football war at the Polo Grounds Saturday.

The home of world series will see one of the greatest football arrays it has ever known, the rooters of Dartmouth on the north numbered in thousands, and equal contingents of Cornell in the southern stands. Bands of many pieces and quartets of cheer leaders will be there for the contest.

Seven times have the forces met and on four occasions the Indians of the north have obtained scalps. For three years, however, the big red tornado loosed by Gil Bodie has swept all before it, piling Dartmouth football warriors under their own goal posts.

Dartmouth rules a slight favorite as a result of its victory over Harvard and a tie with Yale, while Cornell has been tumbled by Williams and Rutgers, but the Ithacans' impressive score of 21-0 rolled up against Susquehanna last Saturday has served to make the annual game look more interesting.

The lay football fan, he who goes to watch the play rather than represent his college, recalls the upsets of one of the most surprising football years in all history in arguing that Cornel will win.

Both elevens will indulge in light practice at the Giants' home tomorrow afternoon. From indications tonight fully 55,000, the stands' capacity, will be on the sidelines when the game starts at 2 o'clock.

JUNIOR OARSMEN WIN FROM FRESHMAN CLASS

New Haven, Nov. 13.—In the final of the shell races in the annual Yale fall class regatta, junior A defeated freshman A by one-quarter of a length over the Henley distance of one and five-sixteenths miles. The time was 6.41 3-5. The junior eight gained its title by winning over 12 other crews during the week. It will continue rowing with the varsity, which will take up its work on the harbor Monday.

The men in the winning junior shell were as follows:

Guthrie cox, Coates stroke, Russell 7, Brown 6, Crosby 5, Stocker 4, Edwards 3, Bishop 2, Emerson bow.

Those in the winning barge boat were:

Thayer cox, Crowell stroke, Nelson 7, Bryant 6, Huntington 5, Light 4, Scott 3, Theissen 2, Smith bow.

CORNELL BRINGS SQUAD OF 33 TO NEW YORK

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 13.—The Cornell varsity football squad of 33 men, accompanied by the coaching staff, left late tonight for New York, where on Saturday it will meet Dartmouth at the Polo Grounds.

A rousing send-off was given the team tonight. The rally was followed by a parade to the station. About 1000 undergraduates and Ithacans accompanied the team to New York. All of the regulars were reported in good shape.

WINDHAM SEEKS GAME WITH HARTFORD HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Nov. 13.—Having safely tucked away all comers, including the gild-framed Chapman aggregation, Windham High now looks with a challenging eye for something worth while in the line of a post-season game. Coach Johnny Newell of the Hartford Public High school squad makes it known that he does not object to a post-season game between his eleven and the undefeated Windham eleven. Coach Newell's word is not taken as a definite reply, however, for he has failed to say "yes" or "no" and therefore falls in the decided but weak-to-say class of several other coaches in other schools. Windham is r'arin' to go in the coming tilt with its bitter adversary, Manchester High, next Saturday afternoon at Recreation park. Tommy Meikle's improved punting displayed in last week's walk-away, has caused much rejoicing among the Hill bunch and will probably come in handy Saturday.

The Monties Athletic club basketball quintet, under Manager Walter Corcoran, will again play the South Willington "Y" five on November 24. The Monties have brought down defeat on the "Y" bunch for three consecutive years. The Monties rank is after games and some of the teams which they look upon as favorite dishes to fill on their schedule are the Battery B of Danielson, the Baltic Wanderers and the Colchester town team. The Monties players for the season are: Jake Mandell, Paddy Haggerty, Louie Rabinowitz, Marty Prue, Artie O'Connor and Wally Corcoran.

COMBAT TRAIN FORFEITS GAME TO FABER'S DEMONS

When Leo Cimikowski, manager of the Combat Train indoor baseball team, refused to continue the game with Faber's Demons Umpire Malcolm forfeited the game to the Demons, 9 to 0. Leo put up a terrific argument claiming that he could not play because his pitcher, Lieut. Tracy Burdick, had to leave the game to catch a car. When Lieut. Burdick left, the Combat Train team went to pieces and Leo seeing that there was a strong possibility of his team coming out on the long end of the score he took his team off the field forgetting that the umpire had something to say about the game.

Leo had his heart set on beating the Demons but when he saw them coming strong he picked the first hole that presented itself and then started to crawl in and pull it in after him. When the game suddenly terminated the Combat Train was leading by a scant margin of one run the score being 8 to 7.

LOCAL BOY KAYOED IN NEW HAVEN BOUT

New Haven, Nov. 13.—Georgie Day, of New Haven, fought Johnny Rocco, of New Rochelle, to a draw in a 10-round bout at the second Nutmeg A. C. indoor boxing show at Music hall here tonight.

Tony Travers, of New Haven, was given the referee's decision over Johnny Mason, of Bridgeport in a six round bout.

Laurie Rich, of New Haven and Frankie Mura, of New Haven, fought to a draw in a six round bout.

Phil Mercurio, of New Rochelle, knocked out Frankie Bush, of Norwich in the first round of a scheduled six round bout.

Jackie Pilkington, of Meriden and Tommie Jarrett, of New Haven fought a four round draw.

PLANS TO ROUND NAVAL AIR ARMAMENT

Washington, Nov. 13.—Steps to round out naval air armament to an extent which may revolutionize basic strategy were announced today by the navy department.

A contract has been let with a commercial company for a new type of navy flying boat capable of a long sustained flight at more than 100 miles an hour and with a useful load capacity of up to two tons. Two other planes different in design but with the same elements of tremendous cargo space and cruising radius are to be constructed at the Philadelphia yard.

While naval officers contended themselves with the assertion that the new craft represented "a logical development in naval auxiliaries," they did not seek to minimize the importance of the proposed construction in connection with modern studies of sea warfare.

Regardless of their attitude in the omnipresent controversy over offensive value of aircraft, navy officers are agreed that possession of a few squadrons of flying boats of the type contemplated would enable the United States to embarrass seriously the success of any surprise attack coming from a long distance, if their mere existence would not serve to prevent any such attempt.

Recent fleet maneuvers have involved a sudden enemy attack on the Panama canal, the outcome hinging largely upon the enemy's success in establishing a temporary base either in Central America or upon some coastal island.

In the last two annual tests the theoretical enemy gained his object through failure of the defending scouts to locate the advance—started prior to declaration of war—in time to permit the organization of a screen in its path. In each case, the final conclusion of the reviewing authorities stressed the necessity of improving the "eyes and ears" of the American command.

The new planes, with ability to hop off unsupported from San Diego for Honolulu would be invaluable as far-flung scouts in any critical period preceding an expected international crisis. They would be able to maintain touch with the enemy and, if claims of air service enthusiasts are confirmed, could delay it materially by a constant threat upon the enemy train. The sinking of one or more fuel ships or provisions carriers would be sufficient, some officers hold, to force abandonment of any expedition which was 1,500 to 2,000 miles from any available base.

Carrying a step further their analysis of the effect of the new "flying squadron," some officers see in them at least a partial solution to the problem which was raised when the United States gave up under the arms limitation treaties the right to fortify Guam and the Philippines. Observers here and abroad declared at that time it would be impossible for the United States either to defend her Pacific possessions or to conduct a defensive-offensive naval war in their vicinity because of the lack of a base.

Should the proposed auxiliaries come up to expectations, however, they would comprise an emergency naval force, practically independent of their continental base and a ready supplement to the insular defense certain to embarrass any occupational plans as now drawn.

The new plane is described in official literature as a "boat type metal patrol plane." It will be constructed almost entirely of duralumin, the light alloy of which the framework of the Shenandoah is built.

As illustrating the rapid development of naval air craft the department today compared the new flier with those of the historic NC type which made the first trans-Atlantic flight only five years ago. The weight of the NC was 28,000 pounds, its sustained speed probably not more than 50 miles per hour, and its range 1600 miles. The new navy plane will have a loaded weight of 24,000 pounds, but a range of nearly 1,000 miles more and double the speed. The NC wing span was 162 feet, compared with 87 feet 6 inches for the new type.

The five men to compose the crew will include two pilots, two mechanics and a radio operator. The tandem engines will develop 1450 horsepower.

FRENZIED TRADING STILL CHARACTERIZES STOCK MARKET

New York, Nov. 13.—(By The A. P.)—Frenzied trading characterized today's stock market, the fifth consecutive "two million share" session, with the "bulls" and "bears" struggling for control, and the days honors again about evenly divided. Bullish demonstrations, centering in the industrial shares, lifted more than fifty stocks to new peak prices for the year with the general industrial average at its highest level since the early part of 1920. The general railroad average showed a decline of 3-4 of a point. The day's sales were slightly in excess of 2,228,000 shares.

United States Cast Iron Pipe again furnished the pyrotechnics of the session, soaring more than eight points to a record high for all time at 147 1-4 as the badly trapped "shorts" rushed to cover. It later reacted to 142. American Can, which has been heavily bought recently on rumors of a stock split-up and an increase in dividend, jumped more than five points to a record top at 153 1-2, but forfeited two points of its gain in the late wave of profit taking.

United States Steel common crossed 115 to the highest price in five years. Net gains of 3 to 5 points were scattered throughout the list with Savage Arms, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, H. R. Mallison, Postum Cereal, Western Union, General Asphalt common and preferred, Coca Cola, Maxwell Motors "A" and Texas Gulf Sulphur among the list of new highs in the industrial group.

Failure of the directors of the Southern Pacific to increase the dividend, which had been widely predicted in speculative quarters, threw a wet blanket over the railroad shares, but not until after "Katy" preferred, Missouri Pacific preferred, Atlantic Coast Line and a few others had registered new maximum prices for the year. Southern Pacific broke from 103 1-2 to 101 following the regular dividend announcement.

Wheat prices jumped 3 to 4 cents a bushel on buying based on the sharp reduction of twenty million bushels in the Canadian crop estimate and the heavy export demand. Profit taking reduced the net gains to from 2 1-2 to 2 3-4 cents a bushel. Corn prices closed about 7-8 to 1 3-8 cents a bushel higher.

RUSSIAN MERCENARIES STATIONED AT MACHANG

Washington, Nov. 13.—Advices to the state department from Peking report the presence of a battalion of Russian Mercenaries stationed at Machang among the 40,000 Fengtien troops in the neighborhood of Tientsin.

It's ten to one that after the winner has been announced there is more change in the race-goer's appearance than there is in his pockets.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Jailing the Fox

"Oh dear, Oh dear," whined Danny Fox.
Looking down at his tip-toe sox
"I'm afraid I won't go home tonight
Things all of a sudden don't seem bright."

He spoke the truth for once in his life, did this old robber. For I'm sure you remember, little reader, what happened in the story before this. How Danny Fox had tried to steal the wrist watch from dear Uncle Lucky, the pretty watch which that dear old gentleman rabbit was taking to Little Miss Mousie.

"What sort of a prisoner have you."

"It's lucky I happened to be around," said the Yellow Dog Tramp, as Uncle Lucky backed the Luckymobile to the spot where the old fox stood tightly bound.

The next minute the old dog tossed him into the car. Then jumping up beside the old gentleman rabbit, away they sped for the Rabbitville Jail.

"What sort of a prisoner have you?" asked the Jail Keeper, and old Turkey Gobbler with a red face.

"Take a look," barked the Yellow Dog Tramp. But goodness me! When that Turkey Gobbler saw Danny Fox his face became as white as a sheet. Foxes and turkeys are not the best of friends, you know. In fact, foxes eat turkeys any day they can catch them. They don't wait for Thanksgiving. No sireebus.

"I'll open Cell No. 23 if you'll bring in the prisoner," at last promised the Turkey Gobbler when he found his voice. Dear me, he was so frightened that he spoke below a whisper, which, however, the Yellow Dog Tramp heard all right, for he had sharp ears.

As soon as Danny Fox was securely locked in his cell, grateful Uncle Lucky took a checkbook from his inside coat pocket, and, with his gold-headed fountain pen wrote out two checks, one for a hundred Lettuce Leaf Dollar Bill which he handed to the Yellow Dog Tramp and one for ten Carrot cents which he gave to the Jail Keeper. Then, waving his old wedding stovepipe hat, the old gentleman rabbit sped away in the Luckymobile for his little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street.

"Dearest me," he exclaimed, "it's growing late. I certainly have had a peck of troubles and a bushels of worries today. I hope Little Miss Mousie hasn't given my birthday cake to somebody else. If I don't hurry it will be morning and my birthday at the same time.

Oh kindly little fireflies,
Please show a tiny spark.
I scarce can see the winding road
It is so dreadful dark."

at last begged the anxious old bunny man.

Then, at once, and none too soon, maybe a thousand friendly little fireflies lighted their lanterns, making the road almost as bright as day, and in the next story, unless Billy Breeze should blow them out, which I'm sure he won't, for he is very fond of dear Uncle Lucky,—I'll tell you what happened after that.

BISHOP BREWSTER STRONG FOR LEAGUE OF NATIONS

At Hartford Tuesday, Bishop Chaunncey B. Brewster of the Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut, in an address at an armistice Day service in Christ Church Cathedral predicted that the League of Nations would yet be considered the most prominent movement since the beginning of the Christian era, and scored the "isolation" policy of the United States.

Referring to that policy, he said:

"First, it is contrary to all American ideals to let the rest of the world go to the devil.

Secondly, it is impossible.

"The great war demonstrated the futility of keeping out of a general European war. It must be one of two alternatives which must rule—either brute force or reason and law. To insure reason and law there must be a preconcerted covenant between the nations. It can't be left to haphazard conferences, which may or may not bring peace; continual and effective cooperation is needed."

In closing he urged that Christians set their faces against things which make for war, and urged that they work for three things:

"To secure our adherence to the World Court as an authority of international law; an agreement with other nations in regard to laws of aggressive warfare, and for a representative of this government at the conference of nations convention in June."

PROFESSOR GARRIGUS WILL JUDGE AT CHICAGO

Professor H. L. Garrigus of Connecticut Agricultural college has been selected to judge milking shorthorn cattle, grade and cross-breed sheep, and junior feeding contest lambs at the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, Nov. 29-Dec. 6, the world's largest livestock show.

It is announced that President Coolidge has promised to visit the international on Monday, December 1, which sets a precedent for American chief executives, although in England it is a tradition that the king shall formally open the principal livestock exposition of Great Britain.

So far as known Connecticut livestock will not be represented at Chicago, lack of funds preventing the college from sending some of its prize winners at the Eastern States Exposition this fall.

Broadway Theatre

A real snappy, diversified program of Keith vaudeville and picture was the offering at the Broadway theatre yesterday.

The Clinton Sisters opened the program with interpretative costume dancing entitle "Cartooning in Dancelland," which covered Chinese gypsies and Egyptian costumes. It is a pretty offering.

Syncopated melodies and steps is the offering by Esther Covington and Jack Ken, entitled "King and Queen of the Blues." It is a deft act.

Fun followed when Archer & Belford, in "The New Janitor" came on the stage. It is a travesty on the monarch of the apartment house and is enhanced by song, which received good returns.

A character skit called Taka Da Flowers, presented by the well known character comedians, Bell & Naples is a bouquet of fun and songs. It's a great act.

The Gladiators, Siegel & Irving, in feats of strength and prodigious, closed this fine show.

The photoplay feature, Yankee Madness with Billie Daye and George Larkin featured and a new Kinograms were the pictures on this program.

Broadway Theatre

Headed by Antonio Moreno and Helene Chadwick in featured roles, a remarkably strong cast has been assembled the newest Zane Grey-Paramount production, "The Border Legion," to be shown at the Broadway theatre starting Sunday.

Moreno has a different sort of role as Jim Cleve, a gay, young irresponsible cowboy. Miss Chadwick's role is that of a typical daughter of the West—young, beautiful, unafraid.

According to Zane Grey, this is a true story. It is clean, wholesome and typically American, chock-full of action, appeal, drama and love. William Howard did the direction, and George Hull wrote the screen play.

The entire production was made in the wild and little-known mountains of the Northwest with the marvelous natural scenery as background.

"The Border Legion!" is the 'Western' of the season!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

An interesting bit of nautical lore was unearthed during the remodelling of a four-masted sailing vessel for the David Smith production of Rafael Sabatini's famous novel, Captain Blood, which will be shown at the Palace theater four days starting Sunday, Nov. 16. A sailing ship with a hull as nearly like t he Arabella, which Captain Blood sailed, as was possible to obtain was purchased by Vitagraph and a corps of experienced ship's carpenters set to work remodelling it.

In changing the ship to conform with the lines of the Arabella, which was afloat in 1685, it was necessary to move one of the masts to a point aft of its present location. When the mast was moved two old coins were found under the butt of the towering stick.

The coins found on the Taurus were an old English coin dated 1680 and a German piece of a few years later. The history of the ship does not disclose the reason for the combination although at one time it is believed that she sailed between England and German ports.

Breed Theater

Can you imagine Buster Keaton trying to run a 450-foot ocean liner all by himself? Can you see the trouble he gets into with such objects as sextants, diving suits, mizzenmasts and all the various paraphernalia of sea travel?

It's all in his latest Metro-Goldwyn comedy, The Navigator, which is the feature a traction at the Breed theater today and Saturday. This production is said to be funnier than anything Keaton has ever done before.

Kathryn McGuire is his leading lady, and others in the cast include Frederick Vroom, Noble Johnson, Clarence Burton, H. M. Clurston. The story was written by Jean Havez, Clyde Bruckman and Joseph Mitchell. Donald Crisp and Keaton himself directed. The Navigator is presented by Joseph M. Schenck. Pictures of the big Armistice day parade will also be shown and William Duncan in The Fast Express, the Pathe news and an Educational make up the remainder of the bill.

Palace Theater

Dynamite Smith fulfills Thomas H. Ince's promise that he would bring Charles Ray back to the old familiar role of the gawky, earnest, bashful youth that endeared him to millions. Dynamite Smith, as it was shown yesterday at the Palace theater where it remains until Saturday, is disclosed as a gripping, tense and at times terribly thrilling drama.

Dynamite Smith is a big story by C. Gardner Sullivan, splendidly directed by Ralph Ince, with each role perfectly portrayed. Beery is as villainous as he is expected to be on the screen, Bessie Love plays the role of Violet with all the pathos and poignancy for which she is noted, and Jacqueline Logan is all that could be desired as Smith's sweetheart. If your emotions need exercise, see Dynamite Smith! If not, see it anyway.

Short subjects, Walter Heirs latest comedy, A Fat Chance, Pathe news and Sport light, Saturday only. Episode two Ten Cents Make a Man.

Conn. College Concert

Chopin is universally considered the pianist's composer. Josef Hofman is a master pianist. And it is when he plays Chopin that Hofman drives the critics to their most enraptured moods.

When he gave his last All Chopin program at Carnegie Hall, New York, Richard Aldrich of the Times said, "A program devoted entirely to Chopin was offered yesterday by Joseph Hofman and in performing it he worked again the wonders that have so profoundly impressed and delighted this public in the past, and did so once more to an audience filling the hall."

At next Tuesday's recital Hofman will play the Waise, op-64, No. 2 Nocturne, op. 55, No. 2, and Scherzo in B minor, all by Chopin.

During the musical season the New York public has a daily choice of an opera and at least three concerts for its musical entertainment. In these circumstances Hofmann attracted an audience of about 4,000 which is the capacity of Carnegie hall.

Since last summer's alterations the New London State Armory can seat a maximum of 1,300 and this concert is the only major offering, musically speaking, of the day, and perhaps the entire week in this part of the state. Surely the inference is plain, and if this public can be made to understand the significance of Hofmann's coming, there should not be a vacant seat in the armory.

Economy Grocery Co. New Stores

The Economy Grocery Co., which conducts a large chain of stores through Connecticut will open two more stores in Norwich making four stores in the city and one in Taftville. The Economy Store Co., operates more than 400 stores in Connecticut. A Look In Our Window Will Tell The Story.

"THE FARMER'S CREED"

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Some one sent me, the other day, a clipping called, "The Farmer's Creed," consisting of nine or ten affirmations of belief in regard to as many agricultural dogmas.

At least half of the individual declarations were just plain hokum,—fine sounding words without any definite meaning attached to them, such as, "I believe in the farmer, I believe in farm life, I believe in the inspiration of the open country." Of course. The writer might as intelligently have added, "I also believe in the Muchness of Much, the Whichness of Which, and the Inevitableness of the Future."

Such vague and glittering generalities may tickle the average city reader as just fine. But to the practical farmer, on a dirt farm, stones and weeds farm, they seem a good deal like sounding brass and tinkling cymbals. They really say nothing; they amount to nothing; they mean nothing.

They remind me a good deal more of the taffy passed around among his rural constituents by some imitation farmer, out on a still hunt for votes, and trying to fool the natives into thinking he actually knows the difference between a farm and a "country estate."

It's astonishing how much of that cheap confection is used by candidates for office. I have never happened to meet a real farmer who was willing to admit that he had any use or liking for it. Yet it continues to be sploshed over the "rooral deestricks" in unlimited quantities. Its dispensers think they get results from it. And they are, as a rule, fairly shrewd judges of what their particular market calls for. They wouldn't continue to stive it away in wholesale amounts if they didn't think they could see returns from it.

Dietitians tell us that our digestive apparatuses don't want and won't handle effectively condensed food, food which is pure nutrition and nothing else. The stomach wants, not only something containing food elements, but a lot of "filling" with them. There may be as much real nourishment, actual food value, in a table-spoonful of dried pemmican as in a half-dozen bran buns. But the stomach for reasons of its own wants quantity as well as quality. It works better when it is reasonably stuffed, even if most of the stuffing is just bran.

Possibly it is so with some so-called "Creeds," including this "Farmer's Creed" of which I'm talking. Condensed to the minute nuclei of demonstrable truth which are all our pitifully finite powers can hope to segregate, they would neither tempt the appetite nor satisfy the stomach. So they are, a good many of them, padded out and stuffed with what I've already called "hokum," for purposes of marketability and general digestibility.

I hope no "fundamentalist" or "modernist" will think I'm taking a sly dig at his particular creed in saying this. Such a thing is farthest from my thought. I'm only talking about the various economical and social and political creeds to which we are invited to subscribe: Creeds which have to do with things material and tangible. In politics they call 'em "platforms;" in social matters they call 'em "rules of good form;" sometimes one thing and sometimes another.

Now, I never read a political platform, yet, to which I fully subscribed. I never heard of a rule of "good form" which wasn't, sometime or other, better honored in the breach than in the observance. The best choice anyone using his own brains can make is between two imperfections. It isn't a question of ultimate and immaculate good, but a choice between two mixed combinations, and a decision as to which has the fewer errors and hits the nail on the head hardest.

So in this Farmer's Creed which some friend sent me,—and which I'm not quoting in full because it's too long, and too mealy-mouthed in spots,—there are things I can't agree with and things which seem to me insincere, "hokum" in fact. But there's just one article which I can indorse with both hands and a full throated, "Aye, Aye, Sir." That article reads as follows: "I believe in a permanent agriculture, a soil that shall grow richer rather than poorer from year to year."

Never mind anything else; never mind the looseness and indefiniteness which marks other clauses; never mind the manifest condescension which shows itself in some; never mind the "hokum" which rums up others. That one stands out like an oasis in a desert, like the shadow of a great rock in a weary land, like a wide-portaled opening into a worth while road.

I have often thought, if I were called on to make up a Ten Commandments for Farming, that the first one would read something like this: "Thou shalt leave thy farm better than thou found it." That is really the same idea formulated in this first article of this Farmer's Creed. It is a condensation and epitome of the gospel of agricultural progress. It accentuates the worldwide difference between creditable farming and some other industries,—mining, for example.

Practically all pioneer farming and altogether too much of that done in the great west today, is more like mining than like real farming.

The miner sees outcropping on the surface indications of a deposit of some mineral. He digs after it, digs it up, digs it out, cuts it off,—and moves on to some other vein which he exploits in the same way. He found a smiling landscape and a soil green with spring herbage. He leaves a hole in the ground and a few heaps of worthless debris. He mines till he has exhausted the deposit of precious ore. Then he departs, leaving only wreckage behind him, to work similar devastation elsewhere. This seems to be necessary in mining, and therefore, not to be criticised too sharply. One can't make an omelette without breaking eggs.

But one can make a farm without ruining anything in the process. Moreover, he can, once having got his farm, make it a better farm this year than it was last, and continue improving it till he gets his ticket-of-leave. That's the main, original, essential difference between true farming and farm-mining. The farmer who settles down on new land, rich with the accumulated humus of ten million years, who tills it sufficiently to release that stored-up fertility, who sells off the output and makes no further effort, is simply a ravager, a miner, a treasure-hunter. He is not a farmer. What's the difference between despoiling the earth of the gold and silver and copper which has been storing up ever since the birth of the planet, and despoiling it of the fertility which it has been accumulating during a similar period? It is simply in name; not in effect.

The true farmer, on the other hand, takes his farm as a good father takes his first-born, as something to nourish, to train, to educate, to help grow and develope. He looks to see it bourgeon into something better and more worth while every year. Is a hundred bushels of potatoes to the acre the best the south lot will do? He mobilizes his brains and his muscles, his dung-forks and his cultivators, his manure-spreaders and his fertilizer drills, his hoes and his perspiration, and attacks that field from all six sides, north and south, east and west, above and below. The banner he flies is not inscribed "Pikes Peak or bust," but "150 bushels to the acre, or I'll know why not!"

When he has attained that success, he makes it just the first stepping-stone towards one still higher. The French Coue may rattle off his catchword:

"Every day, in every way, I'm getting better."

The true farmer's motto is

"Every year, while I am here, I'll make this old farm better."

No mining out of all existing fertility for him: for every gift the smiling soil offers him he returns, not merely a perfunctory "Thank you," but a generous quid pro quo. He knows that gratitude for favors shown is best manifested by deeds, not words. He isn't content to accept as a whole truth, "As ye sow so shall ye also read," for he knows that the truest success demands not only good seed but thorough tilth, adequate fertilization, and an intelligent replacement of the humus which his annual crops use up.

I don't know much about boys. It's so long since I was one that I've about forgotten how their minds act. But I have a theoretical belief that, however deeply the city bug may bite some, there are others who are susceptible to finer emotions and more worthy ambitions. I can't doubt that there are some who would be irresistibly attracted by the idea of a "permanent agriculture" on soils growing "richer rather than poorer from year to year."

If such could be made to see how, under father's fostering care and farsighted management, the old farm had grown and was annually growing into a rich and dependable treasure-field, and how it was possible for them, when they took charge, to carry it on still further and higher—if such a thing could be brought to pass, I don't know but it would help to keep a few of the sorely needed boys on the farm.

There's some glory in winning a baseball pennant or a football match. So there is in making two blades of grass grow where but one grew before, or in rolling out 400 bushels of potatoes from a field which once had to be hunted over to scrape up 100 bushels. The former glory moreover, is ephemeral and soon forgotten; the latter abides.

THE FARMER.

IF EVERYTHING WENT JUST SO

If everything went just so! Ah me,
What a wonder-world this world would be;
Nothing to do but grin and agree—
If everything went just so.
No use for lawyers or scrolls of law,
No courthouse stairway to climb in awe;
No one would care what he heard or saw—
If everything went just so.

Taxes would never be hard to pay;
First-of-the-month would be just a day;
Debts would be luxuries laughed away—
If everything went just so.
Chickens would never scratch neighbors' yards,
Children of neighbors would all be pards;
No one would lose at Life's game of cards—
If everything went just so.

Have family dinners and all be there,
Each bring a smile and have smiles to spare;
Start with song and close with a prayer—
If everything went just so.
Clotheslines would never have falling props,
Windows would never be smashed by tops;
Nobody ever would call the cops—
If everything went just so.

Doctors and nurses we would not need,
"Say it with flowers" would be our creed,
We'd step on the gas and all show speed—
If everything went just so.
Never a worry and never a sob,
Never an argument, never a mob;
But, O, the folk who'd be out of a job—
If everything went just so!

Freeman et al a certain parcel of land with buildings, furniture and furnishings at Weekapaug Point. Frank W. Coy conveyed to John Payne and wife, Bessie B. Payne, as joint tenants, not as tenants in common, lot No. 57 on the easterly side of Highland avenue. The Frank W. Coy Real Estate company gave title to Frank W. Coy of the undivided one-half interest in certain tracts or parcels of land, lots Nos. 5, 6 and 29 1-2, Uplands, at Watch Hill. John M. Browning of Westerly conveyed to Frank W. In a session of Stonington town court Thursday morning before Judge William A. Wilcox the case of Lewis Stanton of Westerly was called, nolled and defendant was discharged. The case was entered on June 20th and grew out of a collision with a bicyclist and automobile driven by the defendant on his way to the Harvard-Yale boat races at New London when a tire was pulled off, at Wilcox curve, at Quinnbog.

Godfrey J. Jaffa of 208 Farmington avenue, Hartford, a paint salesman, was before the court on a charge of reckless automobile driving when near the Stonington Silk mill on his way to Westerly about 10 o'clock Wednesday as he was in an auto collision as he cut out. He entered a demurrer which was overruled and being found guilty he was fined $25 and costs of $14.45, amounting to $39.43, which he paid. The arrest was made by Connecticut State Policeman Joseph J. Bobnick, No. 30, of the Groton barracks, the defendant's car having license No. 9212 Conn.

A deal of considerable interest, involving Woonsocket's oldest store and the largest department store in Rhode Island outside of Providence, was closed Wednesday, when, according to an announcement made Thursday the Harris & Mowry Company store passed into new hands, as the result of the sale of the controlling interest. Negotiations have been going on for some time, and the final papers were signed Wednesday night.

With the transfer, three men long identified with the business interests of Woonsocket retired, Frederic E. Harris, George H. Mowry and Allan T. Hanscom.

Purchasers of the controlling interest in the company are Elmer J. Stone of Providence and Frederick S. Opie of Westerly, who will take over the stock owned by Frederic E. Harris, president and treasurer of the concern, George H. Mowry and Allan T. Hanscom, secretary of the company, these three retiring from the business. Oscar A. Mayer, Walted L. Redfern, J. W. Chaput and T. A. Engelbach will retain their stock and continue to be identified with the management of the store.

The Harris & Mowry Company store is the oldest of its kind in Woonsocket. It was started in 1877 by Frederic E. Harris and George H. Mowry in the Foss Memorial building, occupying the ground floor and the basement. Since that time it has expanded until at the present time it occupies the whole of the Foss Memorial building and the six story Patriot building adjoining. In 1900 the concern was turned into a stock company and several of the employes of the store acquired interests in it.

Of the new men, Elmer J. Stone has been in the wholesale business for the last 35 years, being connected with rown, Durrell & Co., and John R. Ainslee, dry goods, both of Boston. He also owns a store in the Arcade building, Providence and one in Attleboro, Mass.

Frederick S. Opie has been in the retail business in Westerly for the last 25 years and manages the largest retail store in the southern part of the state.

Both men are also connected with the J. W. Dobbie Company of Webster, Mass., Mr. Opie as president and Mr. Stone as treasurer. This company is one of the largest department stores in that section.

Plans for the future have not yet been announced by the new owners, but it is understood that no radical changes are contemplater.

NEW LONDON CHILDREN IN STREET, MOTHER AT NORWICH DANCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Mazie Fraser, wife of Raymond Fraser, 257 Huntington street, whose two children, neither older than four years, were found in front of the house Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, having left during the absence of the mother, who was in Norwich attending a dance, and while the father was at his work, was in police court this forenoon. She was there given warning as to what would happen to her if she did not provide further protection to her children.

The S. S. Kresge Co., a Michigan corporation, has leased the properties, 118-125 State street, owned by the Goddard estate, for a period of 30 years, with privilege of an extended lease of 20 years. The lease was filed at the office of the city clerk this morning and was negotiated by H. M. Terris, vice president of the Kresge company, and Mary A. Goddard, Emma R. Goddard, Henry T. Thomas, Edith G. Clark, Salter Storrs Clark, John C. Goddard, George F. Goddard, William L. Goddard, Flora W. Goddard and James C. Goddard, heirs of Katherine A. Goddard, all non-residents.

The Kresge company agrees to pay a rental for the property of $346,000 for the 30 year period. The property comprises the stores now occupied by the Far East restaurant and Charles W. Strickland Co. Should the extended lease of 20 years be negotiated in 1955, the lessees agree to pay an annual rental of $15,000.

The lessees of the property will take possession April 1, 1925, and upon the delivery of $5,000 to Salter Storrs Clark, executor of the estate, residing in Westfield, N. J., and upon the signing of the lease, the latter act having already been done.

In order to obtain the extended lease of 20 years from April 1, 1955, the lessees must give notice in writing to the lessors one year prior to the expiration of the existing lease.

The lessees agree to cause a new brick, or a structure of similar material to be erected upon the site of the property; said structure shall be completed within five years from April 1, 1925. If the lessees fail to cause the erection of the new structure to be completed within five years from the date of the lease becoming effective, the said lessees agree to pay the lessors a monthly rental of $1,000 until said structure is completed.

If the lessee negotiate the extended lease of 20 years, the said lessee agree to assume liability for all repairs, and improvements, water rents, taxes, assessments and changes, except any damages that may aris ethrough possible condemnation of the said properties.

The lessee are given the right and power to alter and change interior, but only at the expense of the said lessee. The lessees are held strictly liable for any fire or other casualty loss, which loss shall not in any way abrogate the existing lease, or cause the cessation of the payment of the stipulated rental. A further provision that in case of fire or damage of the structure from any other cause the lessee mus cause the building to be put in its original state of repair. The lessees are further held responsible for the insurance upon the structure and it is stipulated that the said lessees must carry an amount of insurance equal to 80 per cent. of the value of the property above the foundation.

The lessees have the privilege of assigning the property, leasing it or sub-letting it, in whole or in part, but without being relieved of the obligation stipulated in the lease.

The Kresge company will not utilize the property April 1st because of the present occupants of the building holding leases which will not expire for two or three years, but after the expirations of the respective leases of the Far East restaurant and C. W. Strickland company, will cease the contract for the work of the erection of the two story structure to be be awarded.

The Kresge company, which is the operator of a chain of five and ten cent stores as well as stores whose prices reach as high as $1, are also the lessees of the stores now occupied by the Woolworth company, Cronin building, which latter company will vacate its present home prior to next April. A two story building is now in course of erection on the State street property formerly owned by the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee and latterly by Fry by Frank A. Munsey and will be completed in time for the Woolworth company to remove to it when the date of the Kresge company's lease of the Cronin building property becomes operative.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Hewitt of Groton took a motor trip to Middletown yesterday.

The funeral of Mrs. Emma Jane Rogers, wife of Frank Rogers, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 186 Willetts avenue and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

ACTIVE MARKET WAS ERRATIC.

New York, Nov. 13.—With total sales exceeding two million shares for the fifth consecutive full session, price fluctuations in today's market became more erratic, closing quotations displaying considerable irregularity. Opening trading was not in such large volume, but when it became apparent that the heavy profit-taking of professional traders had been completed, at least temporarily, the market swung upward again on increased activity with some spectacular advances taking place in the popular industrials. The high prices, however, encouraged a renewal of realizing and bear selling, which was still under way when the closing gong sounded.

More than fifty issues, mostly industrials, soared to new peak prices for the year during the day, while the general industrial average was carried to the highest level in several years. The general railroad average showed a moderate decline.

United States Cast Iron Pipe was the sensational performer, soaring over eight points to 147 1-4, a new high for all time, on a continuation of urgent short covering, and then sagging back to 142. American Can also established a record top at 153 1-2, but it eased later to 151 1-2 where it was up 3 1-4 points on the day. United States Steel common crossed 115 to the highest price in five years and then slipped back to 114 3-4 for a net gain of nearly one point on the day.

Declaration of only the regular dividend on Southern Pacific, setting at rest rumors that the annual rate was to be raised to $7, brought about heavy selling of that stock which dropped 2 1-2 points from its high, and had a dampening effect on other railroad shares. "Katy" preferred developed strength, however, climbing nearly four points to a new 1924 maximum price at 66 1-4. Missouri Pacific preferred and Atlantic Coast Line also broke through their previous 1924 highs.

The brisk demand for Savage Arms which scored five points to a new peak price at 76 1-2, was based on the large profits that company is reported to be making in the manufacture and sale of refrigerating apparatus. Other individual strong spots included American Woolen, du Pont, American Ice, Brown Shoe, Central Leather preferred, Hayes Wheel, Postum Cereal and United Fruit, all up three to nearly six points.

The recent improvement in the silk business was reflected in the demand for H. R. Mallinson, which advanced 2 1-2 points to a new high at 34. Other popular industrials to sell at the year's best prices were Sears-Roebuck, Montgomery-Ward, Coca Cola, Western Union, Brooklyn Edison, Maxwell Motor "A" White Motors and General Asphalt common and preferred. General Electric soared nearly six points to 270 1-4 and then fell back to 266 1-4.

Frisco common, Northern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, St. Paul preferred, American Smelting, Houston Oil, Kansas City Southern, St. Louis Southwestern and Schulte Stores were among the many issues to close at net losses of 1 to 2 points.

Call money ruled unchanged at 2 per cent. Time money rates held steady although offerings increased. Commercial paper rated continued to rule between 3 1-2 and 3 3-4 per cent.

The transfer of funds from New York to London in order to take advantage of the higher interest rates in the British capital was reflected in the advance of more than three cents in sterling exchange. Scandinavian currencies also made substantial gains, most of the other European currencies showing slight improvement.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Nov. 13.—Considerable irregularity developed in today's curb market with trading in reduced volume. Oil shares were decidedly mixed, gains of one to four points in Cumberland Pipe, Prairie Oil & Gas, Solar Refining, South Pennsylvania, Southern Pipe and Standard Oil of Kansas being offset by losses of 1 to 4 1-2 points on Cities Service common, Redbank, Northern Pipe and Standard Oil of Ohio.

Speculation in the baking stocks quited down after yesterday's violent fluctuations. United akeries moved within a range of seven points, closing 3 1-2 points higher at 138 1-2. Ward aking B showed a small fractional gain.

Most of the active public utilities lost ground, but the net losses were held to fractions. Radio isues also were reactionary, Wars and Dubilier dropping about a point each while Freed Eisgmann dropped 2 1-4.

There were no developments of interest in the mining list.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Nov. 13.—Railroad and industrial bonds, after attaining the highest levels of the week today, yielded later to profit-taking and prices generally veered downward at the close. Liberty bonds, however, rallied as offerings of time funds increased, recovering virtually all of yesterday's losses.

Trading in high yielding railroad issues continued to develop independent points of strength. International-Great Northern adjustment sixes and "Katy" adjustment fives eclipsed their previous high records. Wabash fours and liens of other mid-western railroads were in demand.

With a late wave of realizing sales spreading over the entire market, losses predominated in the railroad list at the close, embracing most of the St. Paul, Seaboard and Frisco issues. New Haven convertible sixes, Rock Island refunding fours, Chicago and Eastern Illinois fives, Northern Pacific fours, Pere Marquette fives and Chicago and Terre Haute 5s.

With the exception of the Liberty 3 1-2s, all issues in the United States government list displayed good recuperative power. Coincident with a three-cent rise in sterling, United Kingdom 5 1-2s of 1929 touched a new 1924 peak at 114 1-4.

With Wall street's interest centered almost entirely in the feverish trading activity in stocks and bonds over the last few days, the lull in new financing continued. Listed among the new borrowers in the Louisiana Oil Refining Corporation, a subsidiary of the Invincible Oil Corporation, which has sold a $3,500,000 issue of 1 to 6 year 5 1-2 per cent. notes to bankers. Public offering is expected later.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Wheat soared today well above the topmost prices heretofore reached this season. Reduced Canadian crop figures, the chief immediate influence, led to speculative buying on a big scale. Closing quotations on wheat, however, were unsettled, 1 1-4c to 2 3-4c net higher; December 154 7-8 to 155 and May 162 to 162 1-8, with corn 3-4c to 1 1-4c up, oats showing 1@1 1-8c to 1 1-2c gain, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Official announcement that the Canadian government estimate of wheat yield in the Dominion had been lessened 20,000,000 bushels as compared with September figures, gave the market here a lively upturn as soon as business began. The stimulus was all the greater on account of recent cuts also in estimates of the exportable surplus of Argentina and Australia.

It was only after the May delivery of wheat here showed about 13 cents advance from prices which prevailed ten days ago that the market underwent any pronounced setback. This downturn came just before the close, and appeared to result from extra energetic efforts to realize profits on purchases made earlier.

Corn and oats displayed independent strength, owing more or less to reports that corn growers were organizing to hold corn for $1.50 a bushel. Considerable notice was also taken of the shrinkage in the estimate amount of oats available in Canada and Argentina.

Provisions were somewhat firmer, sympathizing with grains.

BROKERS MADE PRACTICE OF BUCKETING STOCK ORDERS

New York, Nov. 13.—Virtually every stock transaction placed with the firm of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell, which failed in 1923 for $4,000,000, was bucketed, Joseph Romm, the firm's order clerk, told a federal court jury today.

Romm, government witness against William S. Silkworth, former president of the Consolidated Exchange, and seven other defendants charged with conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, testified in detail to the manner in which transactions were bucketed by the firm. In most instances, he testified, cards sent to him ordering certain transactions in certain stocks bore instructions to bucket the transactions in certain stocks over the initials of Dewitt C. Raynor, senior member of the firm. Raynor pleaded guilty at the beginning of the present trial and is to be a government witness.

Most of the fake transactions, Romm said, were carried out through the McQuade Brothers, another brokerage firm now also bankrupt, or Francis X. Quillan. The McQuades and Quillan are fellow defendants with Silkworth, as are Raynor's former partners.

The government contention is that the Raynor firm and its associates were enabled to do a brisk business because of the backing accorded them by Silkworth and other officials of the Consolidated Exchange. Witnesses testified yesterday that letters sent to the exchange asking as to the reliability of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell brought favorable replies over the signature of Silkworth.

Romm identified a large number of order cards of various customers, some of whom have been prosecution witnesses, and told of having telephoned "buy and sell" orders for the stock named on each. In no instance, he said, had a legitimate transaction been recorded.

DIVORCE PAPERS SERVED UPON AVERY L. PRATT

New York, Nov. 13.—Supreme Court Justice Gavegan today ordered served upon Avery L. Pratt of New York and London papers in a divorce action begun by May Catherine Pratt. The husband is charged with improper conduct with an unnamed woman at Edinburgh, Scotland, during and since last April.

The Pratts were married at Niagara Falls in 1919. Since last May, when her husband bade her farewell at Waterloo Station, London, and sailed for New York on the Leviathan, Mrs. Pratt has been unable to find him.

The carrying of a billbook in his inside pocket gives a man prestige, even if there is only a gas bill in it.

JOHN W. DAVIS RESUMES LAW PRACTICE IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 13.—John W. Davis, recent democratic nominee for president, announced today that he had resumed the practice of law in New York city with his former associates and that he would leave soon for a holiday abroad.

Mr. Davis, soon after his nomination, withdrew from the law firm of Stetson, Jennings, Russell & Davis which he joined in March, 1921, upon finishing his service as American ambassador to Great Britain.

SOME MORE HOT SHOTS
I made the announcement yesterday that Captain Blood would be shown for our regular prices with the exception of three hundred seats which would be reserved for fifty cents and I'll add today that there will not be another theatre in the state of Connecticut that will exhibit this picture during the next six months without raising their admission.
HERE'S ANOTHER BROADSIDE
A new stage setting is being installed—the picture curtain goes back eighteen feet, relieves all eye strain from the front seats. The new draperies absorb all the glare. You'll enjoy pictures at the Palace.

But in the meanwhile if you want to reserve your seats in advance you can do so starting Saturday morning.

DOMESTIC HEROINES IN OUR HOMES
Women who lead a domestic life seem to listen to every call of duty excepting the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. As long as they can drag themselves around, women continue to work. Necessity to keep on their feet all day when overtired or sitting in cramped positions day in and day out often brings on ailments from which women suffer tortures. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been strengthening women and overcoming such ailments. Sickness and pain vanish under its influence and thousands of women have been benefited by it.

SPECIAL COMMUTATION RATE AUTHORIZED FOR SCHOOL BOY

New York, Nov. 13.—L. S. Miller, president of the New York, Westchester and Boston "Metro-Urban" railway, announced today the receipt of a ruling from the public service commission of New York state authorizing him to issue a special low rate commutation ticket so that 11-year-old Forrest Hudson of Heathcote might attend the Roosevelt Public school at Wykagyl.

Forrest's father is L. D. Hudson, a broker of mining machinery in New York whose country home is at Heathcote. Recently according to Mr Heathcote. Recently according to Mr. Miller, the broker appealed to the road for a reduction of the 15 cent fare Forrest would have to pay twice a day to attend the Roosevelt school.

The railroad president made formal application to the public service commission to inaugurate under the 30-days "short notice" clause of the transit laws, a commutation rate for the schoolboy's benefit.

The commission instead, issued a special ruling authorizing the road on 24 hours' notice to place in effect a 5-cent commutation ticket rate between Heathcote and Wykagyl. The distance between the stations is three miles.

OIL NOT PORFITABLE AS FUEL ON VESSELS

New York, Nov. 13. — Oil burning ships are not likely to replace steam-driven vessels, because the extensive use of the former would increase the price of oil until it could not be employed profitably as fuel, Captain Walter T. McFarland, retired president of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, said at the opening session of the society's 32nd annual meeting today.

Shipbuilding is now at its lowest ebb, he said, because of the naval holiday which prevented new contracts and the virtual completion of earlier contracts.

A. G. Smith of Cleveland suggested that the old shipping board vessels could be converted for service on the Great Lakes at about half the cost of building new ships.

Captain McFarland was succeeded as president by Rear Admiral David W. Taylor, retired.

C. EDWARD CARPENTER ELECTED PRESIDENT BY NORWICH LIONS

C. Edward Carpenter who has been secretary and treasurer of the Norwich Lions club was unanimously elected president of the club at the weekly luncheon at the Wauregan house Thursday, to fill the vacancy that has occurred in the president's office through the resignation of George A. Finn.

Following his election to the presiding office, Mr. Carpenter resigned the other two offices that he has held and Edward Rich, cashier of the gas and electric department of the city, was elected secretary and treasurer of the Lions. Both elections were by unanimous vote of the largely attended meeting, which had a number of guests and was opened by the singing of America. William R. Frisbie was the song leader for the day.

President Carpenter appointed Jean Kaefer, Koppie Markoff and Edward Rich a committee to arrange for representation by the Norwich Lions at the farewell banquet to be given by the New Britain club this month for the retiring district governor, John W. Davis.

Expressions of regret were voiced at losing Rev. Rocco Guerriero, one of the club members, an assistant pastor at St. Patrick's church, who has been transferred to the Holy Rosary church, Bridgeport, where he will be assistant pastor.

An informal address upon radio was given by Joseph N. French, electrical engineer of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., in which he spoke upon its origin and the progress that has been made in development so far. The meeting gave him a rousing vote of thanks and closed in the usual form with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner and salute to the flag.

The committee in charge was made up of members of the alumnae, with Miss Genevieve McCormick as general chairman. Assisting the committee were Mrs. Frances Farrell and Miss Anna Ward.

The scorers for whist were the Misses Catherine Dutton, Carolyn McCormick, Alice Beausoliel, Marguerite Riley, Mary Prunier and Virginia Freeman.

YEAST-KING DENIES INTENTION TO WED

Reports that the yeast king Julius Fleischmann of New York, Paris and other places, former summer resident at Eastern Point, where his first wife still maintains a summer residence, is soon to marry Miss Viola Kraus, who was a close friend of Joseph Brown Elwell, murdered whist expert, are emphatically denied by Mr. Fleischmann in an announcement made from Paris Thursday.

"It's untrue," was Mr. Fleischmann's reply when asked concerning the reports. Miss Krauss was the wife of Victor Von Schlegel and her divorce from him became effective the day before Elwell's body was found four years ago. He had been shot to death in his luxurious home in uptown New York, and all efforts to solve the mystery failed.

Mr. Fleischmann recently allowed his second wife, who had been Mrs. Laura Heminway, to secure a divorce, so that she could marry Jay O'Brien, well known New York polo player.

GIVEN $7,000 VERDICT FOR BROKEN RIGHT LEG

Robert P. McFee of Crystal avenue, New London, was awarded a verdict of $7,000 Wednesday against George W. Stansfield of Glastonbury by a jury in the superior court in Hartford before Judge Isaac Wolfe.

McFees right leg was broken in two places when, riding his motorcycle on Aug. 27, 1923, near Pratt street, Glastonbury, he was struck by an automobile driven by Stansfield. At the time, William Tooker, also of New London was riding in a side car of the cycle and he received a concussion of the brain. His case is yet to be tried.

The plaintiff claimed that as Stansfield came out of an intersecting street just prior to running down the motorcycle he failed to give the proper signal. The plaintiff sued for $10,000.

TOURING CAR SUDDENLY BURST INTO FLAMES

The touring car owned by Percy Daniels of the Little Boston district, Norwich, caught fire in some mysterious manner about 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mr. Daniels is employed as a teamster as F. A. Beckwith's livery and uses the machine in going to and from his employment. While the car was standing in an open lot in front of Mr. Beckwith's office building, employes in the yard noticed a burst of flame shooting into the air. A hurry call was sent for the Niantic fire apparatus and with the aid of several buckets of water the fire was soon put out.

The origin of the fire is not known but it is thought that crossed wires in the ignition chamber or a bit of burning tobacco had become lodged in back of one of the cushions might have been the cause of the blaze. The cushions and woodwork in the car were burned beyond repair and most of the body was charred.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain
How to Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn

Thousands who have piles have not do the same for you.

learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription is HEM-ROID, a tablet medicine, taken internally, that is now sold by druggists generally. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands of people, and should do the same for you—it seldom fails.

YANTIC FIREMEN SAVE NORWICH TOWN HOUSE

Defective wiring is thought to have been the cause of a fire in an empty house near Wightman's switch, Norwich Town, about 9.30 o'clock Thursday night. One of the rooms was considerably burned by the blaze. The Yantic fire engine company was called out on a telephone call and made a quick response. A line of hose was laid but water was not needed as the flames were extinguished with the contents of the large chemical tank on the apparatus and a couple of small tanks.

The fire worked its way up through the partition from the lower floor and spread to one of the rooms on the second floor. The blaze was confined to this room and the damage will be comparatively light. The house is owned by H. E. Wagner of Norwich Town. The house was recently rented and the new tenant was planning to move in today (Friday.)

JERSEY CITY FIRE LOSS IS ESTIMATED AT $1,000,000

Several Hundred Families Were Made Homeless—Scores of Persons Were Sent to Hospitals For Treatment For Minor Injuries—A Full Block Was Destroyed and Several Other Blocks Were Damaged—Frequent Explosions Shattered Windows Within a Half Mile Radius—Acid Fumes and Chemical-Filled Smoke Added to the Confusion.

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 14—Fire, attended by numerous explosions, raged for six hours in the industrial section of the city before it could be brought under control today, destroying more than thirty buildings, sending two score persons to hospitals for treatment for minor injuries, and making several hundred families homeless.

Fire Chief Boyle estimated the damage at $1,000,000. The cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

A full square block was razed and portions of six other blocks immediately adjoining it were damaged. Two thirds of Jersey's fire department fought the conflagration from 9 o'clock this morning to 6 o'clock this evening, when relief crews were put to the task of subduing the fire which smouldered in the ruins throughout the night.

Two fireboats from New York helped keep the flames from the congested factory district on the North River front, while the reserve fire forces of the city, joined by companies from the adjoining city of Hoboken, stood by for possible emergencies.

Dynamite had to be used to blast down a number of flimsy structures in the path of the flames.

The noise of frequent explosions, which shattered windows of buildings within a half mile radius, in addition to dense clouds of acid fumes and thick, black, chemical-filled smoke, added to the confusion.

The fire started in a sub-cellar of the saltpetre factory of the Battelle & Renwick company, when firemen arrived they found the cellar already a glowing furnace which began to emit choking clouds of acid fumes as water was poured into the fire, causing a series of explosions.

On advice of Chief Boyle, director of Public Safety Quinn ordered his police to set up fire lines and to compel all residents of neighboring tenements and flimsy wooden homes to leave the district.

Just as the police had started this work an explosion blew the roof off the salt petre company's four-story building. The flames immediately swept over the building in waves as flaming fragments of the shattered roof fell on adjoining buildings and set them ablaze.

A dozen firemen and probably thirty men, women and children in neighboring houses, cut by flying glass or overcome by the chemical fumes, were rushed to hospitals or to emergency first aid stations set up in neighborhood drug stores. A dozen ambulances clattered about the place. Red Cross nurses and volunteer physicians appeared on the scene. Within the hour the police had the maddened crowds in check, had removed all the injured and cleared the threatened area of all but firemen.

The flames leaped to surrounding tenements and ancient wooden structures housing workers of the district and soon enveloped the plants of the Richardson Chemical company, the seven-story building of the Heppe Paper Box Company and finally, the nine story brick structure at Washington and Morris streets known as the sugar building. It was formerly a factory of the Atlantic Sugar Refining Company, but for the past few years had been used as a storage warehouse by the Colgate Soap Company. It was destroyed in the accomplishment of a series of explosions as the fire reached several stores of chemicals in its basement. The Colgate Company had several hundred thousand dollars worth of soaps, perfumes and other manufactures stored in the place.

The Sugar building fire menaced the main warehouse of the Colgate company, and Fire Chief Boyle ordered a subordinate to telephone Manhattan for fire boats. The John Purroy Mitchell and the William J. Gaynor responded, throwing streams from the Morris Canal upon the buildings of the Colgate and other companies near the water front. Dynamiting was also resorted to at this point, and the flames were checked after a six-hour battle.

An unidentified man telephoned the New York department for "all available apparatus," and Fire Chief Kenlon and Fire Commissioner Drennan of Manhattan commandeered four ferryboats and crossed the North River with twenty-one pieces of fire apparatus. They were turned back at the pier, however. The Jersey City fire officials explaining that the call had been unauthorized and the aid unnecessary. The police are seeking the man who telephoned for the Manhattan fire fighters.

With the coming of darkness, the police permitted many of the families driven from the fire area to return to their homes. Several hundred men, women and children, however, had been burned out and these were given food, clothing and beds in the Jersey City armory. Red Cross workers, combined with Y. W. C. A. members and other semi-public organizations quickly organized a relief station under the telephoned instructions of Mayor Hague, who was out of the city.

One woman driven from her home by flames, Mrs. Helen McCann, was taken to police headquarters, which also was turned into an emergency hospital, and there gave birth to a baby boy.

There was some looting during the first hours of the fire and two men were arrested.

CHICAGO GANGLAND HUSHED DURING O'BANNION FUNERAL

Chicago, Nov. 14. — Amid kingly pomp and splendor, Dion O'Bannion, ruthless leader of Chicago gangland, gunmen, beer runner, and hi-jacker, was married to the grave today by his associates.

Gangland, hushed and decorous, with bitter enemies standing shoulder to shoulder, attended the funeral of this queer anomaly of pistols and posies, show down last Monday by three gunmen as he stood among the roses of his flowershop behind whose respectability his operations were cloaked.

Denied the offices of the Catholic church, the friends of the notorious gangster surrounded the services with all the elaborate display that a lavish outpouring of money could buy to give grace to the funeral. It was one of the most pretentious spectacles of its kind in Chicago's history.

The services were held from a little undertaker's chapel while thousands of people, curious to see gangland pay its last respects to a fallen leader, surged about outside. Squads of detectives watched the services while mounted policemen drove back and forth among the restless crowds.

The services were brief. A hymn was followed by a funeral dirge by a muted stringed orchestra hidden behind a great bank of chrysanthemums placed about the $10,000 silver casket, almost hidden by the mountain of flowers. Then came another hymn and poker-faced gangsters, murmuring polite apologies as they trod on each other's heels, began filing slowly past the casket.

Then while the police battled the crowds of curious outside, the casket was lifted from its bed of flowers and carried to a motor hearse by eight associates of O'Bannion, including Louis Alterie, his lieutenant on whose shoulders his mantle of power is reported to have decended.

Twenty trucks were packed high with the floral offerings which included a gigantic heart of pink roses from O'Bannion's widow and a seven foot pillar of carnations and roses bearing a card "To Our Pal—From the Gang." Scores of elaborate floral pieces were sent anonymously.

Skirting Chicago's business district the funeral cortege travelling 30 miles an hour, headed for Mount Carmel cemetery. The long procession included scores of shining limousines in which rode O'Bannion's enemies as well as his friends.

BAY STATE SOCIETY HAS LOCK OF NAPOLEON'S HAIR

Boston Nov. 14.—A lock of Napoleon's hair, that was a gift originally to a member of the Bonaparte blood was placed today in the cabinets of the Massachusetts Historical society Mrs. Archibald Hopkins of Washington gave it to the society after it had been passed along as an heirloom in the family for three generations, beginning with Edward Everett. The lock of hair with papers relating to it was given to Everett when he was minister to England in 1840 by Prince Charles Lucien Bonaparte to whom it was given by Napoleon himself.

LLOYD GEORGE LOSING CONFIDENCE OF BRITONS

London, Nov. 14.—(By the A. P.)—An incipient revolt against former Premier Lloyd George holding joint leadership of the liberal party with H. H. Asquith, was today's development in the plain speaking which has surrounded that party since its poor showing in the recent elections.

Mr. Lloyd George was rejected by the conservative party in the famous caucus in October, 1922, which put an end to the coalition government and brought Stanley Baldwin into leadership of the conservatives. The labor party never would have anything to do with Mr. Lloyd George. Now, while Mr. Asquith 'is journeying to Egypt to consult the Sphinx on the liberal riddle,' as Austen Chamberlain, the secretary of state for foreign affairs, facetiously remarked in a speech yesterday. Captain William Wedgwood Benn, an influential member of the liberal party, has written a letter to a prominent liberal organ declaring he cannot in any way, directly or indirectly, acknowledge Mr. Lloyd George as his leader in the house of commons.

Captain Benn declares it was not defective party organization that brought about the liberal disaster.

"The vital fault," he says, "is want of trust. The people have no confidence, and rightly so, in Mr. Lloyd George."

It is pointed out in political circles that of the few liberals elected to the commons, most are strong adherents of Mr. Lloyd George, and that, if the movement against the former premier should grow it would not be among the liberal parliamentarians but among the liberals outside.

NEW HAVEN ROAD HAS FINANCED NECESSITIES

New York, Nov. 14.—Wall street today heard that the New Haven Railroad management will have successfully accomplished its financing necessities long before the April maturity falls due next year. It has taken many months to round out this situation as stockholders last spring were officially informed at their annual meeting that negotiations then were under way on the programme. Lacking details, it was the assumption in some quarters that a portion of the maturing loan would be paid off with either an extension or exchange of securities offered for the balance.

WOMEN SUBJECT OF DEBATE AT OPIUM CONFERENCE

Geneva, Nov. 14.—(By The A. P.)—Whether women should be permitted to enter public opium dens in the Far East formed the subject of a lengthy debate at today's session of the international opium conference, and before the question was settled various speakers brought in the French revolution, the League of Nations covenant, women's rights, and the leadership of France and England as exponents of perfected civilization. Eventually the conference decided to omit the word "women" from the list of persons who should be excluded from opium smoking dens.

The French draft of the convention originally provided that entry to public opium smoking houses should be prohibited to Europeans, women, and minors. China succeeded in having the word Europeans deleted by contending that reference to Europeans involved racial discrimination against Asiatics because it implied that Europeans should not mix with Asiatics.

Japan led the campaign to remove the reference to women, basing its stand on the idea that the prohibition of women involved sex discrimination. Supported by the Chinese delegation, M. Sugimura, chief of the Japanese delegates, declared that when the French revolution proclaimed the rights of man it inferentially proclaimed the rights and equality of women.

Moreover, he said, the government of the league itself insisted on equality of treatment for men and women, and that while he did not want women to enter opium dens, it seemed to Japan most unfair in principle to exclude them.

Replying to Japan, M. Clinchant of France, declared he merely wanted to remark as a Frenchman that there was no historic relation between the French revolution and opium smoking. The question of excluding women was simply one of public decency and propriety, he said.

The Chinese, who contended that Chinese residents in Far Eastern colonies outside China can obtain opium too easily, argued for complete suppression of opium dens because they breed crime and make new opium addicts. Authorization of opium dens, however, remains in the convention.

TWO MEN STABBED IN KLAN DISTURBANCE I NCOLUMBUS

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 14.—Two men were stabbed, one probably fatally in a disturbance here tonight between Ku Klux Klan and apposing forces in a local dance hall.

Clarence McCammon, salesman for a Ku Klux Klan publication is held in jail.

Harry France, 25, is in a local hospital with knife wounds in the abdomen and Arthur Bard, 23, was stabbed in the head.

Bard was first taken to a hospital then removed to city jail where he is held for investigation.

The difficulty arose when McCammon is alleged to have secured the eviction from the dance hall of another person whose name was not disclosed. Friends of the evicted man resented the action and an argument ensued. Before police could interfere more than a dozen members of the two factions were fighting in the hall.

A patrolman interfered and sent the disturbers into the streets where fighting broke out anew. Other policemen arrived and dispersed the crowd.

MAY REVOLUTIONIZE THE ENTIRE SUGAR INDUSTRY

Washington, Nov. 14.—Experts of the department of agriculture are studying the results of experiments in extraction of sugar from vegetables heretofore not utilized for the purpost, which they say have evolved a process that may revolutionize the entire sugar growing and refining industry.

The new process, discovered in researches by Dr. R. F. Jackson, of the bureau of standards, makes possible, they say, the crystallization of sugar extracted from such vegetables as the artichoke and thus its production for the first time in a usable and commercial form.

THhe sugar derived by this process from the artichoke, which was said to promise the cheapest source for its production, is one and one half times as sweet as the sugar taken from cane and the sugar beet.

OLDS INAUGURATED AS PRESIDENT OF AMHERST

Amherst, Mass., Nov. 14.—Sons of Amherst college came back today to help usher in the administration of Dr. George Daniel Olds, ninth president of the century-old institution which is the alma mater of President Coolidge. Designed to be essentially an Amherst "family affair" the inauguration of Dr. Olds, long dean and for more than a year acting president, kept that character throughout and was an occasion of the utmost simplicity.

Aside from a brief induction speech by George A. Plimpton of New York, president of the Amherst board of trustees, the only address at the exercises in College hall was that of the new president. Distinguished educators and men in public life, nearly all Amherst graduates or holders of honorary degree from the college, heard Dr. Olds outline his idea of what a college should be and his hopes for Amherst.

Vigoroux is Guilty Of Breach of Trust

Of Selling in the United States Spurious Art Objects—Sentence by Court in Paris.

Paris, Nov. 14. (By the A. P.)—Jean Vigoroux, who had been on trial for several days charged with breach of trust in connection with his duties as representative in New York for the late Joseph Demotte, New York art dealer, was found guilty today by a jury in assize court.

The jury in its verdict found there were extenuating circumstances. Vigoroux, who had charged that various art objects he had sold in the United States for DeMotte were spurious, was sentenced to one month in jail. The court also decreed that he should pay a fine of 25 francs and $3,775 as damages to the DeMotte family.

The jury refused to believe that spurious antiques were manufactured by DeMotte, and in the courtroom the finding was regarded as a vindication of the judgment of American art purchasers, as the entire case against Vigoroux hinged upon three sales the defendant made in the United States.

These were a statue of the Apostle St. Paul, purchased by the Metropolitan Museum in New York for $3,000; a head of Christ in stone, sold to Hawley W. McLanahan, of Philadelphia for $3,000; and a statue, Virgin and Child, sold to Mr. Winthrop of New York for $7,000. The verdict also was considered as refuting a charge made by Deputy Paul Boncour, French delegate to the league of nations during his plea as attorney for the defendant that "Americans know more about selling hogs in Chicago than they do about French art."

The jury was loath to believe Vigoroux's statement that New York "men-about-town" would accept "left-handed commission" for which they were unwilling to take responsibility. The trial, however, afforded opportunity to Count Boni De Castellane to appear as a witness and testify that "the acceptance of commissions for sales of antiques by noblemen of the world is a quite common occurrance."

Deputy Andre Paissant, who appeared as attorney for the DeMotte interests, told the jury that "while Count Boni wears a fine waistcoat and a sweet red rose in his buttonhole, his testimony must be taken at its face value."

Vigoroux was considered by those who listened to the testimony to have failed in his boast that he would expose a great number of fake works of art. A letter written by him to Joseph Breck, the gothic art expert of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, was produced in court. This letter, in which Vigoroux wrote that "the statue which I sold you is of guaranteed authenticity," made a great impression upon the jury and served to cast doubt on the defendant's loud and oft-repeated statements in the court that the statue in the Metropolitan Museum was spurious.

RHINELANDERS GIVEN TO ROMANTIC MARRIAGES

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Publication today of news of the marriage of Leonard Kip Rhinelander, of New York, and Alice Beatrice Jones, the daughter of a New Rochelle taxi driver, recalled the romance of the bridegroom's uncle, William Copeland Rhinelander, who was cut off with an allowance of $5,000 a year when he married a servant girl. The uncle of the present society storm center was ordered never to return to New York and spent most of his remaining years in a closely shuttered house at Westerlo and Green streets in this city.

William Copeland Rhinelander eloped with Margaret McGinnis, who was employed by his mother, in 1876. When she died he married a waitress with whom he lived here and in Saratoga Springs, where he later went to live, and in Schenectady where he died. His home here was known as a "house of mystery" and the occupant was regarded as an eccentric.

Extra Session of Congress Unlikely

President Coolidge Will Not Call a Session Unless He Considers It Very Necessary

Washington, Nov. 14—The administration does not feel that the question of tax reduction should be taken up until the government's books are balanced at the close of this fiscal year, which ends next June 30.

Until that time it is the opinion of President Coolidge that the actual amount of reduction possibly cannot be determined and scientific action is thus impossible.

Meanwhile the president has no intention of calling a session of the new congress until March 4.

It was stated today at the White House, he would not call a special session unless he considers it very necessary.

Taxation, the president feels, should be among the first problems to be considered by the new congress which if not called into extra session, will meet for the first time in December, 1925.

Mr. Coolidge expects such farm legislation as is necessary to be enacted at the coming short session of congress.

Administration spokesmen have consistently pointed out that an orderly program for further tax reduction is not possible until the surplus available for a cut is known. Likewise they have explained that the new tax law is just going into effect and the benefits accruing from it will be felt in the taxes payable next year.

In signing the new tax reduction bill, Mr. Coolidge made known his dislike of the provision for publicity of returns and also announced he wanted more "tax reform." In his speeches since he was indicated a desire to reduce further the higher surtaxes as well as the lower schedules.

While it was stated officially at the White House that Mr. Coolidge does not now intend to call an extra session next March 4, when the present congress dies unless very urgent legislation is necessary, he does not want it said that he is not going to call such a session at all.

Considerable pressure for an extra session is expected to be brought by some congressional leaders. Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, yesterday urged such a session. Other republican leaders, however, including Senators Wadsworth, of New York, Moses of New Hampshire and Watson of Indiana, have declared against such a call.

Many a woman's greatness is due to the manliness of her husband.

NEW YORK "FLYING COP" ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

New York, Nov. 14.—The prosecution rested its case today in the trial of Robert E. McAllister, "the Flying Cop" for the shooting and killing of Vincent Fighera last August. A motion made by counsel for the defendant to dismiss the charge on the ground that the state had failed to prove its case, was denied by General Sessions Judge Rosalsky.

Assistant District Attorney McDonald, in concluding his evidence, said it had been shown that McAllister was not justified in shooting Fighera in course of his duty as a patrolman.

McAllister's attorney said he expected to prove that the defendant was under instructions to watch for automobile thieves, that he had seen Fighera and Joseph Dandio apparently in the act of taking a machine, and that when McAllister accosted the two men both had put their hands to their hip pockets as though to draw weapons. The attorney said he would show that McAllister had fired only with the intention of wounding the man.

10-HOUR AIR MAIL SERVICE BETWEEN NEW YORK-CHICAGO

Best Mail Train Between the Two Cities Now is 20 Hours—New Plan is For an Eight to Nine Hour Overnight Air Mail Service, Both Ways, Between New York and Chicago—Ten Hours From Postoffice to Postoffice—Terminals Are Being Prepared—Postal Rates Will Be Eight Cents An Ounce.

New York, Nov. 14.—The government has blazed the trail for an 8 to 9 hour overnight air mail service between New York and Chicago, both way, it was disclosed today by Carl P. Egge, general superintendent of the post office department's air mail division.

Routes have been mapped; terminals, way stations and emergency fields are being acquired; machines and personnel have been assigned; and all the powerful lighting equipment for night flying is being set up.

Col. Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster general, has ordered the new service installed next spring, probably in April. This, said Mr. Egge, will give the government a "double track" air mail system between here and Chicago and, with a transcontinental service covering 2,720 miles, will make a total of 1905 miles over which night flying will be continuous.

In connection with the new service, Mr. Egge revealed that the government had leased Hedley field, between New Brunswick and Plainfield, N. J., as a terminal for the Chicago-New York night mail. He reported the receipt of a radiogram from W. E. LaFollette, superintendent of the western division, announcing that a field had been leased today at Concord, Cal., in preparation for early extension of the all-night service from Rock Springs, Wyo., to San Francisco.

Thus night flying would be in progress over the entire trans-continental route and there would be two deliveries of air mail daily, instead of one, at all points along the route. The air mail service would be "double-track" throughout as soon as the demand of patrons westward from Chicago promised to make it feasible.

Night mail will leave the New York air terminal at 10 p. m., reaching Chicago nine hours later (6 a. m.) for distribution with the first regular delivery. Night mail will leave the Chicago air terminal at 9 p. m., reaching New York eight hours later (6 a. m.) also for the day's first delivery. Due to prevailing winds, the westward flight will be an hour longer.

Mr. Egge pointed out that the best mail train time between he two cities is 20 hours, and virtually two days are lost in the transaction of business by train mail. But with the air mail, he said, a 10-hour service from post office to post office would be maintained. Letters mailed at the close of business in a terminal city or any intervening air mail station would be at destination for the opening of business next day.

Postal rates will be eight cents an ounce—the present air mail rate for zone 1, which includes Chicago. In the meantime, the transcontinental service will continue on the schedule inaugurated last July 1 with departures from the established terminals at New York and San Francisco each morning. According to Mr. Egge the tonnage on this route, which slumped after the first few days of operation when souvenir-collectors lost interest, has since grown steadily and consistently.

Installation of the new service was ordered upon the findings of a survey conducted in New York and Chicago by Luther K. Bell, traffic manager of the post office department. It indicated that "eight to nine hours delivery would be appreciated by thousands of business men who daily carry on transactions of importance, between the two cities."

Bankers were reported especially desirous of the installation.

Hadley field, the new night service terminal, is about 50 minutes by train and truck from the New York general post office. It was chosen primarily because it is inland and free from the fogs which prevail over Long Island fields. It will be surrounded by boundary lights, will have a 5-plane hangar, radio masts, a 500,000,000 candle-power beacons with 150-mile range and flood lights of equal power.

Bellefonte, Pa., 220 miles from New York, will become a main field, similarly lighted. Intervening will be 22 emergency fields with 5,000,000 candlepower beacons, hangars, personnel and equipment. Several of these emergency fields will be in the highest passes of the Alleghanies.

The number of airplanes in the service between here and Chicago will be increased to 36, including spare machines. Eleven pilots now in the transcontinental service have been assigned to the overnight route. At present the department has 94 planes in the New York-San Francisco service.

Extension of night flying on the transcontinental route eastward from Chicago to Cleveland and westward from Cheyenne to Rock Springs was revealed by Mr. Egge as a necessity enforced by the shortening of the days as winter approached.

As a result, he said, 11 new emergency fields have been installed westward of Cheyenne and 11 eastward of Chicago, while Cleveland and Bryan, Ohio, had become "main fields" at their end of the night route.

WOULD HAVE U. S. APPLY DAWES PLAN PRINCIPLE

New York, Nov. 14.—A plea by Donald W. Boyden, unofficial American observer on the reparations commission, that this country apply the principle of the Dawes plan, was made at the forty-fourth annual meeting of the American Academy of Political Science today.

He quoted Secretary Hughes' utterances, made prior to the appointment of the Dawes committee, to the effect that statesmen should agree upon the limit that Germany could pay, but that if public opinion made this difficult "men of the highest authority in finance" should be invited to decide upon a financial plan.

"We should not Secretary Hughes say to the American people just what he said to France and the allies?" asked Mr. Boyden. "Our political leaders have urged France to be sensible and to yield to the inevitable and adopt the Dawes plan; but they have been reluctant to advise the American voters to take the medicine they prescribe for France."

BELIEVES WOMEN WILL WIN WORLD PROHIBITION

Chicago, Nov 14.—Women citizens will win world prohibition, Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith of Des Moines, Iowa declared here tonight at the golden jubilee convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. She is director of the citizenship division of the organization.

Quoting from the records of the second convention held by the W. C. T. U. in 1875, Mrs. Smith read:

"Resolved, that since women are among the greatest sufferers from the liquor traffic, and realise that it is to be ultimately suppressed by means of the ballot, we, the Christian women of this land, in convention assembled, do pray God and all good and true men, that the prohibition of the liquor traffic should be submitted to all adult citizens irrespective of race, color or sex."

"In 1877, right here in Chicago," said Mrs. Smith, "the W. C. T. U. women expressed their conviction that the ballot was the only way to handle the prohibition situation and it was the saloon question that first started women working for the voting privilege."

Political opposition to the dry forces first appeared in 1882, according to Mrs. Smith, who quoted from the records of a resolution passed by the liquor men's organization which she read as follows:

"Resolved that we oppose woman suffrage everywhere and always, for when women has the ballot she will vote solid for prohibition and the women's vote is the last hope of the prohibitionists."

Women suffrage and prohibition are both successful, stated Mrs. Smith. "It is said that they are failures," she asserted, "because all women do not vote and prohibition is not strictly enforced everywhere. Women in increasing numbers are learning to vote. It is new to them. They will soon be voting more consistently and regularly than men. The course of these two criticisms often heard, is the same—the desire to have both true."

Law enforcement will be the keynote of the new citizenship program, Mrs. Smith said.

A review of three cases on the short calendar took place at the session of the Windham county superior court in this city Friday, in addition to the assignment of a number of cases. In the case of Antoine Saucier vs. Henry D. Saucier, default on deficiency of judgment, Attorney Arthur G. Bill of Danielson representing the plaintiff filed with the court a return of sale of property and tabulation of the same and the report was accepted. Attorney Bill offered an affidavit, which was accepted by the court, in the case of Luther Pilling vs. Irene H. Pellett, a case of default for failure to answer. A hearing on demurrer to answer in the case of William Higginson vs. George J. Rood was argued before Judge William M. Maltbie by Attorney W. A. King for the plaintiff and Attorney S. B. Harvey for the defendant, in relation to foreclosure proceedings brought by the plaintiff, in which the defendant has sought to make the sum of $2,500 received by the plaintiff as equity on the property when the house was destroyed by fire. The defendant stated that he had bought the property but the insurance had not been transferred to him. The building in question was the old Moulton place at Windham Center. Judge Maltbie reserved decision.

It was said Friday that an investigation is to be conducted by the New Haven Railroad officials to determine the cause of the wrecking of three cars, about one o'clock Friday morning, just within the east limits of the local yard, when Second O. B. 2 Maybrook freight, bound for Boston crashed into the rear of A. P. 2 freight which was headed east and stopped on Track 2, east-bound for Boston and Providence. It was learned that Engineer Al Benson of Engine No. 2305 which crashed into the rear of the A. P. 2 train did not sight the standing freight train until it was too late to avoid a crash. His train was proceeding at an approximate rate of twelve miles an hour at the time. The story was told around Friday that the sole occupant of the splintered coach of Train A. P. 2 had just finished his midnight meal and stepped out of the car a few seconds prior to the collision. The train crews from East Hartford and Readville, Mass., made quick time in clearing track No. 2 and the neighboring single iron of the Central Vermont onto which an empty tank car had been thrown. Traffic over the rails was resumed in the early part of the forenoon.

At the meeting of Lyceum, in the Windham High school auditorium on Friday forenoon the usual entertainment program was suspended and Principal Egbert A. Case spoke briefly on Education Week, which he hopes will be observed during next week in the high school by the visits of many parents. Mr. Case spoke on the regular inspection by a visiting committee, every two weeks in the old fashioned country school. This, with other things, has helped in its passing to do away with a direct social contact between the home and the school. In this present generation the occasional visitor in the schools, not infrequently finds himself something embarrassingly novel. "The school," said the principal, "merits a visit from parents, and I do not believe in preparing a special program, unless it should be necessary. People should see the running order in the school not an exhibition. They should see how you are spending this part of your lives. School, is not, in itself, a preparation for the future. The best preparation for the future is how you spend today." Following the talk, cheer practice was led by Cheer Leader Philip Dodge and his assistant, James Simons, in preparation for the Manchester-Windham game Saturday and the possible post-season tilt. Among members of the champion team who responded to calls for a speech were Wilkinson, Heinberg and Tomasco.

"The high-priced chocolates in the low-priced box"

Lonesome!

Yet no other chocolates have so many friends!

IN FEBRUARY 1923, we set out to produce the ideal home package of chocolates. We saw the great economies possible in large volume and a simple, inexpensive package.

Lowney's Gold Stripe Chocolates are the only "High-priced Chocolates in the Low-priced Box." They stand alone! No other packaged chocolates at 60 cents—and few at 80 cents or a dollar—can match their quality. They are the fastest selling of all fine chocolates.

Candy lovers everywhere appreciate this new idea. Take home a box tonight—it's a sensible, economical habit to acquire. At any good drug or candy store you will find the three assortments:

Standard
Chocolates and Bonbons
Brittles, Cheweys and Nugats

LOWNEY'S GOLD STRIPE CHOCOLATES 60c a lb.

A SURPRISING VALUE

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

PACKING PLANT MATERIAL FOR LONG DISTANCE SHIPMENT

Seeds, plants, scions, grafts, and other plant material intended for propagating purposes may be shipped long distances if properly selected and packed. Long sea voyages through the tropics are particularly severe on plant material, so that great care must be exercised where such journeys are involved.

The United States department of agriculture has prepared a new circular, department circular 323, for the information of persons who are in the habit of mailing various kinds of seed and plant material—to show how to collect, label and pack living material for long-distance shipment. It is based largely on the observations made from a great number of shipments which the department has received from all over the world, packed in many different ways which have come through severe conditions of climate and distance in a satisfactory manner is noted and recommended for practice.

It may not seem important, says the circular, to follow some of the directions given. But so many failures and disastrous result have occurred from variations from the directions that the department feels compelled to urge that they be followed as closely as practicable in all cases. Neglect to sew the cloth coverings in the packages properly may results in a total loss of the valuable material. Leaving off the dry burlap wrapper and substituting newspaper therefor may cause the sweating and molding of a collection of valuable scions or budwood. Too much care can not be given to the selection of clean, healthy plant material.

WHEN TO PURCHASE NEW POULTRY STOCK

New poultry stock should be purchased whenever, for any reason, the old stock has become so run out that it will cease to lay a profitable number of eggs or when the chickens cease to live and grow economically. These conditions might be brought about by one poor season's growth; this poor season's growth might be attributed to improper feed, to improped green feed to such diseases as coccidiosis or tuberculosis, or to a natural result of improper selection in past years on the part of the owner.

Second, when the owner feels that the introduction of highly bred birds, from an egg production standpoint especially, will increase the egg production of his own strain of birds. Under this particular condition almost any man is justified in the purchase of cockerels which have been produced after several years of good pedigree work, these cockerels being direct descendants of a family of high producing females—again bearing in mind that the absolute essential in any and all selection is vitality and vigor. Since many of our pedigree breeders have somewhat overlooked this factor, the purchaser should, if possible, see the stock while it is growing and know how well the birds are growing; note, for instance, the number of poor or undeveloped chickens, the number of birds which are slow in feathering and any other factor which would govern at all the condition or value of the bird as a breeder. Since we have here in New England quite a number of good breeders of pedigree stock, it ought not to be necessary to send a great distance for this stock. If we get in touch with out own colleges and experiment stations they can give us a list of men whose stock will fulfill the above requirements.

If this stock is to be purchased, be sure to purchase it by October 1st, because if purchased then, the probability of these birds being affected by a change in climate is small. This will newly purchased birds, to watch for two or three weeks and find out if they have brought with them any disease or disorder. Then, if they have, be will know it in time to prevent its introduction into his stock or to get hold it some other breeding stock.

There is no question that it would pay the average poultryman to purchase such breeding cockerels, but be careful and see to it that you are getting just exactly what you want. Just as long as your own stock is good, giving you high fertility in your eggs, good hatchability, low mortality in our young chickens, quick and economical growth during the summer, and reasonably good egg production throughout the year, then the average poultryman will not be obliged to go out of his own strain of birds to purchase new stock.

NEW VALUE IN SEED CLEANING

That the thorough cleaning of seed may be of advantage in addition to its value in controlling weeds has been shown in recent investigations by the United States department of agriculture. While studying in some of the alfalfa and clover regions of the northwest certain stem diseases of these crops caused by pemas, organisms doing great damage to many farm and garden crops, it was found that some of the minute parasites adhere to the seeds and in that way may be introduced into new fields or into other parts of the country.

It was learned that the first cleaning did not remove the infection, and that recleaning could not be depended upon to remove the danger. However, when seed of these crops was recleaned a second time, making three cleanings in all, practically all the organisms were scoured off.

Dr. N. A. Cobb, in charge of the nema investigations being carried on by the department, thinks these results are an indication that great thoroughness in cleaning seed may bring large returns in reducing the extent of various plant diseases. It is evident, in the light of these results, that from now on farmers should consider the cleaning of seed as having a much greater value than the mere removal of weed seeds and those of low viability.

SOME SPECIES OF HAWKS OF BENEFIT TO FARMER

Hawks, it seems, like crows, are not altogether as black as popular fancy has depicted them, according to the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture. That is to say, there are hawks and hawks, and of these several species are actually beneficial to the farmer, because they destroy field mice, rats, and other rodents, while the comparatively little damage done by the species which occasionally prey on chickens or insectivorous birds does not warrant the wholesale slaughter of hawks regardless of species.

An instance is told of a hawk shot on emerging from a poultry yard with something clutched in its claws. When the bird fell it was found with its talons firmly embedded in a firmly embedded in a large Norway rat, which evidently had been stealing the chickens the hawk was suspected of taking.

From time to time the biological survey receives reports that countrywide campaigns against hawks are being conducted in spite of the innocence of such species as the red-shouldered hawk, the Swainson hawk, and the rough-legged hawk.

From the evidence presented by agents submitted by bounty hunters it is apparent that such hunters do not distinguish between beneficial and injurious species. The extermination of beneficial species means the increase of insect and rodent pests on which these birds live. In the opinion of the bureau it is a good rule not to kill hawks, although in a case where an individual hawk is unmistakably detected in the midst of its depredations an exception might be made, as with any other marauder.

BULL ASSACIATIONS BRING IMPROVEMENT A TLOW COST

Herds of dairy cattle in many parts of the country are being improved at a minimum of cost for high-class sires through the medium of bull associations encouraged by the United States department of agriculture and the state agricultural colleges. Not only have these associations made it possible for farmers with small herds to obtain the services of sires with high-production ancestry, but they have stimulated them to adopt better dairying methods and to improve their equipment.

That the expense of securing good bulls is often surprisingly low has been shown in the Douglas County (Minn.) Guernsey Bull Association, one of the oldest organizations of the kind in the country, having been formed in 1910. In one of the blocks of this association, known as the Schelin block, the total expenditure for bulls from the beginning up to and including 1923 has been $456.85. From the beginning there have been seven members in this block, and consequently the total cost to each member, exclusive of maintenance of the bulls, has been $65.26, or the small sum of $4.66 a year. In this cost is included $1 a year membership fee since 1917.

A recent report from one of these associations in the Mesilla Valley, N. Mex., indicates how some of them advertise the good qualities of their bulls by exhibiting them at shows. One of their bulls was first in his International Fair, El Paso, Tex.; and a yearling was given second place in his class. A new association formed at Spokane, Wash., has decided that no bulls will be purchased whose dams have production records of less than 600 pounds of fat in a year.

An indication of the influence an association may have on the improvement of equipment comes from Farmington, Utah. This 11-block association has provided 10 of the blocks with safe-keeper bull pens, where the animals may be handled with the minimum of danger and where they may be kept in good condition. This new feature has attracted much attention and has helped to advertise the activities of the organization.

METAL WORKERS FAVOR WELL BALANCED NAVY

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 14.—(By the A. P.)—A demand for a "well balanced navy, based on the treaty ratio" established by the Washington conference on limitation of naval armaments was voiced today in the annual convention of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor.

Without a dissenting vote, the convention, representing 14 metal trades unions, with a combined membership of some 300,000, approved a resolution petitioning congress and the administration "to make adequate provision for building up and maintaining a well balanced navy, based on the treaty ratio."

"The present strength of the navy of the United States, in other than capital ships and destroyers," the preamble of the resolution said, "is seriously below that required to maintain a well balanced navy.

"The other naval powers signatory to the treaty have a vast superiority in cruisers, submarines and other vessels."

The Yukon was gripped in a terrific storm. The people trapped in the pass faced death from starvation and cold. They were forced to kill their dogs for food to keep them alive a little longer, hoping help would reach them. Only one man had the courage to breast the storm—and that man was a coward! Fear drove him into the icy blast—fear sent him plunging through that storm that hammered for human objects to destroy—fear drove him beyond the strength of human endurance. Fear made him a hero!

The coward who was a hero is the character portrayed by Charles Ray in Dynamite Smith, his first Pathe picture showing today for the last time at the Palace theater. Written by C. Gardned Sullivan and produced by Thomas H. Ince, it tells the dramatic story of a timid young man who befriends a brute's wife and is trailed by the husband, who seeks vengeance. Fear of his enemy rules his life for a time, and then, in one supreme effort, he conquers his weakness and vanquishes his enemy. Wallace Berry plays the villain. Bessie Love is the pathetic dancehall girl and Jacqueline Logan is Smith's sweetheart.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

William Fox has produced another picture from a notably successful novel and stage play in The Man Who Came Back which will be the feature attraction at the Breed theater for the first part of next week. Directed by Emmett Flynn, the picture was made by a talented cast of well known screen performers and it is said to be one of the best pieces of work ever done by the versatile director.

Originally a novel by John Fleming Wilson, The Man Who Came Back was dramatized by Jules Eckert Goodman and produced by William A. Brady, in 1917. Mary Nash and Henry Hull had the leading roles and the play ran on Broadway for 567 days. In Chicago it played for twenty-one weeks. In another production Conrad Nagel had the title role and his success was equally as phenomenal.

In the Fox picture George O'Brien and Dorothy Mackaill have the principal parts and are supported by a capable cast including Cyril Chadwick, Ralph Lewis, Emily Fitzroy, Harvey Clark and others well known to the American theater going public.

The story deals with the ne'er-do-well son of a New York millionaire who eventually becomes a derelict in Shanghai. His fall and rise, the latter influenced by a woman, make a narrative which offers a wealth of romance and all of the action necessary to a first rate picture. According to advance notices the Fox production seizes every opportunity.

Topics of the Day, Hodge Podge and a cartoon make up the remainder of the bill.

Today's bill consists of Buster Keaton in The Navigator, William Duncan in The Fast Express, the Pathe news and features of the big Armistice day celebration. Continuous show today from 1:30 to 10:30.

Palace Theater

Two words which are used extensively in Rafael Sabatini's popular novel, Captain Blood, which will be shown at the Palace theater on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday are frequently used as synonymns, although there is quite a shade difference in meaning. The words are pirate and buccaneer.

The story deals with the of Peter Blood as a vir had been condemned by t James as a slave to the pirate has been regarded by ma tions to be an enemy of the human race. Piracy is a crime against nations which may be brought before any court, no matter what the nationality of the plaintiff or the origin of the pirate may be.

A buccaneer is a freebooter, one of the pirate rovers of the 17th and 18th centuries that preyed upon the Spaniards along the Spanish coast of America. The first buccaneers were Frenchmen whom the Spanish authorities had driven from their occupation of hunting and buccaning or curing meat.

Although Captain Blood's escapades might better be termed buccaneering he roved the sea almost a century before the buccaneers originated and therefore must, strictly speaking, be termed a pirate.

Because of the length of this stupendous production there will be only one showing Sunday night, at 7:30 feature starting at 8, 10 sharp, and twice daily thereafter 2:15 feature at 2:40 and 7:30 feature at 8:00.

Pathe news, Aesops Fables comedy, Sunday night only Episode No. 5, Into the Net with Jack Mulhall.

The "Old West" has come back. Once again in the far North country where Zane Grey wrote the novel "The Border Legion" cowboys in picturesque garb ride through the great stretches where wire fences have not come.

The old west was reborn for Paramount's picturization of "The Border Legion" in locations personally selected by Zane Grey Far in the North country, a selected cast of Paramount players headed by Antonio Moreno, Helene Chadwick, Charles Ogle, Rockcliffe Fellows and Gibson Gowland, brought to life the characters that lived long ago.

Approximately 100 minor players, chiefly cowboys, take part in the spectacular production, directed by William Howard.

"The Border Legion," which opens at the Broadway theatre on Sunday was filmed true to life.

The story, adapted to the screen by George Hull, has to do with the activities of a band of ruthless outlaws who preyed upon settlers and gold towns in the early days of Idaho.

Here is perhaps one of the greatest of all Zane Grey tales, produced as is fitting such a story, with a cast that approaches perfection. Moreno and Miss Chadwick have featured roles, and others, besides those already mentioned, include Charles Ogle, James Corey, Edward Gribbon and Luke Cosgrave.

A picture youll never regret coming to see.

Other subjects include a comedy and Kinograms. Regular Sunday night prices will prevail.

Baby Tortured Day and Night by Eczema

Resinol Stopped Itching and Healed Skin

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 10:—"I thought it might interest you to know how much Resinol has done for my baby. Her face was covered with scabs and the itching was so severe I had to keep stockings on her hands to keep her from scratching. I had to be up all night as it bothered her so she could not sleep. Two doctors, one of them a skin specialist, told me she had eczema.

I tried several remedies, but nothing helped, so when I read in the paper about Resinol, I thought I would give it a trial. I can't praise it enough, for it has done wonders for the baby's skin and she sleeps all through the night now. I would advise anyone with a similar case to try Resinol Ointment." "Civilization is Doomed" read a circular received Friday, while another in the same batch read "Get Your Chimneys Cleaned." Most people probably will take a chance and have their chimneys cleaned.

Numbers from Danielson were at Pomfret street Friday for the third and final day of the big auction at the Mashamoquet inn.

All church notices appearing in this paper Saturday mornings will continue to be found grouped elsewhere in the paper.

In a social way Thanksgiving eve will be made much of in Danielson this year. A number of events already are announced to be held at that time.

A vaudeville bill in addition to the picture program brought out a large attendance at the Orpheum theatre Friday evening.

Workers for the Danielson chapter of the Red Cross plan to make a special effort during all of the coming week to obtain more memberships than have been noted here since the end of the war.

The Junior World Wide guild conducted an initiation ceremony at the Baptist church Friday evening. A dinner was served at 7 o'clock. Members of the guild from Willimantic were in attendance. Talks were given b Mrs. William Sells of China and Miss Grace Stanton.

Trustees of the Brooklyn Savings bank adopted memorial resolutions relative to the death of William H. Burnham of Hampton, for many years vice president of the institution.

A dispatch to the London Morning Post from Amsterdam, quoting reports received from Java, says the river near Kampong has been transformed into a mud channel in which the bodies of men and animals are lying.

PUTNAM

Arthur S. Macdonald, the new secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, is sending out the following letter to the members of that organization:

Putnam is not coming back—
Putnam has come back!
We have passed through dark hours.
Our mills have been closed, our bank has been closed.
This is passed. Forget it!
The morning of a new business era has dawned.
We have come back.
Our business men know this.
To insure immediate prosperity and good times they have decided to make it known to 20,000 people who do business in Putnam.
This will be done through a big Come Back Day providing you cooperate.
The plan is to let everyone in eastern Windham county know that Putnam has arrived.
Meet at the Putnam Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday afternoon at two o'clock. Tell your business neighbors to come.
Learn what Come-Back-Day means to you.

The letter is signed by the Merchants' Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Leo Bousquet arrested for breaking into the Speigleman store on Front street and stealing a suit of clothes, was presented Friday morning before Judge Geissler in the city court. He admitted his guilt but the city tribunal not having final jurisdiction in the case, he was bound over to the superior court in the sum of $1,000. Not being able to furnish the bond he was taken to Brooklyn jail. In the city court he admitted that he had been stealing chickens from his parents and selling them.

Bousquet is only 17 but has a local police record and has served a term in the state reformatory.

Miss Marjorie McGillicuddy, of Portland, Maine, has been secured to replace Miss Estelle McGee, resigned, as teacher of history and mathematics in Putnam High school. She is a graduate of Wellesley and has taken a special course of instruction in teaching at Bates. Afterwards she had practical experience in teaching for two terms. She will begin her work in Putnam Monday.

H. A. Brown, superior court messenger, who was taken seriously ill Monday was reported Friday as growing weaker, with the chances against his recovery. He is 77.

John Jay Whitehead, Jr., editor of The Patriot, on Monday became president of the Continental Property Company, Inc., a new organized foreign brokerage firm with offices in New York. Mr. Whitehead's new position will require his presence in New York for the larger part of each week, but he will come to Putnam every Thursday. In his absence, the office will be in charge of Attorney Arthur S. Macdonald, who returns to work on The Patriot Monday next, succeeding Albert F. Ralston.

Mr. Whitehead's new business venture is the result of a war association, The Continental Property Company, Inc., is a subsidiary organization to the law firm of Peaslee, Brigham and Gennert. Amos J. Peaslee, leading member of the firm was the commanding officer of the Information Section, Ordinance Department, in which Mr. Whitehead served as a private on enlisting, later being promoted to a captaincy, before his discharge in August, 1919. Major Peaslee was the organizer of the "Greyhounds" or Peace Conference Couriers, one of the unique and individual branches of the army service. Mr. Whitehead served as Major Peaslee's aide.

Dr. Winfield Scott Hall, medical teacher, writer and lecturer on social problems has been engaged by the County Y. M. C. A. association of Connecticut for a three weeks' speaking tour of the state.

His first lecture was at Danielson Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Hi-Y club. Next Wednesday, November 19 at 8 a. m. he will talk to the Putnam High School boys, his subject, "The Making of an Athlete." At 9 a. m. he will talk to the high school girls, subject, "A Physician's Message to His Daughter." At 1 p. m. he will address the Putnam Rotary club on "The Social Problem and its Solution." At 3 p. m. he will address a meeting of Putnam women held under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' association, subject, "Mother and Child." His last address of a rather busy day will be at 6.30 p. m. when he will be the principal speaker at a Father and Son banquet, under the auspices of the Hi-Y club whose his subject will be "Father and Son."

The celebration meeting of Putnam Coolidge club Thursday evening was largely attended and there was an interesting programme. The musical part opened by a selection by the high school orchestra under the direction of Samuel Rich. Then came whistling selections by Mrs. Elizabeth Wright and Mrs. Pearl B. Wheaton. After a reading by Mrs. Helen Spencer there was another orchestral selection. Then came a paper by Miss Clara Lorned, president of the Coolidge club, on "Some Anniversary Thoughts After Four Years of Woman Suffrage." Mrs. Katherine Lown gave a piano solo, after which the orchestra played. Following a reading by Miss Elnora Fisher, an orchestra number closed the programme. Miss Elizabeth Byrne was in charge of the programme.

At a business meeting of the club it was decided that the next meeting, to be held in December, should take the form of a waist party. The Coolidge club will continue to meet, but probably at less frequent intervals than during the presidential campaign.

It has been ten years since this section of Windham county has been as dry as it is today, and this statement has no relation to the Eighteenth amendment or the Volstead law. There has been no rainfall here for two months. North and south of here there were light showers Tuesday but only a few drops of rain fell in Putnam. The Harris trench that supplies the power for a number of mills is almost dry. On a track that has been driven from eight feet water for years toys were standing Friday, floating in a little pool. A school of suckers was practically marooned in what little water was left and the young fishermen were pulling them out with hook and line. Their value as food is probably not high.

Nearly all the mills that depend upon the trench for power also have an auxiliary electric equipment, but even with this they have been compelled to close part of the time.

Scores of wells in the country surrounding Putnam are dry. In Woodstock many farmers have to haul water for stock as well as for domestic use for distances varying from a few hundred yards to a mile. The soil is too dry for plowing and seeds that are planted do not germinate.

Eugene Beausoliel, who has been at St. Vincent's hospital, Worcester, under observation for the past two weeks was brought home Friday, the surgeons in charge having determined that he would not be benefitted by an operation. His condition is not encouraging. He was for many years an employe of the Putnam Woolen company.

All the flowers that decorated the Citizens National bank on its opening day; tributes of good wishes from other banks and from individuals who are friends of the new institution were sent to the Day Kimball hospital. Miss Bloxham, the superintendent, was very appreciative of the courtesy. The flowers were distributed among the wards and rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Benoit have gone to Hartford to spend the winter with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Benoit.

Mrs. Carl B. Johnson of Franklin, Mass., wife of the late owner and editor of the Franklin Sentinel, is to make her home in Putnam. Mrs. Geo. W. Perry, wife of the city engineer, is her sister.

EAST KILLINGLY

The Thursday evening prayer and Bible study meetings are held at the parsonage. The Willing Workers meet weekly Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Lydia A. Bartlett. They are rightly named.

Rev. W. D. Hetherington was a recent visitor in Fitchville and Norwich. He celebrated Armistice day with the Odd Fellows and returned home Wednesday.

The gentle rain Wednesday was thankfully received. Springs and wells in this town are low.

Almond Paine has a crew of men improving the time by making additions to his buildings, etc.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION FOR EDUCATION WEEK, NOV. 17-23

Washington, Nov. 14.—President Coolidge described education as "America's oldest contribution to civilization" in a proclamation issued today designing November 17 to 23, as American education week.

"A broad and liberal culture is necessary to enable men to think and to know how to live, the president declared in his proclamation, adding:

"An educated fool is a sorry spectacle, but he is not nearly so dangerous to society as a rich fool. We want neither in this country. We want the educated to know how to work and the rich to know how to think."

Calling attention to large numbers of children who have failed to receive educational advantages, "either through negligence or because of unfortunate circumstances which might be controlled with sufficient effort," the president asserted this condition "demands the solicitude of all patriotic citizens."

"It involves," he said, "not only the persons immediately concerned and the communities in which they live, but the nation itself for the welfare of the country depend upon the character and the intelligence of those who cast the ballots."

The proclamation recommends that governors of states issue proclamations emphasizing the services rendered by educational institutions, and urges educators and all others connected with the teaching profession to take part in the observance of the week. It suggests that patriotic, civic, religious, social, and other organizations also contribute to its success by conducting meetings and demonstrations.

"Education has come to be nearer to the hearts of the American people than any other single public interest," the proclamation says in recommending continuance of vigorous campaigns in the interest of education. These campaigns have concentrated attention upon the needs of education, it is pointed out, and the "cumulative impetus of mass action has been peculiarly beneficial."

SILVER MINE FOUND ON CATALINA ISLAND

Chicago, Nov. 14.—An old silver mine has been found on William Wrigley's famous Catalina Island off the California coast and already two carloads of ore, realizing $6,500 to each carload, have been shipped to San Francisco, Mr. Wrigle said toda. The mine was probably lost for sixty years, he added.

MAXWELL

It Rolls up Good Will Through Merit Alone

It is easy to understand the vast volume of good will the good Maxwell has rolled up.

The car earns it through sheer merit alone. You grasp this at once as soon as you become familiar with its powerful, yet agile performance, the easy, effortless manner in which it does its job, its comfort, its economy.

Then you say to yourself: No wonder these Maxwell owners are enthusiasts. They are enjoying a performance—an automotive service—distinguished by qualities never before found in a four, a performance worthy of a far higher price.

You, too, will confirm this judgment and add to the good will, directly you become really acquainted with the Chrysler-built Maxwell of today.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Maxwell's attractive plan.

REGULATING AUTOS.

That there will be new legislation pertaining to the automobile when the general assembly convenes is to be expected. In this respect Connecticut will not differ from other states. Even in states where there are annual sessions of the legislature it becomes necessary to meet present day requirements. The inadequacy of the laws, the failure of the provisions to meet the situation, and the increase in highway traffic call for attention. Connecticut has taken a sane view of such matters in the past and it can be relied upon to do so next year.

Massachusetts has a legislative committee which has requested the motor vehicle registrar of that state to make recommendations for needed changes in auto regulations. Keenly alert to the situation, Registrar Goodwin points out that the limit to be placed upon the speed of autos under any conditions should be 30 miles an hour, while 20 miles should be the limit within cities. He believes that the law should be so changed as to require a person convicted of driving while intoxicated to be sent to jail, that operators should not be licensed under 16 years and that all owners of cars should be required to carry insurance against the possibility of killing or injuring another.

When the registrar places a limit on speed he knows how prominently speed figures in automobile accidents. He is not unmindful, however, of the need of keeping traffic moving in order to prevent congestion, and when it comes to speed it is to be realized that much depends upon the judgment of the driver as to how much is maintained or where it is employed.

It will be noticed that Registrar Goodwin hasn't as yet gotten to the point where he believes all drivers should be forced to drive as fast as 30 miles an hour. Such an effort to do away with the slow driver may come but there are consequences involved which need to be seriously considered before any false move is made. It isn't the slow driver so much as it is the speeder and the one who refuses to respect the rights of others who is responsible for so many and such deplorable accidents.

THE IOWA CONTEST.

Far beyond the borders of Iowa is there interest in the outcome of the senatorial contest in that state, where the unofficial count was such as to convince Senator Brookhart that he had been defeated, only to result in revised figures showing him to have a slight lead. At the present time he appears to be leading by less than 700 out of a total vote that runs up somewhere near 100,000.

This display of sentiment on the part of the voters of Iowa, due to the refusal of republicans to support the man who had used the party to get his nomination and then throw his support to another party, indicates clearly enough that the voters of Iowa have sickened of Brookhart and almost a majority of those who voted were willing to have democratic representation in the upper house of congress rather than the retention of a turncoat.

What adds interest to this clear repudiation of Brookhartism is the disclosures which have been made concerning the ballots which have been thrown out in that state. Even with Brookhart leading, there is no question but what his opponent has won if the ballots cast for the latter but thrown out could be counted. The mixup is due to the fact that in giving instructions to the voters as to how they should mark their ballots to vote against Brookhart many newspapers printed part of a ballot and called attention to the method of marking by a finger or an arrow. Unfortunately many of the voters in taking the advice also placed the arrow on the ballot. Such have therefore been considered marked ballots and thrown out but there can be no question what the intention of the voter was.

From all indications that is the only thing that will make it possible for Brookhart to return to Washington after next March. It is enough to make some of those who did it kick themselves and tear their hair, for it is evident Iowa intended to clean house. The effect of it upon Brookhart should be conspicuous, and it might be expected to be were it anyone but Brookhart who had received such a repudiation.

THE BRITISH DOMINIONS.

When Sir Auckland Geddes delivered the first of a series of lectures in London this week he considered the time ripe for calling the attention of the British to the need of seeking and more nearly meeting the sentiment of the dominions.

He couldn't have done this in any more effective manner than by pointing out that there is a closer understanding between the dominions and the United States than between the dominions and Great Britain. This is to be interpreted as meaning that the dominions find greater sympathy in American policies than they do in the British, that they are drawn to American views and, if we understand it correctly, they are leaning much more strongly toward American influence than they should for the good of Great Britain.

Sir Auckland isn't to be regarded as telling the British that this country is aiming at such a thing. He doesn't say that we are deliberately currying favor with the dominions for the embarrassment of Great Britain, but he tells the British that more serious consideration needs to be given to the situation as he sees it. When it is told by a former British ambassador to Washington that Canadians, for instance, feel that they are better understood at Washington than they are at London it casts no reflections upon Washington or Canada. It recites a condition intended to cause London to measure up to what its dominions expect of it.

The tie between London and the dominions has not been weakened. That is not menaced by this country. The dominions are as loyal as ever and will continue to be, but Sir Auckland feels that the time has come for telling the British that London is not as mindful of its duty as it should be in this direction. The address is one that will be read with keen interest among the dominions.

CABINET CHANGES.

Ever since election there has been no end of speculation as to what was going to happen to the present cabinet, what new type of Calvin Coolidge was to be found in the white house and who was going to be asked to serve in the president's official family and why. One might suspect from the manner in which reports were issued that everything was cut and dried, that there was inside information available to warrant each of a dozen kinds of explanations and that something radical in the way of changes was in the wind.

On due reflection it has probably been realized that pure and unadulterated guesswork was underway, so that it is by no means surprising that there comes from the white house the statement that all such talk is merely rumor and without foundation.

That there will be changes in the cabinet is not unlikely. Secretary Davis has asked to be relieved of his duties at the head of the department of labor and there is a vacancy to be filled in the department of agriculture because of the death of Secretary Wallace, whose place is being temporarily filled by his assistant who has been elected governor of West Virginia.

When it comes to retaining his present cabinet or picking members for a new cabinet it can be expected that President Coolidge will act with that rare good judgment which he has displayed on other occasions, regardless of what the speculators have to say. Cabinet rumors as such should be fully discounted.

APPLES.

At Atlantic City this week there has been a meeting of apple growers. They are concerned, of course, with the consumption of their product quite the same as with the production of more and better fruit, and in their survey they point out that while there has been an increase of 15 per cent in the population of the country during the past 15 years the consumption of apples has fallen off 7 per cent.

It is known that the days are gone when such a great number considered themselves properly refreshed with apples during the evening. Apple eating hasn't disappeared but other things have taken its place, and then it is to be realized that it is impossible to obtain the apples that were formerly available. There's a limited supply of native apples, and a supply that's hard to get, for the market is interested chiefly in the polished apple from a long distance that makes a far different appeal to the pocketbook. The fact is that little has been done to encourage the eating of more apples.

This seems to be appreciated by the apple growers, if we are to judge by the slogan which they have adopted of "More and better apples at better prices." This gathering spoke for no particular section. It wasn't dealing with Connecticut or New England conditions, particularly, but it would have reached the same conclusion if it had. It is fair to assume that they attribute the decline in apple eating to the kind of apples that are available, the price that is exacted and the inability to get what was formerly obtainable and now cannot be had.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The crossword puzzles are now causing late hours quite as much as the radio.

The Saturday night consumption will disclose how much the people are cooperating in the saving of water.

The man on the corner says: It will be a long time before some will finish telling how the election result happened.

Brooklyn was treated to the excitement of a bull running wild. Probably it was headed for Wall street and lost its way.

As we get further away from the election there are those who knew the result would have been different if conditions were not just what they were.

There's plenty of coffee, but the price scare because it is impossible to get it to market. Are the producers going to ask for special relief legislation?

What profiteth us if we get a bigger price for our light plant and pave the way for paying higher lighting rates for street and household lighting?

Even if Hiram Johnson hasn't said a word since the election, and scarcely any more before, he must be convinced that there was a real demand for Coolidge.

Perhaps those two young members of wealthy families who have gone to work in a department store started in now to get ahead of the child labor amendment.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

How refreshing it is to take up our morning papers and find no longer valuable space wasted with reports of campaign speeches! Of course reference is made to these of the mud slinging type. Messages that bring out forcibly and clearly what a platform stands for will be read by all those who feel their need of enlightenment, but where a platform is nothing but a juggling of the issues involved, and is open to many interpretations, it is more likely to hurt the party it is supposed to represent than to help it. Where platforms are purposely a blind, they usually act as a boomerang to the party that stands sponsor for them. But worse still is the mud slinging at the opposing party. It always indicates that the mud slinger has no constructive issue. This last presidential contest has suggested this advice that was once given: "If you can't beat the other fellow at argument then knock him down!"

A truly great endeavor ought to be measured from the standpoint of the handicap it works under. A truly great work seems all the greater when it has seemingly overcome the insuperable. Take, for example, the work of some of our missionaries who have translated the Bible for the benefit of those tribes that have no written language. One can hardly imagine a more difficult task. All he has to begin with are certain sounds more or less indistinct. When the native refers to a certain object he makes a certain sound. Then the missionary finds words that represent that sound as nearly as possible. He then shows the scholar what the sound of an object looks like in print, and in this way he finds the basis of a written language. One can see how hard it is to find a printed form of an idea that never entered into the native's mind.

One of the modest virtues of life is faithfulness. From its very nature it can hardly be spectacular under any circumstances. Heroic deeds stand in the limelight, and heroes get the big headlines. But the faithful, whose careers are more of the passive type, live quietly and die unnoticed. In obituary notices the word "faithful" appears more than any other. He was a faithful husband, or she was a faithful wife. How faithfulness in a given task is to be measured by the ability we have to deal with it adequately. The man who has been endowed with only one talent can hardly be expected to do the ten-talent job, and on the other hand, the man who is blest with ten talents has no right to slump though life in the one talent basis. Let every man do just as God has given him the ability! That is faithfulness, and the faithful can hardly expect to get their full reward here and now.

It is not very unusual to find ants in a sugar bucket. Just at present the sugar bucket is the glorious weather which (up to the time of this writing) has been long continued. And the ants are some of the annoyances that we are finding in the bucket. The doctors are treating an unusual number of people at this season of the year for colds and irritations of the nose and throat. What is the cause? As the surface of the ground has not been cleared of its impurities for a long time by rain, they have been increasing, and by means of numerous motor vehicles have become minutely pulverized and blown about by winds. When this noxious material comes in contact with the sensitive membranes of nose and throat it produces the irritation from which so many at present are suffering. It is a nice thing to have a full bucket of sugar, but we pay for it after we have settled with the grocer.

Would it not be the part of prudence and wisdom while the dry spell lasts to increase the cubic capacity of our reservoirs? It would be literally "seizing the bull by the horns" to attack Stony Brook which is said to be dry. Possibly the plan it not feasible, but it seem to the writer that the mud might be dug out thereby enlarging its storage capacity. If it were made ten feet deeper the extra amount of water that it would hold might be enough to tide the city over a threatened shortage, and the time to do it is when the going is good. There is no water to hinder, and there seems to be no reason why it might not be done without exhausting the city finances. Some fair day the city is going to be caught napping, and the present situation is enough to warn the city that a larger water supply is a glaring need.

The Smart Set in a recent issue has this bon mot. "The best way to get what you ask for is to make it plain that you will probably take it anyway." Many besieged cities have been surrendered because the defending parties knew full well that they were holding out against fate and that to surrender was the only rational thing to do. No general ever attacked a besieged city that he did not expect to capture, and a call to surrender is an easy way out for the weaker party. It is greater evidence of military genius to know just when to surrender than to keep on fighting when one knows that in the end he will "be beaten into a frazzle." And thus it is through life it oftentimes takes more real courage to give up than to keep on. Some people have a great knack of asking for things they mean to get anyway; and more than that they go about it in a way that makes you feel that they will somehow get it. That is real genius.

It was Bismarck's policy never to take a firm stand in diplomacy until he knew just where he was coming out. But when such a stand was taken, he was as immovable as the granite earth. This is the way he expressed it in his own language: "I never put down my right foot until I know exactly where I am going to put my left." He probably learned the wisdom of this mode of procedure from his experience as a soldier in the Pomeranian marshes. If a man has to go through a treacherous swale, if he is acquainted at all with outdoor life, he know perfectly well that it will not do to get both feet into the soft mire at the same time. If he sinks up to the knee with one foot he is all right if he has sure footing with the other. Bismarck never plunged into the tangled mazes of diplomacy with both feet in the mud or with both eyes shut. He always had some terra firma to stand upon, but oftentimes he had precious little to spare.

As there are fire engine meters in every city of the country today, can we realize that it was on November 15, 1909, that the first motorized fire engine was used, and that it was in Passaic, New Jersey? Modern science has been so rich and fertile in its accomplishments in the last fifty years that men now living at seventy feel that their boyhood days were spent in the middle ages. Have we any right to presume that scientific inventions and discoveries have yet reached their climax? Is it not fair to presume that the next fifty years will be as fruitful in the onward march of civilization as the last fifty? But there is a shady side to it. It makes one shudder to think of the use that may be made of poisonous gases, of air craft carrying bombs. It tells us plainly that if civilization is to be preserved, war must be abolished.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

THE CLOUDS

For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds. Psalms 5-7, 10.

Let us observe the pure white clouds that stretch in ranks like rolling waves across the canopy of heaven in the still deep noon of a summer day.

Row after row, they lie in the light, opening up their beauty to the blaze of the noonday sun, and they are all fair, they are without spot or wrinkle: Who of God in white clothing and whence came they? These are they that have come from various places on the surface of the earth and sea, some from the briny ocean, and some from miry land: some from yellow overflowing rivers, and some from cool crystal springs; some from stagnant pools in lovely deserts, and some from the slimy bed of the Thames or Clyde, where living creatures can scarcely breathe on it banks.

All are alike welcome to these heavens and all in their ressurrection state are equally pure, may we spiritualy distant and unclean, may we rise, like these snow white clouds from earth to heaven, and take our place without challenge among the stainless witnesses who stand round the Redeemers throne? We may not because out stains are few, but because the blood of Jesus Christ, God's son, cleanseth from all sin. We may not because my sins are small, but because my Saviour is great.

CROSSING THE CONTINENT BY AUTO.

Now to continue our trip.

The roads of Indiana and Illinois continue as were those of Ohio. It seemed to me that these two states raise every cereal grain of which I have ever heard. Corn, ten and twelve feet high, kaffir, wheat, barley, oats. All the farm lands are so rich and prosperous looking. All the states west of New Jersey seem to set a high value on their children, too. All through the country districts and everywhere one sees the children being taken to school by bus.

Disappointed by St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo., was a big disappointment to me as was the Mississippi river. The latter was narrow, full of mud flats and very dirty. St. Louis, with its 800,000 inhabitants, is a cluttery, unattractive city. It has a beautiful park, but its tourist camp is a disgrace to any city, dirty and unsanitary. They take great pride in their botanical garden, but it does not compare with Horticultural hall in Philadelphia, in fact there were no flowers in bloom except water lilies of white, blue, pink and lavender.

Missouri is a state of rolling hills and valleys—a state of rich farm lands. When a farmer there rents a place, he pays eight dollars for each acre, so his land must be made to produce well in order that he may pay his rent. The Missouri farmers all look alike—long, lean and lanky with wide floppy brimmed black felt hats.

And mules! I didn't know there were so many mules in the whole world as I saw in that state, big and little and all colors.

At Bell Lake there is a big trout hatchery, where many varieties of that fish are raised for the federal and state governments. The lake trout were so tame that they would eat bits of bread from one's hands. There are many canteloupes and watermelons raised through here, with ten cents apiece top price for either fruit.

In Kansas

Crossing the Kaw river, another stream, the Sunflower state. The roadsides everywhere are full of these flowers which are just like the cultivated ones of the east except that the flowers are much smaller and the plants are very branching.

In the matter of farming, Kansas is the richest state I have seen. A two hundred acre field of alfalfa, like green plush, is common, and there were many five hundred acre tracts of winter wheat. I was surprised at the eabsence of tractors in planting these huge areas, nearly all the work being done by four, or six horse teams. And the wind! It blew and blew and blew!

About seventy miles beyond Topeka, we entered Camp Funston, which is comprised of 22,000 acres and was the largest of all the training camps during the late war. It is being dismantled now, but at one time it contained as high as 200,000 men.

Just beyond is the ruin of an old stone building which was the first territorial capitol of Kansas in 1855, and two miles beyond this is the exact geographical center of the United States, in the grounds of Ft. Riley, an old military post, which is at present used mostly as a cavalry school.

At Lyons, Kansas, we saw the largest salt mine in the world. The salt is mined at a depth of about one thousand feet, is brought up in big blocks which are nearly transparent and 99 per cent pure salt. As the sun shines on it, it sparkles like diamonds.

The western part of the state of Kansas is less green and rich looking than the east. Here the renting farmer pays one third of his crop as rent and "no crop, no rent." There are hundreds of small homesteads each with its windmill for pumping water to irrigate the crops of milo maize, sugar beets and alfalfa, and in many places there are splendid herds of the white faced Hereford cattle.

It does not seem possible that a modern and busy place like Dodge City was known as the "wickedest town in the country" only 40 years ago. Now, they call it the Buckle on the Wheat Belt, because it is the point to which nearly all the wheat of the southwest is shipped. Years ago it was the headquarters and chief shipping point of the buffalo hunters, later it was the center of the then great cattle country. The Comanche, Kiowa, Chevenne and Arapahoe Indians contested every foot of the railway being built through here and killed hundreds of settlers and gangs of railroad workmen.

As far as one can see rolls unbroken prarie, no trees, just bare brown earth and broken rock. Truly the pioneers who first drove their teams of oxen and covered wagons into this country had courage, and one does not wonder at the occasional deserted homestead.

Points in Colorado

At Las Animas, Colo., one catches the first glimpse of the Rocky mountains. Las Animas means lost souls. Here one sees immense flocks of sheep being cared for by herders and beautiful collie dogs. At old Fort Lyon, built in 1867, is a United States Naval sanatorium, and just east is old Fort Bent, 1829. Here Kit Carson once made his home and the building is one of the interesting sights of the neighborhood.

Due west and 75 miles distant, we catch our first sight of Spanish peaks (Las dos Hermanas, or The Two Brothers) and the Sangre de Cristo (Blood of Christ) ranges. The latter streaked and splotched with red rock formation and heavily capped with glistening snow.

Overlooking Trinidad, Colo., is the majestic Fisher's peak, 10,290 feet high, and this city is near the foot of Raton pass where one goes up and up, twisting and turning around innumerable hair pin turns to 7,866 feet, but the road is wide, with banked turns and has an excellent hard road bed—yet one surely feels at the "top of the world." As the ascent is twelve miles long, it is not to be wondered at and right near the summit one crosses the Colorado — New Mexico state line.

In New Mexico

Las Vegas, N. M., is beautifully situated in the foothills of the great mountains and is a modern and progressive city, yet it is full of the romance of the old days. Long before Plymouth Rock, the Spanish explorer Coronado passed through here (1541) the traders caravans going over the Santa Fe trail from 1821, drove into the old Plaza, and in 1846, Gen. Kearny stood on top of an old abode house and claimed New Mexico for the United States. In later days, that greatest of all Americans, Theodore Roosevelt, gathered his Rough Riders at Las Vegas for their first reunion after the Spanish war.

At Pigeon's ranch, just beyond Las Vegas was fought the last battle of the Civil war and trophies of that time are still being found. Here is a crystal clear well of water, the curbing of which was built by the government at that time.

And ten miles of Glorieta pass! Narrow, a road bed full of rocks, and looking over the edge one sees, hundreds of feet below, a little stream. Twists, turns, now in the bottom of an arroyo, now on top of a hill.

In the west, the ascending car has the right of way, and backing up a hill on a road just wide enough for one car and where if the car is not kept straight, you drop right off the earth—well, the sensation is unpleasant, but like all things it came to an end. Going an through Apache canyon, Cononcito, which was a stopping place for the stages in the days of the Santa Fe Trail, we came to the beautiful city of Santa Fe.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Band, Not Drum Corps

Mr. Editor: I notice in your issue of November 12th, giving account of the parade of the fifth division you have our Boy Scouts down as a drum corps. We wish to advise you that it was the St. Joseph's Boy Scout band of Willimantic who were the guests of the United Commercial Travelers of Norwich.

This band of forty-five pieces was organized two and a half years ago and has made wonderful progress under the leadership of Band Master Charles N. C. Wheeler. This is the only Boy Scout band in Connecticut that we know of.

Yours truly,
TROOP COMMITTEE,
W. J. COSTELLO.

Patti Sang to Help the Family

Endowed with a wonderful voice, Adelina Patti had to support the family at a time in life when other girls were enjoying the happiness of home and playmates.

Daughter of professional singers, she was born in Madrid, and brought to this country at one year of age and lived in the Italian quarter of New York.

A lover of music, she began to sing at six, and her beautiful voice and her great ability as a singer were discovered just as the family finances were at low ebb. Maurice Strakosch, her brother-in-law, trained her and she made he debut at a charity benefit in little Tripler Hall, standing on a table as she sang.

So warmly was she received that she was taken on a concert tour to strengthen the family treasury. At the opening performance in Baltimore there were only 100 paid admissions. With Ole Bull, the violinist, she toured the country and for five years lived in hotels and traveled. The life on the road was so strenth-taxing that a break-down of her health was feared and she was permitted to rest two years.

After a tour of the West Indies, she returned to New York, studied grand opera roles and after many appeals was permitted to sing at the Academy of Music, being paid $50 for singing the part of Lucia at her debut. She was given an ovation and at 18 became a star.

At the end of two seasons filled with success, she went to London. Upon her arrival she found that her contract was worthless, and she was compelled to give three concerts without compensation in order to get a hearing. Critics scored her technique but the public was enthusiastic and her rise to success was sensational. Royalty applauded and honored her and she became the idol of Europe.

Married at 25 to the Marquis of Caux, she was divorced at 42. The next year she married Niccolini, the tenor, and their life was ideal until his death 12 years later.

Returning to this country at 43, her tour was a continous ovation. She came back for a final tour but it was so successful that she had frequent "farewell" tours until three years before she retired at 64.

At 56 she married Baron Cederstrom and after she gave up touring, they lived at beautiful Craigy-Nos, in Wales until her death.

At the same time he took an active interest in Republican politics in Chicago, served as chairman of his party. Representative Madden is now chairman of the House Appropriations committee. He was placed in nomination as a candidate for speaker last session, but declined to conduct an active campaign against Speaker Gillett.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

A Surprise for Miss Mousie

Dear little boy and dear little girl, if instead of reading this story you could peep into dear Uncle Lucky's little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street,—peek in through the sitting room window,—you would see poor Little Miss Mousie curled up in the old gentleman rabbit's big arm chair, her pretty bobbed head buried in the cushion. Yes, there she lay, forgetful of how fast time was going, heart-broken that Uncle Lucky had found out that she had baked for him a lovely birthday cake. For weeks she had planned this surprise. She had even bought for him a new pair of yellow socks and a purple cravat, and now it was all spoilt. By accident he had looked through the kitchen window and had seen her putting in the pretty candles.

All of a sudden, the Old Grandfather clock in the hall struck eight. Goodness me, was it that late? Springing out of the chair, she rubbed her eyes with her pinky handkerchief. Why wasn't he home? Where could he be? Scampering out to the kitchen, she lighted the fire and put on the water kettle. Then, hiding the cake in the cupboard, she set the table, spreading the big red cloth covered with great white roses, carefully over the corners.

"What can be the matter?" she asked herself, now beginning to worry over the dear old bunny gentleman. For the moment she forgot all about her disappointment at the thought that something dreadful might have happened to him:

"I might call up Little Jack Rabbit," she thought. But she changed her mind immediately for fear of worrying that little bunny boy.

"No, I'll just wait at the little gate."

Then she said to herself, lifting the lid of the water kettle and setting it to one side for fear it might blow off when the water began to boil. Then, lighting the lamp, she looked in the mirror and smoothed her bobbed hair. "I wish my eyes weren't so red with crying," she almost sobbed, as she ran out on the front piazza and down the walk. Tommy Treetoad was singing in the tree and the Twinkle, Twinkle Star was shining in the sky as she leaned over the gate and looked down Lettuce avenue and up Carrot street.

"Hooiy, tooty, fruity!" came an old owl from the Shady Forest, making poor Little Miss Mousie shiver with dread.

"Uncle Lucky, please come home," she whispered.

Billy Breeze must have carried her wistful voice to the old gentleman rabbit's ears, for all of a sudden, he made the Luckymobile go faster than ever, and in less time than I can take to tell it, he dashed out of the Shady Forest on to Lettuce avenue, and around the corner of Carrot street.

Through the little front gate he whizzed, and, hopping out of the Luckymobile, he met his tiny housekeeper as she ran towards him.

"Hold our your hand," he laughed, and the next minute the little watch was ticking on her wrist,—ticking almost as loudly as her happy heart.

"Tomorrow we'll eat the cake all by ourselves," she said, as the tiny kitchen windows beamed on them like a star among the trees, and together they ran into the little white house.

Stories That Recall Others

Better Than Coue's Stuff

In the days when the doctor was dentist, surgeon and sage not infrequently his knowledge of he personal prejudices of families served him well.

It is recalled by an early physician's son that his father told often of how a cure was affected by a remark that would now come under psychological classification.

Mrs. X, a member of a family known for its strength of character, when then was called "plain contrariness" by neighbors, was ill and had given up recovery. The family happened to have an inherent dislike for all members of another family. The physician wisely though of a plan.

"Nancy," he said the next time he called on the woman who refused to get well, "I was talking to Bill J— today and told him you were pretty sick. He said: 'That's always the way with those X's, they are always dying off.'"

"You just 'You just tell Bill J—" she said hotly, sitting up in her bed, "that there ain't nothin' the matter with Nancy X. and that the X's ain't no race to lay down and die like the J's are."

It is recorded in the case that Nancy soon rose from her bed and lived to an advanced age.

OBITUARY.
Mrs. Erastus Gardner.

Following an illness of less than a month, Mrs. Emma M. B. Gardner, 87, widow of Deacon Erastus Gardner, died from the infirmities of age, Friday morning, at 4 o'clock, at the Johnson Home, where she had been a member of the family for nearly eleven years.

Mrs. Gardner who had been in failing health for about a year, was born in North Lyme, January 14, 1837, the daughter of Edwin H. and Emily Wells Banning. She finished her education at New Britain Normal school. For about five years she was a teacher in the West Side schools in this city, later teaching in Bridghampton, Long Island.

In December, 1865, she was united in marriage with Charles E. Bailey of Groton, a sea captain, brother of the late Benjamin Bailey of New London. Captain Bailey died in December, 1876, and was buried at sea. There was one child, Lyman Wells Bailey, a promising young man, who died in September, 1891.

In January, 1893, Mrs. Bailey married Deacon Erastus H. Gardner of Norwich; he died in March, 1912.

When the Johnson Home was opened by the King's Daughters in 1906, Mrs. Gardner was its first matron. Deacon Gardner acted as caretaker, while his wife looked after the interior interests at the home, they remaining in charge for about four years. Mrs. Gardner entered the home as an inmate January 29, 1914, and has always been contented and happy. She was a loyal member of the First Baptist church. A woman of beautiful Christian character, one of her chief characteristics all through her life was the desire to contribute to the happiness and comfort of everyone who came within her influence, ready to sacrifice for the good of others. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Fanny W. Abell, of Norwich Town, a nephew and two nieces in Memphis, Tenn., a niece by marriage, Mrs. Alice Abell Hall of Preston City, also three stepdaughters, Mrs. George A. Stanton and Mrs. Arthur F. Howard of Norwich and Mrs. Frank Lippitt of Washington, D. C. There is one step-grandchild, Miss Lucile Howard of Norwich, and a step grandson in Washington, D. C.

FINDS LIQUOR EVIDENCE IN STANTON HILL AUTO FATALITY

Evidence of liquor being concerned in the recent fatal automobile accident on Stanton Hill, Mystic, when a New London man named Pecora was fatally injured while riding in the automobile driven by Claude Jaffe of Danielson, an employe of the state highway department, has been disclosed to Coroner J. J. Desmond who has been occupied for the past two days in investigating the accident.

It is anticipated that Coroner Desmond will at once make known the result of his finding to Attorney Warren Burrows, prosecutor for the town of Groton, and that he will find criminal negligence against Jaffe. In his own statement to the coroner, Jaffe said that he had gone to New London from Mystic with Pecora to get a mason and that they had been to Pecora's house, where they each had at least two drinks of wine. A bottle of the liquor was filled and was taken with them in the car when they started back toward Mystic.

While going up Stanton hill, the car struck a tree on the right of the road and Pecora was thrown against the tree, which had a large patch of bark taken off. Where the man's body came in contact with the tree was indicated by bits of flesh and tufts of hair adhering to the bark.

According to the testimony before the coroner, there was a well defined mark showing where the automobile had been off on the left side of the road and it had been crossed to the right and crashed into the tree. Jaffe claimed that he lost control of the car because it hit a stone and bounded off the road.

One of the witnesses who gave information to the coroner stated that when he first saw the automobile after the accident, the bottle filled with liquor was on the seat but that when he saw the car again, broken parts of the bottle were found in two different places, one piece underneath the car and another piece over the wall near the tree.

The accident happened in the day time on a straight stretch of road and there was no other traffic on the road at the time nor were there any eyewitnesses of the crash except the two men in the wrecked automobile.

Both these matters will be called to the attention of the selectmen by the association. FREEMAN REPORTS HIS ELECTION EXPENSE $50

Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London, republican, spent $50 to win his re-election in this district, according to report filed at Washington, D. C. No campaign expenditures were reported by the other contenders in this district, Frank P. Fenton, democrat, of Willimantic, and William P. Barstow, prohibitionist, of Plainfield.

It cost Schuyler Merritt, republican, of Stamford, $1,455 to win his seat in the 69th congress as representative from the Fourth district.

In his voucher of campaign expenses filed at the capitol Representative Merritt claims this amount to have been expended up to the time of the election. These vouchers are turned in to the clerk of the house of representatives by all candidates in compliance with the requirements of the law.

The sum of $1,455, Mr. Merritt states, was turned over to Harry E. MacKenzie, his political agent, to carry on the campaign. He received no contributions toward his campaign, he says.

William English Walling, democrat, of Greenwich, who opposed Representative Merritt, on election day had spent $295 on his campaign up to Oct. 25, according to his report. Two hundred dollars of this was turned over to Alfred N. Phillips, Jr., chairman of the democratic campaign committee for the Fourth district, and the remaining $95 went for traveling expenses and for advertising in the Connecticut Labor News. Mr. Walling likewise received no contributions to his campaign, he states.

For many years he was active and prominent in civic and fraternal organizations.

Mr. Kazmier has traveled extensively abroad and has recently made an intensive study of post-war conditions in European countries. He was an officer of the American Good Will delegation which visited Greece, Constantinople, Syria and Palestine in the fall of 1923 and he prepared exhaustive reports made by that committee on economic conditions in the countries visited.

RESENT BEING CALLED "BOBBED-HAIR SISSIES"

Washington, Nov. 14.—Bobbed-hair members of the choir of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal church, south, here, have gone on strike against the term "bobbed-hair sissies" applied to them by the Rev. Burke Culpepper, a Memphis evangelist.

After reciting a Bible story the Rev. Mr. Culpepper to the choir, and telling of the foibles of the present day, let loose the remark, which nettled several of the singers. An indignation meeting was held, and according to one source, at least half of the female portion of the choir have refused to continue their services.

Meanwhile the Rev. Mr. Culpepper, sticking to his guns has opened a new fusilade on bobbed hair, quoting Scripture to bear out his contentions that it is not in accordance with the teachings of the Bible.

HAVE CLUE TO SLAYER OF CLEVELAND BOOTLEGGER

Cleveland, Nov. 14.—After two days' investigation into the killing early yesterday of Louis Rosen, 29, Cleveland bootlegger and Adolph Adelson, 28, Philadelphia, his brother-in-law, police tonight had but one definite clue—the owner o an automobile in which three men were seen driving away from the Rosen home where the shooting occurred.

Two men known to have been associated with Rosen in the bootleg business, were held tonight, New York police have been asked to pick up a third partner who is thought to have engineered shipments of crude alcohol to the Cleveland ring.

The deaths of Rosen and Adelson, police believe, was a result of war between bootleggers and "hi-jackers" in which Adelson was not implicated. He was shot only because he happened to be present when "hi-jackers" gunmen attacked Rosen, it is thought.

NEW LONDON POLICE SUSPECT WOMAN IN HILL ST. SLASHING

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 14.—

Earl Downey, residing at 28 Mill street, became involved in a fight in which a knife or a bottle was used by his unknown opponent, early this morning, and as a result of the conflict Downey received a lacerated face, the wound requiring several stitches to close. Downey appeared at the police station about 2.30 o'clock and requested that he be provided medical attention. His righ cheek was bleeding from a gaping wound, but Downey refused to tell who inflicted the wound or where the fight occurred. He was directed to the office of a physician where the wound was dressing. Downey also refused to reveal any facts of the assault to the physician and after he had been treated, left for his home. It is the belief of the police that the fight in which Downey received the cutting took place at his home, or at a resort in that vicinity.

Late this afternoon the police obtained information as to the facts that resulted in the cutting. A woman, A. E. McShann, and a lodger at the Downey house, engaged in a fight with Downey and when Downey is alleged to to have overpowered the woman, she is alleged to have seized a knife and slashed his face. She then fled from the house clad only in a house dress and slippers and securing a public service automobile was driven to a place where she has so far secreted herself. The police tonight are endeavoring to locate the driver of the taxicab and to ascertain where he delivered his passenger. The McShann woman is described as being light colored and good looking, has black bobbed haid and is about five feet eight inches in height.

The night shift of the police department is becoming crippled because of illness. Sergeant Samuel Hick has been confined to his home, Blydenburg avenue the greater part of the week by an attack of grip and tonight Patrolman Timothy T. Sullivan and Augustus Ray were unable to perform duty because of illness.

Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton returned to his home in Waterford this morning having been under treatment for a month at a local private hospital, during which time he was operated upon for appendicitis and other ailments.

Miss Eleanor Stewart, New York, has arrived in New London, summoned here because of the serious illness of her father, Rev. C. S. M. Stewart, 1 Brooks street.

Miss Margaret Hartigan of Providence, has concluded a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. John M. Toohey, 45 Colman street, and has gone to Springfield, Mass., where she will remain several days as guests of relatives.

The police have been unable to locate Mrs. Grace Phelps of Groton, who abandoned her boy, , last evening when she took the youngster to the grocery store of Daniel Button, 11 Williams street, after alighting from a waiting public service car, and then returning to the machine and driving away, leaving the child alone with the store proprietor. It is believed that Mrs. Phelps boarded the New London line steamer for New York or one of the early morning trains. She had not returned to the home of her mother in Groton today and the latter declared that she did not know the whereabouts of her daughter. The child is being cared for by Mrs. Timothy Sullivan, matron of the B. P. Learned Mission.

Orrin Brown, about 50, formerly of Quaker Hill, Waterford, died at a Hartford hospital this afternoon following a brief illness with pneumonia. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. L. Fracey Sheffield of Ocean avenue, and a son, Spencer Brown, Washington street, and by two sisters, residing at Quaker Hill. Mr. Brown, who was employed as a shoe salesman by a Boston concern, had been located in Hartford about six months. Early in the week he was found ill on the street and removed to the hospital, where his condition rapidly became worse until the end.

George Crummie, a negro sailor from a coast guard vessel, strayed off his course last night and was found on a veranda at the Andrews home at Maple and Pequot avenues. Folks in the house saw the negro peering in through a window, or they thought they saw him, and sent in a call to the police station. This brought Officer Selesnitzky and the sailor in a jiffy was on the way to the police station where he spent the rest of the night. This morning he pleaded guilty when charged with offensive conduct and behavior, but he added when he had the opportunity to do so that he entered that plea because he could not prove that he was innocent of the alleged offense. He said he did not realize any thing he had done, but he did realize that he had been locked up during the night. He was told that he would have to pay a fine of $25 or work out that amount and additional costs for his trial of $10 more. He went to jail.

George Potter, a young man who has been in all sorts of scrapes in the past ten years, was picked up very drunk on Shaw street last night. He admitted that he was drunk when found and was fined $10. He is to work out the fine and costs at the county jail. Potter and his brother shot at Police Lieut. Jeffers, some years ago, when detected robbing a boat at East New London. They were sent to prison then and since that time they have been engaged in so many scrapes that there is no sympathy for them among friends or acquaintances.

Patrick Mansfield was fined $5 for intoxication. His case was of the simple sort—no frills on it at all.

A long stretch of sidewalk is being relaid on Montauk avenue, between Blydenburg and Willetts avenues. There are other sections of the street south of this point where walks should be relaid.

Under the old form of city government, New London acquired by purchase a section of the sidewalk at the northwest corner of Bank street and Montauk avenue. No attempt was made to widen the street there for which purpose the purchase was made, but instead a sidewalk was laid. Now the sidewalk has been cut off and the space it occupied has been connected with the highway, robbing the corner of a degree of danger that has existed in the past. It is said the work of making the change will cost half as much as the land cost, which was a thousand dollars.

The cellar of the Hollandersky building on Bank street opposite the custom house has been completed. A big garage will be established in the rear of the building with entrances on Bank and Pearl streets as soon as that work can be accomplished. The entrance from Bank street will be at the side of the so-called Davisco building. On Pearl street the entrance will be next east of the old O'Neill building.

Valdemar Aaronson and David Rollinson, sailors aboard the U. S. S. Jouett; Mrs. Alex MacNichol, of Jewett City and Master Harold Beaney, of Waterford, who suffered a fractured leg several weeks ago by being struck by an automobile on Bank street, were patients dismissed at Lawrence hospital today.

The funeral of Edward Connell, formerly of New London, whose death occurred from heart trouble at Hartford several days ago, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlager. The bearers were John Manning, Harry Waterson, Simon Connors, John Flanagan, Richard Mansfield and George Hendry. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Miss Margaret Leahey, daughter of the late James and Catherine Leahey, formerly of New York, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. COLUMBIA

The amount of sleep a child gets and the kind of food he eats are important factors in keeping him well. It is claimed that the children of the East Side of New York are, on the average, 7 per cent. underweight. Doctors say this is due to lack of uninterrupted and quiet sleep. Lowered resistance, colds, loss of weight, loss of appetite and nervousness, follow insufficient and irregular rest.

The doctor and the nurse at the Well Child Conference will be glad to answer any questions regarding the health of children, the amount of sleep they need, the kind of clothing for winter, and the way to keep them free from colds.

The next conference is on Monday, November 17, in Columbia Town Hall, from 2 to 4 p. m. Each mother is asked to bring another mother with her.

PRINCETON-YALE GAME WILL BE BIG EVENT ON GRIDIRON TODAY

New York, Nov. 14—(By the A. P.)—The Princeton Tiger that chewed up Harvard to pieces a week ago in one of the most startling gridiron upsets of all time will attempt to claw his way to victory over the bulldog of Yale tomorrow in Palmer stadium.

While Bill Roper's rejuvenated Orange and Black tornado is battling for the "big three" championship in the most colorful feature of tomorrow's eastern gridiron calendar, two other games claim a major share of the spotlight, with Cornell and Dartmouth waging their annual fray on a neutral field, the polo grounds, while Pennsylvania fights to keep her slate clean against Penn State's attack at Philadelphia.

Close to 200,000 may witness this outstanding trio of contests. Palmer stadium will be taxed to its limit of 55,000, a figure that represents barely a third of the number that sought tickets. The Dartmouth-Cornell game, drawing a host of alumni and attracting unusual interest among metropolitan fandom, may be witnessed by 60,000, while increased facilities at Franklin field may permit 70,000 to watch the Quaker and Nittany Lion in action.

Princeton, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania are generally picked as slight favorites in these battles but none has a decided edge in what promises to be three of the most keenly waged frays of the season.

If the Tiger can carry into tomorrow's game the terrific momentum that enabled him to tear Harvard's defense to shreds, Yale seems due for a setback. But the Elis, with the benefit of a week's knowledge of and preparation for the new found Tiger attack, are expected to be primed defensively and ready to unleash a formidable attack of their own.

Psychology will play a prominent part in this fray and much will depend upon which eleven gets the jump at the start. The Tiger forward wall has an edge on the Eli line, which will enter the game minus Bingham, star end, but both teams have a wealth of backfield material. The Tigers will pin their hopes on the running of Williams and Slagle while Cottle and Pond are the Blue's chief backfield weapons. The Rivals are well equipped in kicking and both possess a deceptive aerial offensive.

Dartmouth, undefeated and tied only by Yale, boasts one of the strongest elevens in the east. Smarting from three successive defeats at the hands of Cornell, the Green has been pointing for tomorrow's battle, the last of the season, but Gil Dobie's machine has staged an impressive come-back since early season defeats by Williams and Rutgers. The rivals appear well matched on the line but Dartmouth has a more formidable array of backs, including "Swede" Oberlander, Dooley and Hall. Molinet, the new Cuban star, is Cornell's backfield ace.

Penn State is another eleven which has come back to winning from after early disappointments and may upset Pennsylvania, the only major team undefeated or untied in the east. The Quakers have had close calls the last two weeks against Georgetown and Lafayette while the Nittany Lions returned to form by whipping the navy and Carnegie Tech.

Among other important games, Harvard, recovering its shattered forces, promises to have difficulty in repelling Brown, which gave Yale and Dartmouth scoring battles, while Williams, an unbeaten New England attraction, will be favored to defeat Amherst and win the "little three" title for the fourth consecutive season.

The Williams-Amherst game is nearing as much in tradition as the Princeton-Yale rivalry, which will be staged tomorrow for the forty-eighth time. Williams and Amherst will play their forty-first game tomorrow, with records of previous engagements showing 25 victories for Williams, 12 for Amherst and four ties.

West Virginia and Washington & Jefferson figure to triumph in two other games possessing traditional interest, the former against Washington & Lee and the presidents against the Pittsburgh Panthers.

The service teams both have strong opposition with the Army playing Columbia at West Point and Navy tackling Bucknell at Annapolis but the cadets and middies are favored to win.

Two intersectional games, one between Bo McMillan's Centenary College eleven and Boston College, and the other involving the Quantico Marines and Detroit University, enliven the program.

Tomorrow's leading games and 1923 score comparisons follow:

Yale at Princeton 27-0.

Cornell-Dartmouth at New York 32-.

Brown at Harvard 20-7.

Columbia-Army at West Point, no game.

Bucknell-Navy at Annapolis, no game.

Washington & Lee at West Virginia 0-63.

Niagara at Syracuse, no game.

Washington & Jefferson at Pittsburgh 6-13.

Williams at Amherst 23-7.

Bates at New Hampshire 0-21.

Bowdoin at Wesleyan 0-13.

Norwich at Vermont 0-34.

Rhode Island State at Conn. State -7.

Rutgers at New York University 7-3.

Centenary at Boston College 0-14.

Penn State at Pennsylvania 21-0.

STONINGTON BEATS BULKELEY IN CROSS COUNTRY RUN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Stonington, Nov. 14. — Stonington High again showed its superiority in cross country runs by defeating Bulkeley High in a dual meet of three miles, here this afternoon. With Maggs again taking individual honors, by coming in first ahead of all competitors, he won this meet for the second time within a weeks time. The team scores was Stonington 20, Bulkeley 35.

The inability of the Bulkeley runners to place in after Captain Granata of the Orange and Black was nosed out of first place by the narrowest of margins, lost the meet for the visitors. For two Stonington runners finished close behind the Bulkeley leader and although four Bulkeley runners came bunched up for several places in the first ten finishing, Bulkeley had to accept defeat because Stonington had two men finish first and second, and two more fourth and fifth.

No doubt the time of the run would have been lessened considerable had it not been for the strong wind that was prevalent during the run. As it was Maggs the victor who was the winner by a single stride over his team mate Main, negotiated the distance in 12 minutes flat. Both the Brown and White flash although gaining on Granata of Bulkeley when the runers traversed the rough section of the course lost ground to the Bulkeley captain in the home stretch and Granata came near upsetting the dope by coming in first. He failed to tie Maggs by one second. That was all he time that separated the two runners.

The race got under way with a strong wind blowing against the runners. It was a hard task to make any headway, but the runners all in a bunch kept up a lively sprint to enable them to keep up with the opening sprint made by Maggs to clear himself of the pack who followed closely upon his heels a determined set of runners. With the rough section of the course reached, Maggs seemed to draw away from the Bulkeley runners, and it was the lead that he received here that gave him a much appreciated lead, which he needed to finish as he did.

Main a teammate of Maggs was close upon his heels and Granata was third. This was the order for nearly the entire course, and although Maggs knew how to keep his substantial lead gained in the rough country, he was nearly outdistanced in the final lap of run by Granata who made a fine finish. The finish was spectacular and thrilling for a meet of this kind, for there was considerable room left for doubt as to the real winner of the meet, for Maggs finished but a stride ahead of Main also of Stonington. Granata was third and only one second behind the winner Maggs. Two Stonington runners finished behind Granata, and this assured Stonington of a team victory. Out of the remaining five places open for a score, Bulkeley had four men finish.

PLAINFIELD HOLDS WESTERLY TO A 7 TO 7 TIE SCORE

Plainfield, Nov. 14.—Plainfield High football team held Westerly High to a 7 to 7 tie at the Carpet Grounds here this afternoon. The local team played brilliant football throughout the game against a heavier and more experienced team. Allard with his 55 yard run for a touchdown saved the game for Plainfield in the second quarter. Allard took the ball and after breaking through the Westerly line threaded his way through the entire Westerly team for a touchdown. Tyler kicked the goal.

Westerly scored in the first quarter on straight football through the Plainfield team but after this first drive were unable to penetrate the Plainfield line for any material gains. Allard's run in the second quarter was the outstanding play of the game and goes to prove that Allard is one of the best backfield men in the eastern part of the state. The third quarter saw the ball see-sawing back and forth in midfield neither team being able to hold the ball for a consistent drive.

In the fourth quarter Westerly made a desperate come-back and by a series of line plays advanced the ball to the Plainfield 2 yard line where Plainfield held Westerly for downs and then took possession of the ball. Plainfield has one more game to play, this with Killingly on Nov. 22.—The lineup:

HARVARD TO THROW FULL STRENGTH AGAINST BROWN

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 14.—What the Tiger team of Princeton left of the Harvard football team last week was prepared tonight to meet the Bear of Brown tomorrow in the stadium. There will be no reservations of Crimson strength for the Yale game this year. Harvard is going in to the Brown game to give everything it has of material and effort to wipe out the mental effects of the 34 to 0 defeat by Princeton.

All indications are that 45,000 persons will see the game. Brown is coming with a team that will be the best it has put on the field this season. Captain Sheldon will be back at end after a month's absence, Eckstein will be at center, and McDermott, heaviest man of the squad, at one of the guards. The backfield of Myers, Pryor, Pohlman and Keefer will be intact.

Harvard's backfield will have Stafford at quarter, and Maher, Sayles, Howe, Hammond or Samborski in the other three positions. Captain Greenough will play at center instead of at tackle. Dunker and Theopold will be at guards; Coady and Lindner at tackles, and Gamache and Dean at ends.

PRINCETON CREW BEATEN BY PENN OARSMEN

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 14.—The University of Pennsylvania varsity crew stroked by Irminger, defeated the Princeton eight on Lake Carnegie this afternoon by two lengths over a course of a mile and a half.

The Red and Blue oarsmen covered the distance in eight minutes and 14 seconds while the Tiger crossed the line eight seconds later. A strong wind accounted for the slow time.

Attention Valiants.

Are you ready for tomorrow's game with the fast West End football team at the fairgrounds? The West Ends expect to play the team whose lineup was in Tuesday's Bulletin. The West Ends will have its full team with the exception of Hyatt, who hurt his leg in last Sunday's game. The West Ends will lineup as follows: Bolrofini, Green, Goodman, guards, Butova, Frink, Haggerty, tackles; Blinderman, Sadinsky, Rutchik, ends; Capt. Hyatt, quarterback, D. Blinderman and H. Sadinsky, halfback, L. Hyatt fullback.

N. Y. STATE COMMISSION OPENS NEW BOXING CLASS

New York, Nov. 14.—The state athletic commission today opened a new division among boxers when plans for the staging of a junior bantamweight elimination tournament to determine a titleholder among the 115 pound boxers were announced. Matchmakers of the Rink A. C. in Brooklyn and the Pioneer A. C. in New York attended the meeting and promised to stage the tournament, dividing the matches between the two clubs. Eighteen of 20 boxers have already been signed up for competition in this new division. The dates for the tournament will be announced within a short time.

The commission also decided today that when the contenders for the featherweight title weigh in, under the rules of the tournament, boxers who fail to balance 126 pounds will be automatically declared out of the competition and their places taken by alternates.

Morrie Schlaifer of Omaha, Neb., was indefinitely suspended for engaging in a match with Jock Malone of St. Paul at St. Paul on Nov. 10. Malone is in the bad graces of the commission for meeting Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, in Newark recently. Walker is under ban for refusing to accept a challenge to met Dave Shade, Pacific coast welterweight.

NOTRE DAME-NEBRASKA BIG GAME OF WEST TODAY

Chicago, Nov. 14 (By the A. P.)—Notre Dame, after crushing every team played this season, meets its annual Nebraska jinx at South Bend tomorrow in the outstanding game of the west, although Illinois and Chicago, in tilts with conference rivals, will attract considerable attention in their attempt to roll up victories and remain in the western conference championship race.

Illinois, ranking favorite to capture the 1924 "Big Ten" title, will meet Minnesota at Minneapolis, while Chicago will have Northwestern as its opponent at Stagg field. The Gophers are ready for their clash with Illinois, but since their tie with Ames a week ago are not regarded as formidable contenders against the super-Illinois eleven.

The Chicago-Northwestern game, the experts believe, probably will result in an easy victory for Stagg's warriors. Northwestern's hopes of a victory received a big setback last week when Michigan rolled up a top-heavy score against them.

Nebraska, which upset Notre Dame's claims to the football honors of the nation last year by beating the Hoosiers in one of the surprises of the season, is prepared to give Coach Rockne's men a tough battle. The game will be witnessed by a capacity crowd of 26,000.

Michigan will play Ohio State in their annual "grudge" battle at Columbus tomorrow before a probable attendance of 75,000, the largest crowd ever to witness a game in the mid-west. Indiana sprang a big surprise by beating the Buckeyes a week ago, and Michigan, undefeated except for the clash with Illinois, is expected to do the same thing.

Iowa and Wisconsin, both out of the conference race as a result of defeats, will collide at Madison in a home-coming game. The contest promises to be a battle royal, with the heavier Hawkeyes as a favorite.

Indiana will meet Wabash at Bloomington, while Purdue will take a day off in preparation for the final game of the season next Saturday.

MARULLO BEATS SIKI IN FARCE FIGHT

New York, Nov. 14—Antonio Marullo of New Orleans won a judges' decision over Battling Siki, Senegalese heavyweight, in a 12-round match at Madison Square Garden tonight. The decision was unpopular with the crowd which voiced its opinion in a mild demonstration following the announcement. Siki weighed 173, Marullo 165 3-4.

Siki clowned through the match, hitting Marullo with a repertoire of wild swings and lunges while the New Orleans boy scored heavily in the infighting. Siki appeared not to take the match seriously, hitting when he wanted to and laughing at Marullo's attempts to hit him. The Senegalese showed everything in the book of ring knowledge, but his apparent indifference cost him the decision, although he amused the crowd. Marullo attempted to rush the Senegalese but Siki countered with his wild swings and lunges which forced Marullo to give ground to save himself from punishment.

Siki substituted for Paul Berlenbach New York light heavyweight, who was forced to cancel owing to an injured hand.

Joe Hicks, Allentown, Pa., negro middleweight, had a decisive edge over Augie Ratner, veteran New Yorker, in a 12-round match. Ratner was all but knocked out, his ring generalship alone saving him when his opponent was on the aggressive. Ratner weighed 159, Hicks 158.

In a six round preliminary Billy Vidabeck of Bayonne, N. J., earned a judges' decision over Lew Chester, of Brooklyn. The men are light heavyweights. In another six rounder Vic Brog, Pittsburgh, welterweight, was given a verdict on points over Jimmy Canoro, of New York. In the four round opener, Chief Halbran, Harlem Indian, won a decision over Carl Johnson, of Hoboken, N. J. The men are light heavyweights.

SINGLEFOOT WINS FEATURE AT PIMLICO

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 14.—Singlefoot, owned by J. E. Griffith, captured the feature race of today's card at Pimlico by running the mile in the $10,000 Walden handicap in 1.39 4-5. A length behind was Eben Myers' Young Martin. Third place went to Primrose, owned by W. J. Salmon.

Candy Kid, favorite of the 13 two year olds entered, was away in front and held the lead until the home stretch was reached. Here he weakened, and Jockey Fairbrother brought Singlefoot up ahead of Young Martin, who had been in second place. Primrose closed fast on the outside to get third money. Singlefoot's victory added $11,100 to the Griffith colt's winnings.

ACADEMY AND CHAPMAN TECH WILL CLASH TODAY AT ACADEMY CAMPUS

Gridiron interest in the eastern part of the state centers around the Academy and Chapman Tech clash at the Academy Campus this afternoon. The game is called for 2 o'clock. This contest marks the climax of the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league and will be bitterly fought throughout.

Chapman Tech expects stiff opposition from the Academy and the Chapman Tech coach has been drilling his team on line plays expecting to batter his way through the guard positions. The Academy on the other hand has been perfecting an aerial game which is expected to take the Tech team off its guard. Marty Gilman who has been out of the game for the past two weeks will be back at the guard position which will upset any attempt of Chapman to gain through the line. If the Academy could hold Bulkeley for twelve downs on their 2-yard line it is almost certain that Chapman cannot make a very big dent in it.

Hinrichs who has been the big ground gainer for the Academy will be thrown without reserve into the play today. Hinrichs' running mates will be McGowan and Higgins, the latter being a fast boy who although his first in football, has shown remarkable ability. The ends will be taken care of by Carlin and Hollander, two fast hard tackling boys who have been breaking up the opposition consistently. Lukoski who has been playing a hard game at tackle will hold his side of the line intact while Scott will take care of the other side. The guards will be Marty Gilman and Polsky. Haslam will be at center and Jimmy Williams will run the team.

CHAPMAN TECH EXPECTS HARD BATTLE TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 14.—A very light drill in signals consisted of Chapman Tech's last day preparation before the game scheduled with Norwich Free Academy this (Saturday) afternoon. In fact it was the shortest signal drill that the Red and Black had to undergo as far as could be remembered. But after the linemen were dismissed for the afternoon, Coach Weaver had the backs punting to the quarters. Kicks from placement, and kicks from all angles from drop kicks were also tried druing the afternoon.

All this last minute preparation for the game with the Red and White eleven is giving the onlooker an intimation that Tech will expect a hard struggle to capture this game. It is known that Norwich has increased her strength in several departments since the last Academy-Chapman Tech game played at New London. Although Chapman Tech won this game by a 14 to 0 score, yet the Red and Black mentor is not taking it for granted that another victory by this score will be the result in the second meeting between the teams.

By way of contrast, the Tech has been urged to use more line plays, and that through the two guard positions. For the injuries received by Academy guards have put them out of the game for the blance of the eyar. Expecting two weak spots near the center of the line, Paul Kennenburg who is a heavy plunging back will be expected to pursue his quest for eastern Connecticut honors by tearing the Academy line to shreds. He will be matched by the Academy with a player who has equal strength and driving power in his legs and who in addition plays a fairly good defensive game. This player is Hinricks, and this pair will be watched closely for the purpose of discriminating between the two for a selection of All-Eeastern Connecticut league fullbacks. Both teams will experience trouble in buckets full, when these players begin their line bucking.

John Brown's all round playing has almost won him a berth on the mythical all Eeastern Connecticut team at halfback. The league in general this season has failed to produce half backs of the exceptional ability that Brown seems to be gifted with. However, two good fullbacks have made their appearance and it will be a merry battle between the two for selection on the All Eastern Connecticut league eleven.

Chapman Tech will do everything by clinch the league title with a victory on Saturday. The Red and Black flag alone is on top of the mast in the league, far above that of any other team. So a victory at the expense of the Academy will probably mean a league championship.

New London, Nov. 14.—Bulkeley's fate as a contender for the State high school title hangs in the balance pending the outcome of the football game with Torrington High this (Saturday) afternoon at Torrington. Twenty-three men, not including coach and manager, will make the trip, leaving the school building at 9 o'clock for Torrington. The game is scduled to begin at 2.30, but the long journey which faces the Orange and Black squad will probably make it necessary to start the contest at 2.

Cutting a wide swath in high school football circles as Torrington has during the past season, Bulkeley will meet a team that ranks with the best in New England. One overwhelming victory after another has been Torrington's, but in the Orange and Black gridders they will meet a team fully determined to carry out the last wishes of the local fans to bring home a victory for considerable depends on a victory over this dangerous foe.

One brother and two cousins of Ducky Pond's, the famous Yale gridder and baseball star, make up the personnel of the Torrington eleven. It is no wonder that much of the success which has been Torrington's during the past season has been possible. For if Pond of Torrington in any way emulates his brother on the field of football warfare, then Bulkeley is in for a tough afternoon on the Torrington field. Much of the success has been attributed to the long runs negotiated by Pond, and he has turned a seemingly impossible victory into an overwhelming victory that brought Torrington into the limelight as a contender for the high school crown this fall. If Bulkeley can stop Pond it stops but one of the 11 men on the Torrington team.

Pond, it has been understood from reliable sources has been able to get off on several long jaunts through the opposing line on the old Statue of Liberty play, which was used so successfully by colleges in the past. This play as well as a deceiving forward pass formation was worked on the first team by the seconds this afternoon. Coach Canby gave out other Torrington formations to the second team, but the first team was not obliged to attempt to smash them up for he feared that a last minute injury might spoil a chance for a victory.

Possibly the greatest setback the Bulkeley team received was the announcement today that Edward Henkle, quarterback, sustained a broken nose in the game with Norwich Free Academy last Saturday. One of the small bones was disclosed as fractured in an X-ray picture that was taken early this week. Whether Henkle will be able to play is unknown at the present time, but he has been out to practice every day this week with the exception of Monday. If he does play it will be under the protection of a nose guard. But in event that Henkle will be unable to play, then Collins will probably be shifted from fullback to quarterback, and Nocery will fill in at fullback. Joe Barry reported for practice on Wednesday, but the broken leg injury he sustained in the Springfield game has left his ankle in a much weakened condition, making it impossible for him to take part in the daily scrimmages. With a little more limbering up, his ankle is expected to take the place of that limb before he met with the injury.

Eighty-five thousand or more spectators will be present, Cortelyou said. The previous record, he said, was made in the Yale bowl, where a crowd of 80,000 witnessed one contest.

Local Boys at Trinity Today

A large number of Norwich football fans will attend the Trinity Middlebury game at Hartford this afternoon. Local interest centers around Courtney Whitney and George Mullen, two products of the Academy gridiron who are now playing with Middlebury. Whitney is a backfield man and Mullen is playing one of the guard positions.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

A Little Dog

He's a little dog, with a stubby tail, and a moth-eaten coat of tan.
And his legs are short, of the wabbly sort;
I doubt if they ever ran;
And he howls at night, while in broad daylight he sleeps like a bloomin' log,
And he likes the food of the gutter breed; he's a most irregular dog.

I call him Bum, and in total sum he's all that his name implies,
For he's just a tramp with a highway stamp that culture cannot disguise.
And his friends, I've found, in the streets abound, be they urchins or dogs or men;
Yet he sticks to me with a fiendish glee.
It is truly beyond my ken.

I talk to him when I'm lonesome-like, and I'm sure that he understands
When he loks at me so attentively and gently licks my hands:
Then he rubs his nose on my tailored clothes, but I never say nought thereat,
For the good Lord knows I can buy more clothes, but never a friend like that!

So my good old pal, my irregular dog, my flea-bitten, stub-tailed friend,
Has become a part of my very heart, to be cherished till lifetime's end;
And on Judgment Day, if I take the way that leads where the righteous meet,
If my dog is barred by the heavenly guard—we'll both of us brave the heat!

WHEN MA TAKES A VACATION

When ma takes a vacation,
I'm soon feeling mad or blue,
I miss my balanced ration,
Everything soon gets askew.

I have to feed the chickens,
I must put the bread to rise,
Wash milk off all the milk pails,
Before the blame stuff dries.

Nothing can I find that's handy,
Everything seems out of place,
Some folks tell you teaching's dandy,
But I always fall from grace.

I should wash up all the dishes,
I ought to mop up the floor,
But the greatest of my wishes
Is to see ma back once more.

I've done a thousand jobs already,
There's a thousand more I'll bet,
And my nerves are none too steady,
I just simply writhe and fret.

Every fly in this whole nation
Seems to come up here
When ma takes a short well earned-vacation,
And leaves everything to Pa.

And I set so dadburned tired,
Of these jobs around the house,
I'll rejoice when I am fired,
And she'll never, never grouch.

When ma does up all these jobs
Seems to me it goes like fun,
But when ma's on a vacation,
I'm on one continual run.

I don't crave to be a woman,
On a farm it ain't no fun,
Doing every job that's coming, why, "Land sakes" she's never done.

USE OIL STOVE OVEN ON COAL STOVE

Dear Editor and Sisters: I think we are all thankful to see it rain, even if it is a Social Corner club meeting day. However if it doesn't just simply pour at trolley time I am planning to be one of "those present" this month.

Was rather surprised at the brevity of the Corner page last week. Think those who have not yet responded to the roll call ought to get busy.

Do those of you who have oil stoves know that the ovens may be used on top of coal ranges. I found it out one day when I wanted to bake gingerbread and the oven in the coal stove was too hot. So I put the oilstove oven on the range and it baked very nicely. Don't use it over the firebox, though, if the fire is very hot, or it will burn.

Must tell you about my novel curtain pulls. I found them in the ten cent store. Celluloid rattles—two funny faces make the rattle box and they have a teething ring attached. I fastened them to my sitting room curtains and think they are quite cute.

Cymandine and Joan: I thank you both for your promptness in answering my questions.

Here's hoping that it's gonna rain a whole lot more!

A TRIBUTE TO GREATGRANDMA

Dear Social Corner Friends: Having read the replies from various ones in regard to California, among them Kentucky Wonder and Joan, I wish to thank them for the kind words of appreciation. Also in regard to my mother. Will say that she left a fine legacy to her five daughters in the beautiful Christian character she exemplified in her daily living and spoken words. Prov. 31-28 can well be applied to her memory. "Her children arise up and call her blessed, her husband also, and he praised her." It also conveys a great responsibility in living lives worthy of such mothers.

There is much unrest at the present time, many are seeking pleasure in various ways but do not seem to realize their expectations. There is much unrest at the present time, many are seeking pleasure in various ways but do not seem to realize their expectations. There still remains an unfulfilled longing for something more, children and youth are influenced by their surroundings and governed by their impulses and have seasons of great joy and often of sorrow when the tide turns. With age comes experience which develops character and joy or happiness becomes a well of water never running dry and constantly refreshing the soul. This was true in the life of Great Grandma whom of great natural ability and many homes in this town have some painting or other work of her own designing and workmanship and are being preserved in loving memory of her.

October gave us a most delightful month of perfect weather which we improved in a number of fine auto trips, one to the western part of this state and down to New York City, also through the foothills in Litchfield county which reminds me of the western scenery to some extent, only the hills are high mountains there and are bare rock above a certain altitude.

We passed by the Episcopal school for boys at Kent where there is a fine agricultural department in connection with the school.

The large white buildings present a beautiful picture nestling at the base of the high wooded hills as we saw them in the distance and later approached them.

The bountiful harvests of the present year should give us heartful of gratitude for all blessings as the Thanksgiving season approaches. Very sincerely.

FAVORS A SOCIAL CORNER PIN

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I see many of the sisters are interested in a Social Corner pin. I think it would be very nice to have one. If we could have a nice looking pin with initials S. C. S. on it, so we could wear it any where we go, I think there would be a great many more members, as every one that sees it would want to have one and that would mean they first must be a member. School children get a very nice class pin for around one dollar. But if the sisters think this too cheap we could get a better one. Let us hear from them! What we want is something we won't be ashamed of after we get it, any way.

I shouldn't care for an all yellow pin. Yellow letters would look nice with blue or gold. I think. Wouldn't it be nice if we could get one out by the new year.

Jack's Wife: I'll say Chestnut hill is some road. I think I saw you that day picking flowers beside the road. Went through all those places you wrote about that day. Was over those Chestnut hill roads again Nov. 9th and believe me they have carted on lots of dirt. Try them now. I couldn't tell you how many times we were bounced off the seat going down that hill by the depot, all right for a tired horse but Lizzie didn't care to rest, so we went bumping along. I managed to get down with out any broken springs but never again. I think it pays to go around.

Rural Aunty: How are you? Got home all O. K. this time, tired but happy. We stopped in Willimantic a half hour and got home ten minutes of five.

Balsam Fir: Some husking bee I'll say. Did you get it all husked.

Gingerbread: 1-4 cup fat, 1 egg, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 cup molasses, 1-3 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ginger. Cream fat, add sugar, molasses and egg. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with milk to first mixture. Bake 35 minutes in moderate oven in two layers 350 degrees Fahr. While hot spread on some Hip-O-Lite marshmallow cream, set in oven a minute to spread good, put on top layer and make a nice chocolate frosting for the top. Try it. Very nice.

Sugar Popcorn: Pop some corn, select the best kernels, place them in a mixing bowl, make a syrup by boiling until almost hard when tested, one cup of brown sugar and two tablespoons of water, pour over corn and stir quickly. A little butter makes it better.

WHY ONLY ANSWER THE ROLL CALL?

Dear Social Corner: I was looking at a school picture that I think a good deal of, though it would take considerable knowledge of that picture to make out through the blurs and the half printed faces, who is who. But we know we are there, we know our school is there, and so the picture is very dear to us.

I can realize what the page member feels who writes; of course others come poking in.

Perhaps she is one of the charter members made so ven years ago.

But this is not a private club, or a club, or a private school, as I look at it, but a Social page of the Norwich Bulletin.

In our life, to stand still, or to go back, is impossible, we keep going on our path until we pass away. Unlike human life this page can go back, it can stand still, or it can keep on to a limit impossible to any member now here.

Many members seem capable of writing for short story magazines with their interesting letters and many have a special interest in baking, in preserving, and perhaps others in candy making, a source for money making.

Why do so many members only answer to the roll call. I hope we are all glad to hear from our members both the old and the new and that the Social Corner will keep on the broad path of life to its full extent.

Sincere good will to the Corner.

MRS. I. A. FOLLETTE.

JOINT RESPONSIBILITIES

Dear Cornerites: The little gray mother was resting her home. In her gentle, gracious way she had been showing prospective tenants through the house, a big broad-shouldered, prosperous man in the prime of his life. He had looked and examined and weighed advantages and disadvantages—mostly in relation to bedroom and library, with but a passing glance at the kitchen and laundry, and at the close of his inspection expressed himself as pleased and saying his decision would be rendered the following day.

The little gray mother looked up at him. "Of course you couldn't decide immediately," she acquiesced graciously. "I realize your wife will want to see the house first."

"Oh, no!" responded Mr. Prosperous Man, genially "she is always satisfied with anything I decide," adding in generous recognition, "which makes it very nice for all of us."

A home in which all of her hours were to be spent was being selected, but she was credited with no individual opinion concerning it. Her mission in life was too firmly established—"to make it very nice for all of us."

As the door closed behind his evidently satisfied countenance and imposing physique, the little gray mother sat down thoughtfully on the cosy settee and looked at the wise woman.

"I know her," said the Wise Woman. "She has seven children, looks as if a breath of air would blow her away and has spent her entire life making an altar sacrifice of herself."

The little gray mother regarded her with troubled eyes. "But a mother ought to be unselfish," she ventured.

"A mother is unselfish," said the wise woman with a broadening little smile. But though dishpan and mending basket have their inalienable rights, family and friends their tender privileges, nothing is big enough rightfully to demand the complete surrender of anyone person's individual existence. I think it is time we acquired a new view of what a family means, and recognize that it should not be—what it too often is—a perhaps affectionate but unthinking little group where one or two serve for the others comfort, but rather, an aggregation of individuals, with equal rights and equal responsibilities."

"But, suppose one is much happier being what you call an altar sacrifice? Then nobody is hurt," challenged the little gray mother.

Oh, somebody is, for one altar sacrifice begets another. The son who has been brought up to expect household economies that his ambitions might be carried out, who has been taught by inference that his position, his business, his needs demand certain expenditures and if there is not money enough to go around the scrimping must be elsewhere, takes his expectations into a new home, and a wife is soon in the process of being made into a being who makes it very nice for all of us." The daughter who is saved this work or that because it is disagreeable, who is protected from community in the family problems, goes forth to a new life to be cared for, not to bear equally.

"So, you see, service can be unlovely in its results, though unselfish in its inception.

"The truest way, the right way is to be brave, to ask and take as well as give to see yourself in as equitable proportion as your son or your daughter, your husband or your wife, and simplify your joint responsibilities to the point which leaves you equally free. None of us can have life exactly as we want it but with a fair share of personal freedom we can make it richer for ourselves and that means for others." The outer door slammed and Peg burst in. "Did he take the notes mother? And will we really live in New York? The little gray mother flushed faintly. "I'm not sure we will rent, after all, Peggy," she said steadily. "I know how much you and Robert want it, but this has been father's home all his life, and we'll talk it over together tonight."

"WE MUST DO BETTER"

Dear Social Corner Editor: I write a few lines to give thanks for the yellow slip I received. I was way up in Massachusetts when friends told me of it. I was surprised but much pleased to receive it. I thank you.

I saw last week's page was not near full, we must do better. I did want to go to Norwich to the meeting in November but couldn't make it. I never heard from Bug so don't suppose she went. I shall try for the December meeting. I've got a dreadful lame knee for some reason. I don't know whats the matter. I can hardly go with it at times and then it will go very well. I can't depend upon it and unless it is much better I shall not be able to walk very far or get on and off the cars and climb those stairs at the Buckingham, but hope it will be better by the first of December.

Yours, same as ever

MA. OF GREENE GABLES. (Dec. 17.)

CLUB THREE MEETS NOV. 19.

Dear Social Corner Members: Club No. 3 Lebanon, will have a meeting in the Baptist chapel on Nov. 19th. Hope to see all the members and a good number of friends. All are welcome. Please bring your dishes, and something good to eat as usual. With best wishes for the Corner.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: Having read the Corner letters for some time and enjoyed them very much, I would like to become a member if I may.

Being of Scotch parentage I would like to take as my pen name

THANKSGIVING BONBONS

Dear Social Corner Members: In making bonbons the foundation is important. The chief difference between the homemade and the factory made candy lies in the temperature to which the sugar is boiled. By the use of the thermometer the work of candy making is so simplified that any girl who will follow these directions carefully can make a success of it. A confectioner's thermometer is not expensive and may be purchased from any wholesale confectioners.

Take your saucepan holding about two to three quarts, a small, flat brush for washing down the hot syrup from the side of the sauce pan, and a long handled wooden spoon for stirring. Put one half pint of water into the sauce pan, then sift or stir in two pounds of granulated sugar (the finer the better because it is less grainy) and place over steady heat. Stir until the sugar is thoroughly dissolved, then add one quarter teaspoon of cream of tartar. Dip the brush in cold water and wash down the sides of the kettle so that no grains of sugar remain on them. Then cover closely and let steam for a moment or two. Remove the cover then slip in the thermometer placing the bulb well below the surface, and let the syrup boil until the mercury reaches 239 degrees. Then very quickly remove the thermometer, lift the sauce pan from the fire, pour the contents on a cold moist platter (I tilt the kettle upright at once) so that no drippings or scrappings can fall into the syrup When the syrup is perfectly cool, stir with a wooden spoon slowly, constantly, and always in the same direction, until it is a creamy mass too thick to stir. Then work with the hands until it is perfectly smooth. I knead mine until it is as smooth as ice cream, or as free from grain as whipped cream. Cover the fondant with a wet cloth and let it stand for two hours to sweat; after which pack it into a crock, cover it with a damp cloth, and let it stand at least twenty four hours before molding it into bonbons.

All the finest bonbons are coated with chocolate or bon bon cream, and your own ingenuity will provide you with a variety of centers for your confections. Always use the best flavorings, for if your creams are not well flavored, they will not be good candies, no matter how well made. A small quantity of pure flavoring will last a long time, as it requires only a few drops to flavor a pound of fondant. A nut meat, a bit of conserved fruit, ginger bear, pineapple, a shred of citron, raisin, a candied cherry or violet rolled in fondant, or marshmallow, make delicious centers for bonbons. The centers should be molded and allowed to harden before they are coated.

Coating of chocolate can be quite easily done by using the right kind of chocolate. You can order through your grocer the regular coating chocolate bitter—coating chocolate and sweet coating chocolate, the kind used by professional candy makers. It comes by the pound and in large slabs. I most always use the bitter chocolate (as some centers are terrible sweet) sweetenging it with sugar. Sugar when perfectly dry may be added to the chocolate without spoiling its consistency. But never put a drop of water, or any thing with water in it into the chocolate for if you do it will become gummy and sticky.

Break at least one pound of chocolate into a bowl and set over a steaming tea kettle. If the bitter chocolate is used add enough sugar, a little at a time, to sweeten. Stir the chocolate so that it will melt quickly, and as soon as melted remove the bowl to cool, beating the chocolate with a fork until almost cold. Drop in a "center," roll it until thoroughly coated, then lift with a dipping fork, scrape the chocolate from under the fork with a knife and drop the bonbon on oiled paper. Then if decorations of candied violets or nut meats are to be used put them on at once. When cold, the chocolate can be easily removed from oiled paper.

Popcorn Macaroons: Chop fine freshly popped corn, add an equal quantity of fresh blanched and chopped almonds, peanuts or English walnuts, and pound to a paste, moistening with a few drops of rose and almond extract. Place in a mixing bowl the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and stir in gradually eight ounces of powdered sugar, beating the meringue steadily with a wooden spoon for five minutes, then add the nut and popcorn paste a spoonful at a time. When thoroughly blended—drop pieces the size of a silver quarter on a sheet of butter paper, placed in shallow baking dish. Bake in oven.

Banana Salad: Take as many bananas as are required and cut them into halves lengthwise on crisp lettuce leaves, cover with mayonnaise dressing, and sprinkle over with chopped peanuts, (salted.)

Thanksgiving Pudding: One pound each of Sultana raisins, seeded raisins, currants, brown sugar, one half pound mixed peel chopped fine, one pound bread crumbs and one quarter pound of flour, one pound of suet (chopped fine) six eggs, three apples (grated) the rind of two lemons grated, the juice of one lemon, one half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder, one half teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon each of cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon. Mix altogether with a cup of coffee and boil in a mold for six hours. Serve with a rich sauce.

I made this once and stirred it up with a cup of ale and it was fine.

Fruit Layer Cake: One cup of butter, two cups of sugar, three cups of flour, one cup cornstarch, one teaspoon baking powder, one pound of seeded raisins (chopped) one pound of currants, one half pound of candied citron peel, one pound of figs, one pound of stoned dates, one tablespoon each of powdered allspice, cinnamon, mace, one half tablespoon cloves. Cream the butter and sugar thoroughly together, beat in the yolks of the eggs, one by one, add the whites of the eggs (beaten alternately with the flour, baking powder and cornstarch.) Bake in layer cake tins.

Boiled Icing: Run the fruit and peel through the chopper and mix them with the spices. Make a boiled icing in sufficient quantity to spread between the layers and stir in the fruit and spices, spreading it between the cakes on the top and around the sides.

UNCLE SAM'S DAUGHTER.

WHEN YOU BREAK YOUR LONG SPOON

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Top of the morning to you all. Havn't much time to write a long letter but thought I'd just add a little bit seeing there were so few in last week.

Last week in making some marmalade I had the misfortune to break my big spoon and was discouraged for I didn't have anything long enough to reach the bottom of the kettle and you all know how things will burn on the bottom if not kept stirred up. Well don't get discouraged for it dawned on me to use my pancake turner or shovel and do you know it worked better than any spoon as I was so pleased with my find that I decided to pass it along in case someone might get caught like I did.

Also for holders I found that by cutting the feet off old cotton stockings and folding them over the width desired then turning the tops down, as we do after we sort over our stockings when they come from the wash, and catching with a few stitches we have very good holders for anything hot. They take but a few moments to make and can be discarded without our feeling extravagant as we have plenty to take their place.

Best wishes to all.

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

VOTING CAKE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folks: Yes, I voted, and for the best man. Oh, no, I'm not going to tell you. Try my voting cake and then vote for me or not.

Voting Cake: Take cup white sugar, cup milk, mixing spoon of lard or drippings, pinch of salt, big hot mashed potato, two cups flour, scant measure. Sift with flour two teaspoons baking powder, squeeze in juice of one half lemon and add two heaping tablespoons of plumped little raisins. Have oven hot at first then cool a little after cake has raised up in pan. You can use spice if you wish. It keeps well and suits the times.

I am cooking sauerkraut and chops. You lovers drop in.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I enjoyed the Social Corner day at E. K. very much and would like to join.

Across the valley I see the homes of Peggy Alden and Censi and upon the hill the green house where The Butterfly lives.

I can hear the telephone of The Lilac Lady ringing.

I wish to take as my pen name,

GOING HOME FOR THANKSGIVING

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Did you ever think that 60 years ago this Thanksgiving the people were much the same as they are today. Hearts beat as warmly, men loved and maids accepted their attentions or flouted them, as the case might be; ambition was alive and avarice and love of show and what the preachers called the pomp and vanities of this wicked world. The world has grown older since then and in some respects better. Oh the happy multitude of men and women to whom the postman is hurrying this minute with letters asking them to come home and spend Thanksgiving. Sure you might get one, a tender pathetic letter from father and mother, reminding you that it has been many years since you made your last Thanksgiving visit, for life does not move as fast at home, now as in those days when you were knocking the toes of two pairs of shoes every month, or eating twice your weight in a week. "Listen." This letter will be of a doubting nature for they know you are real busy, perhaps too busy to come home and spend a few days with them.

They are a trifle hard of hearing now—and they feel that it is not very interesting for the children to make their old ears understand.

Your parents are not quite as alert and strong as they were back in the years when the children had to be carried and rocked. Can you remember when father galloped around the room with you on his shoulder—"just as easy?" You had doubts as to Samson being the strongest man, and when he lifted you up, up, until your head touched the ceiling, you knew Samson wasn't the strongest man.

Do you remember when mother used to rock you? And if her arms had given out who would have rocked you? No one, for it's a little too hard work for anyone to rock you but mother. Can you imagine mother singing to you, and how well you remember the rocking and the singing and the swinging motion of the rocking chair, and the peculiar squeak of that old, wide-armed rocking chair brings a lump to your throat at bed time.

Yes, the postman will bring you a letter and these ideas will somehow be mixed up in the letter you receive. They are tucked in between the uncertain lines: you can't mix them. You'll find the same rocking chair there, and the old clock and the same picture in the lower story of the door. The clock will strike just as it did when you were waiting for mother to fry pancakes for breakfast. When the clock strikes you'll jump you would know that strike in the Fiji Islands! You won't detect any signs of age in the lusty tones of the bell, and there will be that same buzz just before the hour, as if a honey bee were shut up behind the picture in the door. Strange an old clock like yours at home can keep going for 60, 70, 80, years, without losing step, and its voice as it ticks away the decade or wakes a new generation of boys from their slumbers, is just as stern now as it was when you used to hear it away back in those wintry, frosty mornings.

Mother has been wanting some work done which is a little too heavy for father now. Of course mother won't ask you to do these things but you'll see the chores when you get there.

To some of us the postman is not bringing us a letter from father and mother this year. Oh, yes, the old home is still there, and the little rocking chair with the squeak is as serviceable as ever, but it is quiet now. Homes get to be just houses after father and mother go away.

How many there will be who keep the eager watch for the postman for whom there'll be no letter this year? But you will go, won't you?

KITTY LOU.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Last Saturday's page was far from being full so here I come with my bit, and to thank all those who remembered my birthday with cards and gifts—Practical Polly, True Blue, Bonie, White Clover, Blue Bell, Chocolate, Necia, Hope, Windham Blue Bell, Lelah Deal, Anna Mell, Eliza Jane and last but not least Whirlwind. I thank you all for the kind thought.

Chelsea: We did not have to do any wheelbarrow work at the E. M. Nov. 5th and we had such a pleasant time, a fine day and a nice crowd.

I think that original poem read by Foxglove was fine and I hope she will compose something else for our entertainment again.

Black Eyed Susie: Bring some more music next time.

How many are planning to go to Willimantic next month? I hope there will be several. Has any one of you ever had some dumplings left over from a soup or stew? Well, don't throw them away. Just put some butter or good dripping in the frying pan, slice the dumplings and fry them a nice brown. They are fine. It is easy and quick. Try them. Best wishes.

SCOTTIE.

MAKING APPLE JELLY

Dear Members: I thought I must write a few lines when I saw so few letters last week. I wondered what the matter was with everybody. Suppose they are busy but do take a few moments in the midst of your work and write a few lines, if no more. I was fortunate enough to get down to Norwich and attended the November meeting. We surely had a wonderful time. Everyone was so sociable. The Corner couldn't have a better name. We had a fine dinner and plenty of it. You would think by the crowd there that there would be so many letters that it would puzzle the kind editor where to work them all in, so wake up and write. We wouldn't want to give up the Corner page any way. It is the life of The Bulletin the way I look at it.

Savilla: Where were you the day of the meeting? We missed you, also Bug.

Free Air and Ma of Greene Gables: Do write a line and let us hear from you someway.

I met Rural Delivery one day and said something about patch work but he didn't promise me any new samples. We have a fire in our fire place now which makes it very pleasant to sit before in an evening. Wish some of the sisters were here to enjoy it with me.

Primrose: I am waiting patiently to meet you and Twice Twenty. Sorry I couldn't come to your meeting but hope you will have a gathering nearer by soon.

I have been making apple jelly which is a good way to use them up. I had some that were beginning to decay so I made some jelly. Perhaps some of the sisters would like to try my recipe. I take the apples and wash them, cut out the poor places if any and then I put them in a kettle and almost cover them with water, but not quite and boil them until they are cooked through but do not stir them much if you do they will all come to pieces and would not make as good jelly. After they are done put them in a jelly bag and let them drip quite a while. You could squeeze them a little but not too much. Then put the water on the stove in a kettle and boil it 15 or 20 minutes to get the water out and then heat sugar in the oven, about 2-3 cup to 1 cup of juice, and boil until it thickens which will take about 15 or 20 minutes. You will have some nice jelly as you ever ate. Try it and see. Pour into glasses when cold and put paraffin on top.

As my letter is getting long will stop for this time with good wishes to all the sisters far and near not forgetting the good old Corner.

RURAL AUNTY (April 19.)

NO PLACE FOR OLD GROUCH

Dear Corner Sisters: Only a few weeks ago and I was the newest new member. Now I feel as if I had always been a member.

Every sister comes with hand extended and a big smile, ending with a hearty laugh as names are exchanged. No place in the corner for Old Grouch I assure you.

Babara: Glad to welcome you as a Cornerite.

Rosalind: I have the trunk and big doll today. Come down, we will dress Dollie and call upon 1492 again.

Airy: If I come to the city I will stop and hear Moonlight sing. Glad he likes his tonic.

Keziah Doolittle: Your last letter was O. K. but you did not mention our nice rides with the butter team. Have you forgotten?

Ethelyn: Am wondering if I knew you as V. S. now Mrs. G. P. Have had many a good time at your home with A. R. and F. J. Kitty Lou always joined in our games. She told me more than thirty years ago that I need never sign my name to my letters as she could always tell them for I wrote just as I talked. Wonder if you can guess, Kitty, if I sign this

GREETINGS FROM ESMERALDA

Dear Editor of the Social Corner: The yellow slip came, a surprise and a delight and I thank you.

The "keen" was taken out of the delight when our learned judge said, "Well, if you can get a dollar apiece for every mistake or error you make, why—well—you'll be at least lucky if not rich." The surprise and the Thanks You genuinely remain.

U. C. E.: We'd be delighted if the editor would teach us how to prepare our manuscripts for the paper! My brother, when trying to read mine used to say, "Why can't folks remember that diacritical marks mean something."

Rosalind: We enjoyed the picnic too Glad we are having so many new writers from E. K.

Chova: We can't guess. Please tell us? Do you sing?

Carp: Won't you please send in the poem you read, so we may all have a copy?

Gypsy Wanda: Think we know you. Glad to welcome you to our Corner.

Hope Butterfly, Pen Anna 64 and Sincerity will write often. We have not guessed who is who as yet.

ESMARALDA.

INTERESTED IN RADIO

Dear Sisters of the Corner: I am very much interested in the radio, but am told by some they are no good as you can only hear things by night. But Rural Delivery comes to the front and says they are O. K. I think it must be the cheaper grade where they do not give good service. I do want one very bad but do not see I can spare so much money unless they give good satisfaction.

Anastasia: Was glad to hear again from you. Thought sure you had forgotten me.

Student: I was glad to meet you last Tuesday in the Woolworth store. Did you succeed in finding what you were looking for? Hope so.

Balsam Fir: I see you people can raise good 'taters, too, way down in Maine.

J. E. T.: Did you receive my letter I sent you recently? That will explain all.

Glad to see a few lines from Aunty No. 1, also to hear uncle feels better.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

DEATH OF SALOME

Social Corner Editor: One of the Social Corner sisters, Mrs. Mary E. Gray, has passed away. Her Social Corner name was Salome. She was sick for several months, but through it all showed a spirit of patience and resignation to the will of her Heavenly Father. Her life was filled with many kind acts and deeds. The writer remembers her leaving her comfortable home to go and take care of a large family of motherless children that had diptheria. She did it all gratis out of her kind loving heart. Always helpful and cheerful in her own family and to all who needed encouragement she was ready to minister to with her best service. Her funeral was largely attended.

The floral tributes were many and very beautiful. Her pastor spoke in the highest praise of her service in the church. She was laid away in Ledyard Center Cemetery to await the resurrection of the just.

MATTIE G. GALLUP.

WRITE MORE LETTERS

Dear Cornerites and Editor: I would thank the sisters of the Corner to tell me how to kill horse warts, also seed warts.

Hope to see more letters on our page. It was not half full last week. Wake up California Girl, Honeysuckle and Sea Bird. I would like to hear Biddy cackle. I expect the chicken keeps her busy. Am planning to attend the next meeting.

RED CEDAR.

APPROVES IDEA OF PIN

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As my name was in the roll call a long time ago will answer present. If I am not too late, and send greetings to all; also thank the sisters for the sunshine box. It is so nice to be remembered when you are ill. I think the pins a good idea. As you travel about you would know a sister at a glance

With best wishes for the Corner.

PLANNING YOUR THANKSGIVING DINNER.

The note for Thanksgiving dinner is simplicity and substantiality. This truly American feast, which had its origin in the bleakest and barest of surroundings, is no occasion for elaboration. Everything should be good of its kind, everything should be as distinctly American as possible, but three courses should be the limit of the meal.

The table decorations should be along the same line, fruit and foliage rather than hot house flowers should bring the touch of color to the table.

Turkey and All the "Trimmings"

Here is a suggestion for a truly American Thanksgiving dinner. Let us begin with clam bisque. Our ancestors found calms in quantity and they were theirs for the digging, so clams shall lead the feast. In double boilers put milk enough to provide a cup of bisque for each guest. When this is heated stir in slowly clam liquor in the proportion of half a cup of calm juice to one cup of milk. Let the mixture cook slowly and add a dash of red pepper just before serving. Or buy the clams in the shell. Wash carefully. Put a half cup of water into saucepan. Add the clams and put over a hot fire. As soon as the lams open pour off the juice. Put it in a smaller saucepan and boil up once strongly. Skim and set aside on the stove to keep hot. Before serving add a tablespoon of rich whipped cream to each cup.

Of course turkey is the dish for Thanksgiving. No longer are the turkeys wild, no longer are they evidence of the hunting skill of the men of the family, but the modern turkey is expensive enough to prove by its presence on the table that the head of the house is that respected person, a "good provider." Lucky is the housewife whose kitchen equipment includes a roaster.

Cranberry sauce and turkey belong together and for this orthodox repast make the sauce in the old fashioned way. Place the berries with very little water and cook slowly until very tender. When tender add sugar in proportion of one cup of sugar to one and one half cups of the cooked berries. Cook again until all is a rich jam. One of the Indian names for a food has persisted in our language. The early settlers must have found the succotash served them very nourishing as well as appetizing and adopted it with enthusiasm. The beans used then were the white bean, our more delicate and highly flavored lima bean was unknown until over a hundred years later. Take a can of corn, one of small lima beans, put in saucepan and heat together. Add salt and a little pepper and put in a tablespoon of butter just before dishing out.

Creamed Onions and Real "Candied Sweets"

With as rich a meat as turkey, onions are a welcome addition. Put rather small onions in saucepan, just cover with water and cook until very tender. In double boiler put a cup of milk. When this is hot stir in a tablespoon of butter and two of flour rubbed together. Pour this cream sauce over the onions when ready to serve. Wash and pare the sweet potatoes, cook in boiling, well salted, water for ten minutes. Drain and when cool cut lengthwise. Butter baking dish and place the potatoes in it. Make a syrup in a saucepan by boiling for three minutes one half cup of sugar, four tablespoons of water and one teaspoon of butter. Put half the syrup over the potatoes and bake in a hot oven for twenty minutes. Then add the rest of the syrup and cook another twenty minutes. These glazed, (or candied, as some people call them) potatoes are very generally liked.

For dessert to be quite correct, there should be only squash and apple pie. Cook the squash and rub through colander. Or use the canned squash which is very good. Mix one quarter of a cup of sugar, one half teaspoon of salt, one quarter teaspoon of ginger and a little nutmeg. Stir into one and one quarter cups of the squash, add one egg slightly beaten and a scant cup of milk stirred in gradually. Bake in moderate oven. This is an excellent rule. The danger in squash pie, as a rule, is over-doing the spice. If nuts and raisins are to follow, try our native nuts. Butter nuts and shell barks are by no means to be despised and the little hazel nuts are good too.

Giving Thanks with Economy

For families not large enough, or whose purses are not long enough to feature turkey at Thanksgiving dinner, here is a suggestion for a feast with roast chicken as its chief dish. Begin with an oyster soup. Heat the milk add the juice of the oyster and cook together for ten minutes. Then add the oysters and cook not more than five minutes. Too long cooking makes the oysters tough. The roaster is as great a comfort for the chicken as for the turkey. With the chicken try a cranberry jelly. Take four cup of cranberries put in saucepan with one cup of boiling water and boil hard for twenty minutes. Rub through colander, add two cups of sugar and cook five minutes. Turn into a mould, and put in a cold place. Riced potatoes are delicate and easily prepared. Boil the potatoes and while still hot rub through colander into the dish in which they are to be served. For a second vegetable take carrots, wash and scrape them lightly and cut in inch pieces. Cook until tender, then add half a can of peas. When ready to serve add salt and pepper and a tablespoon of butter.

A truly orthodox dessert will be found in an Indian pudding. Put half a cup of Indian meal into double boiler, pour in slowly five cups of hot milk and cook all together for twenty minutes. Then add one half cup of molasses, one teaspoon of salt and one of ginger. Pour into pudding dish, well buttered, and cook in a slow oven for two hours. Serve with cream. If any of this pudding is left over it will be found very good sliced and heated up in the frying pan the next day.

WESTERLY

In the Friday morning session of the Third district court, Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., read the following:

Criminal Docket: State, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, vs. Nathan Tinckler; continued one week; State, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, vs. Harold H. Lahme, continued to Friday, Nov. 7th; state, Chief of Police Frank H. Brown of Hopkinton, complainant, vs. Lawrence Main, continued one week to Nov. 21st; State, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, vs. Pasquale Salemano, marked ready.

Civil Docket: New writs—Edith M. Gregory vs. Joseph Stedman, continued one week; Art League vs. Angelo Bonvenuto, if unanswered during day, continued one week.

Old Docket: Giovani Lombado vs. Amelio De Placito, continued one week; John J. Dunn vs. Salvatore Savona, marked ready; John F. Gallagher vs. Salvatore Savona, marked ready; Oscar H. Main vs. William Miner, continued one week; Ledyard S. Anthony vs. David Pitkanen, ready for trial; Vivian M. Bennett vs. Patsy Cafone, a default entered; Westerly Furniture company vs. Julia Shippee, default entered; Stajetan Pawlitschek et ux. vs. John Spezzano, separate entry asked for; continued; Joseph Guarino vs. John Spezzano, a six weeks' continuance asked for as the respondent is in Los Angeles, Cal.; Travelers Insurance Co. John DeRoccia, continued one week.

Judge Michael J. Turano opened court, with Fred T. Mitchell, who has been absent by reason of illness for several sessions, as court officer. The first case called was that of the operation of automobile while intoxicated, State, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown of Westerly, complainant, vs. Pasquale Salemano. Town Solicitor Ferguson told the court that when this case was first set down a continuance was asked because of the death of the defendant's Attorney Dunkle brother, and services in the church. In this case witnesses had been present in court from Norwich Providence and Boston, the Norwich witness having been in court three times. He said that he would like to have the court direct that fees be paid, especially to the witness from Norwich, in fact direct that all witnesses be paid each time. Judge Turano directed that the witness be paid and further directed all witnesses in the Salemano case to appear next Friday (Nov. 21) without further summons.

Ledyard S. Anthony vs. David Pitkanen was called and was held until a criminal case which was then entered was disposed of.

Angelo Montalto, 29, having been placed under arrest Friday morning by Patrolman George H. Chamblin was presented on complaint of Chief Brown, that on Nov. 11th he made a bonfire in Industrial place, without securing a permit from the Westerly town council. A plea of guilty was entered, after a short deliberation by the defendant. Town Solicitor Ferguson detailed that about 7 p. m. on Nov. 11, Montalto secured a wagon and directed its filling, being helped by a number of boys under 16 who were directed to pull the wagon along Canal street, when he jumped off and remained behind. The act constituted considerable menace as the flames leaped as high as the trees from gasolene poured on it. The fire company was called out and extinguished the blaze on Broad street. The defendant claimed that he had been working that evening that he did not light the match, which was applied by a small boy saying that he "didn't set a fire to it." His argument apparently was not convincing to the judge who found him guilty and fined him $5 and costs.

When Judge Turano asked if there was anyone to claim about two gallons of alcohol contained in one three gallon can; about one quart of gin in one quart bottle and one and one-half pints of whiskey contained in one quart bottle, a man rose in the audience. "Do you claim the liquor?" asked the judge of him. "No, I don't" he replied, as he hastily seated himself. These liquors seized in the search last Saturday on the place of Hezekiah and Adriana Briggs on the Hopkinton road, were then declared by the judge as forfeited to the state.

In the case of Anthony vs. Pitkanen, in which recovery is sought for sale of a horse, judgment having been given in superior court, defendant. He testified that he resided in Bradford, had no property, no money, no money in the bank, was not working, lived with his wife who owned the property and because of a rupture was unable to work. He informed the court through his interpreter, that he washed dishes in his wife's boarding house, drove the Ford auto, which although registered in his own name was the property of his wife and was being paid for by her. The attorney at the conclusion of the examination told the court that the automobile bill of sale was transferred to his wife a week before the present suit started and seriously questioning the man's veracity, said that he "ought not to be able to defeat the court." Judge Turano ordered that $2 a week for 10 weeks be paid on the $175 due and if possible this amount should be increased at the end of that time.

Following court adjournment a session of juvenile court was held in the judge's office to care for the ten or a dozen youths concerned with the carriage fire in Dixon square on Armistice night.

At the Central theater on West Broad street, Sunday evening, there is to be held a public institution of Harley P. Chase post, No. 1265, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Capt. Elvin B. IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Norwich was having trouble with its city water supply fifty years ago this week. In some sections of the city an unpleasant taste was detected in the water and in spite of the fact that the mains were flushed and emptied from time to time the unpleasant taste prevailed. Workmen, that week, were boarding over the walls of the new Catholic church on Broadway, preparatory to suspending Building activities for the winter. At that time the walls of the church had been raised about 19 feet above the basement. The directors of the Airline railroad elected Julius Hotchkiss president of the company and the D. R. Holmes Fire Engine company elected as its foreman, William Burton.

Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of November, 1874, follow:

Monday, Nov. 9, 1874—The time of the Grand Army masquerade ball has been fixed for December 14 at Breed hall. Two bands of music have been engaged for the ball, Tubbs and Miller's, and it is to be a grand affair. No pains have been spared to make it the best ball ever given by this organization.

Roasted chestnuts are being gathered in considerable quantities in the woods at Bean Hill. It is a great convenience to lovers of the edibles to find them roasted to order on the ground. It is the result of a recent fire in the woods.

Tommorrow evening the ladies of the Universalist church, begin a series of fortnightly sociables in the vestry of their church, which not only the members of their own congregation but the public generally are invited to attend.

Tuesday, Nov. 10, 1874.—At the annual meeting of the D. R. Holmes Steam Fire Engine Co., last evening, the following officers were elected: William Burton, foreman; first assistant, John Shelley; second assistant, Alex Balfour; secretary, John Breslin; treasurer, Stuart Murray; engineer, William Simpson; stoker, Edwin Smith; steward, Andrew Wilson.

The annual military enrollment is now being taken in the town of Norwich under the direction of the selectmen. The law provides for the enrollment of all between 18 and 45, all of whom, excepting a certain class of exempts pay a commutation tax to the state of $2 each. This last year the number of commuters was 904. The present enrollment is being made by Daniel Lee.

Some of our young men have taken hold of the idea of a gymnasium and are preparing to push it along with a vigor that promises to make it a complete success. Let us have the gymnasium by all means.

Wednesday, Nov. 74.—The plans for the centennial of independence have been made upon a scale proportionate to national grandeur and importance, and conclude a great many interesting special features. One of them has been recommended to the special attention of the people of this city, by a letter to Mrs. Thomas of Norwich Town from Mrs. Delia W. Lymon of New Haven, who has been appointed corresponding secretary for the state of Connecticut and suggesting that Norwich relics be sough for the centennial.

The following ladies have been appointed to represent Park church on the entertainment committee of the Provident Association: Miss Sarah Huntington, Mrs. A. H. Almy and Mrs. David Young. We are informed that the name of the lady given us as Mrs. B. H. Hiscox should have been Mrs. William E. Hiscox.

The Greeneville police station house through the walls of which some time ago the first capture of the bow and spear of the Greeneville police so unceremoniously and unexpectedly dug, has been at length completed and made quite secure. The police keep a watch upon their prisoners now that forbids a repetition of escapades.

The Shetucket is three feet lower at this point than it has been for years. The factories have to use their steam engines now considerably.

We last evening listened to one of the most pleasing serenades ever given in front of this office. The entertainment was given by the Ossian Glee club of this city. Thank you boys.

Thursday, Nov. 13, 1874—Oil lamps are being introduced to some of our stores, both in order to supplement the only too often feeble glimmer of the gas burners and because they find lamps cheaper than gas.

The masquerade to be given by the Blackstone Hose company on the evening of November 24th will be a grand affair. There will be music by two bands: Tubbs' brass band will give a concert from 8 to 9 o'clock and Gurdon Cady will do the prompting and the tickets are only 50 cents.

The walls of the great Roman Catholic church on Broadway are being boarded over on top, preparatory to suspending work for the winter, though work will probably not actually stop until the frosts come. A very fair stroke of work has been done this season. The walls have been carried up a distance of 19 feet above the basement requiring the laying of 40,000 cubic feet of stone.

Friday, Nov. 13, 1874—The directors of the Air Line railroad have elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Julius Hotchkiss; treasurer, M. Colgrove; secretary, Robert G. Pike; engineer, Seth E. Marsh; executive committee, Julius Hotchkiss, A. M. Colgrove, P. W. Turner.

The funeral of the late Ebenezer Fuller will take place this afternoon at the Broadway church. He will be buried by Columbian Commandery, No. 4, K. T., and the service will be from the ritual of that order except for a short service by the Rev. Mr. Merriman.

One of our leading citizens has made a very liberty offer in regard to increasing the endowment of the Free Academy. It is hoped that his public spirit may be supplemented by offers on the part of others.

Saturday, Nov. 14, 1874—For a few weeks there has been some complaint on account of an unpleasant taste which has been detected in the city water in some parts of the city. Various harmless have been made as to the causes and the remedy. In many parts of the city they find the water cold, pure and suitable for all purposes. In other places or rather in certain buildings they experience trouble. The mains have been flushed and they have been emptied from time to time, but it remains the same. They still get good water in places; they find an unpleasant flavor in it in others.

Greeneville boasts of a secret society known as the L. C. A.'s. It is composed of the workingmen of the village. They meet together evenings to discuss general and special topics. At a meeting held recently they chose officers for the ensuing year.

Tomorrow the last of the stated Sunday services will be held in the Park chapel, as the congregation enter for occupancy the church a week from tomorrow.

The gasoline lamps in Greeneville are somewhat out of order and every night many are not burning.

Why cannot the unfinished section of Washington street, near the park, be put in order?

OCCUM & VERSAILLES

The Occum - Versailles highway bridge over the Willimantic river was closed to traffic Friday forenoon to allow repairs to be made to the western half of the bridge by representatives of the state highway department. The eastern half of the bridge collapsed October 1, 1923, which made it necessary at that time to build a temporary bridge a short distance south of the present bridge. The temporary bridge was in use for several months during the latter part of 1923 and the beginning of 1924.

It was regretted at the time of the rebuilding of the eastern half of the bridge that with a temporary bridge built and the necessary building equipment on the ground the state could not see its way clear to rebuild the western half. This is called upon to carry heavy traffic which at the time of building was not thought of, traffic at that time being but a fractional part of the present day demands.

The plants to the Totokett Manufacturing Co., Hygienic Fibre Co., Inc., Inland Paper Co., Inc., besides many individuals are inconvenienced by the forced repairs.

The closing of the bridge to heavy traffic gives in some cases an additional haul of ten miles over country roads a portion of which are not of the best.

The transportation of the production from the Inland Paper Co., Inc., is one of the largest problems this amounting to many tons daily of finished and unfinished products.

CHAPLIN

The annual dinner and business meeting of Natchaug Game club was held at the Congregational vestry on Wednesday evening at 6:30. About 60, including many guests, sat down to a fine dinner of chicken pie, fricassee chicken, mashed potato, sweet potatoes, creamed onions, cranberry sauce, rolls, celery, pickles, mince pie, pumpkin pie, cheese and coffee.

After dinner speeches were made by a number who were called upon by the president, W. P. Jordan, of Willimantic. The minutes of the last meeting, as read by the secretary and treasurer, George M. Graves of Willimantic, showed a balance in the treasury of over $300. W. P. Jordan of Willimantic was re-elected president and George M. Glover secretary and treasurer. Members were present from New Britain, Willimantic, North Windham and other places to enjoy the dinner and social time.

WAUREGAN

There is to be a meeting of the Church Committee at the Congregational parsonage Monday evening to arrange for the annual Every Member Canvass.

Cod-liver oil has aptly been called the partner of sunlight. Both out of Nature's storehouse of energy are of supreme importance to a child with rickets.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS QUIETER

New York, Nov 14.—Stock prices displayed a strong undertone in today's market despite a large volume of profit-taking sales and a marked falling off in business, the day's sales dropping below the two million share mark for the first time in any full session since a week ago Thursday. The general industrial average was lifted to another new high since 1920. The general railroad average showed a moderate advance.

Speculative interest, which has been shifting from one industrial group to another within the last few days, reverted to the rails just before the close, New York Central crossing 117 to its highest price since 1913. Missouri, Kansas and Texas preferred was another strong feature, touching 70, its highest price in 14 years, and then sagging to 68 1-2, up 2 3-4 on the day, on realizing sales. Other strong spots in the rail group aware and Hudson, Gulf, Mobile and included Atchison, Lackawanna, Del-Northern preferred, and New York, Ontario and Western, all of which closed 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 points higher.

Buying of the industrials was of a more selective character with the merchandising, motor and public utilities shares making the best showing.

Fisher Body was the spectacular feature, soaring 11 points to 191. Other outstanding strong spots included International Harvester, United States Industrial Alcohol, American Water Works, American Beet Sugar preferred, Jordan Motors, Leelede Gas, Pennsylvania Coal and Coke, Savage Arms, United Fruit and Worthington Pump, all of which closed about 3 to 4 points higher.

More than fifty issues ascended to new peak prices for the year, the list including Western Union, Radio Corporation, H. R. Mallinson, Nash Motors, Coca Cola, Postum Cereal, Montgomery Ward, American International Corporation and General Asphalt.

Except for a gain of more than one point in Baldwin, the so-called pivoted industrials showed little change on the day. American Can and United States Steel common each receded fractionally and Studebaker showed a small gain.

Call money held steady at 3 per cent. all day. Time money rates held steady with a plentiful supply of funds available. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was a further rise in demand sterling to $4.64, the highest price since last summer. Other European rates showed only nominal changes. South American exchanges were strong, the Argentine and Uruguayan rates reaching the year's highest levels.

CURB MARKET

New York, Nov. 14.—Speculation in today's curb market quieted down but the main price movement continued upward. A 7 point jump in Northern Pipe to 92, following the declaration of a $3 dividend, was the feature of the oil group. South Pennsylvania Oil advanced 4 points and Southern Pipe, the other active petroleum issues moving irregularly within narrow limits.

An unusually heavy demand for Goodyear Tire and Rubber which carried that stock up over 4 points to 18 5-8, was the feature of the industrial group Thermodyne was one of the strongest radio shares, selling around the year's high level in active trading.

Except for a drop of over two points in Lehigh Power securities, there was little interest in the public utilities.

United Bakeries made further recovery from its recent drastic decline, closing 7 points higher at 135 1-2. Continental Baking class A, jumped over 5 points to 99 1-4, and the B stock closed about a point higher.

METAL MARKET

New York, Nov. 14.—Copper firm. Electrolytic spot and nearby 13 7-8 @ 14; futures 14. Tin firm spot and futures 54.50. Iron steady, prices unchanged. Lead quiet. Spot 8.65 a 9. Zinc firm. East St. Louis spot 6.90; futures 6.90 a 6.95. Antimony spot 14.87.

BOND MARKET

New York, Nov. 14.—Having spent its greatest force, the buying movement in the bond market today converged on individual railroad issues, several of which mounted to ne whigh levels for the year. Contrasted with the slackening page of trade in most sections of the list, was the remarkable display of activity in "Katy" adjustment, 5's, which jumped more than two points to a new high record at 75 5-8 on a turnover exceeding $1,000,000.

Both high and low priced liens were centered out for attention Spirited bidding for New York Central 6's carried this issue up 1 1-8 to a new top at 113 3-4. A brisk rise in new Haven 7's and convertible 6's followed reports that the road's refunding program would be carried out successfully in advance of maturities next year.

Other bonds which participated in the upward movement included International-Great Northern adjustment 6's, Minneapolis and St. Louis 4's, West Shore 4's Kansas City Southern 5's and Seaboard 5's and 6's. Profit-taking continued in other departments with the general price average showing little change.

The Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation was reported to be negotiating with bankers for the sale of $15,000,000 short terms notes. Public offering is expected next week. A $3,500,000 issue of Louisiana Oil Refining debenture, offered today, was oversubscribed.

Liberty bonds continued to display an easy tone. United Kingdom issues were firm in sympathy with the rise in sterling, to a new 1924 high price.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 14—With foreign buyers apparently holding off as much as possible and with many speculative holders disposed to sell out and realize profits, wheat underwent a material setback in price today, especially during the last half hour. Very unfavorable crop reports from Argentina led to only a temporary upturn. Closing quotations on wheat were weak, 1 7-8 to 3 1-2c. net lower, December 1 51 3-4 to 1.52 and May 1.58 5-8 to 1.58 7-8. Corn finished 1 1-8 to 1 5-8c off, oats 1 1-8-1, 1-4 to 1 3-8c down and provisions vary from 37 cents decline to 12 cents gain.

Hardly 500,000 bushels of wheat appeared to have been purchased today for shipment to Europe, and there seemed to be a general disposition to assume that something of a reaction in price was to be looked for in view of the recent big advance. Early downturns in quotations, however, were soon more than overcome by receipt of private cables from Argentina pointing to a virtual crop failure in some sections of that country as a result of drought and other causes.

Profit-taking sales carried values down rather rapidly as the day approached an end.

Corn and oats followed in the wake of wheat, rallying after an early decline, and then breaking again. Primary receipts of corn totaled only about half as much as was the case a year ago. Husking reports, too, continued to be disappointing.

Provisions averaged lower, chiefly influenced by the hog market.

DRIVE TO UNIONIZE BANK AND STOCK EXCHANGE CLERKS

New York, Nov. 14 (By the A. P.).—The drive to unionize bank and stock exchange clerks in Wall street will be carried to the floor of the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor at El Paso next week.

Ernest Bohmx, secretary of the Bookkeepers', Stenographers, and Accountants' union, in A. F. of L. affiliation here, left today for El Paso with the copy of a resolution he will introduce at the national conclave and which stated, in part:

"Resolved, That the action of bankers in refusing to concede to their employes the right to organize and refusing the principle of collective bargaining be condemned and the executive council of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to give all possible aid and support to the B. S. and A. U. to all workers, labor organizations and progressive minded business men to patronize banking institutions employing union clerks."

LOS ANGELES HEROINE IN THE PLAGUE DISTRICT

Los Angeles, Nov. 14.—Miss Nora Sterry, principal of a school in what yesterday was the quarantined pneumonic plague district of Los Angeles, today was wearing a gold medal, symbolic of the gratitude of the residents of the district. Miss Sterry, who has taught in the district for twelve years, went through the quarantine lines when they were established, to aid the Mexican residents, who had confidence in her.

When she entered the plague-stricken district she raised the American flag over the schoolhouse and made the school the center of new hope for the 1,500 Mexicans who, shut off from the rest of the city, were panic-stricken. She comforted them and convinced them that the plague would be conquered. She established a kitchen in the school and prepared meals for those without food. Mexican musicians were recruited and each afternoon a concert was given in the school yard.

Miss Sterry, in departing yesterday from the district after the quarantine had been lifted, was surrounded by grateful residents and girls bearing flowers. As the musicians played, she was presented with the medal, paid for with pennies collected in the neighborhood.

FURTHER DETAILS OF EARTHQUAKE IN JAVA

Rotterdam, Holland, Nov. 14.—The Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant today published further details of the earthquake which shook Java yesterday. The newspaper states that the earthshock occurred at 1.10 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and was most severe at Wonosobo.

The quake appeared to run from north to south and the ground was said to have billowed like the sea. The houses of several local Dutch officials collapsed, and other stone buildings, like the postoffice and railway station, were badly cracked but remained standing.

At a Wonosobo hotel the ceiling is said to have collapsed while the guests were at luncheon, but only one European woman was injured. There were numerous casualties among the natives, however, and many families were said to be sleeping by the roadsides following the destruction of their homes. The Seraju river was declared to be choked with thousands of dead fish.

The Javanese authorities have gone to inspect the damage. The district where the earthquake occurred is highly volcanic and it was surmised that the neighboring volcanos, Sindoro and Sumding, had erupted.

STOCK MARKET SLOWER; PRICE MOVEMENT UPWARD

New York, Nov. 14.—(By The A. P.)—Trading in stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, which has been maintained at a furious pace since the day after election, slowed up perceptibly today when the day's sales, aggregating 1,818,700 shares, fell below the two million mark for the first full session since a week ago Thursday. The price movement, however, was unmistakably upward with more than fifty stocks rising to new maximum prices for the year, and the general industrial average mounting to the highest level in four years.

The number of issues traded in—545—was within ten of the record for all time.

The boom in stock prices, which has been based on the speculative theory that a marked revival of trade was in prospect has added more than three billion dollars to the quoted value of securities traded in here since the day after election. The volume of stock sales in that period has totaled nearly 15,500,000 shares. So great has been the volume of trading that several of the larger commission houses have been required to take on extra clerical help, and to supply lunch to many of their employes, who were literally "too busy to eat." Buying orders have poured into the markets from all sections of the country.

How can the little flapper who smokes cigarettes be expected to know better?

TO FUND POLISH DEBT TO THE UNITED STATES

Washington, Nov. 14. The American government today entered into an agreement with Poland for funding that nation's debt to the United States. The agreement, the fifth among the powers to whom funds have been loaned, is similar in the funding settlements which have preceded it, and calls for full liquidation of the obligation of $178,565,000 in sixty-two years. The agreement, together with one with Esthonia signed some weeks ago, is ready for submission to congress.

Poland is accorded, with respects to payments prior to 1930, the option of paying semi-annually a flat sum of $10,000 or carrying amounts fixed on a graduated scale, without interest charges and repayment of principal. In event Poland decides to defer the interest charges prior to 1930 it must give the United States additional bonds for the balance due above the $10,000.

COOLIDGE TO DELIVER TWO ADDRESSES IN CHICAGO

Washington, Nov. 14.—Under a revised plan President Coolidge expects to deliver two addresses during his visit to Chicago next month, it was learned today. The first will be delivered to attend the National Livestock exposition.

He plans to attend a luncheon at the Commercial Club at noon on December 4, and deliver an informal address, and to the evening he plans to speak at the livestock show.

The presidential party will leave Washington on the afternoon of December 3 expecting to remain in Chicago one day. No speeches will be made by the president either going or coming from Chicago, it was said today at the White House.

Wings of riches are not strong enough to bear the expensive taste they bring.

ADVISES REVISION IN STATE'S HIGHWAY LAWS

Complete revision of all Connecticut statutes relating to highways will be recommended to the forthcoming session of the General Assembly by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. This proposal will be contained in the annual report of the department, now being prepared.

Many amendments to the statutes by previous sessions of the legislature have brought about a widely-scattered group of highway laws, it is pointed out, and it is in the hope of simplifying the situation that the codification will be proposed. The department feels that it will be to the best interests of the state, and everyone concerned, to have all the laws grouped and clarified, thereby removing cause for conflict of opinion and all doubt as to the exact meaning of the laws.

It has been found that due to the gradual changes in the basic laws through numerous amendments, many unnecessary clauses are to be found on the statute books. For several weeks, the highway department has been preparing an outline of the situation, and its recommendations to the legislature will be based on its findings.

A general chapter covering the administration of the department will be proposed, to be followed by chapter covering the trunk line, state aid and miscellaneous laws.

GIVES FRIENDLESS BABIES SIXTY QTS. OF MILK DAILY

After the death of Miss Porter of the famous Porter School, Farmington, her nephew, the late Dr. Robert Porter Keep, who had been principal of Norwich Free Academy, went to Farmington to take charge of the school. Following Dr. Keep's death his widow became head of the famous school, for which in many instances prominent women throughout the country, Porter alumnae, enroll their daughters and grand-daughters at birth. In those years the school had the reputation of receiving the highest amount of entering tuition of any school in the country; each girl at the beginning of the fall term paid $1,000—and there were always 200 girls in the limited enrollment—$200,000.

Mrs. Robert P. Keep died suddenly, and the school under the supervision of Dr. Keep's only son, also Robert Porter Keep, N. F. A. 1898, Yale 1903. Of this young man the Catholic Transcript says:

During the summer months Robert P. Keep of Farmington added another chapter to the list of his benefactions of St. Agnes' Home for dependent diocesan infants, West Hartford. For the past several years Mr. Keep has most generously supplied the Home with 60 quarts of the highest grade of milk, each day during the latter part of June, and throughout the months of July, August and September. This year for 116 days the milk arrived with unfailing regularity and the Sisters in charge of St. Agnes' fully appreciate what the gift meant. Mr. Keep is the owner of one of the finest herds of Jersey cows in this section of the country and supplies the Miss Porter School in Farmington during the school year. While the young ladies of the school are on vacation the supply from the herd comes to St. Agnes. All those connected with the institution are most grateful to the benefactor, who remembers so magnanimously the little ones in their care.

MUST DRAIN LANDS IN MOSQUITO BELT

Doctor William L. Slate, Jr., who recently succeeded Doctor Edward H. Jenkins as director of the state experiment station has adopted both progressive and aggressive measures in combatting one of the most serious menaces to comfort and health in the state, the mosquito. At his suggestion the Connecticut Anti-Mosquito Association last week held the first institute of its kind ever called for Connecticut. It drew a general response from all departments of the state which come into contact with the mosquito situation, county and local health officers, representatives of civic and business organizations and women's clubs.

The problem of entering upon a state programme of mosquito control was the general subject of the meeting and the discussion resulted in a unanimous verdict that the worst mosquito-affected lands in the state must be drained immediately.

MARGARET SLATTERY WILL SPEAK TWICE IN CITY

Seldom does Norwich have the rare privilege of hearing one so gifted and prominent in the Christian world as Margaret Slattery, the noted orator, writer and Christian worker. Her addresses are eagerly listened to by great audiences all over America, and she is well known in other countries as well.

Miss Slattery will deliver two addresses in Norwich Sunday and doubtless her audiences will be large in both instances.

At 3.30 p. m. she will speak in the United Congregational church when the body of the church will be reserved for young people 14 years and over, to whom Miss Slattery will specially speak. On this occasion adults will be welcomed to the gallery of the church.

At 7.30 p. m. all the Protestant churches will unite in a service at the Central Baptist church, when Miss Slattery will impress the audience with one of her choicest and most timely messages. It is suggested that those desiring to hear this address come early.

Miss Slattery's dates are in such great demand that it was necessary to engage her for the Norwich date some ten months ago. She comes under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A. and all the churches are cooperating in the effort. The public generally will be welcome in the evening and adults to the church gallery in the afternoon.

Following this a responsive service with songs and prayers was used, Mrs. Saxton at the piano.

The report of last meeting was read by Mrs. John B. Blackmar, secretary, and $100 was appropriated toward the salary of Rev. Frank A. Bown, Plummer, Idaho, to whom boxes were sent last spring.

FELLOWSHIP MEETING HELD AT WESTMINSTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westminster, Nov. 14.—The last fellowship of the 1924 series was held here yesterday.

The morning worship was led by Rev. William Fryling of Wauregan. The words of welcome were by Rev. Edward Davies, senior pastor, and stressed the meaning and value of fellowship. The address of the morning was by Rev. Gurdon Bailey of Norwich Town on the subject, The Christian Citizen, an earnest helpful discourse, closely allied with the theme of the day, which was "Patriotism and Christianity." "Faith of Our Fathers" was heartily sung by all. Westminster Hill school, Miss Johnson, teacher, presented two patriotic drills with flags, followed by Gayhead school children, Miss Kimball, teacher, who recited in unison "Your Flag and My Flag," followed with a playlet for "Book Week," very cleverly presented.

Each school received prolonged and hearty applause at the conclusion of its part, it being very difficult to determine which acquitted itself the better.

The morning exercises concluded with the singing of America.

In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Pratt of Brooklyn had the devotional service which was followed by the reports of Rev. Truman Childs the secretary and treasurer of the six churches. He gave a fine report of the last meeting held at Ekonk, which was very largely attended being the fifth anniversary of the foundation of the fellowship.

At the conclusion of the business the schools gave the salute to the flag and sang America the Beautiful, with all present joining in the chorus of each verse. It had been expected that State Librarian George S. Godard would give an address, but the accident last March made it inadvisable for him to attempt the trip to and from Westminster. Miss Sarah Louise Hadley, from material sent by Mr. Godard had skillfully prepared a paper full of information as to the records obtained and preserved in the state library.

After a duet by Mrs. Emily Bushnell and Mrs. Rollinson, school supervisor, Edwin B. Floyd, gave an address dealing with the education of children giving his definition of education and its three fold object with interesting illustrations. All the speakers were mindful of the juvenile portion of the audience, including them in that they said. The programme closed with Blest Be the Tie That Binds and the benediction by Rev. Mr. Childs. The flowers used in decorating the church were brought by a number of people and combined with red berries and oak leaves, all being beautifully arranged by Miss Emily Mellen of Berkeley, Calif., a guest at the parsonage. Flags and bunting were also used.

Saturday evening of this week at Westminster church, Rev. Morris E. Ailing, now pastor at Storrs, is to speak. Mr. Ailing will be accompanied by three students from the college. George Inglis of Plainfield will render a solo.

RAIDERS DIVERT FOW OF LOS ANGELES AQUEDUCT

Raiding Party of 60 Men Stormed the Guards of the Aqueduct 200 Miles North of Los Angeles—Threw Open the Alabama Waste Gates Permitting the Water to Run Into the Owens River—Sheriff of Inyo County Has Telegraphed Governor Richardson Asking For Troops—Feud Has Been Raging Between the City and Valley Ranchers and Business Men.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 16.—Practically the entire flow o the Los Angeles aqueduct, this city's chief source of water for domestic and industrial uses; was diverted, into the Owens river near Lone Pine, about 200 miles north of here, by a raiding party of 60 men who stormed the aqueduct guards today and threw open the Alabama waste gates.

Sheriff Charles Collins, of Inyo county, has telegraphed Governor Richardson or troops, declaring immediate actica by the military is all that can prevent bloodshed.

The raiders, alleged to be residents of Owens Valley, where for years a water feud has raged between the city and valley ranchers and businessmen late today stand their ground at the spillway and defied Sheriff Collins and representatives of the city of Los Angeles.

The attackers announced that they would continue to waste the water until a guarantee came from Los Angeles and "settled" the water rights controversy with them. Sheriff Collins, after vainly endeavoring to have the waste gates closed, returned to Independence to telegraph the facts to Governor Richardson.

According to Claude Van Norman, in charge of maintenance from the aqueduct intake to Haiwee reservoir, the raiders assured city representatives that the gates would be kept open until the Los Angeles committee arrived, remarking that "if they leave on the train tonight they can be here Monday morning and this thing can be settled.

Before dusk tonight the raiding party had been reinforced by forty additional men, and was an unquestioned control of the aqueduct. Sheriff Collins said there were 200 other sympathizers ready to join the raiders at a moment's notice.

According to telephonic information received by officials of the bureau of power and light here, the raiders rode to the gates about 10 a. m. They were opposed by Frank Lasky, gate tender, who lives nearby.

Ignoring Lasky, the raiders opened the gates.

Ed Leahy, superintendent of electrical construction in the valley, accompanied by Van Norman, came to the gates at Lasky's call and Sheriff Collins arrived about half an hour later.

Van Norman said he recognized a prominent Owens businessman as one of the leaders of the party, and demanded of him that the gates be closed again. Sheriff Colins made a similar demand. Both were ignored. Collins wrote down the names of the men in the party whom he recognized.

The sheriff then left for his county seat while the representatives of the city continued their parley with the raiders.

Van Norman announced to the crowd that they were trespassing, had caused enormous damage to the city, and that they were individually liable recovery of damages.

Efforts were immediately made to find William Mulholland, builder of the aqueduct and chief engineer of the city water department. He was reported to have gone on an inspection trip to the San Francisquito dam project north of here.

Los Angeles officials announced tonight that they would not take any aggressive action other than civil court proceedings, pending the outcome of Sheriff Collin's request for troops.

Van Norman and several other city representatives recently conferred in Owens Valley with ranchers and businessmen who complain that Los Angeles is taking their water and turning valley into desert.

Of this conference, Van Norman said "all interests in the valley were represented."

"We proposed," he said, "to enter an agreement with them whereby the city would supply water for irrigating an area of 30,000 acres each year.

"We found that this idea appealed to many of the rachers, many of them are doing well on their ranches, and desire to stay rather than sell out en bloc to the city, believing this agreement would be for the best interests of the valley. Representatives of one canal company, however, stated that the only thing that would satisfy them would be for the city to purchase outright all their holdings.

"We asked them to take our proposal under consideration and said we would return later with more data. Apparently this was satisfactory to most of those concerned.

"I am convinced the raiders who opened the gates today do not represent the people of Owens Valley."

A conference of city officials was in session tonight to discuss the situation. Pending the outcome of this conference it was announced tentatively that civil action probably would be launched into county courts to obtain an injunction restraining the raiders from trespassing on the aqueduct and interfering with its operations. Should this injunction be defied, the raiders would be in a position of opposing the courts rather than the city, and further moves to oust them would be raised on that opposition.

Sheriff Collins dictated to The Associated Press his appeal to the governor over long distance telephone from Independence, county seat of Inyo county, as follows:

"Governor Friend W. Richardson:

"Approximately one hundred citizens have opened the Los Angeles aqueduct waste gates and are spilling the water of the aqueduct into Owens river. They are standing guard over the head gate and resisting all efforts to close it. All efforts to disperse the party have failed. Confident the party will disperse and bloodshed be averted only by arrival of state troops, I urge that troops be sent immediately. Location of party five miles north of Lone Pine.

"C. C. Collins, Sheriff of Inyo County."

SEARCHING FOR BANDIT WHO SHOT STRATFORD POLICEMAN

Stratford, Nov. 16.—While Policeman Edward Manchester, 47, of 1563 Stratford avenue, raved in delirium at Bridgeport hospital today, with bullet wounds in his head, his right arm and one of his legs, police and posses of citizens scoured the woods and meadows of Stratford, seeking the elusive Post road bandit who last night shot Manchester after holding up Davey Brothers grocery store and escaping with $133.16.

An aeroplane flew low over the woods, but neither the occupants of the aeroplane nor the searching parties on the ground found any trace of the bandit. A man answering the description of the bandit was traced early this morning from a point a few hundred feet from the scene of the shooting to a wood road back of Avon park. Then he disappeared as though the earth had swallowed him.

As in other holdups of the past few months, the bandit last night used picture wire to truss up his victims, Nicholas Powers, 437 Shelton street, Bridgeport and Charles Walker, aged 14, of 2063 Barnum avenue. The boy finally loosed himself and freed Powers by biting through the picture wire with his teeth. Then he rode on his bicycle to a nearby drug store and phoned for the police. Manchester was covering the railroad when he was shot, the bandit in other recent hold-ups having invariably sought the railroad to make his getaway.

The hold-up man is believed to be a drug addict, wanted for breaking parole at Cheshire reformatory.

$1,500,000 Fire Loss Sunday in Jersey City

Two Large Erie Railroad Piers and 14 River Barges Consumed.

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 16.—Jersey City's entire waterfront today was seriously menaced by fire which assumed such proportions that two large Erie railroad piers, fourteen river barges, a steam lighted and much valuable freight was destroyed before the combined forces of this city and Hoboken together with two fireboats from New York succeeded in bringing it under control.

It was the city's second million-dollar blaze in three days, two blocks of the downtown industry section having been laid waste Friday in a fire which raged unchecked for five hours.

Officials of the fire department and Erie Railroad spokesmen said it would be a difficult task to estimate today's losses offhand because of the value of the freight destroyed, but it will probably reach, is not exceed $1,500,000.

The blaze of undetermined origin, started shortly after noon in the Erie's cooperage pier, where barrels, many them oil and grease soaked, were in the process of repair.

It quickly spread to the one adjoining and in less than two hours, the piers were a mass of flames, the only wood furnishing ready fuel for the roaring blaze

With piers 5 and 6 levelled, the flames, which already has destroyed 14 barges more closeby, threatened to leap to the Adams Epress company's pier where the so-called "Million Dollar Train" loaded with express motter of great value, was awaiting the time of its departure.

Time and again, the roof of the express pier, which also serves as a warehouse, caught fire, but concentrated efforts succeeded in saving the structure, the destruction of which officials declared, would have added possibly another million to the loss.

River shipping was menaced when blabing barges, drifted into the water and ferry traffic was at a standstill for an hour.

Two firemen were injured, neither seriously, during the desperate battle which continued for several hours.

The ruins smouldered throughout the night while firemen working in shifts, tood by ready to resume the battle should the fire again break out.

The destroyed merchandise consisted mostly of cotton goods, rubber, potash and other freight awaiting distribution.

DEATH CAME AFTER FALL DOWN FLIGHT OF STAIRS

New Haven, Nov. 16.—Charles Doebele, 20, of this city, died tonight as the result, according to his mother, of a fall down a flight of stairs. According to Dr. William F. Collins, however, the young man died of a disease.

On the night of October 31, according to the police who made an investigation, the young man was at the rooms of a club and the members decided to initiate him. The young man, frightened, ran to a window, the police say, and broke several panes of glass. He then dashed to the stairs, and in his haste, fell down the entire flight. Four of the members were arrested on a charge of breach of the peace. Questioned by the police, they admitted frightening the young man and pouring water on him, but denied that they pushed him down the stairs.

According to the young man's mother, he had been ill in bed since then. The four young men were released on bonds.

COAST ARTILLERY CORPS IS SHORT MORE THAN 19,000 MEN

Major General Coe's Report Says the Present Strength of 12,026 Men is the Lowest Since 1907 — Particular Stress is Made of the Limited Personnel For Harbor Boats and Anti-Aircraft Material—Satisfaction is Expressed With the Result of Reserve Officers' Training Camp.

Washington, Nov. 16.—The enlisted strength of the coast artillery corps for harbor defense, anti-aircraft, railway artillery and heavy tractor artillery, should be more than trebled and overseas garrisons should be, nearly doubled, Major General P. M. Coe, chief of coast artillery, said todty, in his annual report to the secretary of war. The coast artillery corps was short of over 19,000 men for the efficient manning of its various activities, he said, and its present strength of 12,026, the lowest since 1907, should be raised to 31,583.

According to General Coe the personnel manning the harbor defenses should be raised from 3,405, its present strength to 9,750; the anti-aircraft artillery also should be augmented from 1,323 to 6,300; the railway artillery should be increased from 595 to 2,523; the heavy tractor artillery should be developed from 426 to 2,152, while overseas garrisons should be expanded from the present strength of 6,000 men to 10,000.

General Coe said the training of coast artillery troops, within the continental limits of the United States, and the instruction of officers training corps, organized reserves and national guard during the last year had been "handicapped by the limited personnel available, and, in some cases by lack of necessary material, especially harbor boats and certain anti-aircraft material."

Satisfaction was expressed by General Coe at the results of the coast artillery units of the reserve officers training corps conducted at eighteen institutions during the academic year 1923-24 with a total enrollment of 4,249. Attendance of 450 and 1,500 reserve officers training camps and citizens training camps respectively were reported during the year.

Smith, found last night sitting in his office at the Middlesex hospital in a dazed condition with a bullet wound across his forehead, he told the police tonight Dr. Smith is head of the Middlesex College of Medicine and Surgery and of the hospital.

One letter received by him last Monday was a story of the "killing" of Dr. Smith, manufactured by piecing together words clipped from newspapers under the heading "Dr. Smith found slain." A previous letter told him to leav town." Dr. Smith told the police that the second letter bore a hand and dagger in place of a signature while the first was unsigned.

Yesterday Dr. Smith told the officers that he was fired on when a few blocks distant from the hospital and that he remembered nothing after that. Hospital attendants said that the doctor's car was found parked and locked in its usual position near the building. Two bullet wounds were found in the windows of the car doors and the doctor's fel hat was also penetrated by two bullets.

Publication of income tax returns, the statement declared, "violates the good faith which the government owes to its citizens to protect them in their private affairs."

When a young man his occupation was that of a farmer and later he embarked in the teaming business and with the advent of automobiles he started a public passenger automobile line. IBANEZ NOT IMPLICATED IN SPANISH REBELLION

Paris, Nov. 16.—Although he recently denounced King Alfonso and the reigning military directorate in Spain, Vincente Blasco Ibanez, the Spanish author, makes vigorous denial that he planned or participated in any way in the recent attempt to bring about a revolution in Spain. He said that his denial applied also to Prof. Miguel Unamuno and Dr. Jose Ortega Gasset, who likewise are opposed to the present Spanish government.

Ibanez made his statement when he heard that at the trial at Pamplona, Spain, of the Spaniards arrested recently as they crossed the Franco-Spanish frontier into Spain, and charged with the intention of bringing about the overthrow of the Spanish directorate, one of the prisoners had asserted ahat the author had planned and participated in the revolutionary movement.

"The movement was organized without our knowledge," Ibanez declared. "Besides, it was doomed to failure. What can five do against seventeen divisions and 60,000 gendarmes? I do not know the names of the conspirators, yet I pity them. They are victims of their good faith and enthusiasm. They will be avenged.

"I do not abandon the game, but a revolution must be national or not at all. When a revolution breaks, the entire country must be backed by the army. It must break in Madrid, the heart of Spain. We shall be there. I ask a place in the front ranks. We shall succeed or fail; time will decide. All we have decided is to make revolution little by little. All the party leaders assure us of their sympathy and we are now only waiting for the right moment."

Two men, Eugene Schnable, 26, and Otto Ettna, 22, both of Rochester, N. Y., were killed instantly when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by an eastbound New York Central express train.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Josef Hofmann in New London.

For two decades nothing but the highest tributes have been paid to the art of Josef Hofmann who plays at the New London State Armory next Tuesday evening, but one of an unusual nature was recently paid him by a Philadelphia banker.

The story comes from Edward Bok, to whom this financial expect spoke concerning the great pianist. It seems that Hofmann had some business to transact with the Girard Trust company. When he called at the bank the pianist expressed a curiosity regarding the activity behind the steel cages, and one of the officials offered to show him around. Hofmann took advantage of the opportunity and was guided through the financial mazes after which he discussed his problem with the banker. The latter informed Mr. Bok that he had never met a man outside the financial world who was quick to understand what he explained, that his mind worked logically upon financial problems and that he made his decisions just as he or any other financier would have made them. Then he declared: "Really, Mr. Bok, it is nothing short of a blank shame that that man is wasting his brain on the piano. And I love music, too."

Stotesbury of Philadelphia, Mrs. Burgy studied under Madame Phillips-Jenkins and Wassili Leps of that city, and under Percy Rector Stevens of New York. Dramatic art was studied under that capable instructor, W. Earle Marshall of the Scala theatre, Milan, Italy. She has sung many leading roles with the Philadelphia Operatic society and for four seasons was soprano soloist with the Wassili Leps Symphony orchestra at Willow Grove Park, Philadelphia. In the years 1920-1921 Mrs. Burgy made a two months' tour of Panama, appearing as soloist in a series of eight concerts of ensemble chamber music.

Mrs. Burgy has shown exceptional judgment in the varied and interesting numbers she has selected for her Wednesday night's program. Most of the numbers will be done in costume and they will cover a period ranging from the 17th Century Watteau costume—used for a group of French songs—to the folk songs of Norway, Ireland and the mountaineer folk songs of Kentucky.

Assisting Mrs. Burgy will be Mrs. Charles Saxton, whose piano accompaniments are a real delight and a pleasure in themselves. The program will also include several numbers with cello obligatos which will be rendered by one of Norwich's foremost musicians, Eben Learned.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

An exceedingly attractive programme. That's just the kind of show you'll see at the Broadway theatre the first half of the week, starting today.

Grace Edler and the four girls who compose her company make as attractive a male quartette as any group of girls at a summer resort would care to flirt with. These five charmers are seen in "Dancers Unique." The male impersonations being one of the number of dances which cause the group to be stamped as unique. There are imitations including one of Eddie Leonard's justly celebrated soft shoe dances and of course a dance by the girls as their own attractive selves.

Other acts include the following:

Ray Conlin, the sub-vocal comedian. Longo and Mary in "A Few Cutting Remarks." Garo and Costello in "After the Banquet." Josephine Chappelle and Harry Carleton offer "Just a few things you haven't seen."

Antonio Moreno and Helene Chadwick are featured in the latest Paramount production, "The Border Legion," now at the Broadway theatre. The story is an adaptation by George Hull of the novel of the same name by Zane Grey William Howard directed.

To those who like a pleasing romantic-drama, flavored with action and thrills, "The Border Legion" is going to prove one of the finest pictures they've ever seen on the screen at the Broadway.

It's a big story, by a big author, produced in a big way with a big all-star cast. Hockliffe Fellowes, Gibson Gowland, Charles Ogle and Edward Gribbon are but a few of the well-known players appearing in support.

If it wasn't for the fact that the term "special" has been so misused we'd be inclined to use it in describing "The Border Legion." Here's everything that could possibly be crammed into a picture—and just a little more.

We liked "The Border Legion" and so will you!

BREED THEATER

The William A. Brady stage success by Jules Eckert Goodman, from the novel The Man Who Came Back, comes to the screen under the banner of William Fox as one of the new special productions of unusual possibilities. The novel by John Fleming Wilson was one of the best sellers a few ears ago and the play was a merited success.

George O'Brien and Dorothy Mackaill have the leading roles in the picture which is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today. Others in the cast are Cyril Chadwick, Ralph Lewis, Emily Fitzroy and Harvey Clark. Emmitt Flynn was the director.

It will be recalled that the story narrates the tragedy of a wealthy young New Yorker who goes the pace that kills, winding up as a beach comber in the Orient. Drugs and liquor have robbed him of his manhood. His fall offers a wealth of dramatic possibilities. His rise, due to the influence of a good woman, is equally as spectacular, so that the picture promises to contain more than the usual mixture of romance and action.

The Pathe news, Hodge—Podge, a cartoon and pictures of the big Armistice Day parade make up the remainder of the bill.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Dennison P. Jordan, 63, for a great many years a resident of Danielson, died Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Torrey, at Putnam Heights. Mr. Jordan up to within a few years always had been active, constantly engaged in some industrious task. His health failing, he went from Danielson to make his home at Putnam Heights.

Mr. Jordan was born in Sterling, Conn., September 16, 1831, a son of Elisha and Abiah Watson Jordan. During many years of his life Mr. Jordan was engaged in the meat business and either conducted on his own account or managed for others markets in Danielson, Wauregan and at Taftville. The younger people who remember Mr. Jordan here recall him more particularly as having had a truck farm on the West Side, near the Quinebaug river. This small farm, which claimed his attention for years, was made to produce bountifully of vegetables and the quality was such that Mr. Jordan always found a ready market for his produce.

He was a veteran of the Civil war, having served as a member of Company K, 18th Connecticut Volunteers. Mr. Jordan leaves a daughter, Mrs. Ernest Torrey of Putnam Heights and a son, Dayton Jordan of Riverside, R. I.

The death at Putnam Saturday night of Horatio A. Brown closed the life of a man who was ever concerned with doing good. Few of those at present resident in Danielson will recall that he ever lived here, for many years have come and gone since he went away, but Mr. Brown always remembered with pleasure the profitable years that he spent in this community and many of the incidents that marked them.

Only a few weeks ago, when in a reminiscent mood he recalled having organized and taught what he believed to be the first Baptist Sunday school in this community. This was something over half a century ago. Its sessions were held in what was known in this days as Spiritualist hall, on Oak street. That venture in the field of religious instruction brought some opposition and some criticism of Mr. Brown, he said, but he later numbered among his dearest friends those who had been critical of him when he first organized the class.

During all his years after he left Danielson, Mr. Brown liked to talk of Danielson and the people he knew here. Practically all of them are gone now, some to other towns or cities, the majority to their last rest. The good that Mr. Brown achieved remains. In Putnam, his home city for many years, he was known and loved by everyone. He was a bearer of the word that cheers, the smile that brightens life for others, a man who visited the sick and conforted them, a man who had the confidence of little children and scores of them were happy in calling him "Pa," by which appellation he was generally known by the people of his home city.

Justice C. B. Montgomery of the town of Sterling points out that he was six months ahead of the federal court ruling at Baltimore, in the case of Congressman Hill that cider must be in fact intoxicating before the manufacture and possession of it for home use can be considered as in violation of the law. Justice Montgomery's ruling was made in the case of Stanislaw Piolonek, at whose home a quantity of cider and wine was seized by officers. The court ruled that the cider was rightfully possessed by Piolonek and ordered it returned to him. The wine was reported to the internal revenue department at Hartford that it might be taxed, if a test of the alcoholic content was warranted.

Sunday did not pass without the customary automobile accidents, one a fatal affair on the Putnam-Chepachet route just over the Rhode Island line from the town of Putnam.

Members of the Fortnightly club are to meet with Mrs. Walter Musgrave on Tuesday.

GREEN HOLLOW FARMERS RAISED LIQUID CROPS

(Special ot the Bulletin)

Danielson, Nov. 16—A group of five officers made up of Federal Officers Congdon and Briggs, County Investigator W. E. Jackson, all of Willimantic, Sheriff Tillinghast of Central Village and Constable Dyer Russell of Moosup, raided a farm on the Green Hollow road at four o'clock Saturday afternoon and seized 100 gallons of grain mash, a miscellaneous assortment of intoxicants in jugs, bottles and glass containers and a still from which a white alcoholic fluid was dripping at the time the raiders made their appearance.

William Vurawski and Walter Levenson, represented as being joint owners of the farm were placed under arrest. Vurawski and Levenson live on what for years has been known as the Alfred Hill farm. It is about two miles north of Central Village.

Presented before Mrs. Edith M. Kennedy, a justice of the peace of the town of Plainfield, Vurawski pleaded guilty to manufacturing and keeping with intent to sell. He was fined $200 on each count and costs, a total of $436. Levenson entered a plea of not guilty to keeping with intent to sell, but was found guilty and fined $200 and costs, a total of $236. Vurawski accepted the verdict and elected to go to jail, in preference to paying the fine, and he was committed. On Sunday he had obtained counsel. An appeal will be entered. Vurawski appealed at once from the penalty imposed upon him.

The officers brought away a gallon bottle containing about two quarts of some kind of intoxicant, four one-gallon jugs filled with a mixture of wine and whiskey and some other containers with liquor. John Bednarz, who was in the place, was fond with a quart bottle wrapped in a newspaper in his hand. At the place when the raid was made were two well-known business men of Moosup and a woman also resident in that place. The party appeared to be visiting with the family. Another automobile party that arrived at the farm while the raid was on were warned by a little girl who ran out from the house. The raid followed complaints the officers had received that it was likely a still and intoxicants would be found at the farm.

PUTNAM

Andrew Lincoln Lyon writes: I saw an account of Anson Buchanan who voted for Abraham Lincoln for president in 1864. Well, I did the same, and in 1860 when he was nominated for the first time for president—there were three parties then and the other two candidates were Douglas and Breckenridge—I yelled myself hoarse cheering for "Uncle Abe." Being only 20 years old then I couldn't vote. The year before, in 1859, I saw him in Providence as he was stumping the state for republican candidates for state officers and I noticed that he had no beard then but in April 1865 when I saw him in his coffin in the courthouse in Chicago he had a full beard and that, as well as his hair, was slightly tinged with gray.

The Morse mill is now in operation and will have a force of about 60 employes. This number the firm expects to increase as rapidly as business conditions warrant. Like all of the mills in the city they are handicapped by insufficient water due to the fact that it has been seven weeks since Putnam has had a real rainfall.

Alexander Gilman, appointed by Mayor Chapdelaine to succeed G. Harold Gilpatric resigned as a member of the board of water commissioners, is a former postmaster of the city, and has been actively identified with the Putnam Building and Loan Association, having served for several years as its president. He is a director in the Citizens' National Bank.

At Carnegie Hall, New York, recently, Miss Mabel Ritch, daughter of Benjamin R. Ritch of Woodstock, sang the principal contralto part, Fricka, in Wagner's opera, Rheingold. She was given very favorable notices by the critics of the metropolitan press. Miss Ritch has a voice of great beauty that has been carefully trained. Her selection to sing the leading contralto roles in a series of Wagnerian operas is the greatest tribute that could be paid to her ability. The operas are being sung in English by the English Opera company. The next one to be given is Walkure, followed by Seigfried and Gotterdamerung. Wagnerian opera in English is something of an experiment and would be attempted only by artists of exceptional gifts. After she has concluded this engagement Miss Ritch is to make a concert tour of the western cities. She has never appeared before a Putnam audience but she has sung at her home in Woodstock although not recently.

Found guilty in the city court Saturday morning on a charge of violation of the pure food law in selling a quart of skim milk Herbert R. He paid his fine and the costs, the total being $32.90. This makes his second conviction on the pure food law.

For violation of the liquor law through actual sale Frances Chanczin of High street was fined $100 and costs and given a 30 day jail sentence, the jail sentence being suspended for one year.

SUPERVISOR OF FARM CENSUS IN CONNECTICUT

The bureau of the census announces that F. J. Wildman has been designated as supervisor of the census of agriculture for the state of Connecticut, with headquarters at Hartford. Approximately 68 enumerators will be required to make the canvass. The 1921 census showed that there were 22,655 farms in the state at that time.

The department of commerce is about to take a census of agriculture covering the crop year 1924 and relating to conditions on or near Jan. 1, 1925. This is the first census of agriculture to be taken midway between the decennial censuses; the act of congress authorizing it is based on the belief that, with rapidly changing conditions in agriculture, there should be a stocktaking as often as every five years. The work of taking the census will begin on Dec. 1, and is to be completed on or before Jan. 31. As rapidly as possible after the receipt of returns statements will be released for the press, by the census bureau at Washington, relative to production of the principal farm crops and the values of farm properties, including land, buildings, machinery and livestock.

The enumeration will require the services of 15,000 to 20,000 enumerators, acting under the direction of 212 supervisors, who have for the most part been selected from the employes of the bureau of the census and the department of agriculture. Employes of the forest service will secure the census returns for most of the farms within the National forest reserves in Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, Oregon, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Sample questionnaires are being widely distributed to the farmers, to familiarize them with the information soon to be called for by the enumerators. In addition to the usual inquiries relative to production, values and farm expenses, the schedule calls for the amount of tax paid by the farm operator on farm property, including real estate tax, personal property tax, and special assessments. It is important to ascertain just what the burden of taxation resting upon the farm really is and how it compares with the amount of taxes paid by other interests. This may point the way to a more equitable adjustment of the tax burden.

Heretofore the census of agriculture has always been taken in connection with a complete census of population. This time it will cover the farm population only, showing the number of persons living on the farm, including the family of the operator, and the farm laborers and their families. These persons will be classified as under or over 10 years of age and as white or colored.

The extent to which farm operators used the purchasing and selling facilities of farmers' organizations will be brought out by two inquiries; one calling for the value of products of the farm sold through a farmers' marketing organization, and the other calling for the value of all farm supplies purchased from or through a farmers' organization. An additional index to the marketing conditions will be brought out by answers to inquiries as to the kind of road adjoining the farm, whether concrete, brick, macadam, gravel, improved dirt or unimproved dirt, and the distance to the nearest market town. Through inquiries of this character the census seeks to secure information relative to conditions upon which to a considerable degree the success of farm operation depends.

STONINGTON

The four children in the Lavanti family in Morgan street, who were found to be suffering from smallpox, two weeks ago, are reported to be well on the road to recovery. The house, however, is still under quarantine and two constables, working in shifts, are constantly on guard in front of the residence. A number of Pawcatuck children were exposed to the disease, but Dr. Charles F. Congdon, health officer for the town of Stonington, who has kept a close watch on the situation, stated at the week end that no other symptoms of the malady have been discovered and that none is expected at so late a date.

Dr. Congdon also stated that the children who had contracted the disease had never been vaccinated, while the parents and another child who had had not been affected. Practically all of the children in other families who were exposed to the disease were also vaccinated and it is thought that this fact alone prevented a general spread of the disease.

The following awards were made at the last whist given by Stonington Steam Fire Engine No. 1: Ladies' high score, Mrs. William Edgar; ladies' low score, Miss Laura Mello; men's high score, F. W. Taylor; men's low score, J. F. Marshall.

The Atwood Machine Co. has received a shipment of pig iron at the local freight station.

Announcements were received Friday of the marriage of Miss Bernice Josephine Cummings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cummings of New York, and William Kane, Jr., of Stonington, in New York at the Plaza hotel Nov. 8. Mr. and Mrs. Kane are now on their wedding trip to the Bahamas. On their return they will occupy the Jones home on lower Main street.

Albert Fort has been awarded by the Atwood Machine Co. the contract for wiring 13 tenements for electric lighting.

The young people of the Second Congregational church held a social in the church parlors Friday evening. Games were played and refreshments served.

The members of Nina council, No. 43, K. of C., entertained at whist at the K. of C. home Friday evening.

Large catches of cod are being made by the local fishing fleet and disposed of here and at New York and Boston markets.

Miss Emily Darrell and Richard Darrell of New York are visiting at their summer home north of the borough.

Mrs. Edward Burns has returned from a brief visit in Providence.

Mrs. C. B. Seamon has returned from a visit with Derby relatives.

PEOPLE ARE SLOW IN RENEWING MOTOR LICENSES

Motor vehicle owners who were disappointed when they rushed to the capitol and branch offices of the state motor vehicle department in the closing hours of last year for the purpose of renewing their automobile registrations, are reminded of the New Year resolutions which many of them made at that time, never to let it happen again. In a statement given out by the department it is pointed out that, if registration work is not speeded up, another disappointment will be in store for many who plan to operate their cars throughout the winter.

In an effort to expedite applications, the following statement is enclosed with the current issue of the monthly bulletin of the department:

"Do you expect to drive your car after January 1? If so, register it at once. Thousands of owners were disappointed last year because they failed to apply in time to get their cars registered for use at the beginning of the New Year. If all of those whose cars were registered by January 1, 1924, desire to avoid losing the use of their automobiles for several days beginning January 1, 1925, their applications must be received by the motor vehicle department at the rate of nearly 3,000 a day, whereas the actual rate at which they are being received is about 24 a day. If this increase does not start immediately the department will be physically unable to accommodate all those who wait until the last few days to apply. Since it provides the means of getting registrations without difficulty over two months in advance of that time, it will not ask local police authorities to extend the period for use of 1924 markers beyond midnight of December 31.

"Avoid tiresome waiting in line and needless irritation by attending to the matter now.

"Those who desire to reserve their present numbers may do so by making application to the department by December 1."

Applications may be forwarded to the department by mail but branch offices of the department in Waterbury, New Haven, Bridgeport and New London will be unable to handle mail applications after December 1.

Prize for Economics Writers

A prize of $5,000 for the best original treatise on "The Theory of Wages" has been announced by Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin of the University of Chicago, chairman of a committee on economic prizes.

To give contestants time for the necessary research, the committee will receive contributions until Oct. 1, 1926. The award will be announced as soon after that date as possible.

Any point of view may be taken, and any phase of the wage problem may be discussed. Ownership of the copyright of the winning treatise is to vest in the donors, who will arrange for publication of the book, the announcement said. Prof. Laughlin's associates on the committee are Prof. John Bates Clark of Columbia University; Dr. Edwin F. Gay of Harvard University; Congressman Theodore E. Burton, and Prof. Wesley C. Mitchell of Columbia University.

NARCOTIC AGENTS MAKE JEWETT CITY SEIZURE

The narcotic agents of the United States government, accompanied by William Lewis, county investigator, paid a Jewett City Chinese laundry an unexpected visit Friday evening. They found ready for immediate use a pipe, alcohol lamp, scissors, needle and glass which with a gun they took away. In the absence of smoking material being obtained no arrests have been made up to the present time.

Of 3,802 students enrolled in the summer terms of Minnesota's States teachers' colleges this year 1,999, or 52.5 per cent, expressed the definite intention of entering the field of rural education, according to the Journal of the Minnesota Education Association.

Try Snowdrift in your favorite cake. Make the cake with Snowdrift—grease the pans with Snowdrift—and make the icing with Snowdrift.

Snowdrift is made by the Wesson Oil people out of oil as good as fine salad oil—hardened and whipped into a creamy white fat—and packed in an airtight can to keep it as sweet and fresh as the day it was made. There couldn't be anything nicer for making cake.

Snowdrift is much easier to cream because it is already so creamy itself. It is so delicate that it makes your cake rich without changing the flavor. It is all pure fat, without salt or water, so add a pinch of salt if you have been using butter in your recipe.

EDUCATION WEEK.

Whatever one may think of the frequence with which special weeks are celebrated, few will be disposed to make light of the importance of Education week which opens today. This deals with a subject in which everyone should be interested and to which there is no chance of devoting too much attention.

When we stop to think that there are three million illiterates and when we realize how extensively ignorance contributes to poverty, vice and crime there can be little question about the advisability of getting public sentiment directed in the right channel in behalf of education and better education.

United States Commissioner of Education J. J. Tigert points to the fact that "Education in the United States is controlled by the people of the several states and not by the national government, as in many countries. Every citizen has a voice in determining what kinds of schools we should have. The people determine in the final analysis what kind of teachers we shall have, what they shall be paid, etc. Naturally school superintendents and teachers know a great deal more about schools than the average citizen, but we cannot make much sound and permanent progress in the improvement of the schools without the intelligent approval and support of public sentiment."

In his proclamation fixing Education week, President Coolidge says: "Education for the children of all the people, extending from the primary grades through the university, constitutes America's noblest contribution to civilization," and then he points out that while no child or youth should be deprived of the benefits of an education "either through negligence or because of unfortunate circumstances which might be controlled with sufficient effort, large numbers of children do not receive the full preparation for their life's work to which they are justly entitled. Many have reached maturity without even the rudiments of education."

There may be a clash of opinions as to the best form of providing an education, and ideas may vary concerning methods of teaching, but there can be no lack of agreement upon the importance of an education and the rapid reduction of the illiterate class.

Education week has a common appeal. It deserves much more attention than it will get.

GOING AFTER RESULTS.

All along the Connecticut shore it will be learned with interest that plans have been made in New Jersey for the expenditure of $200,000 for the fighting of the Japanese beetle. This interest will come not solely from the opposition to the Japanese beetle but from the knowledge that a sizeable sum is to be employed for the purpose of eliminating a pest and Connecticut communities have long been interested in getting rid of that common pest, the mosquito.

New Jersey apparently understands the problem it faces. It at least knows that it does little good to talk about what harm the Japanese beetle does, or if trying to eliminate it by gestures. It regards the situation as calling for such action as will get results and it proceeds to furnish the necessary funds to get somewhere. If there is a pest which should be stopped it considers the job should be seriously tackled.

It has been a long time since Connecticut considered the mosquito an undesirable. It is not a problem peculiar to this state, but one which must be solved in much the same way that other states doing or have done. It is a matter which is not likely to make much progress unless there is wholehearted support given to accomplish what is desired.

Looked upon not only as a nuisance, but as a real menace, the mosquito situation in Connecticut will be relieved when the opposition becomes so strong and as furious as the invasion. Merely serving notice on the mosquito that he is banned is not sufficient. There is need for going about it as seriously as New Jersey tackles the Japanese beetle, and perhaps a little more so, if desired results and an economic employment of the forces are to follow.

It is one thing to appreciate the need of abating certain conditions, and it is another to make the attacks upon them successful.

LA FOLLETTE'S POSITION.

As the result of the recent election there are those who believe that Senator M. La Follette should be read out of the party. This attitude is taken in spite of the manner in which he has been repudiated by the people, and on the ground that inasmuch as he has fought it and denounced he should no longer be left in a position to obtain favors from it. Emphasis is laid upon the fact that he is still a republican, elected as a republican and subject to prominent committee positions as a republican, and this is at a time when he has served notice that his course is determined and his insurgency is not a temporary thing.

Senator Borah offers the suggestion that La Follette should not be read out of the party, but brought back into it. He evidently takes the view that by his own action he has cut the traces and that the only concern should be now as to whether he should be allowed to remain out or to be brought back.

La Follette should have no misconception as to how he stands concerning the party. He stands in the position of having been spanked for calling bad names, possibly of having his mouth washed out, but he intends to continue such conduct. That being the case he cannot consider that he is a member of the republican party. He would not permit himself to be charged with belonging to or associating with such an organization. His very acts place him outside the party circle and he can neither expect nor desire any benefits therefrom. Certainly he couldn't accept any honors or offers of honors from the party he has turned against, and he has no reason for objecting to any action that may be taken that penalizes him or places him beyond the party lines. He has invited just such treatment, but however he gets it, if he does, it should not be along the lines of martyrdom. If he is a man he will not wait to be kicked out.

AMHERST'S NEW HEAD.

Some little time ago Amherst college made it evident that the time had not come when the trustees of the institution were no longer in control, and that the seat of learning was not going to be conducted in the future by the faculty, or a faculty member, any more than in the past.

The installation of Dean George D. Olds as president, as a successor to Dr. Meiklejohn, shows that the policy so long maintained is to be continued. Dr. Meiklejohn's effort to change it not only failed but it made no impression. Dr. Olds has long been identified with Amherst, though not a graduate of that college, so that he can be relied upon to maintain its policies.

That he intends to do so without undertaking to go over the heads of the trustees is to be gathered from his statement that the trustees "are, from the standpoint of law, Amherst college. They are the fountain head of all authority; they receive benefactions, care for all funds, make appointments, grant degrees. College trustees form the most powerful, the most responsible, the most abused class of all who are connected with our institutions of higher learning, and they have not the consolation of distinction or the makeweight of glory."

Such a declaration indicates Dr. Olds' position and makes clear that he has neither desire nor thought of making any radical changes at the institution in defiance of their authority, or of declaring them to be useless and making efforts to have them discarded. As Amherst starts in its new regime there is an assurance that due consideration will be given to Amherst tradition and the fundamental service it seeks to render.

CHRISTMAS MAILING.

Just about this season of the year the postoffice department is urging people to step lively if they desire to have their packages which are going to distant points reach their destination by Christmas day. That seems quite desirable for most people, and it is therefore well to heed the warning to "mail early" as well as "shop early."

There are points in Europe to which Christmas gifts can be sent as late as the 17th of December, but there are others which may not have to go as far, but to which the postal service is not as frequent, which must be sent at a much earlier date.

Invariably there is no need for waiting until the last minute, so when the postoffice department gives warning that mail for Australia, Dutch East Indies and Strait Settlements should have been mailed last week, that going to Persia should be in by November 19, to the Philippines and China the 23rd, it becomes evident that unless the packages are started for the more remote points they will fail to get there for the holiday.

Whether it is to the places which have less mail service or the ones which have more, there is slight excuse for delay. Better service is assured by preventing congestion and getting the benefit of the facilities when they are not jammed with rush work. Even in sending Christmas matter to domestic points the advisability of early mailing should get due recognition.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Having reached the halfway point in November, Thanksgiving is not far off.

Probably you've noticed that forest fires are not attributed to spontaneous combustion.

Apparently the weatherman doesn't think it is time to fill up the ponds, brooks and reservoirs.

The Gould estate is short over $34,000,000, it is claimed. That's the way a good many people feel.

Now that the dry spell has actually been broken, it may be easier to get a little more moisture.

Except for the aridity there is no complaint over the delightful weather that November is furnishing.

The man on the corner says: Isn't it possible for the weatherwise to arrange a date for a soaking rain?

These are the days when a hunter proves himself the best kind of a sportsman by staying out of the woods.

We are approaching that period of the year when more than the usual interest is displayed in the price of turkey.

Lloyd George is reported with a quarter inch larger head. That cannot be due to the election result, however.

The good impression made by the white way will be greatly increased just as soon as the wires are rearranged and the old poles removed.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Save all the round flat tin candy boxes for holding round doilies.

Be sure that your glove is as far removed from the ice box as possible.

Horseradish sauce is nice served with fried fish.

Green peppers are surprisingly delicious when creamed.

Paprika cheese balls are nice served with endive salad.

Slices of crisp cucumber are nice served with sliced veal loaf.

Fresh strawberry sauce is nice served with steamed custard.

Neither salt nor sugar is needed in home-made baking powder.

Meat and eggs should not be eaten more than once a day.

Wash and dry all fruits carefully before putting in the refrigerator.

Bread may be omitted from the menu when dumplings are served.

Foamy sauce is nice served with individual caramel bread puddings.

Brass door knockers and handles may be kept brighter by rubbing with paraffin after cleaning and finally polishing with a cloth.

To assist in removing the smell of new paint, cut up some onions in a pail of water and place in the room.

If a dish of oversalted add a little sugar and the damage will be repaired.

When you have to seed raisins soak them before beginning. If you have to cut warm bread or cake or a cake with a soft icing first heat the knife in boiling water, wipe dry and cut with it while still hot. Reheat in this way as soon as it has cooled.

If you place two strips of muslin under the fish when putting it in the baking pan you will be able to remove the fish from the baking pan without breaking it.

Wind a small piece of oiled silk tightly about the finger and vigorously rub your kid gloves each time after wearing them and they will always look clean.

VEAL DISHES

Veal is a delicious meat, but many feel it is difficult of digestion. But if thoroughly cooked there is no danger.

Cut in pieces for serving, roll each piece in well seasoned flour and cook in fat until brown, having about three tablespoons of fat in a frying pan.

If the fat is all cut from the meat, and fried out, it is as good as butter. Of course any other fat, as bacon, lard, drippings or butter, may be used.

After the pieces of meat are a good brown remove and, using the fat remaining in pan, add on equal amount of flour, and one or two cups of water, salt and pepper. When thickened add the pieces of veal.

TO CLEAN DRAIN PIPES

A pint of washing soda and a little chloride of lime added to a pail of boiling water is very good to clean out the drain pipes of the sink or toilet. Coffee grounds also act as cleansing agents.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Well-fitting shoes and stockings are of course, essential to any foot comfort.

White spots on the nails are generally also an indication of illness, but if the nails otherwise seem perfectly healthy they may indicate a natural shrinking from the unpleasant and a determination to avoid such things.

To steam the face the best way it to take an old soft Turkish towel, wring this out of very hot water, as hot as you can stand it, and hold this over the face. When it cools wring it out of the water again and hold it over the face. When it cools wring it over the face, and continue doing this until the skin is red and glowing. This may take anywhere from two to five or ten minutes, depending upon the condition of your skin.

A great favorite as a lotion for the hands has been skillfully blended of eau de Cologne that scent of our grandmothers, and several oils which are very cooling and soothing after work out of doors. It absorbs very quickly without the least suggestion of stickiness, without a trace except the smooth, fresh look and the ghost of a perfume.

RELINING THE FEET

For those who are suffering from being on their feet is relief. At bedtime soak your feet and give them a good scrubbing with hot water and soap. Next rub them with a handful of salt. Rinse thoroughly in tepid water. Dry the feet and apply an astringent lotion.

In the morning before putting on your stockings dust your feet with foot powder. Here is the recipe: Boric acid, two ounces; flowers of sulphur, one ounce; talcum powder, 2 ounces. If you wish, you may add ten drops of essence of violet or other floral perfume.

LACE TO BE WORN MUCH

Lace bids fair to have a return of its extraordinary vogue of a little while ago. Lace of all sorts, from stiff metallic to the thinnest cobweb, is used on dance frocks, lingerie, evening cloaks and afternoon costumes.

CORK PULLERS

When we are in a hurry in the kitchen the corks of the extract bottles often become obstinate and must be dug out with a fork. Buy some small screw-eyes and fasten one in each of the corks. They can be chained as the bottle is emptied and you will be pleased at the time and trouble saved by this novel cork puller.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Many draped hats are seen, one like a tulled bathing cap brought to front with large bow of fabric almost at top.

Many velvet hats have front cuffs of considerable depth.

Ostrich and feather fancies are seen the latter frequently of guinea feathers on matron's hats.

Coq is noted on several conservatively toned felts.

Plaids are dominant in sports coats.

Broad stripes in bayaders and vertical arrangements are worn.

A coat of navy blue is striped horizontally in tan, henna and brown.

Alternating vertical stripes of black and white herringbone weave solid black used in another topcoat.

The very low waistline or beltless mode registers most frequently, although the normal waistline is sponsored by some young girls.

Many beaded handbags are carried, both of the drawn-string type and long felt variety, on metal frame with floral decoration and scenic effects.

Knitted suits follow the two-piece tailored style, developed in warm shades of henna, or jam. Double-breasted closings in hunter's green trimmed with split colored bindings, appear in one smart model.

Black brocaded silk bags are favored.

Opera pumps, particularly in black patent leather, are preferred. Both suede and satin in the same style register, however, and are frequently trimmed with small ribbon bows.

Jacquard effects are significant in novelty hose and include striped arrangements and jacquard patterns in tan and white, and blue and tan. One pair of white hose striped vertically in black.

Scotch plaid lining which is both worn and stunning is seen in all types of winter coats. Eleven those of black silk and satin feature it.

Fur cuffs on the new winter coats sometimes begin above the elbow and give almost the effect of a fur sleeve. There is another type of sleeve that is absolutely un-furred and should be accompanied by one of the new muffs.

THE ENSEMBLE COSTUME

In fashion as in other things it often happens that necessity is the mother of invention, and the creation of the ensemble costume that was sufficiently smart for street wear and sufficiently smart and appropriate for affairs of rather formal character. The costume suit, as it was first called, has appeared in many interesting versions, none of which is more attractive than the models designed for the present season. With the coat of full or seven-eighths length and the one-piece or tunic frock, the ensemble suit meets every demand of the discriminating woman. It is smart, and it is practical, for the coat may be worn over other frocks, and thus serve a double purpose. Nothing could be in better taste than a suit which has a coat of dark blue wool lined with beige kasha and trimmed with beige caracul. This should be worn over a straight dress of beige kasha which has narrow bands of blue forming a conventional design.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

When darning a large hole place a piece of net inside and darn over this. The mend will last three times as long; in fact, the wool will often wear away leaving the net ready for another darn.

One good housewife ravels out some of the good linen threads from her worn out table linen and winds them on a large spool. Then when she has mending to do on her other tableclothes and napkins, she has thread that will mend and blend neatly.

When sewing, instead of being obliged to put the material on the table have a trouboard made of heavy cardboard or light wood.

Table linen should be hemmed by hand. Not only does it look better and more dainty, but there is never the streak under the edge after being laundered, as with machine sewing.

Use black knitting silk for darning stockings and you will be pleased with the work for the needle runs smoothly under and over the stitches with the result that the patch is very neat, much more so than when darning cotton is used.

A use for crochet patterns is to make crosses in the solid black spaces. It makes a very good patttern for cross stitch work. Crochet patterns also make good beat patterns by putting for the design on beat for every square.

WORN BLANKETS

Blankets usually begin to wear thin just at the edges, where they are constantly "tucked in." But it is a pity to decide that the blanket must now pass on to its next stage of "ironing blanket."

Cut away the worn parts, which will make iron and kettle-holders and houses flannels, and put on to the blanket a false hem of double calico. This will make edges wide and deep enough to tuck in while the woolen blanket itself remains to cover the bed.

SEWING TABLE FOR BEDROOM

Here is an illustration of what can be done with a cheesebox that any grocer will sell for a few cents, even if he does not offer to give it to you for nothing.

With very little trouble such a box can be turned into a useful little work table or work basket. To begin the work line the cover with a flowered chintz, cretonne, or bright calico. This cover is to be used as the top shelf or tray. Then line the box in the some way and use that as the bottom shelf, which is deeper, of course, and will hold mending and other materials. Three slim legs for supports can be made at home with not trouble, or purchased from a carpenter. Paint the completed sewing table white, gray, green or black, or any color to match the rest of the furniture.

A variation can be furnished by removing the bottom from the lower tray, and supplying in its place a chintz pouch that will hang down about six inches. This affords an excellent storing place for mending, and effective in appearance. The top shelf should be supplied with little pockets placed on the inside edge to hold buttons, hooks, pins, thread, needles and scissors. This will be found to be a very convenient article of furniture.

PARING TOMATOES

Before paring tomatoes in the usual manner much time can be saved by going over the whole fruit with a knife held at right angles with the skin and pressed just hard enough to darken it slightly under the knife. The separates the skin from the pulp and the tomato may then be pared as easily and quickly as a ripe peach. It will also leave the tomato perfectly whole.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Bobbed hair and small hats has thrown more than 6,000 women millinery workers in Saxony out of employment.

The Netherlands parliament has seven women members of which three are lawyers and one a nerve specialist.

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs has a membership of nearly 40,000 women.

The most striking increase shown for women in any industrial group is that for operatives in automobile factories, among whom there has been an increase of 1,408 per cent.

Miss Margaret M. Bennett, recently appointed special attorney attached to the office of the attorney general of the United States, is the first woman appointed to such a position.

At the age of 97 years and so badly crippled that she is bedridden, Mrs. Martha Clemens of Elderville, Pa., is able to earn a comfortable living from the sale of hand knit lace the demand for which is greater than she can supply.

CLEANER FOR BOOKS

Keep ammonia duster in the drawer of the library table to polish shelves, and a tin box of so-called magic cleaner for the books. It is not necessary to spank the books together or flap their covers. Lay the books under treatment on a paper to catch the little black rolls of soiled dough, and go over binding and lining to the cover as well as the edges of the leaves.

NEW FLOOR CUSHIONS

Floor cushions particularly adapted to a feminine sitting-room are made in the shape of a pansy. The material is a silk that shades from pale lilac to deep violet or delicate rose, to a coral color. Other colors are used in each case a three-toned effect.

RECIPES

Economical Salad: Any remains of cold meat can be finely chopped and mixed with shredded lettuce or watercress or parsely and molded in jelly or gelatine to form a delicious salad. Serve with mayonnaise or any fairly thick salad dressing.

Grape Fruit Salad: Remove the pulp from two grape fruit, separate membrane from pulp over a strainer, and leave pulp in large pieces. Sprinkle with two teaspoons sugar and let drain thoroughly. Dissolve package of lemon gelatine in half a pint boiling water. When cold, add grapefruit juice, to which enough water has been added to make half a pint.

Turn into shallow pan, let harden and cut in cubes. Serve in grapefruit shells or on lettuce with French or mayonnaise dressing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Child Labor Amendment.

Mr. Editor: "A Mother" writes to The Bulletin of November 3rd, asking what occult power the national child labor committee has for knowing that congress will not prohibit the labor of all persons under 18. "A Mother" is evidently not familiar with legal phraseology, or she would know that the amendment as written follows the traditions of the framers of the Constitution. Every power given to congress is granted in broad, general terms to allow for whatever changes may occur in the future. The place for precise details is in the statute which will follow the amendment, but not in the amendment itself.

We have no occult powers for knowing that congress will not prohibit the labor of all persons under 18; we have, however, the best of legal opinion, that of Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard Law school. Quoting from Dean Pound: "The argument is that a power of prohibition and regulation is conferred, and that there are no limits upon that prohibition or regulation. But the amendment is meant to fit into the Constitution as a whole, and the bill of rights provides that the federal government shall not deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law. Therefore any unreasonable means of regulation, and anything arbitrary or unreasonable in the carrying out of the prohibition would be subject to the limitation that applies to all congressional exercise of powers given by the Constitution. The supreme court of the United States has never manifested any inclination to give free reign to social legislation. On the contrary, it has always scrutinized it very jealously. I see no reason to suppose that it would allow legislation under this amendment to run wild. If it is said that we may presently get a radical court, my answer would be that when we get such a court, it won't need constitutional amendments to enable it to sanction congressional dealing with the subject of child labor. It will simply overrule the first child labor decision and let the matter go at that."

Very sincerely yours,
The National Child Labor Committee,
JEAN MACALPINE HEER,
Department of Public Information.
New York, Nov. 13, 1924.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, who has been named secretary for labor in the new British government, has long been regarded as one of the most brilliant of the younger politicians in Great Britain. He is a keen student of social and constitutional subjects, on which he has written widely. He was educated at Rugby and Oxford and was brilliantly successful in both places. After leaving Oxford, he entered upon a political career and acted for some time as unpaid private secretary to Mr. Ritchie and to Mr. Austen Chamberlain, when they were chancellors of the exchequer. In 1911 he was appointed chairman of the Unionist Party organization, two years after his first election to Parliament. Upon the the organization of the coalition government in the early part of the war he was chosen for the important post of undersecretary for the colonies.

Shedd, the Small-Town Clerk

Life on the farm was irksome to John G. Shedd, and all he wanted was a job that would give him a chance to earn money and to work into something better.

Having started when very young to help in his father's efforts about the little home near Alstead, N. H., where he was born, the boy was able to do a man's work at an early age. But he decided that he wanted to be a merchant, and after attending the country school and helping his father, he started in the business world at 16, when he obtained the coveted "job" as clerk in a grocery store at Bellows Falls at $1.50 a week and his board.

Happy in his new work and able to save, he grasped a chance as clerk in a general store at Alstead, where the pay was $136 a year. Then he found that he had to pay $104 of this for board and room. A fire in the store compelled him to look for another position, and he became a clerk in the rival store at an increase in salary of $1 a week.

At 20 he went to Rutland to clerk in a dry-goods store. The pay was $6 a week and board, and his work was so effective that he was offered double the wage by the rival establishment. Accepting, he became popular and successful, but he wanted a bigger job.

Resigning, he took his small savings and went to Chicago to seek work. When he told his story to Marshall Field, he was given work and, now 22, he started as stock boy and salesman for Field, Leiter & Company at $10 a week. Five months later he was earning $14 a week.

Made clerk in the women's neckwear section, he devised a record that would prevent the running short of sizes and was promoted. He became a buyer, then a merchandise man and at 26 he was manager of the lace and embroidery department. From that time his rise was steady and he was appointed general merchandise manager at 41. Ten years later, when Marshall Field & Company was incorporated, he was chosen vice-president, assuming much of the responsibility, and when Field died five years later, Shedd was elected president of the largest wholesale and retail dry-goods concern in the world. And today, at 74, he is chairman of the board.

Stories That Recall Others

He Had His Friends, Though.

The following conversation was overheard on the sidelines at a football game recently:

"I don't like the quarterback that is running the team now," said one great critic to one half a dozen young fellow authorities. "He doesn't know how to play football and he's so stuck up it's a pity they don't throw him off the club."

"Yea, he's poor stuff," was the chorus.

At this stage of the game the loathed quarterback began a series of "sneak" plays and tricks that carried the ball to the opponent's goal where his team scored.

"Well, I don't like him anyway," one of his critics commented, "and beside, that's what he's in there for."

And the poor quarterback left the field at the end of the victorious game probably believing himself a hero.

POETRY

FLIGHT OF THE SOUL.

"They shall mount up with wings eagles."—Is. 40: 31.

Restless soul, build not thy nest
Warm and soft for lingering here,
Earth grants no repose ful rest,
Upward mount, nor yield to fear—
Wings thou hast, and heaven's thi sphere.

Sheltered 'neath thy Father's eye
On this crag of earthly joy,
Brooded—angels hovering nigh—
Watched, lest evel foes destroy,
'Tis that soon grown strong, ye fly.

Bird of passage only, thou,
Homeward bound like carrier dove,
Plume thy wings, though nerveless now,
Soon they'll bear thee far above
To th' Eternal Land of Love.

Constant be in Faith and Joy,
Fix on Christ thy steadfast eye,
World deceits would thee destroy,
Set thy soul's affections high—
Wings thou hast, mount up and fly!

Borne on Faith's untiring wing
Earthly things far below,
Upward rising, soar and sing,
'Till yon pearly gates shall show
Reached—the Presence of thy King!
—Rev. George G. Phipps.

THE TORCH OF LIBERTY.

I saw it all in Fancy's glass—
Herself, the fair, the wild magician,
Who bade this splendid day-dream pass
And named each gilded apparition.
'Twas like a torch race, such as they
Of Greece performed in ages gone,
When the fleet youths, in long array,
Passed the bright torch triumphant on

I saw the expectant nations stand
To catch the coming flame in turn;
I saw, from ready hand to hand,
The clear, though struggling glory burn.
And oh, their joy as it came near,
'Twas in itself a joy to see;
While Fancy whispered in my ear:
"That torch they pass is liberty."

And each, as she received the flame
Lighted her altar with its ray;
Then, smiling, to the next who came,
Speeded it on its sparkling way.
From Albion first, whose ancient shrine
Was furnished with the flame already,
Columbia caught the boon dicine,
And lit a time, like Albion's, steady.

Shine, shine forever, glorious flame.
Divinest gift of gods to men!
From Greece thy earliest splendor came,
To Greece thy ray returns again.
Take, Freedom, take thy radiant round;
When dimmed, revive; when lost, return;
Till not a shrine through earth be found
On which thy glories shall not burn!
—Thomas Moore.

The religious services for the past four Sundays have been in charge of the Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, October 19, the Sacred Heart church of Taftville, October 26 and November 2nd, the United Congregational church, November 9.

There has been a change in the visitation committee of the Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, Rev. Charles W. Brennan, pastor, and it is now composed of Mrs. Benjamin Kennedy, Mrs. Joseph Boylan, Mrs. George Smith, and Mrs. P. O. Connell.

The holiday committee remembered every patient in the wards on Hallowe'en, with a treat of ice cream, each tray also being provided with a Hallowe'en napkin. Favors suitable for the day were given each little patient in the children's ward, in addition to the cream, to make a miniature party for the small shut-ins. It is increasingly gratifying to this committee, that they have not yet touched their budget, but are still supplying these extra delicacies out of the holiday fund collected at Christmas. In this way many good things are provided for the hospital family, which could otherwise, not be afforded. Plans are now on foot to celebrate Thanksgiving in some specially pleasant way.

Flowers are always gratefully received, and a vase of blossoms on the ward desks, or a pretty potted plant, does much to add to the cheer and pleasure of the sick folk.

Magazines are always solicited, and the illustrated pages of the Sunday papers furnish entertainment to many a patient who is not well enough to read a lengthy story. Pictures relieve the tedium of many a weary hour.

The spirit of Hallowe'en was abroad at the Nurses' Home on the evening of October 31st, when the Nurses Recreation Committee sponsored a very delightful costume party for the nurses and their friends, 34 in all. The home was attractively decorated with autumn leaves and festoons of black and yellow crepe paper, while the soft light of many Japanese lanterns added greatly to the effect. A Hallowe'en cloth and napkins on the table, with tall lighted yellow candles and favors, created the proper atmosphere and background, for the many pretty costumes. Dancing of old fashioned Virginia Reels, as well as the more modern steps was enjoyed, one of the nurses furnishing the piano accompaniment. The hospital auxiliary donated the ice-cream, cake was furnished by the mothers of the nurses, and delicious cider and apples given by Everett Barnes of Preston, completed the timely menu.

The party was a very happy affair, emphasizing to the nurses the fact that their many friends outside the hospital, are interested in their good times, and anxious to help in all ways possible.

Miss Kathleen Dowd, superintendent of nurses, has returned to her duties after a two-weeks' vacation.

The list of donors who have contributed various other gifts to the hospital during the last four weeks, is, as follows: The Lion's Club, Mrs. E. Shanley, Mrs. W. F. Lester, Mrs. F. B. Rickettson, Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, Church & Allen, Mrs. Guilbeault, Mrs. G. Everett Hall, Mrs. Z. R. Robbins, Park church, Mrs. H. L. Yerrington, Mrs. D. L. Underwood, Camp Fire Girls, United Congregational church, Mrs. Annie Carpenter, Mrs. C. L. Johnson, Mrs. Carl W. Brown, Women's Auxiliary, Miss Jane Aiken, Mrs. Joseph Selden, Holiday Committee, Mrs. Arthur Brown, Mrs. Richard R. Graham, Mrs. A. Silverburg, Mrs. F. W. Cary, secretary, has, up to date, written and sent out 175 acknowledgments for gifts received. It is desired that all making donations, should leave their names, that they may be properly thanked by a word of appreciation from the secretary of the auxiliary.

The hospital superintendent would be glad at this time, and from now on, to receive applications for the February classes in the training school, and it is hoped that many young women will feel like training in this most valuable and beneficient of professions open to them.

From the annual report of Frederick W. Lester, secretary of the executive committee, which was read at the meeting of the Corporation, held the first week in November, the following interesting paragraphs are quoted:

"As soon as our campaign for additional hospital funds was closed, the Executive Committee took up the problem of increased accommodations for nurses and patients, a problem which had been forcing itself upon their attention for several years. Dr. S. S. Goldwater, director of Mt. Sinai hospital, New York, a recognized authority in such matters, was engaged as consulting architect, and made a careful study of our entire hospital plant. Messrs. Cudworth & Thompson were employed as local architects. As a result of many conferences with our architects, members of the hospital corporation, our medical and hospital staffs, Ladies' auxiliary board and graduate and pupil nurses, plans and specification for a new nurses' home were prepared and submitted to contractors for bids. The general contract was awarded to the Peck-McWilliams Co., of this city, as the lowest bidders. Sub-contracts were made with the Norwich Electric Company and with Williams Brothers of Norwich. We acknowledge the generous cooperation of the Southern N. E. Telephone Co., and the City Gas & Electrical Department, in New York necessitated by our new construction.

"Our new nurses' home is now well advanced in its construction and is expected to be ready for occupancy about February first, next. In architecture and material it is designed to harmonize with the other hospital buildings. When completed, it will accomodate about fifty nurses. On the basement floor, there is located a large class room, demonstration room, dining rooms and diet kitchen, sewing room and laundry, with store rooms and rooms for linen and trunks.

"Upon the main entrance floor there will be a large and most attractive living and reception room, and, at the right of the entrance, the matron's office and suit. The room for the superintendent of nurses will be located on the floor above, over the main entrance. Suitable provision will be made for special and graduate nurses. Sun porches are constructed on each floor, the one on the first floor being connected with the reception room. A subway will connect the home with the reception room. A subway will connect the home with other hospital buildings.

"The general appearance and location of the new Home has elicited much favorable and enthusiastic comment. We believe that upon its completion our hospital will have one of the most beautiful and practical hospital homes for nurses to be found in Connecticut.

"As soon as this building is finished, the executive committee contemplate some substantial changes and improvements in other hospital buildings. The most urgent needs appear to be in connection with our laboratory and maternity department. Additional private rooms for patients are also greatly needed. Our available funds will not enable us to do as much as we would like to do. In this connection, it must be remembered that the work done in our hospital has nearly doubled in the last ten years. Its original endowment, sufficient when the hospital was founded, has not been increased in proportion to the demand for its service. We desire to emphasize the fact that our hospital, like other general hospitals of its class, is a charitable organization and must depend largely upon an increase of endowment by gift and legacy for its maintenance. The quality and extent of the service which the Backus hospital will render to this community, in the years to come, will be determined by the community itself which it undertakes to serve."

C. F. NOYES DECLARES BUSINESS CONDITIONS GOOD

In an article from the pen of Charles F. Noyes in the New York papers, Sunday, he says in part as follows:

The real estate market is in a better condition today and activity is greater than at any time since Armistice Day. Furthermore, the market is gaining in momentum weekly. Two factors have brought about this condition during the last few weeks. One was the election of President Coolidge. Many deals were held in obeyance pending the result of the election, and within the next thirty days I predict several unusually large sales will be closed which will stimulate the market even more than the several heavy transactions recently consummated.

I was one of the very few who in the beginning approved of throwing open the income tax returns to the public. I am now happy to see that those who originally cried out so loud against the procedure are remaining quiet and many are now openly applauding the law that made this possible and acclaiming the wisdom of the Federal Income Tax Bureau in ordering the list completely thrown open to an interested public.

There never was a time in civic affairs or when fair dealing between men or general business economics and business morals demanded more drastic action and discussion on the part of business people and the "calling of a spade a spade," than now, and the topic on every honest business man's lips should be tax reform, with the end in view of bringing about a change in the present iniquitous system of taxation. I believe that such a discussion will take place, and I believe there will be just such a popular protest against the unfair system of taxation as there was in 1870, when the income tax law of 1861, calling for an income tax similar to a certain extent to the present tax, was swept off the books entirely. When this is done wealthy individuals, investors and estates will again buy New York City property as heretofore, and that vast sum of money that has been going into tax-exempt securities will again find its way into realty, and the large funds now tied up in "tax-exempts" will be thrown into realty enterprises, new construction, etc.

This matter of honest taxation is a paramount question and vitally effects the realty market and the public in general.

The New York Herald and Tribune used the following on Mr. Noyes on its financial and real estate page:

When rich men are enumerated do not forget to mention Charles F. Noyes. He is richer than J. P. Morgan if we measure wealth by the tax each paid last year to Uncle Sam. "Charlie," as his friends call him, turned over $176,320 to the old man, who reigns at Washington, as his share of what he made last year, particularly in the real estate business. Mr. Morgan is credited with paying $94,000 in taxes. Figured by the day Mr. Noyes' tax is about $482 a day. All this has come to the broker in the last twenty years. He has admitted time and again that the firm of Noyes and Lovejoy had many a lean day. But Noyes is always on his toes, thinking every minute and tireless as a worker. He is one of the most capable men in real estate, according to a competitor, who says that the wealth he has stacked up is entirely the result of his own efforts.

CHARGED WITH SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUOR

Charged with selling two bottles of liquor while in the bowling alleys in the Thayer building Saturday night Matthew Guastamachia was arrested by Sergeant Thomas Murphy and Officer P. Murphy. The liquor and marked money are in the hands of the police as evidence.

A man who is unknown to the police of Worcester, Mass., was taken to police headquarters at the request of John Plenzick, a small store merchant, who pointed him out to a police officer as one of a trio of alleged fake jewelry vendors who Plenzick told the police had induced him to give them $300.

OCTOBER BUSY MONTH FOR HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

The last month has been one of marked activity among the Backus hospital auxiliary and its friends. The finance committee reporting for the bridge and mah jongg party held at the armory on November 7, states that, all bills being paid, the sum of $212.40 was realized, and that there are still several contributions in the way of money, to be received. The party, which was a decided success, more than repaid the committee for their work; 56 tables were in play, and various friends gave thirty-five very attractive prizes, which were displayed on a long table at the end of the big shed, giving everyone a chance to admire them. There was a splendid spirit of cooperation and sociability evident, throughout the whole afternoon.

The auxiliary have made a very valuable addition to the equipment of the hospital, by a recent gift of four aluminum carriers, containing each fourteen test tube thermometers; these are in use in all large hospitals, and when a ward is full, with many temperatures to be taken, are instrumental in saving much time for the nurse. Seven of the tubes are filled with boric acid, and seven with a bi-chloride solution, colored, so that no mistake can possibly be made as to their respective uses. A container at each end, holds fresh and waste cotton, and another compartment accommodates a large bottle of 95 per cent. pure alcohol. Aside from their value as time-savers, the holders are prettily designed, and make a bright bit of color on the ward desks.

The preceding weeks have broken all records in the matter of donations, and the committee reports a rushing business in cold cream jars, old linen and cotton, pickles, apples, grape juice and honey. Jelly and canned fruit are coming in in great quantities, and up to date, 722 jars have been received. There have also been generous gifts of money, for the purchase of jellies, from people who do not make such things themselves. The committee is always pleased to receive the names of new contributors, and will gladly collect any donations.

The following have contributed during the past week: The Ladies' Aid of the Universalist church, Mrs. F. S. Camp, Mrs. William Lund, Mrs. Herbert Peckham, Ladies of St. Patrick's church, Mrs. Charles Taggart, Mrs. Edwin V. CHAPMAN TECH PROVES TOO STRONG FOR ACADEMY AND WINS, 14 TO 6

Despite the hard fight that a determined Academy eleven staged to win, they went down to defeat at the hands of the Chapman Tech grid warriors, at the campus to the tune of 14-6. One of the largest crowds of the season witnessed this hard fought contest.

The Academy team put its best into the game to defeat Tech, but its best was not good enough. The locals threatened to score throughout the battle but as it has been in almost every contest played this season, they failed to put over the final punch. Tech, on the other hand, took advantage of every opportunity, going over the goal line twice and winning a victory.

Tech started the game with a spurt down the field that ended with a score. The Academy threatened in this period but failed at the right moment to go over. In the second period both teams were unable to score. The Academy completed some forward passes, but all it could do was to threaten again. In the third quarter Courbois of Tech made a 45 yard run and would have run the length of the field, had it not been for the fine running and tackling displayed by a substitute, Mousley. In the last quarter Kennenberg's brilliant work on the offensive gave Tech another touchdown. In the last half minute the Academy made a desperate attempt to score and succeeded. A long forward Williams to Hollander, went over for the only score for the Academy.

For the visitors Brown and Kennenberg were the main lights. For the Academy Gilman on the line, still hampered by his lame leg shone. Hollander at end featured, making the longest run o the game. Hinrichs was the main backfield man as usual.

It may be added that the locals were greatly handicapped by the loss of two of its first string players, Scott at tackle, and Carlin, at end, both of these men had sustained minor injuries through the week.

Game By Quarters.

First Quarter—Hinrichs of the Academy kicked off to Tech. It was Tech's ball on her 30 yard line. Tech started a long march up the field for the first touchdown of the game. The visitors made five successive first downs. Kennenberg took the ball over for the score and Brown succeeded in the kick for point. Tech kicked off to the Academy. Hinrichs received the ball on the 10 yard line and ran it back 25 yards. MacGowan makes 10 yards, first down. The Academy made four successive first downs. The Tech line held at this point and on his fourth down Hinrichs of the Academy tried a placement kick which failed. It was Tech's ball on the 20 yard line. The quarter ended with the ball in Tech's possession on her 24 yard line.

Second Quarter — Tech breaks through the Academy line for two successive first downs. On the next play one of Tech's backs fumbled the ball and the Academy recovers it on the 45 yard line. After four attempts to gain, Hinrichs kicked the ball to Tech. It was Tech's ball on the 25 yard line. Tech made two successive first downs. Here the Academy lin held and Tech surrendered the ball on the 49 yard line. A forward pass, Williams to Higgins brought the ball to Tech's 32 yard line. Another forward pass, Williams to Hinrichs netted 12 yards and first down. Here Tech's line held and on the fourth down Hinrichs of the Academy, tried a placement kick but failed to score. It was Tech's ball on her 20 yard line. Brown of Tech immediately kicked the ball back to the Academy and out of his territory. The half ended at this point.

Third Quarter—Courbois of Tech is sent in for Everetts. Chapman Tech kicked off to the Academy, Higgins receiving the ball on the 17 yard line ran it 8 yards back. It was the Academy's ball on her 25 yard line. After four tries to gain, Hinrichs kicked to Tech. It was Tech's ball in the midfield. Tech failed to gain and after four tries surrendered the ball to the Academy on the 41 yard line. After four tries failed to gain Hinrichs kicked to Tech. Courbois caught the ball on his 10 yard line and ran it back 45 yards. The Academy held the visitors for four downs and received the ball on the 42 yard line. Academy made first down. Tech's line holds and Hinrichs kicked on his fourth down to Tech. Ball goes behind goal post and it is brought to play on the 20 yard line. Tech failed to gain and kicked on its fourth down to the Academy. It was the Academy's ball on the 42 yard line. Academy made a first down. Quarter ended with ball in the Academy's possession.

Fourth Quarter—Tech's line held at this point and regains the ball on her 25 yard line. Tech makes two successive first downs. Tech failing to gain kicked on her fourth down to the Academy. It was the Academy's ball on her 29 yard line. Stefano of the Academy was injured and had to be carried off the field. A forward pass, Hinrichs to Higgins, netted 9 yards. However Tech held and Hinrichs was obliged to kick to Tech on his fourth down. It was Tech's ball on her 38 yard line. Tech made a first down. Tech was penalized 15 yards for slugging. Tech was compelled to kick on her fourth down. The kick was blocked, an Academy player fell on the ball on the 10 yard line. After four attempts to gain that failed, Hinrichs kicked to Tech. It was Tech's ball in the midfield. Kennenberg ran 36 yards netting first down. Brown made 10 yards and first down. Kennengberg went over for a second touchdown for Tech. Brown kicked tne ball between the posts for the extra point. M. Brown of Tech in for Williams and Miller in for Kennenberg; White in for Cruise. Tech kicked off to Norwich. Hinrichs received on his 10 yard line and ran the ball back 20 yards. A long forward pass, Williams to Hollander was completed and Hollander went over for a touchdown. HARTFORD THISTLES BEAT NEW LONDON RANGERS

New London, Nov. 16.—The strong Hartford Thistles came near receiving a setback at the hands of the New London Ranger soccer team in a Connecticut league soccer match here this afternoon. Although there is much doubt that the second goal scored by the Thistles was good, the players from the Capitol City carried off the honors by a 2 goals to 1 score.

Both the goals hung up by the Thistles were made by A. Chipps and while his first goal was a fine shot between the uprights, there is considerable doubt about the second goal being good. The ball seemed to flash through the goal posts, but as it was traveling fast some people standing close by the uprights were inclined to believe that the goal was null and void. But Referee Murray of New Haven, who was chosen by the league to officiate, saw it the other way and claimed that the goal was legitimate. Both goals were scored by A. Chipps after he had received a pass from Adams.

Fighting hard to overcome the two-goal lead hung up by the Hartford players, the New London Rangers began an offense that netted a score early in the second half. Crawford, receiving a pass from Cruickshank, ran through the Thistle line and outguessed the goalkeeper, scoring the lone Whaler's goal. Several times later the Rangers threatened to score, but each time they were stopped by good work of the Thistle goalkeeper.

The New London Rangers have a better balanced eleven now than ever before, and with the addition of the Wycock brothers from Torrington will make their bod for honors in the league.

LOCAL BOYS PLAY BRILLIANT FOOTBALL AGAINST TRINITY

Courtland "Slick" Whitney and George "Gus" Mullen, two local boys who are now playing with Middlebury, gave Trinity plenty to wonder about in the game at Hartford Saturday when Middlebury won 74 to 7. Whitney's playing was spectacular and his twenty-yard run through the Trinity team for the first touchdown featured the game. Whitney did practically all the punting and his work in advancing the ball was one of the outstanding features of the Middlebury victory.

GEORGE "GUS" MULLEN

Mullen, whose play on the line was not so spectacular as Whitney's played a hard and consistent game and no yardage was made through his position during the game. Gus is already rated as the outstanding tackle of the smaller New England teams.

WINHAM BEATS MANCHESTER IN GAME MARRED BY FUMBLES

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Nov. 16.—Manchester High was added to the list of Windham High school's championship team conquest Saturday afternoon at Recreation park by a score of 14 to 0. Although a comparatively poor display of its proven ability, the game displayed Windham's superiority especially at the only critical moment of the tilt when Manchester invaded Windham's eight-yard line and threatened to go over for a touchdown. Endman Storrs carried Windham's first scoring points with an end run. A forward pass put the game on ice for Windham in the third quarter. T. Meikle kicked the goal. There was plenty of fumbling throughout the engagement and Manchester is credited with making a few rapid recoveries.

DRAKE MAY WIN MISSOURI VALLEY TITLE

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 16—(By the A. P.)—One more step—victory over Iowa State next Saturday—stands between Drake University and an undisputed claim to the Missouri Valley Conference football championship.

The Des Moines eleven, by a 7 to 6 win over the Kansas Aggies Saturday, remains the only undefeated team in the valley.

Aggie followers hold that Drake won a "technical" victory since a disputed play gave the Bull Dogs their only touchdown.

Drake punted from the Bulldog thirty yard line and Anderson, Aggie safety man, was waiting to receive the ball. It took a freakish hop, to Anderson's right.

Lingenfelter, racing to tackle Anderson, scooped up the oval and dashed twenty five yards for the touchdown.

The umpire ruled Anderson touched the ball, before Lingenfelter recovered. Anderson tackled the Drake player, although after the game he declared he did not touch the ball.

BULKELEY BATTLES TO 7 TO 7 TIE WITH STRONG TORRINGTON HIGH ELEVEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Torrington, Nov. 16.—A melodramatic finish of a contest which was advertised as a game in which the high school championship of the state was to be the prize to the winning team ended in a 7 to 7 tie score here this afternoon with the undefeated Torrington High school eleven and the Bulkeley High school team of New London the principals in one of the most stubbornly fought football contests ever recorded in high school annals. It was a contest which had nearly 4,000 people doing all sorts of stunts but standing on their heads. A game replete with thrills, and trying moments which made the local populace leave the field a thoroughly convinced human throng that Bulkeley, the visiting team, had clearly and cleanly outplayed the home team. It was a contest where producing plays had to be used and where thrilling situations were a common occurrence, and last and foremost of all the brilliant individual end play of the Bulkeley right wing man, Tillie Daniels.

With the Bulkeley team fighting against time and behind a touchdown and a point after the touchdown, and with but two minutes remaining of playing time, all seemed lost for the visitors. But the great overhead game developed to be a consistent groundgainer as well as the effective running attack Bulkeley unleashed on the ideal November day. It was a race with the high school honors at stake and a howling mob which witnessed a fighting Bulkeley eleven aroused from its lethargy by a poor decision on a play which ultimately gave Torrington its lone score.

Three times Bulkeley marched down the field amid the song by that name and three times the maturing dynamic drive upon the fortified goal line was driven back. But Bulkeley was not to be denied the right of a score. It was not all her fault that the previous attampts had failed—failed dismally because one individual on the line did not do his share, perhaps, or it may be accorded to another reason, and that, that the locals were there fighting hard in a pinch. It became a monotonous procession upon the Torrington goal line, and the incentive to finally put it over was furnished when Watterson, right tackle on Bulkeley, was unjustly evicted from the game. Bulkeley saw red after this and pending a short deliberation upon the eviction of Watterson, Bulkeley was finally penalized half the distance of the field, and also lost the services of its star tackle, who was playing a whale of a game all afternoon.

The Bulkeley drive for the fourth time was spirited. There was something to avenge, and avenge the team did what was later apologized as a mistake. Beginnig its running attack from [illegible] own 40 yard line, and finally a forward pass, Rice to Daniels, netted 25 yards and brought the ball to the 11 yard line. Here only three yards netted the efforts of the Bulkeley backs to punch the forward line of Torrington. The fourth and final play of the winning drive found Rice heaving the ball accurately to Daniels, who had crossed the line, and amid four Torrington players received the pass wich gave Bulkeley a touchdown. All the boisterousness that had accompanied the previous plays was abandoned by the crowd, and a pin if dropped from a height of two feet would have resounded in echo throughout the amphi-like theatre which housed the football mad populace. The reason for all this quietness was to watch and see if the point after touchdown would be successful. The touchdown scored previous to this would have meant nothing, for Bulkeley was beat if the point after touchdown was missed by the brilliant Rice. Bulkeley lined up for the play which would either make or break it, but Rice, as cool as a cucumber, kicked the ball as true as an arrow between the uprights and the sighs of relief which emanated from Bulkeley supporters could be heard echoing far into the distant hills. For Bulkeley had tied a really great Torrington machine, and had outplayed the Red and White for a greater part of the afternoon.

FIVE TEAMS IN RACE FOR EAST FOOTBALL TITLE

New York, Nov. 16.—(By the A. P.) With the end of the 1924 eastern football season only two weeks off, the contest for premier sectional honors remains an "open race," where a year ago the battle had narrowed down to two outstanding elevens, Yale and Cornell, the stretch this year finds no less than five teams putting forward title claims.

Saturday's results, adding further to the blaze of upsets that has marked the season's path so far, produced outstanding features in the decisive victory of Yale over Princeton, blasting the Tigers' hopes of a "big three" championship while strengthening the blue's chances, and the scoreless tie struggles between PennU and Penn state which toppled the Quakers from their hefty perch as the only eleven neither beaten nor tied.

Pennsylvania's record of eight victories, one tie and no defeats still keeps her to the forefront in the title scramble but the Red and Blue now must share the heights with Dartmouth and Rutgers, each of which also has only one tie to mar its record. The big green outfit, held to even terms only by Yale, closed its season with a smashing 27-14 triumph over Cornell at the Polo Grounds and with other victories Harvard and Brown to its credit must be considered when final honors are distributed.

Rutgers, tied only by Lehigh, added another impressive victory to her list [illegible] New York University, while Yale and Lehigh complete the list of prominent unbeaten aggregations, of the two the Elis have the stronger claims, with ties against Dartmouth and the Army as the only breaks in a victorious record, while the Bethlehem Collegians have been held to even terms by Rutgers, Princeton and Holy Cross and managed to beat Villa Nova yesterday by only one touchdown.

Yale's smashing triumph over Princeton dispelled with stunning suddeness the myth of invincibility that had surrounded the Tigers since their overwhelming victory over Harvard the week before. The Blue forces far more potent on offense, and showing a decidedly more alert and capable defense, gave an impressive exhibition and will be strong favorites next Saturday to win the "Big Three" title for the second straight year by defeating Harvard, which was blanked yesterday by Brown for the Crimson's third defeat of the season. Unless Harvard can accomplish within a week's time some transformation of the sort that suddenly lifted Princeton to super-heights for a day, here seems scant hope for the Crimson to check the bulldog.

Against Yale, Princeton was a strange contrast to the team that swamped Harvard. Instead of the clock-like Princeton and all-around effectiveness of their play of the previous Saturday, the Tigers were sluggish and played loosely and badly.

Their performance was more on a par with that they had shown against other opponents than Harvard and established to the minds of a majority of critics that their sudden spurt against the Crimson, in the final analysis, was simply a flash of momentary greatness—something not uncommon in athletics—in which an ordinarily mediocre combination, aided by superb condition, aroused itself to amazing brilliancy against the opposition which became remoralised by unexpected opposition.

Among other outstanding events Saturday Williams captured the "Little Three" title for the fourth successive year by trouncing Amherst, while Columbia caused a surprise and earned at least a "moral victory" by holding the strong Army eleven to a 14-14 tie at West Point. West Virginia encountered an unepected Tartar in in Washington & Lee, winning by a touchdown only in the last few minutes while Washington & Jeffedson downed Pittsburgh in another battle of traditional foes. Bucknell surprised by conquering the navy 6-0, although the Middies, losing many regulars through scholastic deficiencies, have been weakened by a struggle to reorganize.

East and Middle West dividend honors in two intersectional engagements, Bo McMillan's Center college eleven upstring the strong Boston College team 10 to 9, while the Quantico Marines trounced Detroit University on the latter's gridiron.

SUB BASE BATTLES TO TIE WITH PROV. COLLEGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Providence, Nov. 16.—Providence college and the Submarine Base elevens had to end their football feud at a 7 to 7 tie score at Kinsley park Saturday afternoon in a contest that marked the third annual meeting between the college and the Jack Tars. The contest in itself was worth seeing, and two fortunate pieces of football which may be called breaks of the game entered themselves rather conspicuously into the contest, whether the rival teams liked it or not.

These two breaks paved the way for the two scores, one hung up by the Submarine Base and the other scored by the local college eleven. But while these two scoring possibilities were actually converted into scores, it can be said that two individuals were in some way responsible for the two scores. After the giant Robbins of the sailors had loomed up as big as a house in front of Bride, who was about to kick out of danger on the 10 yard line, the sailor blocked the kick successfully and as the ball rolled over the Providence college goal line, Robbins fell on the oval for the Base's only score of the afternoon. The try for a point was unsuccessful, but one of the college players was seen to be off side and the point was awarded to the visiting tars.

Providence college scored its touchdown in the third period, and it came as the result of an intercepted pass which was thrown by Kelley, the Base quarterback. Bride, who intercepted the heave, ran a good 60 yards for the score. The point after touchdown was successfully executed by means of a drop kick.

GRANGE WILL NOT PLAY AGAIN THIS SEASON

Chicago, Nov. 16 (By the A. P.)—Harold "Red" Grange, rated as America's outstanding football star for the 1924 season, will not play in another game this season. This was established tonight from the University of Illinois after the extent of Grange's injuries received in the Minnesota upset yesterday had been determined.

Coach Robert Zuppke announced there was no chance for the 1923 All-American halfback to play next Saturday on Illinois' final game of the season against Ohio State at Champaign.

Grange suffered torn ligaments in his left arm and shoulder when viciously tackled and X-ray pictures of the injury revealed that a small bone in the shoulder also had been wrenched loose. Physicians said that at least eight weeks would be required for the damage to heal. Grange is suffering acute pain, but otherwise is resting comfortably with his injured shoulder wrapped in tape.

Vandals Challenge.

A fast quintet is being organized to play games in New England and issue a challenge to the Baltic Bantams, the Army and Navy Seconds, also Vocational, Chapman Tech and Bulkeley for games. The Vandals will line up as follows: Tombori and Long, Joe Connors, centers; Red Donnegan, Bobbie Scott and Allie Seigal, forwards; Clarence Graves and Chick Spivery, guards. They would like to hear from teams as soon as possible, as their schedule is being made out. This is one of the fastest quinetes in the city and are out to show the fans of Norwich a great exhibition of basketball. They would also like to hear from Battery B for the city championship. Write or phone 1697-11. Chick Spivery, 65 Myers Ave., Norwich.

BENKHART LEADS IN EASTERN FOOTBALL SCORING

New York, Nov. 16—(By the A. P.)—Although he failed to add to his scoring total in the game against New York University yesterday, Benkart of Rutgers is still the leader in the chase for individual scoring honors on the eastern intercollegiate gridiron with a total of 94 points. Eddie Tryon of Colgate increased his total and crawled up to within five points of the Rutgers star with an 89 total.

Another noticeable gain was made by John McBride, Syracuse fullback and kicking star of the Orange eleven. McBride is far in the lead in the race for goal honors with eight for the season and his scoring total to date is 74, four points behind Wentworth of New Hampshire state.

MINNESOTA'S VICTORY BIG FEATURES OF WESTERN GAMES

Chicago, Nov. 16—(By the A. P.)—The vengeance of the four horsemen of Notre Dame over Nebraska, and the unexpected rise of the northern lights of Minnesota over Illinois were the great events of yesterday's midwestern football.

Minnesota's power was not a surprise to its inside followers. In Schutte, Lidberg and Graham, Minnesota has all season three of the greatest backs in the west, but Schutte and Graham were out with injuries when everal big games were played.

Iowa defeated Minnesota on a day field for apparently sure touchdowns when the latter marched down the only to lose the ball on fumbles, and that day Iowa recovered every Minnesota fumble. Michigan defeated Minnesota in another day of hard breaks, when Minnesota ripped its opponents for long marches, just as did Illinois, but it failed to score.

The Notre Dame eleven, riding rough shod over Nebraska, feels that it has at least shaken off the jinks Nebraska held over Coach Rookne's warriors, who had been trounced twice in successive years by the corn huskers, ruining Notre Dame's championship hopes in 1922 and 1923.

The Notre Dame machine, besides charging in its customary style, played as sensational a forward passing game as ever seen in the west. Intricate forward passes completely stumped the corn huskers, who apparently had attempted to perfect a defense to stop the charges of the "four horsemen", Crowdley, Miller, Layden and Stuhldreher.

The final games next Saturday can give the championship to any one of four, Chicago, Michigan, Illinois or Iowa.

Chicago, with three wins and two ties, has the best chance, having only to win from Wisconsin to make undisputed title. Michigan, Illinois and Iowa, have lost one each, while Illinois and Iowa have records further marred by one tie. Their championship prospects depend not only on [illegible] their own games, but on [illegible] sets of their rivals, Michigan plays Iowa, while Illinois meets Ohio.

Iowa showed another big eleven coming with a rush as the season closes. Its 21 to 7 victory over Wisconsin gives promise of a great game against Michigan Saturday. Wisconsin's partly green team continued its fighting flashes of brilliance and threatened Chicago with a line smashing contest of the maroon's own caliber, mixed with passing and field goal kicking.

Ohio continued its mysterious strenght, this eleven, apparently weak against weak opponents, rises to unexpected strength in all big games.

Indiana practiced against Wabash in a non-conference contest and will meet Purdue next Saturday to determine the conference supremacy of that state. Purdue was idle.

GEORGIA STANDS GOOD SHOW OF WINNING SOUTHERN TITLE

Atlanta, Nov. 16—(By the A. P.)—Using the far from prostrate form of the Auburn Tiger as a stepping stone, a Georgia Bulldog yesterday, 6 to 0, tripped into first place, in the southern conference.

Alabama's brilliant crimson, after showing no signs of fading in a season in which all things are expected to come out in the wash, shows signs of blue in spots today, having lost to Centre, 17 to 0. The Kentucklans are not members of the southern conference.

Washington and Lee, a third undefeated eleven, was also playing outside, going down in defeat to West Virginia University, 6 to 0.

Georgia and Alabama play in Birmingham Thanksgiving in a game which will give the Bulldogs the mythical title if they win. Washington and Lee has two more conference games to play.

West Ends Defeat Valiants.

Sunday afternoon at the fairgrounds before a crowd of 150 the fast West End football team defeated the Valiants football team by a score of 12 to 0 in a very hard fought game. The game was very interesting from start to finish. The both teams were evenly matched. After the game a short meeting was held and decided to close the season because several of the players being hurt. The West Ends now claim the 180 pound championship of Norwich.

The following teams were played by the West Ends and scores of each game:

West Ends 24, Young Judeans 6.
West Ends 12, Spivery's All-Stars 6.
West Ends 6, Falls Rovers 6.
West Ends 18, Falls Rovers 0.
West Ends 6, Falls Rovers 0.
West Ends '12, Valiants 0.

For the losing side Vitagliano, Connell, Shea and Aubrey starred. For the winners, Hollander, Blinderman, Schwartz and Williams. Schwartz was the shining light in tackling and accounted for much of the other side's losses.

Elizabeth St. Tigers Will Play.

The Elizabeth St. Tiger basketball quintet will play the Broadway at the Y gym Wednesday. The Tigers are out for the public school championship. They are considered the city public school champions in football and are after more honors in the athletic field. Much credit is due to the good coaching of Chick Spivery of Norwich, a former Tuskegee star athlete and one of Connecticut's best all round athletes. The Tigers are being groomed for a hard game and Chick is putting his proteges through a strenuous workout.

Marseilles, France, Nov. 16.—Baron Pierre De Coubertin today announced his intention to resign the presidency of the international Olympic committee after the Prague convention. Henceforth he will devote his time to the propagation of education in universal history with lessons taught by war.

Sweetser-Cummings Team Wins

Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—Jess Sweetser, former national amateur champion, and Dexter Cummings, intercollegiate title holder, today defeated Max Marston, also a former national amateur champion and D. Clarke Corkran, in an exhibition golf match at the Huntingdon Valley Country club 1 up in 19 holes.

The Endorsement of Use—

It's what coaches and players have proved by actual use that counts most in basketball footwear. When so many championships are decided by a single game, sometimes by a single basket, teams that want to win can't afford to experiment with such a vital piece of equipment.

They want the shoe they know is right, one that has stood the test of wear by the best players in the game, the one that the "big fellows" come back to year after year.

You'll find that the country's best teams use Converse Basketball footwear almost exclusively. You're taking the surest route to complete satisfaction when you follow their lead.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Evening in Paradise

Now came still evening on, and twilight gray
Had in her livery all things clad:
Silence accompanied; for beast and bird,
They to their grassy couch, these to their nests,
Were slunk, all but the wakeful nightingale;
She all night long her amorous descant sung.
Silence was pleased: now glowed the firmament
With living sapphires: Hesperus, that led
The starry host, rode brightest, till the moon,
Rising in clouded majesty, at length
Apparent queen, unveiled her peerless light,
And o'er the dark her silver mantle threw.

—John Milton.

The Passage

Many a year in its grave
Since I crossed this restless wave:
And the evening, bright as ever,
Shines on ruin, rock and river.

Then in this same boat beside
Sat two comrades, old and tried;
One with all a father's truth,
One with all the fire of youth.

One on earth in silence wrought,
And his grave in silence sought;
But the younger, brighter form
Passed in battle and in storm.

So, whene'er I turn my eye
Back upon the days gone by,
Saddening thoughts of friends come o'er me—
Friends who closed their course before me.

But what binds us, friend to friend,
But that soul with soul can blend?
Soul-like were those days of yore—
Let us walk in soul once more.

Take, O boatman, thrice thy fee:
Take, I give it willingly:
Pay, invisible to thee,
Spirits twain have crossed with me.

—Johann Uhland.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Those who are familiar with animal and bird know that at this time of the year Mother Nature is providing new winter suits for many of her children. This is done for two reasons, one to keep the animals and birds warm during the long cold period and the other is to protect from the sight of larger animals and birds that would prey on them when the snow and bare trees make it hard for animals and birds to keep out of sight. There are other seasons of the year too when animals and birds change their appearance, and sometimes their skins.

Many people have actually seen a toad eat out of his skin and arrayed in a brand-new one, proceed to swallow the old suit. All reptiles shed their skin when they have acquired a new one underneath; yet not all reptiles follow the toad's habit of swallowing the old one. The reason this change of clothing is not witnessed more often is that reptiles seek privacy for the operation, as while they are in the act of changing their skin they are handicapped and might be at the mercy of an enemy.

At least once a year every bird changes its clothing. The moulting of the old feathers is done without much of a fuss and every bird blossoms out in a new rig-out or new suit in a very short time. The horse, pony, dog, cat, and other animals also change their old suit by shedding. All wild animals do this and in some cases ever change their color. Insects in the larval stage also cast off their skins and there is always a new one beneath. Some shellfish do the same thing.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

A Kernel of Corn

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little kernel of corn lying in a box with many other little kernels. We are going to be used for seed for the former. One day the farmer came and put us in a corn planter and took us out in the field. Then he started to plant us. I was about one of the first to be planted. After he had planted us all he went home and I do not know what he did then because I was in the field under the black soil. After we had been in the ground for about a week we began to sprout up out of the ground. One morning very early a flock of crows came and lit on the corn field and began to pull some of my friends out of the ground. I was very frightened because I though they would pull me to, but the farmer's dog happened to come running through the field and scared them. We were not bothered with the crows anymore after that.

After we had grown for some time and began to turn brown the farmer and another man came and cut us down and put us in shock. After we had been husked we were put in a bin in a corn crib. Then when we were dried some of us were taken to the mill and made into cornmeal. I was one of them to go and we got all crushed to pieces. After we were ground up we were put in bags and taken back to the farmer's house. The farmer took us to his barn and there we were fed to his cattle.

My Idea of an Ideal Home

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending a story which I mawe up my self in school.

My idea is to make my home better. My home is situated near the state road. It has fifteen rooms and a cellar. We have flowers in the house. Outdoors is a neat lawn with a bed of flowers too, and a bush of lilacs. The way to make my home look good is to have a neat home and a neat lown. Not to have any dump near the house, and not have too many buildings. How to improve the home is in many ways. Not to have things all scattered around the home like, our clothes loving all around and not to have books scattered all over the stands. Always have them packed in a neat pile and always have love in a home so as to make the home happy. Have comfortable furniture.

When our mothers and fathers ask us to do something always obey them, and if we don't that makes our parents feel sad. And when we are sick our parents are worried over us because they like us. At Chrismas time the children ought to give a present to the parents. There should be a fence around the lawn so the little children can't go out in the road and get in danger.

A Adventure in the Woods

Uncle Jed: One day as my chum and I were taking a walk in the woods we heard a noise in a clump of bushes. At first we thought it was a cow and we started to walk on. But then we heard something like a human voice and we were frightened and started to run. We thought that it was a tramp. We had only gone a few feet when we heard some one laugh. We turned around and there was one of the boys we went to school with. He was trying to frighten us and I think that he succeeded.

An Auto Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about our trip through the White Mountains. One Sunday morning my father said, "Let's go for a trip." We all agreed with him and packed up ready to start. We camped all the way. At Springfield we had two flat tires. That day we didn't get very far. The next day we reached the Green Mountains and then the White Mountains and also stopped at Echo Lakes and the old man of the mountains. The last night we camped my father heard a noise like papers rattling. It was a porcupine eat into our bread and bacon. The next day we reached the beaches. They were Old Orchard, Hampton, Rye, Salisbury, Plum Island and Revere. It was a very pretty ride. We got home at midnight that night.

One Afternoon

Dear Uncle Jed: One afternoon my big sister took my mother to Rocky Point for her birthday.

After they went I washed the dinner dishes and scrubed the floor and I also helped my father unload hay. I ironed some of the clothes. At about five o'clock when they came with a load of hay, they put the cows in and I grained them. After they finished eating I started the milking machine up while my father and brother went after another load of hay so it wouldn't be left out over Sunday. When they came back I had them all milked but one.

I went in the house and got supper. After we finished I washed the dishes and about half past ten they came home. My mother brought us some boxes of candies, some lollytops and some nice red plumes.

A Hallowe'en Social

Dear Uncle Jed: It is a long time since I have written to you, so I am going to tell you about a Hallowe'en social, which was held in our assembly hall at the Riverside grammar school. There were more than one hundred people at the social, which consisted of the eighth grade, last year's class and the teachers, and the people they invited. Refreshments which were munch and cake were served after the first half of the program. We had a good time from 8 to 11 o'clock. I got home about half-past eleven, tired but happy. I will have to close now but will write again soon.

What I Saw Navy Day

Dear Uncle Jed: On Navy day I went to the Submarine base. It is in the eastern part of Connecticut on the Thames river. The first thing that I saw was the building where they do the welding and make to different parts of the engines on the boats. Then we went into the house where they make the torpedoes for the submarines. We went through the power house and later that we went through the submarines. We went to the front of the boat first where we saw the torpedo tubes. There were four tubes and there were two torpedoes for each tube. That made eight in all. Then we went through the back and I looked through the periscope and I could see the water and the land on the other side of the river. I went farther back and saw the engines and the stearing wheel.

When we came out we saw the diver. His shoes were made of lead and they weighed twenty pounds. His suit was made of rubberized canvas. His helmet was made of copper. The reason that he had all the weight was to help hold him down. The air that he breathes is pumped down to him from the surface through a rubber tube. He is let down onto the water by a rope and when he wants to come up he jerks the rope. We went to see the submarines dive. The first one went down the river so far before she dove that we could not see her. The second one we could see a little better. But the third went down right in front of us and we could see it very plainly. When we had seen all there was to see we started home.

My Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I am writing to the Wide Awake circle and I hope you will enjoy my story. We lived in a small house. Next to our house was a large house. Nobody lived in that house. The key to that house was lost. I found them by my house. I took the keys and I unlocked the door. There was a big hall, and many doors. They were all locked. I unlocked the first door and there were many girls dancing. I unlocked the second door and there were two men with knives. I unlocked the third door and the room was full of frankfurters. I ate three then I unlocked the fourth door and it was full of candy kisses. I took a handful. I unlocked the fifth door and it was full of money. I unlocked the sixth door and there was a satchel on a shelf and two china men sleeping. I went in the room, and there was a paper by the satchell. I read it. "If you take me out I will stay again. I am never empty." I wanted the satchel. I went to take it but they were awake, I shut the door. After a while I went again. I opened the door and I took the satchel. I locked the door and went home. When I came home I said, "Safe at last." I waked up and I didn't see any satchel. I knew that I dreamed it.

Fires Cause Destruction

Dear Uncle Jed: On the pages of our daily newspapers we constantly read of destruction caused by innumerable fires preventable or otherwise. It is a criminal act to willfully start a fire. Millions of dollars worth of property has been destroyed because of lawlessness.

To prevent forest fires congress passed a law May 5, 1900. The secretary of agriculture has requested all persons to observe these regulations strictly. Not to build campfires larger than necessary. Not to build fires in rotten wood or other places where they are likely to spread. In windy weather to dig holes or clear the ground to confine camp fires. Not to build fires where it is difficult to extinguish them. A fire is never out until the last spark is extinguished. City fire departments have been organized to a high degree of perfection for the extinguishing of flames. The organization of these departments is a matter of the greatest importance to the entire community. The firemen save every year many times as much as the department costs and the citizens consider it a splendid investment to maintain it.

The economic waste by fire in the United States amounts to $250,000,000 yearly. The destruction caused by fire, is a serious obstacle to war preparations. Many lives and loss of property could be saved in each case.

A Hallowe'en Party

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first story to the Wide Awake circle. I am going to tell you about a Hallowe'en party on Oct. 31 in our school. At seven o'clock we started our party. Some were dressed in orange dresses an some like witches.

We had a pumpkin in every window. At the door there was a witch. And when I went in the door a witch would grab me. After I got in the school room a black witch took my hand and lead me to a seat.

Her hand was as cold as ice. And all the light that was in the room was some Jack O'lanterns. It was fun but still you would be scared. After a while they put the light on and we played games.

We had to try to get apples out of a wash tub with our teeth. It was hard because the apples were slippery and we couldn't get hold of them. We had a very nice time. At 10:30 we were getting ready to go home.

The lights went out and a witch with cold hands took me out to the door. And then I rode home with my father.

Life in the Far North

Dear Uncle Jed: On the distant arctic shores of North America live a few scattered tribes of Indians. They get most of their food from flesh of the seal and therefore must live near the sea.

Clothing is made of furs and skins, because these are the only materials at hand and because such clothing is warm. In their search for food they use canoes and sleds made of bone and skin, and many of their tools are made of bone. In the short summer they live in tents of skin, and in the winter their permanent homes, if they have any, are made of stones, sod, and earth, partly underground; but they often camp in huts quickly built out of blocks of snow. The blubber of the seal gives them not only food, but also light and heat. Their cold and snowy country will not furnish other kinds of clothing and shelter.

A Hallowe'en Pumpkin

Dear Uncle Jed: One year at Hallowe'en I had a big pumpkin given as a present. I had my father make it into a Hallowe'en lamp and when it was done I put a candle in it.

Then I put on my Hallowe'en costume and went out doors. I was going over to the old stone wall, when I saw a ghost in white and a lot of other things near it. I could not see who it was, so I ran around the house and then got over the wall further down from where I saw the ghost.

I then ran on my hands and knees until I was up to them and then I saw it was my school friends in their costumes.

I hope all the Wide Awakes had a lovely time on Hallowe'en.

My Vacation Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my vacation trip last August. We went up Cape Cod to Provincetown. We went in a monument which was 352 feet high and could see a lot of the Atlantic ocean when we had walked to the top. Then we went down the cape again and up to Nantasket beach and had a very fine time. Then we went to Boston and on a train to Revere Beach and stayed there one evening, then came back to Nantasket beach. At the end of the week we had to go home.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Eating Everything Up

"Wake up, wake up, you sleepy head,
Turn down the covers of your bed.
Another day has just begun."
Sang Mr. Merry Golden Sun.

"Dear, dear," sighed the little rabbit, "I can't get my eyes open." But pretty soon, like many little boys and girls, he hopped out of bed. Quickly dressing himself, he hopped down the stairs and into the kitchen where the odor of Clover Cereal and Carrot Cake made his pink nose twinkle with delight.

The bunny almost dropped his kindling wood!

"Tuck your napkin under your chin. Don't spill a drop on the platter of tin."

laughed Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother, as, she bustled about, preparing the breakfast.

Just then the tiny Canary Bird from her gold cage twittered and bursting into song, filled with neat little kitchen with music.

"You shall have your breakfast in a minute or two," promised the bunny boy. "Wait till I've finished my Clover Cereal," and the good little rabbit boy set to work and pretty soon not so very long, he had eaten everything his careful mother set before him. Wasn't that clever of him. And obedient? Well I guess it was. He was doing his best to grow up big and strong just like lots of boys and girls I know.

"I think the woodbox is empty," better hop out to the woodpile."

"Good morning," called the little rabbit, as the old Red Rooster finished his cock-a-doodle song, "what brought you around so early?"

"A secret," answered the old fowl, picking up a kernel of corn."

"What," exclaimed the surprised little rabbit. "Whose secret?"

"Uncle Lucky's," replied the Old Red Rooster, hopping into the little Red Barn.

For a moment, the bunny boy almost dropped his armful of kindling wood. But he didn't. No sireeman. He first hopped into the kitchen and around to the woodbox; then hurried back. Dear me, I hope he doesn't forget to polish the front doorknob before he begins to play. That would never do. No indeedy. Every morning he does three chores for mother. —feed the canary, bring in the kindling wood and polish the front doorknob. After which he is free to do anything he likes, provided, of course, it's nothing wrong. Nobody is supposed to do that, only once in a while people like Danny Fox and Mr. Wicked Wolf are not at all particular and do the wrong thing.

In the next story you shall hear all about the Old Red Rooster's secret.

The North Scituate Dam

Dear Uncle Jed: One day this summer my father and mother took my brothers, sister and I down to the North Scituate dam that the city of Providence is building to supply water to the people and houses in Providence. It is going to take several years to finish it and I liked to see the little engines pulling cars of dirt to make the dam. I think there were seven cars full to an engine. I liked to see them go up and down and sideways as the tracks were very rough. They are tearing down houses and even mills and cutting trees and all these places will be covered with water when they get the dam made. I hope you Wide Wakes will get your father to take you some time to see it as it was lots of fun to see so many men at work.

The Voluntown School Fair

Dear Uncle Jed: One day at school we decided to have a school fair. Mr. Edward came in and told us New England week was from the fourteenth to the twentieth of September. So we decided to have our fair on Friday the nineteenth of September.

We immediately nominated honorary president, honorary vice presidents, president, treasurer, secretary and vice presidents of different booths. I was secretary.

I brought a layer cake, two different kinds of beans, peach and cherry tomatoes, onions and a hand hemmed towel. I also brought 42 different kinds of wild flowers, although I did not receive first prize on the flowers.

After every one had seen all they wished there was a brief program. The refreshments left were sold. My cake sold for fifty-five cents. The amount of money taken in was $45. There was $26 of clear profit. The money will be used for things needed in the school.

An Automobile Accident

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time that I have ever written anything for the Wide Awake page. But now I will tell you about the accident which I saw the other day. One morning when I was on my way to school, this was on Wednesday, I happened to see two machines clash together. One was a Ford and the other was a Chevrolet. They clashed together around a little corner near Mr. Warners in Wauregan. The Ford was tipped over and almost completely destroyed and the other car was damaged a little on one side, but one thing, which was a wonder to me, was that no one got hurt.

These two machines blocked the road completely so that all the other automobiles had to stop until some people from a garage and moved them out.

Milk

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about milk. Milk is our best all round food. It is the most perfect food we have. It is also one of the cheapest foods, even at the present prices. Milk is the most difficult of all foodstuffs to collect, handle and transport. It requires the greatest care from pasture to pail, and from pail to palate. Milk spoils quicker than any other food. It spoils even quicker than fresh fruit and berries. It must be kept clean, cold and covered.

Milk tastes good; it is easily digested and is very nourishing. It makes bone, brawn, and blood. In fact, the vigor and success of a nation depend largely upon the amount of milk it uses. In the United States, we use something like forty billion quarts of milk a year. This would make a lake large enough to float all the navies of the world. Yet, this is only about half a pint of milk a day for each person.

Only one quart of this actually used as milk, the other three-quarters being made into cheese, butter and other products.

Like all good things milk has a few drawbacks, but these are far outweighed by its advantages.

Milk is the great factor of safety in our diet. It makes the ration complete promotes growth and keeps the body strong.

Drink more milk every day.

A Visit to the Farm

Dear Uncle Jed: This summer the rest of my family and I went down to the Gallup Homested for six weeks and a fine time we had. This place is way out in the country and a good many days no one went by but the R. F. D. mail man and we never had to be careful when crossing the road to not get run over by automobiles and trucks. This place is where my mother's mother was born and also her grandfather and her great-great grandfather built it. My brother and I picked huckleberries also blackberries. We didn't like to pick blackberries as they scratched our hands and legs. I got stung by a hornet once too, that had a nest right side of the well and my eye was shut up tight the next morning. Father shot the hornets nest to pieces with his shot gun and I was glad. Right near the house was an old cider mill and I'll bet not many of you Wide Awakes ever saw one like it. Where they grind apples is made of wood and a great log which father saws they sawed out of a log bent that way with a horse hitched to the end of it runs the grinder. The horse goes round and round. We had lots of fun riding on it. It hasn't been used in years and is getting all loose and old. I wish you could see it.

A Story of Longfellow

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing this story and I hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy it. Longfellow was very fond of children and had many friends among them. One little boy, the child of a neighbor, and was often invited into the poet's study. One day the boy looked at the long rows of books that lined the library walls, and turning to his friend, asked, "Where is your Jack the Giant Killer? Longfellow was obliged to confess that he did not own a copy of that exciting tale. The child seemed sorry for him, but said nothing. The next day he came again with two pennies tightly clasped in his little fist. These he gave to Longfellow, saying, "Now you can go and buy a Jack the Giant Killer, for yourself."

Then I went to Groton Long Point for ten days and had a good time. When I came home I was all sunburned but I was happy just the same.

I had a fine time there. When we got home it was eleven o'clock so we went right to bed.

My Pet

Dear Uncle Jed: I received the beautiful book about the Campfire girls and was very thankful as I wish to be one some day. Now I am going to write you a letter about My Pet. My pet is a cat. I named him in my first letter. Maybe you have forgotten so I will tell you. It is Tom. He is a pretty cat and I love him dearly. He is black, yellow and white. One day as I was going home from school I met him in the road. He began to cry as if he was glad to see me. He began to follow after me like a dog. After we had had walked a little way I saw he was getting tired. Then I picked him up and carried him home in my arms. I would not sell him for $12. I now remain your loving Wide Awake reader.

U. S. DESTROYER CASSIN BRINGS SEIZED LAUNCH TO NEW LONDON

New London, Nov. 16.—The United States destroyer Cassin, which is patrolling the waters of Long Island and Block Island sounds in search of rum-runners, brought into New London this evening a launch and its crew, when the craft was found disabled between this port and Block Island. It was alleged that the launch was engaged in transporting liquor from the rum-fleet off Rum Row. The crew were taken to the police station following the arrival in port of the launch. When the crew were landed in the station officers of the Cassin, who were in charge of the crew of the launch communicated with Collector of Customs Jeremiah Dillon and the latter in turn communicated with United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson, at Norwich. The result of the communications brought about the release of the prisoners, as there was nothing in the way of criminality upon which they could be held. No liquor was found aboard the seized launch.

H. F. Whitehead, a sailor stationed at the submarine base, visited the Palace ball room, Plant building, on Saturday evening and there created a disturbance of such seriousness that complaint was made to the police by Frederick Swanson, one of the proprietors of the place. Patrolman Howard Sloan and Supernumerary Officer William Riordan placed Whitehead under arrest. He furnished a cash bond of $25 for his appearance in the police court Monday morning on a charge of breach of the peace.

An automobile owned and driven by Otto L. Dilworth, 167 Washington street, Hartford, and a commercial truck owned by the Monte Cristo garage and operated by Clyde L. Baker, an employe were in collision this afternoon on State street corner of Washington street. Dilworth's car was damaged.

A group of barrels containing refuse that had been on the sidewalk in front of the storehouse of A. Gordon, North Bank street, a number of days, was ordered removed from their place of storage last night by Patrolman William Babcock.

Lawrence Beally, of Mystic, arrested several days ago by State Police Officer Henry J. Albright, of the Groton barracks, charged with manslaughter, who has been a prisoner at the New London police station since his arrest, has been taken to New county jail in default of a surety on his bond of $5,000. Beally was operating a Hudson automobile a week ago today, which struck John Kuchla of Montville, a motorcyclist, on Derry Hill Montville, the cyclist sustaining injuries which resulted in his death at Backus hospital, Norwich, a few days after the accident.

Dr. John N. Dimon of Quaker Hill, formerly of New London, was was taken into custody by Traffic Officers Frank Linehan, John Courtney and Clarence Wells late this afternoon, charged with intoxication. The physician was locked up, pending his being presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Dr. Dimon appeared on State street about 5 o'clock and was unmistakably under the influence of drink. He was allowed to endeavor to reach his destination, but was unsuccessful, failing in the doorway of the entrance to Dr. William D. Cronin's on Main street. When information was given the police that the physician was down and out he was taken into custody. When arrested the physician had two, empty two-ounce bottles in his possession and two bottles containing what appeared to be liquor of alcoholic strength. The physician has been arrested several times previous on the same charge and his latest offense was about two months ago.

Mrs. F. H. Arms, 72 Mott avenue, is critically ill at her residence in Neptune Park. Mrs. Arms passed into a state of coma and has remained in that condition since Friday night. Mrs. Arms is of advanced years and her condition is such as to cause her relatives much concern.

The police are still endeavoring to locate the whereabouts of Annie McShann, negress, alleged to have slashed Earl Downing, also colored, at Downing's home, 28 Hill street, several nights ago. It has been learned that the girl's home is in Hartford where her father resides, but efforts to locate her at the Hartford residence have so far proved unsuccessful. It is reported that the girl is being harbored by acquaintances here.

Patrolman and Mrs. Walter Rohn have returned to their home, 16 Perry street, concluding two weeks' visit in Washington, New York and points in Pennsylvania.

The authorities of the town of Groton, acting through First Selectman Clark E. Whaley, have taken charge of the 3-year-old son of Mrs. Grace Phelps, of Groton, who was abandoned several nights ago when the mother left the child in the grocery store of Daniel Button, 11 Williams street, and then fled in an automobile. The child has been in the care of Mrs. Timothy Sullivan, matron of the B. P. Learned mission, since left parentless. Saturday the Groton authorities took charge of the boy who is a charge upon the town.

The double funeral of Thomas C. Brennan and Frank E. Brennan, father and son, whose deaths occurred Wednesday night and Thursday morning respectively, was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many mourners. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger, with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, deacon and Rev. Raymond O'Callahan, sub-deacon. The bearers were Frank McCormick, Joseph Bishop, Thomas Reagan and Elias Bishop, this city, David J. Cronin, Brooklyn, and Leo Dessalt, Groton. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mark Zaslow of Coit Street and Mrs. Lincoln J. Churchill, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Bill Holloway, colored, residing on Bank street, just below Howard street, over a store, has been accustomed of late to entertain pretty freely at his home, the guests often appearing in automobiles and at all hours of the day and night. Indeed the frequency of the visits of this class of guests and the abandon of the parties after they reached the Holloway house attracted the attention of the police, so they investigated and found that William and Mary, his wife, were running a pretty wide-open place. The visitors were colored people generally and that they should sport about in automobiles of an expensive sort and with a freedom of action that was unusual was astonishing to the neighbors. Friday, Policeman John Sullivan when he saw colored sailors visiting the place secured a search warrant under the impression that what he had observed warranted the belief that there was some stimulant to be had in the place. He went in with another officer and there found a jug of whiskey and bottles of the same, also came up burnt sugar that is used for coloring alcohol so that it has the whiskey shade. He seized these and the occupants of the house, holding a couple of sailors found there in the company of two women, who were not arrayed in furs to keep away the chilly weather nor indeed enough other clothing to create perspiration. Patrolman Sullivan held the occupants of the rooms as witnesses to appear in court and tell of the character of the house. He charged Mary Holloway with keeping a place where liquor was sold, but Bill came to the front and took the punishment that was handed out for the infraction of the law. He was fined $150 and sent to jail for 30 days. Bill pleaded guilty when he was accused, saying that he had sold liquor "in that house," though he denied that he had obtained the booze by other means than from the parties who brought their own and then left some of it when they departed. His story was a senseless one insofar as it was a defense, for he admitted all that was charged.

George Crocicchia, a young lawyer, for he read law in this city and then went to Waterbury to reside, was fined $25 in the Waterford town court Saturday afternoon for reckless operation of an automobile. He had his sister and three Connecticut college girls in his car, near stations 12 and 13 when he was speeding over the road at a 40-mile clip. State Policeman Albright overtook him and held him up, demanding to know why he was recklessly operating a car past intersecting streets and along a road that was much traveled. Mr. Albright did not get satisfactory responses to his queries so he arrested the driver and presented him before Justice Morton. Crocicchia admitted that he was going at a 25-mile speed, which is in excess of the pace allowed by law, and which indicated that the offender was not informed as to the provisions of the statutes. As the accused is a lawyer he didn't submit to the penalty imposed and appealed to the court of common pleas, giving a bond with his sister as surety for his appearance.

Robert Gilbert of Montville; Manuel Marquis, Prest street; David Keefe, State street; Miss Mollie Gabriel, Westerly; Mrs. Mary Sherman, Westerly; Mrs. Andrew Cruise, Ocean avenue; Victor Kuja, Niantic; Mrs. William Handsch and infant daughter, Hempstead street; Concetto and Benedict Cerretto, Tenth street and Mrs. John Cataldo, Groton, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed Saturday.

An automobile owned and operated by Arthur W. Weeks, 83 Union street crashed against a motionless automobile owned by Herbert E. Brooks, 23 Denison avenue, Saturday afternoon on Main street while the latter car was parked beside the curb. Brooks' car was damaged.

Complaint has been made to the police that youths are stealing lumber stored on property, corner of Bank and Spring streets, where a garage is in course of construction.

Harriet W. C. Newcomb and Elizabeth H. C. Armstrong have sold a building lot on Mercer street to Blanche F. Cadman and Alice C. Spencer.

Arthur Brockhaus has sold a parcel of land rear 5 Konomoc street to Albert E. and Albertina F. Sexton.

John Warren, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John LaChance, 289 Pequot avenue, died Friday night at the home of his parents, following a brief illness. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at 54 Fremont street, with burial in Cedar Grove cemetery. Mr. LaChance is a chief petty officer stationed at the submarine base.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

CONTEST FOR REPUBLICAN LEADERSHIP IN THE HOUSE

Washington, Nov. 16.—Although the opening of the short session of the congress is two weeks away, and one of the positions is not to be filled until the new congress begins its sessions, the races for the republican state leadership and for president pro tem. of that body already are warming up.

The death of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts left open the post of floor leader for the majority party, while Senator Cummins of Iowa, the president of the senate, has formally announced that he would relinquish that office at the conclusion of the present short session.

It will be necessary for the republicans to select a leader before congress convenes Dec. 1, and the names of Senators Curtis of Kansas, the party's whip, and Wadsworth of New York now figure most prominently. These same senators also have been frequently mentioned in connection with the office of president pro tem.

Senator Warren of Wyoming would ascend to the leadership if the republicans adhered to the party custom of naming the senator oldest in the point of service. Senator Warren's friends say he prefers to devote his main attention to his duties as chairman of the appropriations committee.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire has announced his candidacy for president pro tempore. His friends already are lining up support for him.

Senator Curtis has told friends that if Senator Warren did not want the leadership he would like to have it. The senator has been the assistant leader for a number of years, and his friends feel that his elevation to the leadership would be a logical step.

Senator Wadsworth also has a strong backing which has begun activities quietly in his behalf.

His power as a debater and the fact that the west already has many important committee chairmanships are being put forward by his friends as arguments for his candidacy.

Some leading republican senators have declared that a settlement of the question of the two places will be agreed upon to prevent an open contest of strength between candidates, and efforts are understood to be under way with this end in view.

VICE PRESIDENT-ELECT DAWES HAS UNDERGONE OPERATION

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Charles G. Dawes, vice president-elect, underwent a successful minor operation at the Evanston hospital in Evanston this afternoon, and tonight was reported to be resting comfortably.

The operation was decided upon suddenly this afternoon when Mr. Dawes after taking his customary morning exercises discovered he had ruptured himself.

Mr. Dawes was given a local anaesthetic and talked with the internes who wheeled him to his room from the operating table. His physician said the general would probably have to remain at the hospital for two weeks.

Mr. Dawes' physician issued the following statement after the operation:

"General Dawes stood the operation nicely. It was a simple operation of herniotomy involving no vital organs. The general will be in bed about two weeks. His vitality is very good.

"Six years ago, when the general was being examined for promotion to brigadier-general, a slight suggestion of the trouble was discovered. The operation today probably is an exaggeration of the trouble noted then."

HUGE WATER MAIN BREAK FLOODED CELLARS IN BRONX

New York, Nov. 16.—A deluge, gushing from the break in a huge main in the Bronx, flooded cellars to a depth of more than five feet today and tied up traffic in a subway line for several hours.

Where the main burst fragments of the pavement were shot skyward and a stream of water, thirty feet high, cascaded onto the street and sent torrents into the basements of neighboring houses.

Don't think that you can overdraw on your account with nature and get away with it.

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Nov. 16.—(By The A. P.)—Bullish enthusiasm in Wall street which brought an impressive boom in the stock market last week, was communicated to bond trading, sending prices to the highest level of the year under the leadership of high yielding railroad issues. The advance however, was interrupted by profit taking and a diversion of speculative interest to stock dealings coincident with a stiffening of time money rates.

Many new high records were established by semi-speculative railroad obligations which readily overcame realising sales and scored net gains of 1 to 5 points for the week. The upswing in this list followed in the wake of the rally in rail shares with growing indications that restoration of confidence in the railroad outlook would be reflected in better earnings and more constructive dividend and merger developments.

Standard investment issues shared in the enormous demand for rail securities, buying orders embracing such liens as New York Central 6s, Atchison general 4s, Illinois Central, Northern Pacific and Pennsylvania mortgages. The heaviest buying however, was concentrated on the lower-priced bonds. "Katy" adjustment 5s led the entire list with a gain of almost 5 points on a remarkable turnover of more than $5,000,000 during the week. Other conspicuous strong spots included Frisco, Seaboard, International Great Northern, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Minneapolis & St. Louis, Chicago & Alton, Iowa Central and Norfolk & Southern liens. Several of the New Haven issues reached new high levels on reports of progress in the road's refunding.

The lull in new financing, imposed partially by the shift of Wall street's interest to speculative market activities, continued. New bond offerings aggregated $43,000,000, an increase of about $10,000,000 over the preceeding week. As a result of the reduced volume of business, the investment market was described as hungry for new issues. Among the offerings scheduled for next week is a $15,000,000 block of Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation 6 per cent. bonds, and $11,500,000 Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. 5s.

With negotiations almost concluded for the $100,000,000 French loan, an early offering in this market is awaited. The necessity of obtaining parliamentary approval may prevent the flotation this week, but the banking syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., is prepared to handle the issue as soon as it is sanctioned officially.

N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE TO WAGE WAR ON SWINDLERS

New York, Nov. 16.—The New York stock exchange will assist the federal government in a new nationwide cooperative effort to rid the country of security swindlers, President E. H. H. Simmons announced last night such a decision had been reached, following discussion of the matter with President Coolidge and Postmaster General New, he reported both the latter were "keenly alive" to the danger of the country involved in security swindling and that they "welcome the assistance of all legitimate business."

"There will be created in the New York Stock Exchange," President Simmons said, "a special department which will be a clearing house for facts and to which all information should be sent. There it will be thoroughly examined, investigated and tabulated. With the assistance of the better business bureau of New York and the other better business bureaus of the country definite details of suspicious cases will be prepared and submitted to government officials for their attention."

The French government has decided to revise its entire tariff upward because of difficulties encountered with Belgium and Germany on commercial treaties.

B. & M. TRANSPORTATION COMPANY ORGANIZED

Boston, Nov. 16.—The organization of the Boston and Maine Transportation company, with an authorized capital of $100,000 and a charter permitting it to engage in operating and owning motor busses for transportation of passengers and motor trucks for carrying freight, was announced by the Boston and Maine railroad today.

President J. H. Hustis made the following statement on the purposes of the new organization:

"The new company will operate in conjunction with the Boston and Maine railroad. There is no intention of running busses or trucks in competition with steam trains. We believe there is a legitimate field for busses and trucks as an auxiliary to steam service on some of our lines and in place of steam service on other lines."

NUMBER FOUR

the suppression of opium smoking in the far east but the curbing of excessive opium production in China.

In consequence of charges by the British delegate and the apparent impossibility to secure satisfaction concerning Japan's freedom to purchase opium abroad, the Japanese delegation practically bolted the conference.

The morning session adjourned with all the delegates admitting that the conference had virtually collapsed. Nevertheless, the delegates agreed to reassemble in the afternoon and take up points in the program which were less contentious in nature than the questions which had produced the rupture.

This morning's clash was caused by Japan's allegation that she was being discriminated against by others powers, chiefly Great Britain, in connection with the shipment of opium, and further that when the Japanese government sisued important certificates they were not always recognized by the other powers.

The break was immediately due, however, to Japanese resentment over the statement made yesterday by Sir Malcolm Delivingne, the British delegate, that Great Britain could not habitually recognize import certificates because of scandals over them which involved high officials in one far eastern country "whom he preferred not to name."

The British position was that, despite regularly issued import papers, opium, as well as narcotic drugs, often were diverted on the way to the country of purchase and forwarded to other destinations where they were used for illicit purposes and illicit gain, thus bringing a stain on the name of Great Britain, which permitted the export.

John Campbell, representing India, took a similar stand, which caused the Japanese delegate to remark sarcastically that India seemed clearly under the dominion of England. The Japanese introduced a resolution providing that the importation, exportation and transshipment of opium should be authorized when accompanied by a certificate issued by competent authorities.

The Japanese contended that when they tried to transship opium at Hong Kong, the British authorities interfered and prevented reexportation. They claimed this was an attack on Japanese good faith which could not be tolerated.

Today Sir Malcolm Delvingne insisted on Great Britain's right to investigate all opium exportations, even if they were accompanied by official certificates.

Publicly admitting that it was Japanese officials who were implicated in the opium scandals, Mr. Sugimura, the chief Japanese delegate, today, amid tense silence, read a statement in which he declared that nations often are blind to their own faults but quick to see the defects of others. He added that no international accord was possible when mutual confidence was lacking; hence he regretted that Japan could sign no accord arranged in Geneva.

The import certificate system, Mr. Sugimira pointed out, had been instituted under the direction of the league of nations and Japan would insist to the bitter end on it being lived up to.

"This is the first time in the history of the league of nations," Mr. Sugimira declared in stentorian tones "that any nation has cast in our teeth the reprehensible incident involving Japanese officials, who were adequately punished. We are a nation of the Samurai, and to us honor is more than all. You are fashioning here a system based on suspicion, instead of on love and confidence.

"From the very beginning we Japanese have been pessimistic about results, and now we prefer to declare before the whole world why we are unable to reach an agreement and to leave to public opinion the task of forming an equitable agreement later."

In making his allusion to Great Britain, Mr. Sugimura concluded dramatically;

"When all nations are able to see themselves in the looking glass we may attain real international cooperation."

A long silence ensued, with all the delegates flushed of face and wearing worried looks. One of the numerous Japanese delegates did not serve to allay the panicky atmosphere when he strode to the press benches and distributed a statement.

The statement set forth that Japan had come to Geneva earnestly desirous of signing an accord to stop opium smoking, but that she was convinced the principle of gradual and effective suppression provided for in The Hague convention had not been followed satisfactorily.

Furthermore the system of import certificates constituted by the league of nations had not been recognized by several countries, thereby imperilling Japan's fundamental policy, which it was declared was that of having abolished all unjust discrimination between nations.

Sir Malcolm Delevingne denied he had attacked the Japanese government; he insisted he had merely cited incidents which justified Great Britain in preventing transshipment of opium on steamers which used British ports.

President Van Wettum, speaking for Holland, made a statement affecting the United States and other nonmembers of the league of nations, when he declared the certificate system should be recognized by all members of the league. "You can deal as you wish with those who are outside the league," he declared.

The delegates of other European countries later endeavored to impress upon the newspapermen the significance of this statement as affecting the United States. With all the delegates excitedly clamoring for permission to be heard, the chairman abruptly ordered an adjournment of the session until the afternoon. Mr. Mr. Sugimura said he would attend, but merely as an auditor.

RAILROAD MEN TO DISCUSS TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM

New York, Nov. 16.—The executives of Class 1 railroads will hold a series of sessions in this city Tuesday and Wednesday to discuss national transportation developments of 1924 and outline a program for 1925.

Directors of the American Railway association will hold a quarterly meeting Tuesday. On Wednesday morning the whole association will hold annual session at the Yale club. The Association of Railway Executives will hold its annual session at the Yale Club on Wednesday afternoon.

"Without assuming to pretend that the present construction or composition of the railroad labor board is in all respects perfect," the statement declared, "the chamber finds that the principles embodied in the labor provisions of the transportation act, establishing the board are sound."

So as to permit the activities it advocates in trade associations, the chamber said it would appeal to congress for minor amendments to the Sherman act.

It pointed out that in order to visualize before the public as well as the government the actual business status of trade associations, the membership of the chamber, through a referendum vote, had made the following recommendations:

"Statistics of capacity, production, stock and sales, and statistics of actual prices in closed transactions, should be collected by a trade association for its industry or branch of commerce.

"Such statistics should be distributed without any comment or interpretation which could induce or facilitate concerted action on the part of members.

"The statistics should be made as available by a trade association to the public and government agencies as to the members of the association."

On the merchant marine question the chamber committed itself to "policies of subsidy, mail subvention, private as against government ownership and operation and most strongly against government operation in competition with private operation which depresses private investment and initiative in this important field."

The chamber proposed in connection with the development of inland waterways that congress be asked to detail United States army engineers to make "a comprehensive survey of the waterways of the country as a whole in their relation to other transportation agencies, and to recommend a definite plan and schedule of priorities for waterway development."

Suggestion that the executive budget should cover the entire financial program of the executive for the fiscal year so that the public might understand the president's program and what it would cost to carry it out was made.

WOMAN, AGED 50, DIED OF APOPLEXY IN BATH TUB

New York, Nov. 16.—An autopsy today revealed that Mrs. Blanche Agnes Williams Heye, 50, whose body was found in a bath tub in her apartment last night, died from chronic heart disease. It was first thought her death was due to drowning.

Mrs. Heye was the divorced wife of Gustave Heye, founder of the Heye museum, and was prominent socially.

WINNERS OF COMPETITION TO SELECT AN ARCHITECT

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 16—Six firms in New York and Minneapolis have been selected as winners in the first stage of the competition to select an architect for the $5,000,000 group of buildings to be built by the Harvard Business School under the George F. Baker fondation, Harvard university authorities announced today.

Out of 49 competitors the jury selected the following to enter the second and paid stage:

Aymar Embury, 2nd, Raymond M. Hood, Ludlow and Peabody, with Harold F. Kellogg of Boston, associated; Benjamin W. Morris with Eric Gugler, associated; and Egerton Swartwouth, all of New York; and Hewitt and Brown of Minneapolis.

Mr. Embury is known as the designer of a large number of residences and clubs and had adopted colonial precedents to modern needs. Mr. Hood in association with Mr. Howells, won the world wide competition for the Chicago Tribune Tower now under construction. He has independently designed the American Radiator building in New York with its color scheme of black and yellow bricks.

Among the designs by Ludlow and Peabody is the new Times Building, New York. Mr. Kellogg of Boston, associated with them in this competition, has designed a large number of hospitals. Mr. Morris is known for his Cunard building in New York.

Edgarton Swartwout together with his late partner, Evuts Tracy, designed the Missouri state capitol and the George Washington. He has independently designed the Elks National Memorial headquarters, Chicago and the Macon Auditorium. Hewitt and Brown have designed a wide variety of buildings for residential, collegiate, religious, business and industrial uses.

Together with the six firms selected by the jury, the following who have heretofore designed satisfactory buildings for the university for Harvard clubs, or for the donor or who have official connexion with the School of Architecture of the university, will also compete: Coolidge, Shepley, ulfinch, and Abbott of Boston; Prof. J. J. Haffner with Perry, Shaw and Hepburn, associated, Cambridge; Guy Lowell, Boston; McKim, Mead and White, New York; Parker, Thomas and Rice, Boston; and Walker and Gillette, New York.

The jury consisted of Charles A. Platt of New York, Charles D. Maginnis of Boston, and Charles Z. Klauder of New York, all well known architects, together with Charles Francis Adams, treasurer of the university, and Wallace B. Dunham, dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

The successful architect from the final stage will be chosen early in January.

URGED CHRISTIAN UNITY TO PREVENT WARFARE

New York, Nov. 16.—Sir Henry Lunn, editor o the Review of Churches and leader in the church unity movement, depicted the possibility of a war between the white race of Europe and the colored races of Asia and Africa in an address this afternoon in the Cathedral of St. John the Devine. He urged Christian unity as a preventative of a conflict that would make the recent world war small by comparison.

"It is well that we should realize the enormous extension of war in this stage of ours," he said. "On the field of Waterloo scarce 100,000 men enterered into a conflict of a day. In that long battle line stretching from Ypres to Verdun, in four long terrible years, twenty million men were locked in an agony of blood and wounds and death • • • In a possible great war that may come between Europe on the one hand and Asia and Africa on the other, we might have hundreds of millions of combatants. • • •

"The great war has been the final blow to an attempt to impose upon others the domination of one culture and one race. It has left us confronted with the grave situation that white races and their on each other have raised a sense of power in the onlooker. A new race consciousness has come into being that does not accept the supremacy of the white people."

MONUMENT FOR WAR DEAD INAUGURATED AT CHAUMONT

Chaumont, France, Nov. 16 — (By The A. P.)—General Maurice Nollet, minister of war, presided today at the inauguration of a monument to the war dead.

"Let me do homage," said General Mollet, "for the sacrifice of fifty thousand citizens of the great American republic, who came across seas at a moment when the fortune of war was still uncertain and brought us the assistance of their force. This monument will remind us that France can make no distinction between their dead and our own and that the same reverential affection surrounds their memory.

"These magnificent soldiers who had scarcely landed in France, showed most brilliant and most solid qualities wherever the high command summoned them—at Cantigny, in the Belleau Wood, at Vaux and at St. Mihiel—proving as, General Pershing has said, that if citizens of a democracy are separated from war by interests and taste, their mental habits prepare them to wage it well."

COOLIDGE TO INQUIRE INTO FARMING CONDITIONS

Washington, Nov. 16.—The inquiry proposed by President Coolidge into farming conditions will get under way here tomorrow with the commission he has appointed will assemble in his office.

The president will tell the commission of nine members his purpose in instituting the investigation—to have formulated a program for permanent stabilization of agriculture—and it is expected the organization will open immediately its work.

189,087,968 COLLARS WERE MANUFACTURED LAST YEAR

Washington, Nov. 16.—Five dollars, approximately, for every man in the country were made last year. Census bureau statistics of manufactures today show 15,590,662 dozen or 187,087,968 men's collars were turned out by factories in 1923. That included starched and soft collars made principally of cotton fabrics and there also were some of celluloid and paper. Their total value was $30,803,554.

TO OBSERVE GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY DECEMBER 7

Washington, Nov. 16.—Washington headquarters of the Near East Relief declared today in a statement that more than two million Americans will observe Golden Rule Sunday, December 7, to aid orphans of the Bible lands. President Coolidge, Secretary Hughes, 5 state governors, members of the diplomatic corps here and heads of 22 foreign governments, the statement said, have endorsed the plan.

TAFTVILLE

With a large number of guests attending a joint ceremonial meeting of the Ocawasin and the Aowakiya Camp Fire Girls was held Friday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church. The room was dimly lighted with candles in birchbark candlesticks, and in the center were laid the campfires of white birch logs, with the three symbolic candlesticks. The camps assembled to the melody of a weird campfire chant, sung by Miss Dorothy Wood, accompanied by the low beating of a tom-tom. The members walked Indian file and formed a large circle, the Ocawasin camp being led by their assistant guardian, Mrs. John Volkman, and the Aowikiya camp by their assistant guardian, Miss Elsie Heap. The meeting opened with the Wohelo call, followed by the lighting of the two fires, and the chorus song, Burn Fire, Burn. Miss Mary Taggart sang an Indian boating song, and the credo was repeated by the Aowikiya camps. Honors were distributed by Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis, guardian of the Ocawasin camp, who presided at the meeting. Mrs. Crowdis gave an interesting talk on the camping trip that the older girls enjoyed this past summer, when they spent two weeks at Camp Kiwanis, at South Hansen, Mass. The members of the camp, in pantomime, showed how a day was spent in camp, and under the direction of Miss Taggart as song leader, sang a number of the camp songs. Following the song Mammy Moon, representatives from both camps officiated at the fire extinguishing ceremony, and the members left the room to the music of The Sun is Sinking in the West. After the ceremonial, cake, sandwiches and coffee were served to the guests, and there was an exhibit in one of the larlors of different kinds of work that had been done at Camp Kiwanis.

THREE HOLDUP MEN WITH GUN ROB COLCHESTER MAN ON NEWENT ROAD

Three men, of whom one had a pistol which he showed in a persuasive manner, held up and robbed Clayton E. Smith of Colchester of between $62 and $63 Sunday night, about 10 o'clock, on the Newent road in the town of Lisbon. The entire affair was carried out so quickly that Smith could give but a meagre description of the men in the report he made to Norwich police headquarters.

Smith was on his way home in his automobile, he said, and as he reached the brow of a hill where there is a sharp turn he saw three men standing in the road, and spread out so that he had to slow up to avoid hitting them. There was nothing about the appearance of the trio to indicate that a hold-up was to be tried, but the tallest man of the trio held up his hands as if he wanted Smith to stop and as the machine slackened speed, he jumped on the running board, pulling a pistol and ordering Smith to stop the car and get out.

The order was obeyed at once and as Smith stood in the road the man with the pistol held him covered while the other two went through his clothes and took the money.

When the fellow with the pistol lowered it from pointing at him, Smith climbed back into the car and drove off, leaving the men in the road. He made no report of the holdup as he was driving through Taftville, because he did not know of any officers there, but he stopped in Yantic at the home of his friend, Lewis H. Burdick, through whom the report was telephoned to Sergeant John H. Casey at police headquarters. About all that Mr. Smith could tell of any description of the men was that the man with the pistol was tall and the other two were short. He could not give any idea of their hats or clothing.

CROWDED CHURCH TO HEAR MISS SLATTERY

If we would only be willing to think things through we would escape the cloud of discouragement that is passing men downward everywhere, said Miss Margaret Slattery of Boston, speaking to a large congregation on Sunday evening in the Central Baptist church. Miss Slattery spoke under the auspices of the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association and the gathering was a union meeting of the local churches.

The church was packed, all seats in the auditorium and the gallery being taken. James C. Macpherson, president of the Y. M. C. A., led the service and the devotion period was led by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church. Miss Slattery, who spoke to an audience of several hundred young people at the United Congregational church in the afternoon, was presented to the large evening congregation by President Macpherson.

On this occasion we bring back an old friend, said Mr. Macpherson, one difficult to secure as her engagements are scheduled ahead for a year and a half. Mr. Macpherson said that so far this fall Miss Slattery has spoken to 15,000 young people, in their teens besides devoting a part of her time to writing books and it is a privelege, in behalf of the Y. M. C. A., to introduce her to a Norwich audience.

To every man there opens a high way and a low way, said Miss Slattery. The high soul climbs the high way and the low soul gropes among the flats. The great mass of us drift to and fro in the midst. We haven't risen and we haven't fallen. Our emotions die in the 'teens. Miss Slattery spoke of a young girl of 22 who told her she had lived her life and that she couldn't get a "kick" out of anything. There wasn't anything left to interest her. Miss Slattery said that we allow children to live beyond their years and emotions dies while they are still in their 'teens.

We created the cause of everything we see in youth, she said. If we don't like it, let us at least remember that we created the cause. Let us give youth sane reasons for not doing these things. We let people do our thinking for us. That is why people like myself have occupations. If we didn't have to think for others we wouldn't have anything to do.

Miss Slattery went on to score those who obey only the laws of the land that please them. She said she never heard of a law that didn't displease some one. Upholding child labor regulation, Miss Slattery said: The children of today are the voters of tomorrow. Do you want a great mass of ignorant voters? God knows we have enough of them. You can never make me believe that, in the long run, injustice wins.

We don't think things through. If we thought things through, things would be different. If we would only be willing to think things through we would escape the cloud of discouragement that is pressing men downward everywhere. We would begin to see that the path is being lighted. Thoughtful definite training is hard to get in the average American home. It is exceedingly hard to be patient and teach. We have got to do it. We must listen to the child's questions and answer them. Youth wants to know if we have found a God that helps us or if we have found a God that lets us do about just as we wish until there comes a crisis and then ask for help or pray for forgiveness. She said she wondered just how many men there are who really pray alone. I wonder how many men, how many women, reach out for God alone.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Pitt. At the afternoon meeting for the young people of Norwich, which was held at the United church Miss Slattery gave a splendid, very interesting and highly instructive talk on In the Crystal Maze.

Voiture Promenade for Norwich

An executive committee meeting of La Societe Des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux was held Sunday afternoon at the armory in New London. Plans were discussed for the Voiture meeting and turkey dinner December 7th at the Golden Spur and also for the promenade to be held in Norwich sometime in January or February. Grand Chef de Guerre Dyson spoke of the state voiture banquet to be held in New Haven in January. It is expected that former Grand Chef de Chemen de Fer Murphy will be present at the banquet.

APPEALS FOR AID FOR CATHOLIC MISSIONARY WORK

Rev. Francis P. Keough, assistant chancellor and secretary of the Hartford diocese, was the preacher at all three of the masses at St. Mary's Memorial church on Sunday. Father Keough's mission was to encourage the establishment of a society for the Propagation of the Faith, and in a very eloquent and earnest manner he portrayed the work of Catholic missionaries in the foreign field, and the great need for the moral support and financial assistance of those members of the church, who are so much more favorably situated in this country. He said in part:

"The work of the Propagation of the Faith is as old as the church itself. It foundation dates back to the day when Jesus Christ said to his Apostles, 'Go ye into the world and preach the Gospel to every creature. On that day a new idea was ushered into the world and a new institution called into existence. The idea that all races are called to one faith and the institution of the Catholic apostolate to accomplish that end.

"The work of supporting the missionary propaganda, which began with the apostles and which has been continued for 19 centures by the church, is today aided by the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. This society has contributed greatly to the extension of the church not only in the old but particularly in the new world for the past 100 years. Its object being to help Catholic missionaries in pagan countries by prayers and charitablye offerings. American Catholics should be interested in this work for several reasons. 1, It was founded in order to help the Catholic missions in America at the request of Bishop Dubourg of New Orleans. 2, Since its beginning it has distributed over 10 million dollars to the churches of this country.

"The appeal is directed to America in a special way because of the need of the missions at the present time. Four years of awful warfare have reduced the missions to sorry straits. The army of priests and sisters in the field has been decimated and supplies have become both irregular and uncertain. In consequence, many enterprises have been abandoned. This army of consecrated men and women must be re-organized and means furnished them necessary to regain the ground which has been lost. Up to the beginning of the great war in 1914, European nations had nobly borne the brunt of apostolic work. France and Germany were the leaders in this respect. They contributed over three-fourths of the money to support them. At the outbreak of hostilities, missionaries were called to arms or recalled for home needs. Financial help has been discontinued, vacancies in the home clergy due to death and disability cannot be filled.

America is practically the only nation on earth in any condition to help missions. Here we are blessed with a great plenty; we have not experienced the effects of the war with the same severity as the remainder of the world. This is a wonderful opportunity to show Almighty God how we appreciate His care of us and His kindness to us.

"The ordinary method of organization is to group the faithful into bands of ten with a promoter as the leader who will collect the dues and distribute the missionary literature"

Vthex-ff..egsta theuo2j

It was evident that the sermon of Father Keough made a deep impression on the congregation as after each of the three masses a large number of the parishioners, men and women, stayed to meet the preacher, with the result that many enlisted as promoters, twenty giving assurances of the establishment of an exceptionally large society in St. Mary's parish.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY BY GEER AVENUE COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Kirchner of Geer avenue were pleasantly surprised by a host of friends on Wednesday evening in honor of their silver wedding anniversary. The guests first assembled at the home of Louis Gresser, who later presented Mr. and Mrs. Kirchner with a beautiful set of silver, and, in a few well chosen words on behalf of the company, congratulated them on this occasion and expressed a wish that their happy wedded life be a long one.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirchner were married at St Patrick's church by the late Rev. Hugh Trainor on November 12, 1889. Mrs. Kirchner was Miss Gertrude Wenzel and was born in Hungary. Their wedding attendants, who are now Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schaffhauser, moved to Oregon some years ago.

There are five children, Joseph, Frank, Stephen, Elizabeth and Carl. Mr. Kirchner is employed at the Richmond stove foundry.

Eight applications for membership were received and two candidates were initiated at the last regular meeting of Buckingham council, No. 14, Jr. O. U. A. M., with Councillor E. Leseman presiding.

The relief committee reported on the condition of Brothers Charles Ladd and George Hollingsworth, who were injured during the past week.

All members who are able were urged to attend the next regular meeting of the council, when State Councillor Marshall of New London will be present and tell of his trip to Washington, where he participated in the exercises at the grave of the Unknown Soldier on Armistice day. The refreshment committee has also arranged to have sandwiches, coffee and cigars at this time.

OVER 20,000 ITALIANS IN FR. GUERRIERO'S PARISH

In the Italian parish of the Holy Rosary, Bridgeport, to which Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero has been transferred by Rt. Rev. Bishop Nilan from St. Patrick's, Norwich, there are over 20,000 Catholics. In fact, so large is the parish that the section it includes covers fully a mile from the rectory to the church. Father Guerriero goes as a curate.

From the pulpit of St. Patrick's at the three masses Sunday, the rector, Rev. M. H. May paid a tribute to Father Guerriero's splendid zeal and tireless labors during the two and one-half years he served as Father May's assistant. He invited all the parishioners, old and young, to unite in a testimonial to Father Guerriero, who will be invited back to Norwich in about ten days and will be given a farewell reception. Father Guerriero, who comes of a prominent Hartford family, was a conspicuously brilliant scholar during his studies abroad, as he was at St. Thomas' Seminary, at Hartford, where also he starred as an athlete. While in Norwich he taught several of the evening classes in the Knights of Columbus free extension course, reorganized the Boy Scout troops, coached baseball and football teams among the boys, paid visitations to the public charitable institutions and to the hospitals for the K. of C. welfare bureau and in many other ways made his influence and power for good felt throughout every section of the parish and town. It was his duty to offer the 8 o'clock mass each Sunday in the basement chapel for the over 200 Italian Catholics of the parish and they, as well as all the other members regret his going; but all recognize the authority of the Rt. Rev. Bishop to transfer the gifted young priest to even a wider sphere of usefulness and they will just as cordially welcome his successor.

This young man is Rev. John Reilly a native of New Haven, who was ordained a short time ago at the celebrated University of Louvain at Cardinal Mercier's cathedral, Belgium. Father Reilly speaks half a dozen languages—Italian fluently. He will take up the work as Father Guerriero relinquishes it, also help minister to the members of the other eight or ten nationalities which make up the 4,000 or more members of St. Patrick's great parish.

Yesterday was the 23rd Sunday after Pentecost. Preaching at the 7.30 mass from the gospel for the Sunday, Matthew IX—18-26, the restoration to life of the ruler's daughter, Father May chose for his text, Christ's words, "The girl is not dead, but sleepeth." His theme was why men fear death—that eternal sleep of the body through which the soul passes on to the contemplation of the Beatific Vision. A student, fears, as he is about to undergo his college examination, maybe for some degree, especially if he have wasted his time and realizes that his preparation is faulty. Men fear the sleep of death and the resultant examination of judgment only when they tremble, aware that their preparation has been inadequate. If a man live well, he will die well and need have no fear; and if he resolve to die well, he will be certain to live well, for even though weak, God's mercy will amply supply for his many deficiencies. Honors of earth inscribed on tombstones count for little, if the soul of man is under condemnation.

Fathers May and Galvin gave Holy Communion to many penitents, precedence in going to the altar being given to the members of the Rosary Society.

FOUR PLACES RAIDED AT STONINGTON AT WEEK END

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Stonington, Nov. 16.—Four places were raided Saturday night by two local officers and seven state policemen from Groton barracks. The officers were Sergeant Gorgas, State Policemen Albert Kennerson, Caron, Bobnick, Deputy Sheriff T. C. Connell, Constable William Ortman, John Jeffrey, William McDonald and Andrew Sheldon. Evidence was found at two of the places. At the home of Joe Madeira, on Omega street, a quantity of liquor was found. The greater portion of this was destroyed in Little Narragansett Bay. Some of the liquor found was taken to the lockup, to be used as evidence.

Captain Madeira was away on a fishing trip, but his wife was taken to Borough hall and held, but was later released subject to call by the officials. The building corner of Hype and Maple streets, owned and occupied by Tony Gonzalez, was visited and a quantity of home brew was reported found. Both man and booze were taken to the lockup. The home of William Schafer, on North Water street, and that of John Fernando, corner Grand and North West streets, also a place rented to him in the marsh district, were visited, but nothing was found in either place. At the Madeira home, the officers were forced to break in the door to gain entrance. Those in the house made an effort to destroy the liquor, spilling it over the floor and throwing it down the sink. The police from Groton were sure that there must have been a tip-off. Two stills were thrown into the water on the east shore. They were of the copper boiler type.

SHOW ENTHUSIASM TO BUILD LEGION MEMBERSHIP

With County Commander William A. Anderson of this city presiding, a New London County meeting of the American Legion was held Sunday afternoon at the armory in New London. It was voted to hold all district meetings on the third Sunday of each month hereafter. This was a recommendation on the part of State Commander E. P. Armstrong of Waterbury. An endeavor will be made to have some of the state officers of the legion present at each meeting in the future.

State Commander Armstrong advocated widening the scope of the Legion work in the county through community service. He said additional posts could be started in a number of towns throughout the county by grouping the towns from which membership could be drawn. He suggested that weekly luncheons be held in Norwich and New London to discuss Legion problems and stressed the work of the Legion auxiliary. He urged that the wives, mothers and sisters of ex-service men join the auxiliary.

Florida has issued a challenge to Connecticut for a six months contest in securing new memberships with the provision that the losing state put up a dinner at the Omaha National Convention to the winning state. It was announced that men who join the Legion now receive a subscription to the Legion Weekly and have their dues paid up to the end of 1925 for one year's fee.

Commander Anderson announced that New London County is out for a 100 per cent. increase in membership before the next state convention to be held in New London. This means 1,000 legionnaires for the county. The next district meeting is to be held in Mystic on the third Sunday in December.

SCOUT EXECUTIVES MADE VISIT TO FORT SHANTOK

The annual conference of the Scout executives of Connecticut was held at New London on Friday and Saturday, with a pilgrimage on Saturday to Fort Shantok on the Thames, the historic fort of the Mohegan Indians. At this place they were met by Scout Executive F. A. Benton and Arthur L. Peale of Norwich. Mr. Peale pointed out the various places of interest about Mohegan and conducted the visitors through the ancient village site, Indian cemetery, and to the cairn or monument of the Colonial Dames and gave a short talk which in part was as follows:

"About three and one-half miles below the junction of the Thames and Shetucket rivers on the west bank of the Thames was 'Shantok,' one of the principal forts of Uncas. The location was an ideal one, being near the principal settlements of his tribe, and accessible by land or water. Near by was an unfailing spring which is in existence at the present time. The Narragansetts and Mohegans were rival races and very jealous of each other, and not long after the battle on the 'Great Plains' between these two Indian nations, Pessacus, the brother of Miantonomo, invaded the territory of the Mohegans with a large force, committing many depredations. Uncas retreated to his fort on the river, sending his women and children to places of safety, and awaited the siege of the Narragansetts. The enemy captured a large number of canoes of the Mohegans and cut off their retreat by water. The siege continued for some time, but one night a trusted messenger left the fort, crossing the country to Saybrook, where he made known the desperate situation that the Mohegans were in. Measures were taken by the English to help the besieged Indians and Lieut. Thomas Leffingwell and others were sent to Fort Shantok. They loaded a canoe with beef, corn, peas and other provisions and paddled from Saybrook to the Thames, arriving at night. No sooner were the provisions landed when there were great shouts of exultation from the Mohegans, and at daybreak this tribe elevated a large piece of beef on a pole, and the Narragansetts were made aware of the presence of the English and abandoned the siege, returning to their homes. Many other invasions were made and in one attack on this fort four Mohegan sagamores and two warriors were killed and thirty or forty wounded. Later the Narragansetts, Niantics, Norwoottucks and Pocomtocks made an attack and the English came to the assistance of their friends, the Mohegans. The Chamber of Commerce have been very active in advocating a state park on this site, and their efforts have been well supplemented by the New London Chamber of Commerce, as the Mohegans are certainly worthy of a memorial."

The party then proceeded to Norwich, where the 'Royal Burying Ground," the Uncas monument and Indian Leap were visited. The visitors were very much interested in the historical places around Norwich and plans were discussed by the executives to make pilgrimages to Fort Shantok next summer and have an over-night camp. It was also suggested that if the site was made a park an Indian village could be erected on the village site by the Scouts.

The following named executives comprised the party: Carl E. Northrup of New Haven, Fred Hill of Hartford, Alfred H. Breckbill of Bristol, Walter O'Cook of New Britain, John D. Roberts of Meriden, Frederick C. Burdick of New London, Gordon Williams of Bridgeport, H. H. Hannon of Naugatuck, Harry T. French, New Haven; J. H. Saum of New Haven, M. L. Robinson of New Haven, H. S. Douglass, New London; Charles E. Chittenden, New London; F. A. Benton and Arthur L. Peale, Norwich.

T. G. Rokestrom, of 808 Loraine St., Detroit, writes: "I suffered with piles for over 25 years—nothing did me any good. After my fourth box of Peterson's Ointment I am all right. It is the greatest ointment I ever heard of." 35c.

MADE LUCKY DISCOVERY OF BAKERY FIRE

Alertness on the part of Police Officer Peter Vuono prevented what would have been a disastrous fire in the bakery at No. 82 Franklin street conducted by Emil M. Fox early Sunday morning. While making his rounds about 3 o'clock Sunday morning Officer Vuono went through the alley in the rear of the bakery and discovered flames in the vicinity of the bakery oven. The officer hurried back through the alley and across Chestnut street to the central fire station where he awakened Assistant Chief Henry R. Taft.

The department was quickly on the scene. A line of hose was laid from the hydrant near the station and run through the alley to the bake shop. A 25 gallon tank of chemical, two small tanks and a small quantity of water were used on the blaze. Saturday afternoon a shipment of oiled paper used in rolling up the loaves of bread had been received and had been unpacked and piled against the oven. The oiled paper caught fire rom the heat of the oven and was just beginning to spread when the fire was discovered by Officer Vuano. Given five minutes more the rapidly spreading flames would have turned the interior of the bake shop into a veritable furnace. As it was, the fire had burned through a three inch flooring.

RAN ONTO SIDEWALK WITH HIS AUTOMOBILE

While Fred Mitterer of Laurel Hill was operating his automobile Friday night he ran it up onto the sidewalk on Bath street and was arrested by officers William Sharvan and Peter Vicone for operating an automobile while intoxicated.

CROWDED OFF ROAD AUTOMOBILE HITS POLE

Crowded off the road near South Windham Sunday afternoon by a swiftly passing car, the Chandler sedan of John Rogers, which was driven by Theodore Richards of 27 Division street, struck a pole and two occupants of the car were cut by broken glass. Miss Mary Shea received a cut on the forehead and a bruised hip and Conrad Gendron received cuts and bruises. They were attended by Dr. Boris Sohn, Miss Shea remaining at the Backus hospital over night.

The machine that made the trouble went by so fast that the registration numbers could not be secured. It was a Hudson sedan.

Small Fire on Fifth Street

A few mintes before 7 o'clock Saturday night the fire department responded to a telephone call for a small fire in the house at 87 1-2 Fifth street owned by John Prezekop and occupied by Andrew Preszekop and family. The fire was confined to a clothes closet, and the flames were quickly extinguished, small loss resulting. Some member of the family had evidently gone into the closet with a light and accidently set some of the clothes on fire. When the closet door was opened a short time later smoke poured in to the room, and the call for the fire department was sent in.

Please give me one day

Does that sound like an odd request? Perhaps so, but she is merely calling our laundry where she knows there are days for sale. Every week she has been calling for her day—extra time for the many things she wants to do. One day every week—that's 52 days every year — one whole year in every seven.

We not only give her this extra time but relieve her of the drudgery of wash-day—and the ironing, too, if she desires. The cost is surprisingly low. She merely phones—and we call for her bundle. Then the day belongs to her. It's more than a fair exchange.

George Stuyvesant of Troy, N. Y., "Strong Arm Man," Positively Indentified by Man Who Witnessed the Shooting, of Patrolman James Skelly—Stuyvesant Was Arrested Last Friday Afternoon Within the Recently Established Uptown Deadline in New York City—Is Held Without Bail Pending Extradition Proceedings.

New York, Nov. 17.—George Stuyvesant, 26, of Troy, N. Y., known to local police as a "strong arm man," today was positively identified as one of two men who shot and killed Patrolman James Skelly of New Britain, Conn., last October 12.

He was held without bail pending extradition proceedings by the Connecticut authorities.

The identification was made by a man whose name was said by the police to be Edward Jackson, but who is believed to be Edward Johnson, of New Britain, who witnessed the shooting of the policeman. He chose Stuyvesant from a police lineup of several score men, unhesitatingly pronouncing him the man he had seen fleeing from the department store of Davidson & Leventhal in New Britain immediately proceeding the gun fight in which Skelley lost his life. He also witnessed the murder.

The police said the witness had identified Walter Shean, son of a prominent Springfield, Mass., family, as Stuyvesant's companion the night of the frustrated robbery and murder.

It was explained that the witness's real name was withheld as the police feared Stuyvesant's friends, said to be gunmen, would attempt to injured the man who identified him.

Gerald Chapman, who still is at large after his escape from the federal prison at Atlanta, where he was serving a sentence for his share in a $2,000,000 mail robbery in New York a few years ago, was first sought as Shean's companion. The police admitted today that Chapman was not concerned with the New Britain crime and that announcement of his connection with the case had been made to throw the real criminal off his guard.

Stuyvesant was arrested last Friday by police detectives who found him within the recently established uptown dead line. Recognizing as a man who recently finished a sentence in Sing Sing for robbery, the police questioned him concerning a recent Times Square subway robbery. One of the detectives noted Stuyvesant's similarity to that of the man whose description had been broadcast in the Skelly case, and Detective Sergeant McCue of New Britain was asked to come here to look at the prisoner. McCue brought Johnson with him.

Johnson was passing the Davidson & Leventhal store just as two men, since identified as Shean and Stuyvesant, ran from the place after having blown the safe. They met Patrolman Skelly, who opened fire. One of the fugitives returned the fire, and Skelly was mortally wounded. Shean was said by the police to have confessed participation in the crime, but to have laid the shooting to his companion.

Stuyvesant also is known to the police as Charles Clarke and Charles Galler. The police said he had lost an eye in a pistol fight with policemen in Harlem several years ago.

Detectives said that also Stuyvesant admitted knowing Shea, he denied being in New Britain at the time of the murder.

The police also questioned him concerning the shooting of two patrolmen near the Hotel Ansonia in 1920.

TAX DECISION WILL SAVE NEW YORK STATE $300,000,000

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The decision of the United States supreme court handed down today declaring valid and constitutional the New York state privilege or franchise tax upon corporations organized outside but doing business with this state, saved the commonwealth from the compulsion of paying back $300,000,000 to manufacturing and mercantile corporations taxed under the Emerson income tax law of 1917, and ensuing financial embarrassment, it was said here tonight by Attorney General Carl Sherman.

The decision, the attorney general said, in effect sustains the constitutionality of the corporation income tax law which has been under legal attack since its enactment and assures to the state some $60,000,000 in corporation taxes each year. Had the state been required to return the levies serious financial embarrassment would have resulted, he added.

Deputy Attorney General Claude T. Dawes represented Attorney General Sherman in repelling the legal attack made on the law by the Gorham Manufacturing company, a Rhode Island concern producing silverware, and the British company of bass ale. The firms were represented by James M. Beck, former United States solicitor general. John J. Merrill, represented the New York state tax department.

DISTRIBUTION OF BRITISH FILENE PEACE PRIZES

London, Nov. 17.—In distributing the British Filene peace prizes today at Kings college, Viscount Cecil applauded the Filene scheme as calculated to promote agreement among nations. He remarked that almost all of the 4,700 British essays submitted in the peace contest were in support of the league of nations. He said that getting the intelligence of Europe to think about this subject was of itself of immense value for the success or failure of the league depended not upon governments but upon peoples.

He added that it was essential the people should ever be considering where the league was faulty and how it could be improved and developed.

GASOLINE EXPLOSION KILLED TWO MEN, INJURED DOZEN; DESTROYED TWO SHIPS

First Blast Occurred When Barge Was Taking on a Cargo of Gasoline From a Steamship Docked in Staten Island Sound.

Warners, N. J., Nov. 17.—Two lives were lost, more than a dozen persons injured, two boats destroyed and docks along the Staten Island waterfront here were laid waste tonight when fire, following an explosion on an oil barge, caused a loss estiated at $700,000, including 87,000 gallons of gasoline.

The blast occurred shortly after 6 o'clock aboard barge No. 44 of the Lambert Transportation company of New York, which was taking on a load of barreled gasoline from the steamship William Boyce Thompson, owned by the Sinclair Navigation company, also of New York, a subsidiary of the Sinclair Oil company.

The gasoline was consigned to the Utility Oil company of New York. It was brought here from Houston, Tex., on the Sinclair ship, the last stop of which was at Philadelphia, where a portion of its cargo was left.

Both the oceangoing craft and the barge were destroyed by fire which quickly enveloped the two boats as well as the docks, destroying everything in its pathway.

Capt. Fred Myers of New York was the only person on the barge. He and a carpenter on the other boat were missing when a checkup of the men was made tonight and both were thought to have been blown to pieces in th blast. The carpenter's name could not be learned.

Several men on the Sinclair steamer had their clothing completely ripped off in the blast and they were compelled to jump into the cold waters of the sound to escape almost sure death. Had they remained on the craft, they would probably have been burned to death, for the flames spread with lightning-like rapidity and it was practically impossible to make any effort to check their onrush.

The Sinclair boat carried a crew of 36 men, all of whom emerged from the wreck bearing some marks of the blast. Some were burned in various degrees of seriousness, while others wer cut and bruised by flying timber and barrel rims which were let loose when the gasoline in the individual containers exploded.

Howard Penquit and Christian Kuhlman, both of New York, and crew members, were removed to a Linden hospital. They were thought to have been the most seriously injured, but attending physicians described their condition as not critical.

The docks, in addition to the two boats, and the cargo of oil which was being transferred, were tonight thought to be a complete loss.

The fire raged throughout the night despite the efforts of all available fighting forces to check it. The boats broke loose from their dock moorings and continued burning furiously as they drifted aimlessly in the water.

Soon after the blast, word of it was sent to H. J. Billingsley at his Cranford home. Mr. Billingsley, a representative and official of the Sinclair Oil company, was soon on the scene and commenced a check on the loss. The exact amount, he said, would not probably be known for several days, but he ventured the prediction that it would reach at least $700,000.

Mass Production The Road to Prosperity

Needs of New England Outlined by Edward A. Filene at Convention of Advertising Clubs in Hartford.

Hartford, Nov. 17.—New England's future prosperity depends on the development of mass production through great beneficial trusts which the public must "help to work within the law," Edward A. Filene told the New England District Convention of Associated Advertising Clubs of the World in an address this afternoon on "The Way Out For New England."

"Business in New England must be reorganized on a basis of mass production and mass distribution, to compete with the great national trusts that are developing in European countries to recover their markets," Mr. Filene said. He warned that the public must completely revise its idea of big business.

Big Business Machinery of Progress.

"The business of the future has got to be bigger than it is now to be successful enough to survive," he declared. "Mass production is coming in every country. Mass production is possible only through big business. We must realize that big business is an improved machine. If we are to have big wages, we must help big business work within the law. We are already well into the first stages of the second industrial revolution. Big business for mass production is the machinery of progress. We do not want to be in the same position as those who destroyed the first machines because they put some people out of work."

Low Prices and Higher Wages.

"Big business is not bad in itself. It may have bad spots in this its pioneer stage. But it is incomparably more practical and better than the alternatives of socialism and communism. We have been trying to destroy the machinery of big business because in some case, it has been misused. No business, big or little, has any right to profit except through service. If it is a service, the bigger it is the more service it can render."

The new mass production will reverse the old process in industory and seek to get prices down and wages up, because it will depend on mass selling, which demands mass buying power, Mr. Filene said. He called the process of mass production and mass distribution "Fordizing" industry. The Ford vertical trust, he said, had shown the way. New England industry must be "Fordized" to survive in the super-competition Mr. Filene sees coming out of great combinations of European industry.

Mass production will eliminate waste, harness New England's unused water power, and unite small businesses in chain consolidations, Mr. Filene said. He saw these chain industries succeeding in mass production without great centralization. Factory units of the chain, scattered along water power streams, would provide part time employment in many farming communities.

New England is better fitted than any other part of the country, by her resources and natural advantages, to follow Ford's lead in mass production, according to the Boston merchant.

"Fordized" New England.

"The shoe industry offers an illustration of the pressing need for 'Fordizing' New England business," he said. "While the shoe business suffers here, consolidations of shoe manufacturers in St. Louis, New York and other places are prospering under mass production."

"Advertising in the new order," he said, "must assume more and heavier responsibilities. The change to mass production and mass distribution will be made most rapidly through big advertising. The great profits of mass production and mass distribution will go almost wholly to big advertisers and big advertising, provided it is done truthfully and effectively. Advertising must take a firmer, more valuable place as a necessary power in our economic system."

"New England industry will overcome rail transportation handicaps by developing ocean transport," Mr. Filene said. "Our seaports are our chief stock in trade. By water we are nearer two-thirds of the buying population of America than Chicago is, judging 'nearness' by total cost of transportation.

"As New England industry is forced to meet world competition, the development of free ports is inevitable. In the 'Fordized' New England factories will be built on the water front, loading and unloading directly from ships and freight cars. Exempt from duties, goods can be made for export in the free port at low cost.

"A 'Fordized' New England will apply the art and science of its technical schools to the development of art products that will compete with those of Paris in world markets. The only danger that threatens New England industry is the possibility that her business men will not anticipate and prepare for the radical changes in world methods of production and distribution. New England prosperity depends on the promptness with which these changes are met."

Wintry Gale Caused Deaths And Damage

Man and Woman Perished in New York — Small Craft Were Swept to Sea With Half-Frozen Crews.

New York, Nov. 17.—New York shivered today, the coldest November 17 in the city in the records of the weather bureau.

The 60-mile breezing blast that put the thermometers at 18 degrees above zero, brought death and destruction with it. Two persons, a man and a woman, died as a result of the storm, the first of the winter. Ships, pounded by furious seas and bucking head winds, fought their way into port several hours late and wearing the year's first coats of ice, and small craft were swept to sea with their half-frozen crews. Ashore less havic was wrought with trees and window panes.

Neither of the cold wave victims was identified. The man, apparently about 60, was found frozen to death over an engine room grating of a lower East Side building. The fires had not been stoked last night and there was no heat coming through the grate bars.

The woman, known to her companion, James Tetorar, a scow captain, only as "Julia," died of exposure after the high wind had caused her to lose her balance as she attempted to board Letora's craft, throwing her into the East river. Letora shattered his leg in rescuing her. He dragged her ashore and then had to crawl half a mile to get help. The woman was dead when he returned with a policeman and an ambulance.

Five men were rescued at sea from an open boat found by the coast guard cutter Seminole. Jacob Enrick, Navesink, N. J., and William Trainor, Atlantic Highlands, N. J., were found in a disabled motor boat. Three others were rescued from the former sub-chaser Nomad which the winds had overturned in Long Island sound.

The weather bureau predicted a rising temperature tomorrow.

Boston, Nov. 17.—Wintry weather brought death to one man and discomfort to thousands in Great Boston today. John H. Murphy, found unconscious in a doorway in the Roxbury district, died later. Temperatures fell as low as 10 degrees, unofficial, and the weather bureau thermometer recorded a minimum of 14. It was the coldest November 17 on record here.

REV. FOSDICK HAS SEVERED CONNECTION WITH PRESBYTERY

New York, Nov. 17.—The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Baptist minister, will sever all connections with the first Presbyterian church on March 1, 1925, it was decided at a meeting of the New York Presbytery here today. In the meantime he will remain at the church as a special preacher.

The presbytery took this action by accepting with only two dissenting votes the report of a special committee which transmitted the reply of the First church congregation to the demand of the Presbyterian general assembly that Dr. Fosdick either become affiliated with the Presbyterian church or relinquish his pulpit.

A motion that Dr. Fosdick resign immediately was defeated by a vote of 65 to 18. Vigorous arguments marked the meeting and at one time a speaker remarked that "the action of the Presbytery seemed like persecution of Dr. Fosdick." He was told that: "We are in no position to persecute Dr. Fosdick because he is not a member of the Presbyterian church."

After heated arguments the consensus of opinion as expressed in the meeting was that the action finally taken was inevitable and that to invite Dr. Fosdick to continue to occupy the pulpit as a "guest" would be an evasion of the spirit of the law of the church and an observance merely of the letter of the law.

CAUTION AGAINST THE HASTY FORMATIO NOF LABOR BANKS

El Paso, Texas., Nov. 17.—(By the A. P.)—A caution to labor organizations "against the hasty formation of labor banks," was sounded in the opening session today of the forty-fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

"Labor, in this new field of activity, has not passed the complete period of experimentation," the executive council of the federation reported to the convention in its annual resume of last year's activities.

The executive council again warns organized labor and its membership against the hasty formation of labor banks and calls attention to the need of the most careful investigation and survey of all conditions surrounding such ventured," the report said.

"The organization and operation of banking institutions by trade unionists has continued to make progress during the year. It is estimated that the total resources of labor banks in his country exceed sixty million dollars.

There are at present 23 labor banks in operation, the report revealed.

President Gompers in his annual address to the convention appealed for strict adherence to the federation's traditional policy of voluntary action.

"We have tried and proved these principles in economic, political, social and international relations," he said. "They have been tried and not found wanting."

The American convention met in joint session late today with the Mexican Confederation of Labor holding its annual meeting in Juares, Mexico.

SIX MEN IN SMALL MOTORBOAT RESCUED OFF BLOCK ISLAND

New London, Nov. 17. — Found aboard the steamer Hiram McLean, which was anchored in Rum Row off Block Island, six men who had been reported missing from Montauk Point since last Thursday, were brought into this port late last night by the coast guard vessel Cassin

Word that the men were missing was received by Captain William H. Munter, commander of the destroyer force in the New London district, and he dispatched the Cassin to look for them. When found, the men's small motor boat was attached to the stern of the Hiram McLean.

The men expressed a wish to get back to Montauk Point, so the Cassin took them in tow and headed for that place. Shortly after leaving Rum Row, however, the commander of the Cassin discovered that the vessel in tow was sinking. The men were taken off by the destroyer just in time, for a few minutes later the small boat sank to the water line. As it was considered a menace to navigation, the Cassin commander ordered it sunk by gunfire.

The Cassin then headed for New London and the men were landed here. As there was no charge against them, they were immediately released. Their names could not be learned as the only record of the incident was that kept by the Cassin which immediately returned to sea after landing the men. The men disappeared after their release.

PROCEDURE ADOPTED BY ARICULTURAL COMMISION

Washington, Nov. 17.—The commission recently appointed by President Coolidge to make a comprehensive analysis and report on farm problems with a view to arriving at a program for the permanent stabilization of agriculture, decided at its initial meeting today to proceed along three lines, namely the study of pending farm legislation, inquiry into the administration of present laws, and plans for inculcating in the farmer appreciation of the value of cooperation.

Eight of the nine members of the commission called at the White House before entering executive session at the department of agriculture, and were welcomed by President Coolidge. The president addressed the members briefly, it is understood that he made no recommendations, instead placing the problems entirely upon the commission for examination and recommendation and at the same time giving assurance that the inquiry need not be limited in scope and that the commission will have at all times the cooperation of all government departments.

Mr. Coolidge in discussing the agricultural situations as it stands today is understood to have followed in general the subject as outlined by him in a public address last week before the Association of Land Grant Colleges.

"It is very evident," said a statement issued late in the day at the agriculture department based on comments of the commissioners," that the president had a thorough knowledge of the agricultural situation and was sincere in his efforts that something should be done to bring about better conditions in agriculture and a better balance between agriculture and other industries."

CHANGE IN OWNERSHIP OF BRIDGEPORT NEWSPAPER

Bridgeport, Nov. 17.—One of the oldest newspapers in the United States, the Bridgeport Times (and Evening Farmer), today passed into the control of Kendall B. Cressey, a prominent newspaper publisher.

The Evening Farmer was founded in 1790 and continued publication in that name for 130 years, until August, 1920, when it was sold to a company that changed its name to the Bridgeport Times. The editorial page heading uses the name the Bridgeport Times and Evening Farmer, although the first page heading is simply the Bridgeport Times. The newspaper is now in its 135th year.

In taking over the control of the Times Publishing company and the Bridgeport Times, Mr. Cressey announces plans of expansion that forecast a new era of newspaper publishing in Bridgeport.

The new publisher also announces the prospective organization of a new company to be known as the Bridgeport Times company.

Mr. Cressey has been the owner of two successful newspapers, the Austin (Texas) Morning American and the Springfield (Ohio) Morning Sun, and has been prominently identified with metropolitan newspapers as business manager of the Philadelphia Record, publication manager of the Chicago Herald-Examiner, general manager of the New York Herald, publisher of the Boston Advertiser, president of the Boston Production company (the production company of W. H. Hearst's three Boston newspapers), and, until recently, of the general management of all the Hearst newspapers.

Mr. Cressey comes of Connecticut ancestry. His maternal ancestor, William Janes, was one of the original small group that founded the New Haven colony in 1639. On his paternal side, his grandfather, Rev. Dr. Timothy R. Cressey, was born in Pomfret, Conn.

ONE MAN DEAD, FATE OF SEVEN OTHERS UNKNOWN

Rockland, Me., Nov. 17.—One man is dead, a second is in a hospital here suffering from shock and exposure and fears were expressed tonight for the safety of seven others, members of the crews of a string of the crews of a string of three barges, one of which foundered off Monhegan Island today in the 70-mile gale that swept this coast. The two other barges were adrift in the heavy seas tonight.

Captain Albert Peterson of Brooklyn, N. Y., in charge of the barge Canisto, died in the freezing water when he leaped overboard made fast to a line which the coast guard cutter Osipee had shot across the bow of the barge. Raymond Dulud of Pawtucket, R. I., is in a hospital here as the result of the shock suffered when he leaped into the ocean to be hauled aboard the coast guard vessel. The fate of the crews of the other two barges, consisting of three men each, was not known.

Little hope was held out for three men, however, when the cutter reached this port late tonight reporting that one of the barges had sunk before she arrived on the scene while no sign of the crew could be discovered aboard the second of the remaining two barges left afloat. It was thought they might possibly have reached the tug Kingfisher which had been hauling the strings after taking to life boats.

Joseph Franckiewicz, 37, of Hartford, was fatally injured Sunday afternoon in a fall from a walnut tree at the farm of Victor Mech on Ash street, where he was spending the week-end with his family. The man sustained fractured of the skull, vertebrae, one arm and other injuries as the result of which he died in the evening at St. Joseph's hospital. Franckiewicz had climbed a tree and stood on a limb some twenty-five feet from the ground to shake off walnuts. The limb broke, throwing him to the ground. He struck on his head and was immediately rendered unconscious. Dr. Ottenheimer, who was called ordered his transfer to the hospital where it was decided that he had no chance for recovery. Medical Examiner Dr. Louis J. Mason viewed the body and gave permission for its removal by an undertaking firm. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lena Franckiewicz of Hartford; his parents and several brothers and sisters residing in Poland. The body has been taken to the Mech home, 374 Ash street.

Following a clue secured through the identification of a socket wrench, said to have been stolen, Tony Kavlac of 11 Milk street was in police court Monday morning, charged with the theft of four boxes of coils, valued at $13 from the Fort automobile owned by Daniel F. Curran, a tenant in the same building. Curran and Alfred Daigneault recognized a wrench which Kavlac claimed was his own, as one that had disappeared from Curran's car some time ago. Curran said that about 12.30 o'clock Sunday morning he heard peculiar noises in his yard and going to the door he could see a man's feet sticking out from his Ford car. He called twice before the man sat up and he saw that it was Kavlac. Fearing some ruse to harm him he did not go down to the car, but went in search of an officer and found Captain Thomas F. Grady. The arrest followed an investigation. Mrs. Josephine Curran wife of the plaintiff testified to recognizing Kavlac as the man who was in the Ford car. The four coil boxes in the Ford had been removed and the boxes were later found near the house. Kavlac denied any guilt in the matter. Judge Foss imposed a fine of $25 and costs, amounting to $31.15 which was paid.

John W. Rose, who passed his 90th year October 27, was painfully injured late Saturday afternoon, in the town building, when he stumbled and fell down the short flight of stone stairs leading from the main lobby at the front entrance of the building. The accident was not of a serious nature, Mr. Rose escaping with a discolored right eye, scratches on the forehead and bruises on one thigh. On the supposition that there was a hand-railing on the side of the wainscoting Mr. Rose reached out for it, lost his balance and pitched forward to the landing. First Selectman Russell A. Andrews and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton accompanied Mr. Rose in an automobile to his boarding place. Mr. Rose stated Monday that he was feeling quite well and he was not obliged to keep to his bed.

Pearson and Supreme Treasurer Albert Young of Boston and John Andrews of Hartford.

The several hundred automobile owners in this vicinity who neglected to take precautionary measures and put wood alcohol in the radiators of the cars, accounted for the fact that many hundred people in distress, after dawn Monday, when the bottom had dropped out of the thermometer and the mercury was gradually slipping out of sight. Every public garage, large and small, was filled to capacity by noon with machines suffering from frozen motors, cracked cylinder blocks and dead batteries. The hustle for quick service kept garagemen on the jump all day long and dispensers of denatured alcohol had more business than they could take care of.

In answer to a telephone message from the Providence police department the local police placed under arrest, upon their arrival here in an automobile, Mr. and Mrs. George Nicholson, gypsies, wanted in the Rhode Island city for the theft of $50. Nicholson and another gypsy family named Smith have been camping in the woods and fields in the vicinity of Phelps' Crossing, for the past month. Both families had gone to Providence and Sunday the Nicholsons hired a car to make a trip back to this city. The $50 was purported to have been stolen from the Smith family and they arrived here later in the day only to inform the police here that the $50 believed stolen by Nicholson or his wife had been found. The Nicholsons were then released and the men left the police station in evident friendliness.

NEAR EAST DINNER FOR BENEVOLENT CITIZENS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Nov. 17.—Over 100 public spirited citizens gathered at the chamber of commerce Monday evening for a Golden Rule dinner, prepared by Mrs. Jennie Birbarie, of Syria, a resident of this city and served by young women representing the city churches. The menu was an exact duplicate of the food provided children in the Near East orphanages. The basis of the meal was an Armenian dish known as "pelas" rice and stewed apricots, half black bread and cocoa were also served. The bread was the gift of Max Mandell of this city. The cocoa was served in tin cups some of which were made from condensed cans by the children of Armenia. Ornamental pottery bowls in exquisite designs and beautiful colors made by the blind children in orphanages were displayed on the tables and were a source of much interest. Charles W. Hill was toastmaster. Two solos, Sunrise and Dew, and In the Time of Roses, were sung by Arthur Roy, baritone, accompanied by Mrs. Ernest Higgins. John W. Mace, national director of the Near East movement, stated that the real holy places in the Near East today are not the holy places of tradition, but the office of a Near East Relief where over 40,000 children are being provided for and taught to earn a living, but according to statistics by ex-Ambassador Henry Morganthau, there are yet in the Near East 90,000 children so acutely destitute that they cannot survive the winter without help. America's "Golden Rule" contribution to civilization is an inestimable contribution toward world peace.

A song specially adapted, written by Annie J. Greenwich of Plainville was sung by Edward Rocheville.

Mr. Mace was followed by a five minute talk by Rev. A. C. Wheelock of the Congregaitonal church. Rev. Mr. Graham and the Rev. F. F. Foshay, of the local Baptist church.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the announcement made by C. W. Hill of the committee on arrangements, who explained the various donations which made it possible for the dinned to be given without charge. The use of the hall was the donation of the chamber of commerce. The brown paper which covered the tables and the paper plates were the gift of the H. C. Murray Co. The apricots were from from Alford, Larrance Co., and the tin cups from Woolworth and the karo with which the apricots were prepared were supplied by Karo Corn Products Co. The Lyric dance orchestra, both of the soloists and accompanists, as well as all the speakers gave their services.

Following the dinner an address was given by H. F. Kazmire of Hartford, state director of the Near East movement, accompanied by pictures taken by Mr. Kazmire in the Near East, showing the children and interesting things pertaining to their life and training. The stereopticon was loaned by the Baptist church and was operated by Stanley Andrews. Of the people present a certain number had pledged themselves to secure its quota for Willimantic, which is the care of 40 orphans. It has been arranged by Mrs. H. C. Lathrop, chairman, to hold a similar dinner in the towns of Windham and South Windham jointly Monday evening next. One hundred small communities in Connecticut have organized to promote the Near East movement.

Hen Tracks Whitened Sugar.

The secret of making sugar perfectly white was discovered through accident, when a hen that had been walking in a muddy place perambulated into a sugar house and left tracks on a pile of sugar. When the tracks dried it was noticed that the sugar beneath them was whiter than elsewhere. In this way it was discovered that sugar could be refined by the use of wet clay.

Broadway Theater

All that one could desire on one program! That's just the kind of show you'll see at the Broadway theater today and Wednesday. This great program was greeted by a capacity audience yesterday all of whom praised it highly.

Lonzo and Marv in A Few Cuttins Remarks presented a novelty shadowgraph act interspersed with comedy and song.

Bright comedy patter snatches of song and instrumental music is feature in Garo and Costello's offering entitled After the Banquet.

Five charming misses out in their appearance next. They are dancers unique. Headed by Grace Edler this act scored an undividual hit. Ray Conlin, the sub-vocal comedian, uses his voice for humorous purposes. He is one of the best ventriloquists on the stage today.

For a closing offering Chappelle and Carlton presented Just a Few Things You Haven't Seen. It is a mid air classic.

A Zane Grey story and Paramount picture, featuring Antonio Moreno and Helene Chadwick, couldn't be anything else but first class entertainment. And that's just what one finds in The Border Legion at the Broadway theater.

The story deals with a band of conscienceless outlaws known as the Border Legion, who rode the South of Idaho in the days when the west was the west. It's a fast-moving action-romance with appealing love scenes, raids, fights and big scenes galore—and, too, that 'something' which prevents its being classed as "just another 'western.'"

Breed Theater

Emmett Flynn, whose work as director and scenario writer, has brought him into prominence in the motion picture world, directed the William Fox version of The Man Who Came Back, adapted from the novel by John Fleming Wilson. It will be recalled that Jules Eckert Goodman based his stage success on the book, the play being produced by William A. Brady in 1917.

Mary Nash and Henry Hull had the principal parts and the play remained on Broadway more than a year. It played Chicago for twenty-one weeks and in another production Conrad Nagel had the leading role with equally successful results.

George O'Brien and Dorothy Mackaill have the leads in the picture version and are supported by a notable cast which includes Cyril Chadwick, Ralph Lewis, Emily Fitzroy, Harvey Clark and others equally well known.

The story concerns a wealthy New Yorker who goes wrong and by a process of degradation becomes a beach comber in the Orient. The love of a woman awakens his self respect eventually, but not until a romantic story of pathos and action has been unfolded step by step. The picture will be shown at the Breed theater today and Wednesday and other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news, Hodge Podge, a cartoon and pictures of the big Armistice day celebration.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Old Jack Frost is a tough bird. It seems he delights in confounding people. Apparently he has no friends in the weather bureau—for among the people who are so more or less unfortunate as to own automobiles.

He appeared Sunday night without and advance advertising. He raged in for his real onslaught of the season, like a thief in the night. It was at attack in the dark and few were prepared for it.

With gasoline at the lowest price in years, scores of automobilists in this territory were unable to take advantage of the fact Monday. Their machines had fallen victims to the Frost King. None but the garage men cheered. They were deluged with a plethora of business. All of them looked happy—even when they said in all truth—"We simply can't do it today." The automobilists said: "O, swink it!" None of them swear.

Incidentally, the damage to cars runs into hundreds of dollars. That isn't surprising when one considers that few expected near-zero weather after November days that would fit well in October's graciousness. The records here Monday morning showed minimum temperatures of from 10 to 4 above zero. Some weather for mid-November! The Weather Man must be rated a rotter. It is barely possible that he has a friend anywhere at this time of year—least of all among owners of cars that have a penchant for freezing up. When he holds the temperature down to 19 degrees at noon on a bright, sunny day he appears a bit unreasonable. But that is what he did Monday. He seemed to delight in rubbing it in. But his chance for the winter season is gone with the motorists. They won't trust him any more this year, and spring will have to show all kinds of encouragement in 1925 before they really believe that the freezing season is over. Jack Frost from now on will have as much chance as to freezing cars as LaFollette had in the election a few days since, not to mention some other things that would irritate not a few of the people who guessed wrong on the election.

Well seasoned wood for sale, 4 ft. or stove lengths. Phone 77-5. Peter Bernier, 29 Reynolds St., Danielson.—adv.

There's a big news item in Danielson! It has to do with a subject about which only a little can be said; at least, the important matter of the name of the person must be left out. This isn't an exclusive article, which once in a World war develops here—so infrequently that a paper that achieves one makes mention of it. It has to do with two football tickets for the Yale-Harvard game at New Haven next Saturday. A man here has such tickets. He is proud of the fact. Well he might be. They cost him $3 each. Lucky again. His name can't be printed because those tickets are in actuality worth their weight in gold. Publicity might subject him to assault and battery, robbery and possibly divorce proceedings in this queer age. If his possession of the tickets remains a secret until after the game, his name will be given. On second thought, what's the use of holding out until someone else prints the story. All may as well be sold here. On third thought, which is unusual, we'll take a chance on being beat. One can't expose to public greed such a fortunate person as a holder of two good tickets for the real football classic of the year. If any other person cares to accept the risk, let the consequences be his own!

Something has got to be done about people who are addicted to listening over the radio. They are finding out all kinds of things they never knew before. Last week a lecture told about a certain planet having two moons, each revolving in opposite directions. That was news to the most people who heard about it. Saturday hundreds of people hereabouts heard all about the football games, play by play, without leaving their comfortable firesides. They were robbed as prospects for actual admission to the games at $2 per head. Sunday the same regiment of radio devotees attended anywhere from two to six church services. The services were those of different denominations. It was true that the sermons contained little of creed and all of the music was inspiring. But what about being unorthodox? There's the rub! It appears to be doctrinal that one must be allowed to roam about too much when one has supposedly fixed opinions on any given subject. The radio must be a menace. Else it would not tell so many different versions about so many different things. All of which should be enough to tempt about anyone who has the price to buy a set—or make one. Sounds like an advertisement for radio sets. But it isn't. Anyone so impressed is invited to go out and build an automobile, as has been suggested might be done by those who might like a radio. The point is that the public must be regulated. A world of information and entertainment has thrown its doors wide open. And the public isn't supposed to know what's good for it, though it may be the best judge.

Now that the final reports are in for Tag Day for the district nurse, it is most gratifying to find that, in spite of business depression in Danielson during these last months, the total returns $564.44 exceeded those of last year, which up to that time had been the record amount received. It is evident that the communities served by the district nurse are becoming more and more keenly appreciative of the value of the work accomplished, and of the necessity as well as pleasure of contributing to aid its support.

There is another factor in connection with this work which is of no small value to the community. In it is a meeting ground for all classes and a common interest in which all may share.

To all who assisted in making Tag Day such an unqualified success, the Civic Federation was expressing Monday heartfelt thanks, mentioning the newspapers for their repeated notices, the Orpheum theatre for its screen advertisement and the many who directly solicited the money. A list of these follows:

Mrs. Ernest Warren, Miss Ella Day, Miss Laura Chase, Miss Ruth Fiske, Mrs. R. D. Banigan, Mrs. Oswald Street, Mrs. C. W. Atwood, Miss M. J. Mendall, Mrs. J. Herbert Smith, Miss Annie E. Day, Mrs. A. L. A man came racing out of Water street into Main street, just after an alarm for fire rang in Monday morning. He was on his way to the blaze. Halting as hurriedly as he has been traveling, he stood and gazed up at the Hyde block, sort of puzzled like. There was no smoke nor blaze there. Nor on any of the other buildings thereabouts. "How come?" he must have inquired mentally. "There was an alarm and there is the latter truck. And there isn't any crowd.

The ladder truck was there sure enough, but it didn't belong to the Danielson department. It was a nice, shiny, new one being driven over the road from the factory to Thomaston, this state. The men who had it in charge had parked for the time being to get a hot drink at a nearby drug store. They were not interested in the fire.

John F. Lewis is leaving in December for several weeks' trip to California. He will be accompanied by his sister. Mr. Lewis formerly owner of the Orpheum theatre, here, recently has disposed of his manufacturing business in Providence. He is recovering from an attack of illness and is to make the trip to the coast as a journey intended for relaxation and in the interest of his health.

At 10.20 Monday morning a box alarm called out the fire department to combat a chimney blaze at the old Burlingame property, next to the public library. Firemen spent some time in getting the situation cleared up, but the damage to the house was not at all material. Attohney A. G. Bill is the present owner of the property.

A lady's gold watch with hunting case, initials engraved N. M. K. lost Saturday between West Side and Orpheum theatre. Reward. Notify 71 South Main St., Danielson.—adv.

Due admittedly to the fact that there was heavy rain and snow in Waterbury Sunday, and, presumably, because it was consarnedly cold here Monday, Governor Templeton is forecasted as about to call off the ban on hunting in the state this morning. In the meantime the woods hereabouts are about as dry and tinder-like as they have been during all the banned period for hunting. In any event, that can't be blamed on th eradio.

Killingly High School Alumni association has an informal dance planned to be held at the assembly hall of the high school Thanksgiving eve. The committee in charge of the arrangements is made up of Miss Marjorie J. Gaffney, Arthur F. Hughes, Leo Bode, C. Clinton Cleveland, Norman A. Reeves and Florence F. Hargraves, officers and members of the executive committee of the association.

At Woodward's store, Monday morning, the mercury stood at 10 above zero at 7.30. Over by the state armory where the wind gets a full sweep down the river it was said to have been 4 degrees above.

Unexpected coming of real cold threw numbers of painters and others who had things to do out of doors out of employment Monday.

Again it may be mentioned that an unfavorable place to try out the speed of a motor vehicle is up near the state police barracks. In the town court Monday morning Roland Harquoil, 18, of Attawaugan, was fined $25 and costs on a reckless driving charge. Of the fine $20 was remitted, Harquoil, who owns a motorcycle, paying a total of $16.84.

If memory serves, a weather prophet said recently that there could not be any real cold weather until after heavy rains had filled the ponds and rivers. Now there's another idea gone to smash!

Thanksgiving will be observed as a general holiday in Danielson. Manufacturing plants will be closed and business suspended by stores for the day, with the exceptions always noted. The post office will observe a holiday schedule of hours.

Henry B. Audette of Fall River returned to that city Monday after visiting for a few days with friends in Danielson.

Workers for the Red Cross began Monday their canvass in the annual roll call drive. This will be continued throughout the week and the workers plan to visit al the homes in Danielson.

Business men here reported an excellent trade at the week end, seeming evidence that Danielson also is benefiting in what appears to be the beginning of a nation-wide boom in many lines.

PUTNAM

All the machinery of the H. K. H. Silk company has been moved into its new mill at the head of Main street, and the plant they have vacated at New London is now offered for sale. This means the company here expects to operate its mill here on a large scale. The New London plant has been idle for some time but it was not known until stated in The Bulletin that it was to be definitely given up by the company.

The machinery for the manufacture of stockings has been removed from Watertown, N. Y., into the Eureka mill on Bridge street, also owned by the H. K. H. Co., an dit is said that preparations are being made for a largely increased output of the Hemingway hosiery.

The City Hotel began the week under new ownership, the transfer papers having been signed and filed Saturday afternoon. The purchasers are Adhemar B. Benoit of School street and Zepherin Harquail of Attawaugan. Both will make their home in the hotel. Samuel Smith, who has owned and operated the house for six years has no definite plans, other than that he intends to leave the city His older daughter, Miss Celia Smith is living on Boston.

One of the features of the celebration meeting of the Coolidge club was the whistling duet by Mrs. Harry Wright and Mrs. Walter Wheaton. Both are accomplished whistlers but Mrs. Wright possesses an unusual gift in this regard. She would attract attention on a professional program.

Putnam awoke Monday morning not only to face the coldest day thus far, of the season but one that froze up cars and with a wind that chilled the blood of pedestrians. Many thermometers showed five above and there was a wind that was almost a gale that blew steadily all day.

A reception was given Friday evening by the members of the Baptist church at Brandy Hill, Thompson, to Rev. and Mrs. John C. Stoddard of Putnam. It was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sandstrom and nearly every member of the church was present. Mr. Stoddard was presented a sum of money and there were many expressions of regret that he is to leave Putnam. It was made plain that they do not share the feeling toward Mr. Stoddard which prevails among many of the parishioners of the First Baptist church here and which resulted in the passage of a resolution at a church meeting two weeks ago at which Mr. Stoddard was asked to terminate his pastorate January 26th.

At the meeting of Wappaquasset Tribe of Red Men Friday evening, the following grand officers made their annual visitation: Great Senior Sagamore E. Wilson; Past Grand Sachem St. Claire T. Carson; Great Junior Sagamore William Newport; Great Guard of the Forest John S. Jones; Great Deputy Sachem, F. D. Steel. Mr. Kurts of New Jersey, a senior sagamore, was also among the visitors. Mr. Carson gave a talk on Red Men membership, and Mr. Wilson spoke on Fraternity. The attendance was the largest in the past three years, and Odd Fellows' hall, which adjoins Red Men's hall, had to be used to take care of the overflow.

Bascom Johnson, of New York city, Yale student, who attempted to ride through Putnam on a motorcycle without the proper credentials or experience stopped off Monday morning on his way back from Wellesley and told the story of his trouble to Judge Archie Macdonald. He was allowed to take his machine and to continue on his homeward journey without any penalty being imposed.

The police court Monday morning had five prisoners, all charged with intoxication, and all of them were guilty. One man was so overcome by the liquor or liquid that he drank that he lay down under a tree on the Little River road Sunday night and sank into a drunken stupor. A passerby saw him and was about to pass on thinking it was a pile of earth. He finally walked over and investigated, and then reported to the police who took the man to the city lockup. Had he remained there during the night he would have needed the services of an undertaker this morning instead of a doctor, as the thermometer went down almost to zero. The court imposed a fine and costs which the accused paid and deported. Two others pleaded guilty to being drunk and paid the fines assessed.

Lawrence Keenan was unable to pay a fine of $20 and costs and was sent to Brooklyn jail to work it out.

Joseph Varoux has been before the court at least ten times in the past year for intoxicatiotn and Judge Macdonald sentenced him to Brooklyn jail for 30 days.

The scarlet fever cases ahe ending and the attendance at the Israel Putnam school is getting back to normal.

PUTNAM'S COME-BACK CELEBRATION DEC. 5-6

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Nov. 17.—The Putnam "Come Back" celebration will extend over two days instead of one, and will be Friday and Saturday, Dec. 5th and 6th.

This was decided at a largely attended meeting Monday afternoon of members of the cahmber of commerce, the merchants' committee, and citizens generally, held in the chamber of commerce rooms. Alexander Gilman presided and Arthur S. Macdonald was secretary. The three banks were represented at the meeting, Daniel J. Byrne, treasurer of the Putnam Savings bank, Whitman Danielson, cashier of the Citizens' National bank and C. A. Boyce, cashier of the Cargill Trust company, taking an active part in the discussions. They agreed to co-operate in every way possible toward making the day a success.

An executive committee of five will be named tomorrow by President Gilman to have charge of the affair. He will also name a committee of three to arrange for what will be one of the most interesting features of the occasion, an exhibit of the various products, made in Putnam. If the state armory can be secured the exhibit will be made there.

Other committees were named as follows: Finance, Otto E. Wulf, Chester E. Elliott, Warren S. Ames; banks, Daniel J. Burne, C. A. Boyce, Whitman Danielson; publicity, George L. Padgett, Jacob Alpert, Omer J. Milot.

Within a few days, probably before the week is out, two railroad trucks driven by a gasoline motor, will replace two of the local passenger trains on the NewLondon-Worcester branch of the New Haven road. One is to make a daily round trip between Putnam, Worcester and Fitchburg. It will leave Worcester at 12.30 p. m., arriving here an hour later. On the return trip it will leave Putnam at 1.50 p. m. and arrive at Worcester at 2.50. This is the same rate of speed that is made by trains pulled by steam locomotives. The truck will have seats for 65 passengers and a baggage compartment.

A second truck will be put in operation to run from Putnam to New London and return. It will leave New London at 8.10 a. m., and arrive here at 9.55, returning it will leave Putnam at 1.44 p. m. This truck or "bus" will be of the same carrying capacity as the one on the northern end of the line. In addition to the round trip between Putnam and New London this same car will make two round trips daily between Norwich and New London.

They will be put into operation as soon as they are delivered by the manufacturers which it is thought will be before the week is over.

A truck that was intenued to be used on the upper end passed through Putnam a week ago and was put into operation between Worcester and Fitchburg. It had accommodations for only 40 passengers, which was found to be inadequate and the car was taken off. When those with a carrying capacity of 65 passengers are delivered to the company they will be put into use at once. These cars also have a baggage compartment.

On other branches of the roads, trucks of this type have been tried out and found to be satisfactory. One of the chief reasons for their substitution for steam trains is to reduce operating costs. Among employes of the road some doubt is expressed as to whether they have been tried long enough to prove that they can take the place of steam propelled trains.

The regular meeting of the Catholic Women's Welfare association was held Sunday evening and was largely attended. Plans for the winter activities of the organization were formulated. Because of the dearth of employment in the mills, the close of the Manhasset Mfg. Co., followed by its dissolution, and the heavy loss due to the wreck of the First National bank, it is realized that there will be a great deal of relief work needed in Putnam during the coming winter. The Catholic Women's Welfare association is preparing to do its full share.

George W. Child has been promoted to first sergeant in Headquarters company of the 43rd division, and Francis H. Murphy has been made corporal. Sergeant Child is company clerk and Corporal Murphy is his assistant. These promotions were made by Captain J. J. McGarry.

Howard Elliott, member of the state police, has been in Putnam, investigating two cases of alleged violation of law governing the bottling and sale of milk to private consumers.

Dyer S. Elliott of North Grosvenordale has been added to the list of directors of the Cargill Trust company. For years Mr. Elliott has been clerk and treasurer of the town of Thompson and at the recent election he was nominated on the republican ticket as a member of the school committee, endorsed by the democrats and elected by a unanimous vote.

At the republican caucus held at the municipal building Friday evening delegates to the state convention to be held at Hartford Nov. 24th and 25th, were selected as follows: A. A. Brodeur, former representative to the general assembly, Mrs. Grace Nikoloff, and the two representatives-elect, Samuel Rich and William Pechie.

There were more than 150 in attendance and it looked as if there would be a contest of a kind that marked the caucuses of the party for the town election in October and the one preceding the presidential election, but everything was harmonious on the surface at least, and no other names were presented than the ones nominated.

Judge M. H. Geissler was named as chairman of the caucus, and Whitman Danielson, secretary. Attorney Irving H. Miron offered a motion that the nominations be made by ballot and a check list be used, which was agreed to. He then placed in nomination the names of Mrs. Nikoloff and Messrs. Brodeur, Rich and Pechie, and moved that the four delegates to be chosen be voted for on one ballot and this motion was adopted without dissent.

The chairman asked if there were further nominations. When none was proposed Mr. Miron withdrew his former motion and offered in its stead a motion that the persons named be nominated by acclamation. There was a chorus of ayes and but one "no."

If there was any opposition to the delegates named, or if any others had been groomed for the place, their sponsors were inarticulate. The delegates go uninstructed.

Albert F. Ralston, who has been associate editor of The Patriot for the past three years, completed his work there Saturday and Monday morning began his new duties as manager and editor of The Sentinel at Franklin, Mass. The staff of the Patriot gave him a gold watch chain and a Masonic charm. John J. Whitehead, the owner and editor of the Patriot, made a little presentation speech, expressing his appreciation of the excellence of the work that Mr. Ralston had done and voicing the wishes of himself and Mr. Ralston's fellow workers that he would be successful in his new field of labor.

Mr. Ralston will move his family to Franklin this week. He was secretary of the chamber of commerce, was a member of the Arcanum club and the Rotary club. Arthur S. Macdonald succeeds him as associate editor of the Patriot, also as secretary of the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Ralston came here from Danielson, where, for two years, he was editor of the Danielson Transcript. He has been active in civic affairs and was also influential in church work, being one of the most active members of St. Philip's Episcopal church, and for the past year and a half superintendent of the Episcopal Sunday school, which under his direction had grown steadily in membership.

People of Danielson who play golf or wish to learn the game will have an excellent opportunity this winter for practice playing. Clarence Booth, professional instructor of the Putnam Country club, plans to conduct a school there. It is intended to foster and develop an interest in the game during the cold months, and to give those who cannot find time in summer to take lessons to learn the rudiments of the game. Mr. Booth has secured an excellent indoor location [illegible] for the use of [illegible] in the barn. Drives will be stopped by canvas or netting; a [illegible] as possible will be part of the equipment of the school. This instruction will give to some what they have difficulty in getting on the links proper form. Indoor golf has been indorsed by many famous players.

Horatio A. Brown, 77, died at 9.30 o'clock Saturday night after a short illness. A week ago in his accustomed good health. Tuesday night of last week he was taken suddenly ill and the next morning his physician said he was in a critical condition and from that time he continued to sink until the end came. For several years he has been a messenger of the superior court and was on duty at the last session of that tribunal held in this city.

Mr. Brown had no living relatives other than a granddaughter, Mrs. Jerome Sherver of Cleveland, Ohio, and his son-in-law, William A. Newell of Pawtucket, R. I. The body is to be taken to Pawtucket, R. I., for burial.

He had been in Putnam for 12 years, living at the home of Mrs. Moses G. Leonard on South Main street. Mr. Brown had been a builder and contractor but did little work of that character during the time he lived in Putnam. For six months during 1921 he served as secretary of the chamber of commerce but gave up the position voluntarily feeling that he was not well adapted to his duties. He was a Mason and Knight Templar belonging to the Pawtucket lodges and was also active in the affairs of the First Baptist church of this city. Deputy Sheriff George E. Holbrook, who died two months ago were close friends and during the five years that the former was confined to his home he paid him a daily visit.

Mr. Brown was familiarly known as "Pa Brown," an appellation in which he seemed to take delight.

Indications Favorable For American Education Week

"There is every indication that American Education Week will be more widely observed than ever before," declared Dr. Jno. J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, who in cooperation with the American Legion and the National Education Association is sponsoring the observance of November 17-23 as American Education Week. It is expected that the president and most of the governors will issue suitable proclamations. The Interior Department through the Bureau of Education will issue suggestions and material for the observance.

Constipation is the bane of babies. Prevent it with half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

IT requires no long experience in the bringing up of children to understand that food waste must pass out of the system promptly, and so the intelligent mother will watch the baby's stools.

In infancy the child should have two or three passages in 24 hours, and in childhood one or two. Less than that will soon tell in canker sores, coated tongue, foul breath and restlessness. As these signs develop, promptly give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in a few hours the symptoms will vanish.

Thousands of mothers have reared proud families with no other medicine than Syrup Pepsin, for it has relieved their families of constipation for thirty years. Rev. Mary F. Malcolm, Belle River, Ill., and Mrs. James Richmire, Sterlingville, N. Y., have had great success with it and constantly urge others to use it.

Here you have a laxative ideally suited to family purposes, as it acts gently and without griping, is exceptionally pleasant to take, and contains no opiates or narcotics.

The formula is clearly stated on every package and is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable aromatics. A bottle, which can be had at any drug store, lasts a family months and costs an average of less than a cent a dose. Give one-half to a teaspoonful, according to age, for constipation, biliousness, loss of appetite, flatulence, belching, and to ward off fevers and colds. You will be grateful to see your child have natural sleep without the use of opiates.

Use it yourself and give it to the adults in the family. There will be less sickness, less absence from work and school. When you see what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does for you you will discard pills and powders and salts and coal-tar drugs disguised in candy. A remedy like this, that sells over 10 million bottles annually, the largest sale in the world, must have superior merit. We guarantee it or refund your money.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. She threw away Calomel and took Beecham's Pills

"I felt so miserable," said the young woman cashier in a fashionable New Jersey hotel. "A friend suggested calomel and I was about to take it.

"Another friend noticed the calomel on my desk and cautioned me against it. She said her sister took calomel and ate some fruit and the combination 'salivated' her, loosened some of her teeth and made her very sick.

"Fearing that my stomach might be in an acid condition, I bought a 25c box of Beecham's Pills and took a dose. The next day I felt fine and I havent needed anything during the three weeks since.

"I wouldn't take anything but Beecham's now. Some of the other girls here take Beecham's and all say they are wonderful."

CALLING AN EXTRA CONGRESS.

Much advice is being given the president these days. Some of it is solicited and some is not. Consideration is being given to whatever is received, no doubt, in accordance with what it is worth, all things being considered.

There are those who are advocating the calling of a special session of congress right after inauguration. There are those who do not believe such a course is desirable. President Coolidge is represented as being opposed to such action.

It is, of course, urged that there should be an immediate response to the verdict of the people as expressed at the polls. Without a doubt the country has expressed confidence in the accomplishments and the policies of President Coolidge. He has stood for, obtained and still favors tax reduction in addition to the cutting of federal expenses. It has displayed confidence in a government under the guidance of the president, and it places reliance in his common sense.

The country has been desirous of less legislation in business. It has been anxious to know that there would not be a serious assault upon it through some radical legislation. It has reacted splendidly to the confidence stimulated by the election result.

Thus when the president, without departing from his purpose of keeping down expenses and cutting taxes, indicates his purpose to delay calling a special session of congress, or of calling none at all unless new conditions warrant it, he plainly favors giving the country the benefit of the freedom from the uncertainties that go with congress while in session. Likewise the desire to study the effects of the tax operations for the year ending next June is in accord with good business. It means getting at the facts and acting in accord with them. It can be expected that further tax cuts will be advocated but the desirability of basing such action upon the actual facts can be easily appreciated. It is a course which does much to prevent half baked legislation.

THE OPIUM CONFERENCE.

Eyes have been turned upon the conference at Geneva under the expectation that something would result that would perfect an agreement among the nations for the effective restriction of opium distribution.

Whatever nations may be desirous of doing, or may have done, to stop the illegal traffic in the habit forming drugs, it has been shown in fact, as well as in theory, that until some international restraint is placed upon the production or handling of opium the desired control will not be assured. Whatever has been done for the checking of the traffic in drugs has encountered that great difficulty of being unable to wholly prevent smuggling. Just as long as opium is grown and its distribution is tolerated it can be expected that there will be those who will be eager to get the benefits of selling it. They care not for the demoralizing effects upon humanity. They think only of the dollars they can obtain, and effective as the cordon of law enforcers may be it is impossible to stop it all.

International control through suppression at the source is a different thing. It opens great possibilities, but it encounters that difficult obstacle of getting international cooperation. The Geneva conference was expected to bring that about. The announced collapse of the conference and the reports showing a disposition on the part of some of the delegates to antagonize others only emphasizes the real size of the job.

It is quite clear that there does not prevail the same unprejudiced sentiment that characterized the naval limitation conference held at Washington, and if we are to judge by the indications there is little prospect that anything of the kind will develop. Much is expected of the American delegates to save the day. It is a big responsibility, and especially so when there is apparently so much satisfaction to be found among the delegates assembled to disagree.

THE TRAIN CONTROL.

Evidence continues to pile up in support of the automatic train stop. Only a few days ago a fast electric train near Tonowanda, N. Y., crashed into the rear of another resulting in the death of four and the injury of nearly 100. The investigation by the safety bureau of the interstate commerce commission finds that the motorman of the second train failed to have his train in proper control and in pointing out that he had had but two short releases in 17 hours finds that the federal hour of service law was violated. In that particular it scores the railroad officials, but when it also finds that the motorman had had little sleep in 27 hours it fails to disclose what effort the motorman himself had made to respect the law.

There is significance, however, in that portion of the report concerning the wreck which says, "An adequate automatic train stop or train control would have prevented it."

Many are the lives which have been saved through the replacing of wooden coaches on trunkline railroads with steel cars. More might be saved if there could be an effective means of supplementing the human agent in charge of the locomotives. The traveling public is entitled to protection against the lapses of those who run fast trains and expect to get their sleep at the throttle, or those officials who require unlawful service from a person in such a responsible position.

It is unfortunate that conditions are disclosed from time to time which reveal the failure to maintain the needed safeguards, but they serve to accentuate the need of the automatic control. When the time comes that protection can be obtained in no other way, and when it becomes obligatory to place a mechanical watchdog on the human agent, there can be no unnecessary delay in meeting the situation in the most effective way possible.

The list is long of those who might be alive today had they been given the protection of such a device.

RESPECTING THE TREATY.

The effort to prevent the sinking of the three-quarters completed battleship to be known as the Washington has come to naught. It was expected. There was such slight ground for believing that the petitioner for the prevention of such a disposition of the vessel that no other outcome seemed possible.

The fact is that the millions put into the ship will be thrown away. That would probably have been the eventual fate in a score of years or so, with a certain strength added to our navy in the meantime, but it was at the price of sacrificing this and other ships that the naval agreement was obtained. It was through the generous policy put forth by this country that the confidence of the other nations was obtained and their participation in the limitation of armaments secured.

In sinking the Washington we are living up to our part of the treaty, and in that very act there is much to be proud of. On that very feature depends the success of the agreement. We cannot expect to promise one thing today, refuse to comply with the obligation a year or two hence and expect to inspire confidence among other nations. We took a leadership in the limitation agreement. It was a generous, forward looking proposal. We were sincere then and we are sincere now. We expect others to do as they have promised and there is no better way of bringing that about than by living up to the terms of the agreement and carrying them out to the letter. When we give others no chance to depart from their obligation we do much to strengthen the joint understanding. We are simply declaring before the world that to us a treaty means something.

HELPING THE BACKWARD.

There could be no better time to direct attention to the amount of illiteracy in the country than during Education week. Likewise it is as good a time as any to direct some thought toward the many thousands of school children who are "so seriously handicapped mentally that they cannot profitably pursue the course of study in the ordinary primary and grammar grades in the public schools of the United States."

The statement is one that is made by the national committee for mental hygiene which finds after its investigation that there are 900,000 such children in the country. Such children range all the way from those who are so unfortunate as to be little better than idiots to those who just escape being included among the normal children.

It is of course regrettable that there are such children, but that doesn't relieve the situation. They cannot be neglected. They are entitled to special consideration if they are going to become fit citizens. There are opportunities for making much of the larger proportion of them and certainly they should get the special attention which they require. If they cannot keep up with their companions, or if they cannot make headway under the instructions which those of their age receive they need to be taught in other ways, possibly in other lines. It is a case of determining the condition and making the most of the situation as found. If backward children are not fitted for high school or college the chance to do something for them through vocational training deserves the most serious consideration. The chance to make them useful citizens and to prevent them from growing even more backward through neglect is worthy of due attention.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—Congressional interest centers just now on the New England delegation, especially from such states as to soon fill vacancies caused by death or failure to return of the former members of senate or house. Among them Connecticut stands out with marked prominence.

"Who will succeed Brandegee?" is the first question heard when Connecticut is mentioned. Both Tilson and Merritt hold high and important committee assignments in the house, and as apparently the selection rests between those two men, their friends here are tremendously interested to see which will win. Both Tilson and Merritt have an advantage over every other man in congress who has this year run for a seat in the senate. They can "sit pretty" during what is apparently a friendly contest for the upper house, as the one who loses out will retain his seat in the house, while every other candidate for the senate, in asking for such advancement, run at a primary, and so had to cut out his former position. Dallinger of Massachusetts was among the number, as were several others who are well known in the New England delegation, Dallinger losing to Gillett. Tilson on ways and means is prominently mentioned for the speakership after the retirement of Speaker Gillett, who goes to the senate, and Merritt is well placed on the important committee of interstate and foreign commerce. He is regarded as one of the ablest business men in congress and by the defeat, death or retirement of some of the members Merritt is working his way rapidly to a near top place on the committee. Connecticut draws unusual attention to itself this year, by selecting its new senator by convention instead of by primary, and the men out for the senatorship are looked on with envious eyes by those from other states, who had to risk all, or not run for the higher place of vantage.

The death of Senator Brandegee and Senator Lodge moved up in committee assignments, a number of men on major committees. It put Borah at the head of foreign relations, a man whose contrast to Senator Lodge is so marked that people here wonder what will happen. It leaves the judiciary committee without a chairman, and Borah would be eligible to that also, but will of course choose the foreign relations, and attempt to run it with a masterful hand. Senator Moses of New Hampshire is jumped into the chairmanship of the post office committee, one of great importance to New England, and Moses is also picked for the office of president pro temoore of the senate according to the present outlook, although friends of Wadsworth of New York, Curtis of Kansas and Lenroot of Wisconsin are out running for the place for their favorites. Curtis is now floor leader having been assistant to Senator Lodge: and it looks at this momen, as if either Curtis or Moses would get the presidency, or the other be given the floor leadership. Of course no definite prediction can be made as the change does not take place till the fourth of March sees the 68th congress at an end, but the present incumbent of the presidency pro temoore, is Cummins of Iowa, who will not again be a candidate, but will settle many pending difficulties, by retiring from that office and going back to the chairmanship of the interstate commerce thereby putting La Follette out of the running and restoring the chairmanship to the republicans, by relegating Smith of South Carolina, democrat, back to his place as democratic ranking member. Smith was elected by compromise to break a tie last year when Cummins refused to give up either his chairman or his office as president pro temoore. Moses will get a strong backing not only because he is competent, but because he, as chairman of the senatorial election committee, won high honor in bringing back into line lost states and holding those seats that were in marked danger.

Republicans here rejoice that Connecticut got back its Fifth district and are ready to pat Glynn on the back and bid him welcome, when he back and bid him welcome, when the fourth of March ends the present congress.

McLean will retain his rank as chairman of the committee on banking and currency and is third man on both the great committees of finance and interstate commerce. La Follette is the only man between McLean and the ranking membership, and should it be decided to put La Follette and his senate followers into a class by themselves, as "progressives" instead of republicans, McLean would become ranking member of those committees.

The Connecticut members of the house are well placed and will hold their own or be moved up. They stand now Tilson, dean of the delegation, is on ways and means; Merritt, interstate and foreign commerce; Freeman, rivers and harbors, where he is ranking member; Fenn, banking and currency. Glynn will undoubtedly be properly recognized for having won back to the republican fold a district wrested away by the democrats in 1922. So from whatever point of view the state of Connecticut is regarded, she will be much in the foreground during the 69th congress.

The opinion here is that while the senate will immediately convene after noon on March 4 to confirm cabinet and diplomatic appointments there will be no extra session of congress as a whole called, and the house will not meet till the regular session the first Monday in December. President Coolidge believes the present laws should be tried out before enacting new ones, and those closest to the president do not believe he will change his mind.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

COMPLEXIONS AS FADS

"I'm dead sick of orange rouge and purple lips!" declared the girl who likes to talk. "The kick has gone out of this sort of thing, at least so far as the spectator is concerned. Nothing facial will arouse a flicker of an eyelash any more unless the girls adopt something striking a la Fiji and wear a polished stock thrust through their noses and polkadots painted over their cheeks or knock out a few front teeth as do some savage tribes. I wouldn't put it beyond them.

"It's a progressive affair? They say morals are merely a matter of geographical location and I guess what constitutes a lady is simply decided by the year a girl is born in. There were years when a touch of rouge and a white nose branded a woman as utterly as though she had worn a large placard. If the women at the sewing circle leaned together and hissed 'she paints!' the poor thing in question just became absolutely invisible to the residents of Maple street, Shelby avenue and St. James' place.

"And now we've got to the point where most any judge would indignantly give a man a divorce from a wife who went around with her own uninteristing natural face and was too lazy to conceal it under the proper chemicals and pastes.

"Most of us can recall when displaying one's ankle was enough to set the family alienist on one's track. And now legs are so far from being a treat that they might just as well be crutches. Ladies who are chairmen of committees and delegates to highbrow conventions wear pale cloor hosiery and display it thoroughly if absent-mindedly. We can't imagine ever again dragging long skirts over the cobblestones and affording the street cleaners a much needed rest.

"When they first began wearing rouge and powder it was a simple matter. The daring girl merely gasped whisperingly 'a box of p-powder!' And it was handed over the counter carefully wrapped so that if she met the minister he wouldn't suspect. Powder was just powder much as granulated sugar was always the same. Usually it was a deadly white and hit you in the eye a block off. And rouge was rouge—it was red. When it was put on there was a clear and distinct line of cleavage between the rouge spot and the sea of powder in which it swam and there was decided justification for the protests of standpatters against its use.

"But all that is changed. A girl these days has to settle the turmoil in her mind as to whether she shall get powder shade thirty-one or tint eighty-four and whether it shall be of the orange, prune, lavender or just hectic series of tones. Is she brunette enough to wear the orange or mysterious enough to demand a violet powder? Especially since she has adopted the purple lipstick.

"Eyebrow pencils and lash paste don't worry her so much because always these are black. Girls blond ash medium, mouse-color and what not all appear with beautiful jet black lashes and thin-lined brows and are gloatingly satisfied with the effect. What a natural set of eyelashes looks like has been forgotten. There is something about possessing a set of black-beaded lashes which totally obliterates any doubts about whether one remembered to flirt the washcloth around the back of one's neck that morning. At least you conclude that if you ride often in elevators where your proximity to total strangers is for the monment intense.

"It's these window-cretonne shades of make-up that are the final straw. It's a reversion to the American Indian warpaint of yellow ochre, crimson pokeberry, pink clays and such and I'm going to clear out the whole array of bottles, boxes and pretty glass jars on my toilet table—"

"OOOOOOH! Goody!" cried the interested listener. "I speak for the box of the last rouge you got—"

"I should say not!" indignantly said the girl who likes to talk. "Of course I shall not throw that perfectly stunning new Tangerine Rouge nor the lavender Mist of the Morning powder Jessie brought me from Paris, nor—well several other darling cosmetics I have! I wasn't speaking of the real stunning things in the way of face furnishing at all! The idea!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Miss Slattery's Lecture

Mr. Editor: When our Saviour fed the four thousand He directed His disciples to gather up the fragments that nothing be lost.

After hearing Miss Slattery's talk last evening, given before a crowded assembly of thoughtful people it cannot be improper to gather up a few thoughts to be retained in the memory "that nothing be lost."

It is worthy of note that an audience filling the Central church from pulpit to ceiling, could be assembled before the bell ceased to ring, notwithstanding an incipient storm which threatened to become a blizzard, was raging outside, and the lesson here is that een the pulpit is attractive when it gives promise of an interesting speaker.

Miss Slattery had already spoken in the afternoon and has been in Norwich before and though there was as big a crowd awaiting the opening of our theatres, this did not diminish the attendance at the church.

Of course Miss Slattery spoke with power and emphasis, yet was not saying anything strange or new. Indeed it would be hard to give a name to her subject—and she didn't. It was a general arraignment of modern society habits, of which we are all cognizant.

She declared, however, that she had no fear of bolshevism, no fear of socialism, no fear of the red flag, but what she did fear was YOU. This with great emphasis. As the audience was properly church people, this dread was surely a little stunning—and was so intended. Of course the church is being accused of much today that is out of precedent with the past—and perhaps is losing its bearings and influence, not only over the masses but on its own membership. Not only has family worship become obsolete, but also personal private prayer. Children come up and outgrow their emotional nature "while in their teens."

A girl of 22 years told her she had nothing to live for as there was now nothing left for her in which there was "a kick." Recently we read that a man told an exhorter that he was "too old to sin." Between these two extremes there is a dilemma. Here is a person having exhausted all her functions of pleasure at 22—and another who has outlived the period of transgression. These now represent classes and not individual cases in our society of today.

When the Master was on earth He declared it would be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for those cities in which He had taught. "What then will become of our populations who have the light of twenty centuries since?"

Miss Slattery did not suggest a remedy. Is there a remedy? Which club or society can give it?

Jefferson Misunderstood and Maligned

Misunderstood, maligned and attacked by political opponents with a fierceness unknown today, Thomas Jefferson, reared an aristocrat, devoted his life to the cause of the common people, and battling as he believed, in their behalf, found his life embittered by his struggle with Alexander Hamilton and his estrangement from President Washington.

Jefferson's father was an Indian fighter, surveyor and frontiersman of western Virginia and his mother was a Randolph member of one of the Old Dominion's "first families." He was educated by private tutors and at William and Mary College, and his mother saw to it that he associated with the most refined society.

By intense application he acquired an unusually high stock of knowledge. Early in the contest with England he aided the cause of the colonists as a member of the Virginia Assembly when only 26. A member of the committee to draft the Declaration of Independence, he produced the document almost unassisted.

Tall, thin, raw-boned, red-headed, with a freckled face and a voice devoid of compass, flexibility or charm, he won popularity by his zeal for liberty and democracy and commanding talents as thinker and writer. He sat in the first Continental congress from 1779 to 1781. He was ambassador to France and secretary of state during part of Washington's administration, and, coming into conflict with Alexander Hamilton, secretary of the Treasury, and finally with Washington himself, he resigned.

In 1801 he tied for the presidency with Aaron Burr, and when the election was carried into the House of Representatives he was chosen president by votes influenced by his old foe, Hamilton. His first term was a brilliant success; his second one of humiliation at the hands of England and France who were then at war.

In the midst of his success he lost a daughter and a wife. So profoundly was he affected when his wife passed away that he fainted and was so long insensible that it was thought he, too would die.

Refusing a third term, he retired to Montecello, his estate, where he passed the remainder of his life, idolized by the people.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Thirty-five years old today is Amelita Galli-Curci, the famous Italian coloratura soprano, who is now making her first concert tour of Great Britain, covering six weeks and yielding her a guarantee of $100,000. By an interesting coincidence it was just eight years ago today that she made her professional debut in America, at a popular-priced Saturday night performance at the Chicago Auditorium. The next morning the singer woke to find herself famous. Ever since then she has been a conspicuous figure before the American musical public. Mme. Galli-Curci was born in Milan, the daughter of a banker of that city. Masbagni, the famous composer and a friend of her father, encouraged her to adopt an operatic career and it was in Rome in 1910 that she made her debut. The fame which she has achieved in less than fifteen years may be measured from the fact that she has received $50,000 for a single phonograph record of her marvelous voice.

CHILD TRAINING

Helen Gregg Green

"How does it happen that Throck is making such a fine success of his work?" Aunt Tacey Ellen, who is anything but diplomatic, asked Throck's mother.

"Happen?" little Mrs. Rogers challenged with a slight trace of irritation, "why, it could never have been any other way!"

"But I know plenty of failures," Aunt Tacey Ellen insisted.

"Yes, but my son isn't one," the mother proudly answered. "You see, I never allowed the word 'failure' in Sonny's vocabulary. From the time he was a little chap I taught him that he must finish, and do well anything and everything he undertook. A task completed develops self-confidence, you know."

"But, my dear," Aunt Tacey Ellen objected, "he probably had a character that was easily molded. And, no doubt, he was the type of child that would have accomplished anything he undertook, regardless of training."

"Indeed," Mrs. Rogers said crisply, "he was the type of child who is inclined to procrastinate and to jump from one thing to another. But I made up my mind to help him break this tendency, which is not conducive to success."

"How did you go about it?" I asked, entering the conversation.

"First, as I said, we made it a rule that whatever he undertook must be finished. When the task was finished I praised and encouraged him if it was done. And the next and best influence was instilling in his young mind the thought that he would be successful at whatever he undertook. I had the motto 'Failure is only for those who think failure' framed and hung in his room. I searched our library for success stories, stories of great men who had overcome handicaps!"

"If it ever did, I never heard of it," Mrs. Rogers replied. "Some way, I don't believe it ever occurred to him that he would ever be anything but successful."

"And he hasn't been anything else," I added.

Some weeks later I was spending a few days in the great city in which Throck is making a name for himself. Coming out of a store one day, I met my neighbor's fine, big son. I told him how proud we all were of him.

"Oh, it's mother who deserves the praise," said Throck. "I couldn't have done what I have without her. I owe it all to her."

And I went away thinking, "That is true. He does owe it all to his mother. And I believe she is right. 'Failure is only for those who think failure.'"

Stories That Recall Others

She Wouldn't Come

A Norwich young man was visiting recently in the country. He was asked late one afternoon to go after the cow in the nearby pasture. After some little time elapsed he returned empty handed.

"What's the matter?" he was asked, "couldn't you find her?"

"Yes, I found her," he replied, "but she wouldn't come."

Something New In History

She was proud of her kindergarten class and was anxious to show off the little ones to a number of visiting mothers.

"Who discovered America?" the teacher asked.

"Columbia?" shouted a little girl, easily beating her classmates to the answer.

Overlooking the error the teacher went on:

"And what was his first name?"

"Hail," was the quick response that sent the teacher and mothers into spasms of laughter.

TO REINFORCE RAIDERS OF LOS ANGELES AQUEDUCT

Bishop, Cal., Nov. 17.—(By the A. P.)—Fifty additional citizens left today for Alabama waste gates, 50 miles south of here, to reinforce and relieve the Owens Valley citizens who yesterday seized that section of the Los Angeles water supply aqueduct and opened the gates, diverting the waters to Owens lake. Estimates here are that more than 2,000 citizens have participated in the seizure.

Occupation of the intake canal of Los Angeles water supply by citizens was endorsed and approved in a resolution made public today by the chamber of commerce.

The resolution, reviewing differences between the Owens Valley people and the Los Angeles aqueduct officials, declares that Los Angeles, after repeated promises to submit a dependable plan for settlement of the differences, made only suggestions from time to time to avoid settlement, and that its tactics were destructive.

The Bishop chamber of commerce also sent a telegram to Governor Richardson asking that the national guard be sent to Owens Valley to prevent bloodshed.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Anna Lee Powers, 27, was found strangled to death in her apartments here early today. A strip of clothing had been used to choke Mrs. Powers and other particles of her dress were used to bind her hands and feet.

Hawkins told the police he and Mrs. Powers came here from Alabama about a month ago. He said he left Mrs. Powers at 7 o'clock last evening and returned at midnight to find her body on the bed.

ARMISTICE DAY COMMITTEE HAS SURPLUS OF $712.67 REMAINING

The final financial report presented by the committee treasurer, M. E. Jensen, was the particularly interesting feature of a meeting of the Armistice Day general committee, which was held Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the chamber of commerce rooms with Mayor Milo R. Waters presiding in the absence of Chairman H. M. Lerou.

Secretary John J. O'Rourke read Treasurer Jensen's report, which showed that the total receipts had been $2,714.46, expenses $2,001.67, leaving a surplus of $712.67 and all known bills paid.

The receipts were made up of $1,000 appropriated by the town, $500 appropriated by the city, and $1,214.46 in contributions from the general public. The report was approved by vote of the meeting.

Major Charles A. Hazberg, marshal of the parade, spoke particularly in praise of the excellent work done by the Norwich police department, whose work, he said, could not have been better and provided perfect conditions for moving the parade along streets that were absolutely clear of all vehicles.

Mayor Waters added a word of commendation as well and called attention to the fact that at a previous big celebration in Norwich outside police aid was called in from Bridgeport, Waterbury and New Haven, but this time the local police force handled the traffic alone and in faultless manner.

On motion of Arthur E. Story, the chairman of the parade committee, which was seconded by Arthur L. Peale, it was voted to make an appropriation of $25 to the police pension fund in recognition of the appreciation the general committee felt for the good work of the Norwich police force, and Secretary O'Rourke was directed to write a letter of appreciation to Chief George Linton.

It was voted also to have the secretary write letters of appreciation to F. B. Ricketson of the Ponemah company for the donation of the use of a truck, to Col. Orville A. Petty of New Haven, the speaker of the day, and to the commanders at the submarine base and at Fort Wright.

There was a brief discussion of what disposition might be made of the surplus remaining in the treasurer's hands and it was decided to leave this question to be decided at the next meeting of the committee, which will be at the call of the chairman.

One suggestion made was that it might be advisable to use part of the money to provide lights for the memorial tablet at Chelsea parade, which would serve the purpose of illuminating it for view at night and also prevent possible vandalism in theft of the bronze name plates from the tablet. It was mentioned in this connection that the bronze plate on the stone marking Chelsea parade had been stolen at one time and it might be wise to protect against anything like that at the new memorial.

JUBILEE CELEBRATED BY M'KINLEY AVENUE CHURCH

The McKinley Avenue A. M. E. Zion church celebrated its golden jubilee, the fiftieth anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone, with special services Sunday and Monday during which jubilee offerings have been made that will approximate $250.

At the morning service on Sunday the sermon was by the pastor, Rev. Dixon A. Brown, upon Delight in God's House. At noon there was a Sunday school rally with Mrs. D. A. Brown in charge and at 3.30 in the afternoon there was a service with the sermon by Rev. J. M. Patterson, pastor of Grace Memorial Baptist church, with music by a selected chorus. At the evening service the sermon was by Rev. W. H. Bath of this city, superintendent of the Norwich district of the New England Southern conference. Miss Mary E. Simmons of New Haven, soloist, assisted in the musical part of the services.

The services Monday consisted of an anniversary supper from 6 to 10 p. m., served by the women of the sewing circle, Friendly Band and stewardess board. This was followed by a concert which opened with a choir number, Lift Every Voice and Sing. Prayer was offered by Capt. E. W. Wilbur of the Salvation Army. GAVE BRILLIANT LECTURE IN COLLEGE CLUB COURSE

In her second lecture in a series under the auspices of the Norwich College club Monday evening at Slater hall annex, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman spoke upon Men, Women and People, discussing the subject in an entertaining way that claimed the keen attention of her hearers and reading several of her poems that illustrated her points with sparkling wit.

Mrs. Gilman developed the subject along the line of the relative part played by men and women in the advancement of humanity. The growth of humanity comes in a study accumulative achievement and in this, she declared, men had played the larger part. Women, although the first to take up advancement in the pastoral life, in agriculture and in the crafts, had been relegated to the kitchen and had kept on cooking ever since, while men had taken hold and had advanced in the occupations and arts in which she had taken the first steps. Humanly speaking the progress of the world has been with the men. The thing that has kept woman back and checked her has been that she has been restricted to primitive industry and never allowed to do her part in the world's work on the baseless assumption that she couldn't. Even until not so long ago education had been prohibited to women.

The major cause of the bewilderment and the misbehavior of the human race, she said, had been because of the disproportionate development of the male as compared to women. This has been a masculine world and as belligerency is a dominant masculine attribute, we have made a fight out of every thing, but the main law of life is growth and not fight and struggle, and now that women have the vote it is not to be concluded that the mere act of voting will carry forward the human race unless you have a definite programme to vote upon.

At the conclusion of the lecture several responded to Mrs. Gilman's invitation to ask her questions to which she gave answers that brought out a number of new and interesting thoughts suggested by her lecture.

MOTORISTS SUFFERED IN SUDDEN COLD SNAP

In spite of Volstead and all the prohibition agents of the country, alcohol was freely dispensed in this city Monday—not the type craved by many human beings, but the denatured type of alcohol, craved to warm up the "stomachs," or, rather, the radiators of hundreds of cold, ice-clogged automobiles, ranging from the humble Ford to the haughty Rolls-Royce. Several wholesale houses in the city had completely sold out of denatured alcohol before night Monday, and several dealers had sold more than 250 gallons during the day.

Old Man Winter came in with a roar late Sunday night, and many an automobile owner who had toasted his feet over the warm fires in his house and who had gone to bed without taking note of the weather outside, found things far from merry when he woke up Monday morning.

Temperatures that ranged from 2 to 4 below zero to 10 above had swept over this region during the dark hours of the night and icebound automobiles awaited their owners in hundreds of garages, while many more left on the streets for the night were frozen solid.

It was a big day for the radiator repairmen, garage owners and plumbers, for all day long S. O. S. calls were coming in for towing jobs, radiator repair jobs and plumbing jobs. One dealer in town remembered taking care of over 25 towing jobs, then lost track because of hurry orders. Broken radiators were as common as sparrows on a barnyard fence and 20 jobs in line at several repair stations became a common sight. Every make of car suffered and a checkup of damage done to automobile blocks, motors, radiators and other mechanical parts, damaged and broken because of the freeze, would run into many hundreds of dollars.

One man in town, and there are possibly many others, owes his good luck to what is commonly termed "a woman's intuition." His wife, as he was about to retire for the night, advised him to draw the water from the radiator of his car. Like a good husband, he did so and he was happy Monday when he found a cake of ice in the water pail instead of in his automobile radiator.

The automobile driver was not the only man hit, for a number of local florists were caught by the cold snap, among these being Otto Ernst, who lost 100 Easter lilies and many other plants. Other florists lost plants and saved their flowers only by being on the job all night long doctoring the furnace.

Ice formed on ponds and children began to dream of skating before Thanksgiving, a thing not enjoyed here in several years, and ice spots appeared on local sidewalks and streets, making travel hazardous for pedestrians and motorists.

The weather continued cold throughout the day and in the early hours of Tuesday morning the mercury hovered around 19 above in the city, the wind having died down somewhat, making it more comfortable. Weather reports indicate cold weather to continue until Wednesday, when it will become milder, followed by rain or snow.

Another business man who felt the urge of cold weather business was the coal dealer, these dealers being swamped with calls from all parts of the city from people who had failed to get in an order, evidently believing that warm weather was good for some days to come.

Bees and Traveling Home

For several weeks a colony of working bees has been making a daily trip between Edinburg and San Juan, Tex., on the branch line of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico railroad. It was while a baggage car was standing on the sidetrack at Edinburg that this swarm of bees invaded the car and found a home between the ceiling and roof. The colony has been there ever since and seems to be not at all disturbed over the fact that it is taken on a daily trip to the other end of the branch line and back again. It is declared by the train crew that the bees have become so used to their home on wheels that they know when the whistle of the engine gives the signal to start. The busy, working bees immediately upon toot of the whistle hustle into the baggage car and settle down until the train reaches San Juan, when they go out again to gather honey.

Cranes and Geraniums

In the giant cranes used in lifting heavy burdens we find a close kinsman of the dainty geranium which decorates our greenhouses and window boxes. The first use of the word "crane" was to denote the long-legged member of the bird family, with which all readers are familiar. The Greek name for the bird was "geranos." When a name was sought for the geranium the old Greek word was adopted, because of the fact that the seed capsules of the flower have a long projecting beak, resembling that of the bird. In many localities the geranium is still known as "crane's bill." In machinery the "crane" took its name from the resemblance of its long arm to the neck of the bird. In point of naming, therefore, the flower, the bird and the mechanical crane all belong to the same family.

BULKELEY ISSUES FORMAL CHALLENGE TO WINDHAM FOR POST-SEASON GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 17.—Windham High School will have its long sought chance to engage the Bulkeley High School eleven in a football match on Thanksgiving day. A formal challenge through the regular channels was made by the Bulkeley management this morning. Whether Windham High really wants to play Bulkeley will soon be evident if the proposal to play the Orange and Black eleven on the annual Turk Day is accepted.

Having been released of all obligations to outside teams to which the Bulkeley management was bound until this morning, the local management immediately sent a formal challenge to the Thread City eleven. Bulkeley's aim is the state high school title and like New Britain High, Windham High's claims to the state high school title have been met with a deaf ear from the leading sporting scribes of the state. The reason is obvious and just from every point of view. A team which has failed to play any of the leading teams in the state can hope for little recognition when the final accounting is made.

Although the Bulkeley management was anxious to bring Stuyvesant High School of New York city to oppose the Orange and Black on Thanksgiving Day, a flat refusal by that team was made by a letter on Saturday. There were several important conflicts during the week end, and it looked for a time as though the state high school title would be decided on Saturday. But the ties entered rather conspiciously into the play over the week end, and the state title is still very much in the doubt.

Bulkeley was held down by an obligation to one team, and the recent challenging of the Windham High was met with a shrug of the shoulders. For there was really something bigger awaiting the Bulkeley team in event a game with Stuyvesant High was secured. When a tie score resulted in the contest with Torrington High, that team was invited to play the Orange and Black at New London on either Thanksgiving Day or the Saturday following. Bulkeley clearly outplayed her rival on Saturday, as many leading sporting scribes have attested. At lease two touchdowns better than Torrington, Coach Cary of that team thought it advisable to refrain from coming to New London with his eleven for the purpose of playing off the tie game.

Windham's claims to the state title have been loud, and, pointing proudly to the immaculate record of two seasons did not see why it was not possible that she could be classed as a contender. Undoubtedly Bulkeley, too, could have emerged with a clean slate during the past two seasons, if she were confined to paying teams in Eastern Connecticut and other schools of secondary grade. Superiority over teams in this section of the state has been manifested by the overwhelming margin that the Orange and Black won over the Norwich Free Academy.

New Britain High, although a victor over the local High School eleven, is not being given the recognition she ought to receive, because of the few high school teams covered by this team, she could not be given a definite standing in the leading teams of the present day. It is unfair to have a team like Bulkeley, or some other eleven that has engaged most all of the leading high school teams in the state, and by the mere loss of a single game be declared out of the race. Rating is at present given the high school team engaging the majority of high school teams. This Bulkeley has done, as well as Ansonia. The high school crown is but a mythical claim to a championship, conceded to an eleven by the sporting scribes of the leading papers. Their ultimate decision is final and very little dispute can be made after a decision is rendered to one team or another.

It has been suggested that a possible league, such as the college league in the west be put in force next season. It will be one way of determining a team by its merits of all season consistency and not by a single game. It will confine the high school schedule of each team to play within the scope of this state. This method of elimination would be the only possible remedy for the present situation and it is intimated that it may be brought up at a meeting to be held in Hartford regarding the eligibility of players.

Or possibly if a state wide league is not drawn up, it would be highly possible to have leagues in each section of the state, like the present Eastern Connecticut league. The winner of this league to play the winner of some other section, and so on to give an idea about deciding the state high school championship. The officials with whom a visiting team finds fault would be selected by the officers of the league.

Bulkeley's march with the state title as its goal has been anything but a flowery path. Some of the most important teams have been bowled over by the Bulkeley tornado, and the Orange and Black is justified to put in its claim for the state title. The record, next to Stamford, is by far the most impressive of any in the state barring none. Windham, because she has confined herself to teams in this section of the state mostly, has not the record to boast of. The locals have, and the claims of Windham for the state title came as a surprise. Of course as has been pointed out before, the clean record lung up by Windham gives this team some consideration. But the Sooner some of the larger teams in the state are included in Windham's schedule, the sooner that team will be recognized as a logical contender. But until that time, she can not be considered.

But Windham will have her chance to see what she can do against Bulkeley if the challenge to a game on Thanksgiving Day is accepted. It can not be refused very well, for the up the river team has been challenging any high school team in the state to oppose it, and it must choose in the near future, or abolish its claim for the title.

A. A. U. TO BROADEN ITS SCOPE OF ACTIVITIES

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 17.—(By The A. P.) — Action designed to broaden the field of the organization activity, approval of an unprecedented array of 137 record and noteworthy athletic performances during the past year endorsement of proposals to benefit America's future Olympic campaign, and ratification of a list of twenty eight 1925 championship awards, were the outstanding developments today in the opening sessions of the thirty sixth annual convention of the amateur athletic union.

The meeting, bringing together leading athletic governing officials from all parts of the United States, waded through a mass of reports, statistics and routine affairs today, held its annual banquet tonight and will close its deliberations tomorrow at the Hotel Ambassador. Choice of Pittsburgh as the 1925 convention city and unopposed election of Murray Hulbert of New York to succeed William C. Prout of Boston as President, are slated as concluding features.

Principal among the steps taken today to widen the A. A. U. field of activity was endorsment of plans to ally the organization with a newly formed boxing federation among North and South American nations. William Cuddy, of Boston, chairman of the A. A. U. boxing committee and one of the leading spirits in the new "All-American" ring proposal, advised the convention that he had already come to a tentative agreement with Dr. Carlos Gallegos, of Buenos Aires, representative of five South American countries for the first International Amateur boxing tournament under the auspices of the new body, to be held in New York next April. Canadian support to the move was pledged today by Dr. A. S. Lamb, of the Dominion A. A. U.

Development of general recreational and playground work outlined by Murray Hulbert, reflected another avenue of A. A. U. progress, while National control was taken over two new branches of sport, squash handball, and indoor baseball.

A new district association, consisting of the entire state of Florida, heretofore under the jurisdiction of the southern association, was admitted to membership in the A. A. U. bringing up to 33 the total of sectional branches. Normal admission of the New Michigan association also was approved by constitutional amendment but the application of the Piedmont association for admission was turned down. Under a re-districting move, the Middle Atlantic association acquired the three towns in Mercer County, N. J., from the Metropolitan association in exchange for the County of Mammouth, thus placing the new boundary line at Princeton, which remains in Metropolitan territory.

INJURED HARVARD PLAYERS NOW NUMBER TWENTY-TWO

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 17.—With the temperature below freezing, Coach Fisher today kept the Harvard University football squad indoors dividing the afternoon in two sessions of formation drills in the baseball cage and two on blackboard talks. Injured members of the squad now numbering 22 out of the 46 wearers of the red jerseys, according to Dr. T. K. Richards, attend practice, as the Crimson entered its final week of preparation for the Yale game at New Haven Saturday.

The cage drills were reported as being largely corrective lessons based on errors that cropped up during the last few games. The blackboard lecturers were devoted to Harvard and Yale formations.

Philip Spalding, quarterback who was taken out of the Brown game with a leg injury, appears on crutches, and it seemed unlikely that he would be able to play in the bowl. Cheek, a halfback who was tried out as signal caller early in the season, walked with a cane. He has not been in uniform since the Dartmouth game. Zarakov the fastest and lightest back on the squad limped perceptibly. Miller, the 206 pound fullback, who was hurt in the Dartmouth game carried his arm in a sling.

A mass meeting has been called for Wednesday night and Coach Fisher, who will be the principal speaker, said that he would bring the team onto the platform with him.

YALE TEAM INTACT AFTER PRINCETON GAME

New Haven, Nov. 17.—All of the member of the Yale varsity football squad who took part in the Princeton game Saturday reported to Head Coach Jones for practice this afternoon with the exception of Stanley Gill, and Dick Luman. Gill is at the Yale infirmary with an injured hand. Luman, who played throughout the entire game, suffered a number of bruises. It is expected that both men will be able to take part in the battle with Harvard next Saturday.

Shep Bingham was at his old place at left end on the varsity this afternoon and Osborne played at right end in place of Luman. The entire afternoon was devoted by both the first and second teams to signal drills with the coaches calling attention to various points shown in the Princeton game where the playing could have been improved.

There will be light work tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday. The teams are not expected to be put through any real scrimmage before the Harvard game.

EPINARD ARRIVES HOME AFTER HECTIC VOYAGE

Paris, Nov. 17.—(By the A. P.)—Epinard today returned to Trainer Gene Leigh's stables at Maisons-Lafitte, safe and sound, but after vicissitudes which caused the famous French race horse to first be refused admittance to France and treated as an undesirable.

The coolness of the French was not due to Epinard's defeats in the United States but because when he first arrived at Cherbourg from Southhampton, he encountered the red tape of the customs officials. It was discovered that his papers were not in order. These provided for the horse arriving from the United States instead of Great Britain. Consequently, the son of Babajoz was forced to return to Folkstone where a new set of papers were drawn up. He finally landed at Boulogne yesterday and continued on to Maisons-Lafitte.

For the first time since his departure from the United States after his disastrous American contests, Epinard, upon entering his old stall, department from his proverbial Cal.

He reared, kicked, neighed and carried on generally as though wishing to convey the impression he had had enough of sea voyages.

Epinard will remain at Maisons-Lafitte for two weeks and then proceed to the farm of his owner, Pierre Wertheimer, in the department of Bronde. M. Wertheimer said that the horse had completely recovered from the split hoof which he sustained at Laurel. He added, somewhat sadly, referring to Epinard's experiences in trying to reach France, "They treated us better in the United States."

HARVARD STUDENTS TO HAVE MOTOR FLEET

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 17. — A nondescrip motor fleet—battered cars with bodies cut down, mudguards torn off and paint splashed on in varied colors—is being prepared by Harvard undergraduates to take them to New Haven for the Yale-Harvard football game in the bowl Saturday.

The fashion of the moment at Harvard is to have an automobile that is different, and the patched-up cars, some only a step or two removed from the junk heap, have been common sights in the vicinity of Harvard square for the past two months. Now they are being overhauled mechanically so that at least two or three cylinders may be depended on, so that tires many times patched will stand up a little longer, and so that the cars that look like wrecks will move with some consistency toward New Haven.

"Puddle Jumpers" they are called by the scoffing owners of respectable looking automobiles. "Crepe-ators" is the name used by the owners.

The movement to New Haven begins Thursday, while those who have faith in their ramshakle vehicles will wait until Friday. As the cars cost only $50 in some cases, they may be left behind without great loss.

F. W. Rubien, secretary of the A. A. U. said today Hoff was expected to come here soon to compete in leading indoor events.

Hoff holds the present world's pole vault record and also is a star middle distance runner. A stone bruise on his heel prevented him from competing in this favorite event at the Olympics but in spite of this injury he entered the 400 and 800 metre runs and reached the finals in both.

LOSS OF JOHNSON HARD BLOW TO CHAMPIONS

Washington, Nov. 17.—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball club, said late today he would consent to Walter Johnson leaving the team if he assured the veteran pitcher "had negotiated a successful deal in Oakland."

Under the rules of the major leagues for a player to retire from a club h emust have the consent of the management of his club and of all other clubs of the leagues. Griffith said he felt that if he waived his claim on Johnson none of the other club managements would stand in the way.

Griffith said he had talked the proposition over with Johnson before the latter left for his home in Kansas, and Johnson had then indicated he wished to purchase and manage a minor league club. Griffith added that he had heard nothing since from the pitcher.

Recalling Johnson's eighteen years of service in major league baseball, all of which was spent with Washington, Griffith said he felt it his duty to follow the wishes of the star pitcher. His only concern, he added, was that Johnson should have a proposition which would assure him success from a business standpoint.

Griffith declared that while for Johnson's sake he was glad that he was about to close the sort of deal he wanted and if it proved successful, his "loss will be a big one to the Washington team."

"Just before he left the capital after the world series," said Griffith, "I told him that if his deal went through and it looked good to me, I would not stand in his way, in view of his past service to the club and of the further fact that he was nearing the end of his baseball career.

"If, when I get all of the details, the proposition looks O. K. to me, I will let him go as I promised. But before he can get out of the majors, it will be necessary for all of the clubs in both the American and National Leagues to waive on him. As my club will be the one suffering the real loss, I do not suppose that any of the other owners still stand in his way, but you never can tell.

"Needless to say, if Johnson does satisfactorily complete the deal, I wish him the greatest success in his new venture."

Bucky Harris, who piloted the Washington team to its first pennant last season, received the news of Johnson's deal in much the same way Griffith did.

"Naturally I can't smile much when I think of losing a pitcher who won 23 games for us last year," Harris said, "but I can't help being glad for Walter's sake.

"While I can't see at the moment how we are going to get along without Walter, it may prove to be a blessing in disguise, as it will force us to give up depending on one man and to spend more time trying to develop others. Maybe we can uncover another Johnson. That's what it's up to us to do now and we are certainly going to do a lot of looking and experimenting of the hope of doing it.

Harris did not indicate, however, that any definite plans were afoot at this time for strengthening the Senators' pitching corps and filling the gap that would be left by Johnson's loss. Local fandom, although prepared some weeks ago for such a development, had hoped against hope that Johnson would decide to stay with the club another year and help it in the fight to win another pennant.

JOHNSON AND WEISS PURCHASE THE FRANCHISE OF OAKLAND P. C. CLUB

Oakland, Calif., Nov. 17.—The Oakland club in the Pacific Coast baseball league will change hands tomorrow, passing into the ownership of Walter Johnson, pitching ace of the Washington Americans, and George Weiss, owner of the New Haven club in the Eastern League, it was announced here today by J. Cal Ewing, retiring Oakland owner.

The consideration was not announced, but it was indicated by Ewing that it was in the neighborhood of $385,000.

Negotiations were concluded and the check was signed at a conference in the Hotel Oakland today, Ewing announced. The actual transfer papers will be signed tomorrow.

The deal was put over after having nearly fallen through last Friday, when the conferees came to a stalemate on the question of price. Johnson departed for his home in Reno to await developments.

The matter was reopened at another conference yesterday and after two hours Weiss was given an option on the club. This he decided to exercise, and summoned Johnson back from Reno.

With the club will go a fine plant, which it is proposed to name "Walter Johnson Field." Ewing will definitely retire from baseball along with Del Howard, his fellow owner on a smaller scale, and fellow conferee in the negotiations just concluded. In the 25 years that the Oakland magnate has been in baseball he had owned the San Francisco and Oakland clubs and has been president of the league.

Johnson, who will manage the club, is also expected to pitch on three big opening days next season, according to the proposed schedule.

The first opened will be at Sacramento, the second at San Francisco and the third at Portland. The man who won the world pennant for Washington is expected to make frequent appearance during the season.

A stickup in the club's playing personal is expected.

CONNIE MACK NEGOTIATES DEAL FOR COAST PLAYER

Philadelphia, Nov. 17.—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia American league baseball club, tonight announced the completion of a deal by which Gordon S. Cochrane, star catcher of the Portland club, Pacific Coast league, comes to the Athletics in exchange for five players and a "cash consideration." Mr. Mack declined to state the amount of cash involved, but reports from other sources said it was $50,000.

Denny Burns and Bob Hasley, pitchers; Harry Riconda, Ollie Shirling, outfielder, and Charles Rowland, catcher, are the players who will go to Portland in the deal.

Several major league magnates were said to have made flattering offers for the Pacific Coast star, whose home is in Bridgewater, Mass. Cochrane, who was graduated from Boston University, gained fame as a catcher while still in college. During the past season he played in ninety games for Portland, pounding the ball for a batting average of .338. He is 21 years old.

SPORTING NOTES

Homing pigeons can travel 500 miles at an average speed of nearly a mile a minute.

The Sheffield club, started in 1855, is the oldest existing football club in England.

Considerably over a million grouse are shot each season in the British Isles, the bulk of them in Scotland and in Derbyshire and Yorkshire. There are somewhere about three thousand moors in the first-named country alone, but the best and most prolific grouse moors are situated in the two English counties.

Cornell has won 17 of the 24 intercollegiate cross-country championships held since 1899.

The annual tournament of the Middle West Bowling association will get under way at Des Moines on November 21.

Queen's Park, a celebrated English football club founded in 1867, was seven years old before it lost a single goal.

On the occasion of the Scotland foogball match at Glasgow, in 1912, the attendance reached the record-breaking figures of 127,307.

The popularity of pigeon-racing in England may be judged from the fact that during the season of racing many of the railroads run "pigeon specials."

The year's game between the Harvard and Yale teams will be the forty-third gridiron battle between representatives of these two universities.

Walter Johnson, of the Washington world's champions, is credited with having pitched the only no-hit game in the American league last season.

The destruction by fire of the old Louisiana Auditorium in New Orleans marks the end of one of the most historic fight arenas in the country.

The recent six-day bicycle race in Chicago proved so successful that it has been decided by the management to repeat the event later in the winter.

The gridiron teams of big colleges either east or west will have to go some to equal the record of the California Bears, who have not been beaten at football in four years.

When the great arena is erected in New York to replace Madison Square Garden it will be equipped for the accomodation of hockey and other ice sports.

J. J. Barry, the old Boston-Philadelphia American league shortstop, is said to be under consideration for the position of manager of the Worcester Eastern league club next season.

A grouse hunting record that has never been equalled was that of the late Lord Walsingham, who in 1885, killed 1,070 grouse in fourteen hours eighteen minutes on the famous moors near Otley, in Yorkshire.

The international six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, starting November 29, promises to excel all previous records in more than one way. The field will consist of more real stars than ever before and the greatest number of foreigners to compete in a long grind on this side of the Atlantic.

An amusing story is told in connection with the fight between Georges Carpentier and Bombardier at the National Sporting Club of London in 1913. Just before the men entered the ring a spectator who had paid seventy-five dollars for a ringside seat adjourned to the bar for a drink, remarking to a friend as he left that he did not care to see the preliminaries and handshaking and would be back in a moment, when the real fighting had commenced. On his return several minutes later he found that the fight was all over. The contest had lasted precisely seventy-three seconds, at the end of which brief period of time the English champion lay beaten at the feet of the champion of France.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week favorable progress was made on local building projects due to the mild weather and contractors are running full speed ahead anticipating some severe weather. The severe weather set in Sunday night and put a halt on cement and plaster work until fires can be started or the temperature rises.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton there were several permits granted for small buildings and additions, but no large buildings are contemplated. The month of November holds up to the normal average of permits having been granted so far this month.

The work on remodeling the property on Franklin square owned by Peter Sellas has been rushed along. The staging is up and part of the walls have been torn out and steel girders put in to reinforce the building. The work of remodeling the building on Main street occupied by the Brooklyn Outfitters is practically complete and the staging is being rolled.

Several dwelling houses in the outskirts of the city have been completed during the past week and others are now in the various stages of construction.

At the Norwich State Hospital the two new buildings, a ward building and nurses' home, are ready for plastering, the outside work having been completed. The plasterers will start work this week after which the trim will be started.

New London

Preliminary steps toward the erection of the proposed addition to the New London Post Office have been started by the Oliver Woodworth Co., Pearl street, who are sinking test pits in preparation for the construction of the foundation. The plans are being prepared by E. E. Witcraft, U. S. Treasury Department architect, and are now in the hands of Postmaster Walter M. Slocum. They call for an addition, 44x25 feet, which will double the size of the present mailing room. A large platform will be erected at the west end of the addition. The contract for the construction, which is estimated to cost $8,000, will be awarded by the Treasury Department. It is understood that local contractors will be invited to submit bids when the plans for the building have been completed.

The walls are up for the fireproof garage at the corner of Bank and Spring streets for William A. Murray of Hardwick, Vt. The building is one story high, of brick, steel and concrete 50x129 feet.

A permit has been issued for a house on Thames street extension for A. F. and G. E. Fargo, 709 Thames street. The new house will be of frame construction, 24x34 feet, arranged for one family. The usual conveniences will be provided. The cost is given at $4,000.

Work has been started on a garage on Prest street, by J. W. Bliven, Blackhall street. The garage will be one story high, 20x61 feet, of concrete and frame construction, with a cement floor and slag roof. The work will be done by the day.

Architect Francis DeGrange has completed plans for the proposed changes to the building on Bank street, opposite Golden street, owned by Samuel Chertoff, 104 Squire street, and estimates are now being made. The plans for the changes have been described in detail in a previous issue of The Record. When the improvements are completed, the store will be occupied by the New London Lighting & Fixture Co.

H. B. Prentice, 141 Mohegan avenue, has been awarded the contract for the residence to be built at the corner of Ledyard and Bayonet streets, by Charles Smith, 570 Main street. The house will be of frame construction, 26x26 feet, with six rooms. The heating will be by steam and all conveniences will be provided.

A Pasqualini et al, concrete garage, Smith street $350.

Number of permits for the week, 9; estimated cost of buildings, $207,500.

Sprague

The contract for the proposed school in this town has been awarded to Archibald Torrance, of Norwich. Mr. Torrance's bid was for $14,475. Other bidders were: Gaucher & Foy, $16,985; George Allen, $16,700; Peck-McWilliams Co., $18,617; Carrol & Fenton $19,800; Damar Boulais, $15,750; George Boucher, $28,983; P. F. Sweeney, $18,846. The plans were prepared by Bliderbeck & Langdon, Inc., New London, and call for a one-story brick building, arranged for three classrooms and a teachers' room.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 20 sales of real estate as compared to 7 sales for the same week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $111,125 and $73,670.

There were 12 sales of real estate in New London last week, one more than during the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $4,079 and $65,500.

State Building

Building permits were issued this week in the cities reported in The Commercial Record to the number of 331, for new construction work to cost $1,786,444. A year ago in the like week 325 permits for construction work amounting to $1,112,360 were issued for new buildings to cost $517,390.

Building Shortage Reported

A post-election development of importance is seen in the growing tendency to proceed with various kinds of expansion programs held up until the results of the voting were made known. Architects in the larger cities in this state report that several contemplated construction projects have come to light within the past week. Many of these are believed to have received added impetus by the favorable nature of the election returns. That a considerable amount of building may be expected to go ahead in the near future is borne out by statistics recently published.

Indications of a building shortage in excess of $4,000,000,000 are contained in reports to S. W. Straus & Co., in a nation-wide survey of all cities of more than 10,000 population, the results of which were made public recently. Of a total shortage reported of $4,050,820,000, $2,102,698,600 is for residential types; $1,130,851,500 for commercial types, and $870,270,000 for public buildings of all kinds. Studies were made in 528 cities, in 148 of which no shortage was reported, thus indicating that in these places the amount of building requirements now rests on the normal demands of growth and improvement. The investigation also brought to light definitely planned expenditures of nearly $800,000,000 during the next two years for churches, hospitals, charitable and educational institutions, these figures not being included in actual shortages now existing. The eastern section of the country reported total shortages of $2,312,510,000, of which $1,652,887,500 was residential; $439,220,000 commercial, and $220,402,500 public. No shortage was reported in Boston, Baltimore, Washington, D. C.; New Orleans, Minneapolis, Kansas City or Jersey City.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting and operations fail?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal tablet remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, now sold by Lee & Osgood and druggists generally, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the internal cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

After waiting for nearly a month for news from loved ones in the gold fields in California two steamships arrived in New York 75 years ago bearing huge sums in gold dust and hundreds of passengers who had made their "strike" and had come back east to enjoy it. All reported that California was growing by leaps and bounds and that it was becoming an independent state.

A number of state elections in neighboring states resulted in whig victories. Items of interest from the Norwich Courier of 1849 follow:

Tuesday, November 13, 1849—The steam ship Empire City, Captain J. D. Wilson arrived at New York Sunday morning from Chagres via Kingston, Jam., bringing one month's later intelligence from the gold regions in California. The Empire City brings $477,207.87 in gold dust consigned to firms in the east besides a large amount of dust in the hands of the passengers. The Steamship Oregon arrived from California with 250 passengers and $750,000 in gold dust. Passengers returning on the two s[hips] have much news to [tell] about the affairs in California. Free Negroes were not permitted to enter the state. The pay of delegates to the legislature of the state will be $16 per day, interpreters $25 and clerks $20 to $25. The joint commission to mark the line between the United States and Mexico has accomplished the survey of the port of Santiago. They have despatched the detachment to make like observations along the other boundary lines of California.

The population of California is estimated at 100,000 with 20,000 at San Francisco, 10,000 at Sacramento City, 8,000 at Stocton and about 40,000 have arrived this year from Missouri and Arkansas. At the state convention the bill of rights was passed. The only point on which controversy was expected was the question of slavery but it was unanimously and utterly voted to prohibit slavery. No news was received from Norwich people and the arrival of the next boats is eagerly awaited here.

In Massachusetts the people voted against coalition. In the counties in which the coalition for senators took place the whigs have gained handsomely over last years vote. The whigs have certainly elected 21 of the 40 senators and probably 23 senators are elected. The coalitionists are elected in Middlesex, Worcester and Plymouth. The house will be whig by from 60 to 70 majority.

We regret to state that an explosion occurred in Allan & Thurber's pistol factory in Worcester last evening instantly killing two of the hands and badly injuring another. One of the men killed was Franklin Thompson of Norwich whose parents reside at the Falls.

Thursday, November 15, 1849—At an adjourned meeting of the young men of this city held in the vestry of the Central Baptist church last evening for the purpose of organizing a Lyceum, the following officers were elected. President, John W. Stedman; vice president, H. H. Starkweather; secretary, Charles L. Davis; treasurer, Charles W. Avery; committee on lectures and essays, Samuel H. Grosvenor, Charles Tracy and Joseph B. Browning. It was voted that S. H. Grosvenor and H. H. Starkweather be appointed regular disputants for the next meeting. The question that will be considered is: Is it expedient for temperance men to vote for other than reliable temperance men.

At the last meeting of the Teachers Institute in Greeneville the teachers present formed themselves into an association to be called "The New London County Teachers Association," after which they proceeded to appoint William H. Potter of Pottersville as president and C. L. Davis, secretary.

Walker is supposed to be elected governor of Louisiana state by a small majority. The congressional delegation is unchanged. General Quitman has been elected governor of Mississippi by a large majority and the democrats also claim the election of four congressmen.

The Henry Lee which sailed to California with a large company made up mostly of young men of Connecticut a number of them from Norwich, arrived at San Francisco on the 13th of September. They were forty-two days off Cape Horn.

Saturday, November 17, 1849—The Boston Atlas of this morning speaks thusly of the election in Massachusetts on last Monday: "The fruits of our victory on Monday last are:—a whig governor and lieutenant governor. A whig house of representatives by at least 60 majority. A whig senate, which will stand 27 whigs to 13 oppositions. A whig gain in the popular vote over the presidential vote of 11,000. A unanimous whig council."

We learn from the New London Chronicle that meeting of the New London, Willimantic and Palmer railroad company was held in New London on Wednesday and that the following gentlemen were chosen directors, Thomas W. Williams, Andrew M. Frink, Andrew C. Lippitt, George R. Lewis, G. M. Ives, Elias Perkins, Joseph Lawrence, Acors Barns, Francis Allen, A. W. Potter and Lyman Allen. At a subsequent meeting of the directors, Thomas W. Williams was elected president.

St. Louis seems in a fair way of burning up all together. On the evening of the 14th Blos' Castor Oil factory and five adjoining dwellings were burned the estimated loss being $150,000. On the same night a large hotel was burned with a loss of $9,000.

The whigs in the state of New York elected the secretary of state, comptroller, treasurer and state engineer. The locofocos elected the judge of the court of appeals, attorney general and state prison inspector. The election gives the whigs 63 and loco 65 in the house. The senate is whig 17 to 15.

Mr. Hawes said there had been 800 fires in Connecticut during 1924 and in the month of October 150 fires. Connecticut was the first state to establish fire wardens in 1905. He encouraged land owners' protection and stated that spark arresters for engines and boilers must be used. The best way to fight forest fires was with water and hand pumps, used by men. Good work is done by steel brooms where the soil is such they can be used. A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Hawes at the close of his address, which he had made so interesting.

The Ladies' society of the M. E. church held an open meeting all day at the vestry Friday, with a large attendance of members and friends. Merchants on Main street have petitioned the court of burgesses to allow unrestricted parking of automobiles on that street. They claim that the present restriction to 40 minutes is injuring their business. There are some who believe that if any limit is necessary during the daytime there should be no restriction after six o'clock in the evening. The merchants say that on account of the street having been torn up all summer they lost much business and they do not wish their trade hampered by an ordinance which will mean the loss of many more dollars to them.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain — the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary trouble and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

Worn Out With Backache?

IS a dull, constant backache slowing you up? Are you lame and stiff—tortured with stabbing pains? Feel weak, tired, utterly "played out?"

Then look to your kidneys! Backache is often a warning that the kidneys are not properly filtering body-poisons from the blood. The whole system is upset by these impurities—you suffer rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and distressing bladder irregularities.

Don't risk serious sickness! Get to the cause of these aches and pains. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Here Is Norwich Proof:

HARRY HULING, 24 Avery St., says: "Backache and kidney trouble are a thing of the past with me for Doan's Pills cured me several years ago and I have never been troubled since. I give my experience in the hope that it may do someone else good to know what Doan's will do. I hold them above other kidney remedies."

NEW LONDON POLICE DEPARTMENT NOT TO BE INVESTIGATED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 17.—The police department of New London is not to be investigated, at least to the extent that a public statement of the grievances of every fellow who has one, or thinks he has one, may be exploited through the newspapers. The committee, that of public safety, to which a resolution to investigate was referred some weeks ago, reported this evening at the council meeting. Three reports were made, so that the committee was by no means harmonious in its findings in the matter. A majority report came from the chairman of the committee, Councilor Whiton, which was to the effect that the investigation should be made, but that the committee's authority to hire counsel should be limited to the director of law and that all stenographic assistance should be rendered by the stenographic force in the employ of the city at the city hall, and that the committee should be enlarged from three to comprise the entire membership of the council; a minority report was presented by Councilor Streeter, to the effect that the legal talent shall not be restricted to the director of law and that the stenographic reports shall not be limited to those from the city's employes in the city hall. The report was that the original resolution should be adopted. Councilor Fox presented a minority report, which he designated as minority report B. That report was of a harmonizing nature and to the effect that the city manager shall make the investigation, insofar as it shall be called an investigation. Mr. Fox desired that the city manager, with the advice of the members of the council, determine wherein there is laxity and failure to enforce and conform to discipline. He pointed out that the city manager was the chief of police and that he was competent to discover any laxity and to bring about the correction of it. He said that to take up the matter through the office of the city manager was the right way and the way that would bring the greatest degree of satisfaction. He proposed that the majority and minority reports should lie on the table and that the council direct the city manager to make an investigation with the purpose of bringing about greater efficiency and stricter discipline in the department. He was of the opinion that if anything was wrong, the methods to be pursued by the city manager would be the most effectual for correcting them. Mr. Fox said it was wrong to get men to testify against each other and then, when they are to remain in the department, bad feelings would be engendered and the best results would not be attained. He said the council members should give the city manager all the information they possess and that the city manager should be called on to correct any and all abuses. Holding hearings behind closed doors would not be conducive to the welfare of the police department. Things would be misconstrued and misrepresented in repetition, he declared. He wanted the city manager to do the housecleaning, if any is to be done. Councilor Whiton, who presented the majority report, finally coincided with Mr. Fox, as did Councilors Morgan and Scott, the last named saying that the investigation of the police was not a new thing and had been recommended by City Manager Barlow, who wanted an appropriation of several hundred dollars to go forward with it. This appropriation was denied him and the investigation was never proceeded with. The result was that the reports were all tabled and the city manager is to report back to the council at the next meeting.

The police have been at work a fortnight endeavoring to locate the owner of the automobile that ran down and injured Mrs. William Dow, 73 Phillips street, on Green street, the driver speeding away from the scene of the accident and leaving Mrs. Dow unconscious in the highway. Pedestrians who went to the assistance of Mrs. Dow declared that the registration of the car was 210, Connecticut issue. The owner of the car bearing that registration resides in Bridgeport and the police of that city are informed that the car has not been further away from Bridgeport than New Haven for over a year.

A two-family dwelling, 7 Mitchell court, owned by Luke Martin, was threatened with serious damage by fire this forenoon when an oil stove in the cellar exploded. The cellar and the first floor were damaged $200. When occupants arose the temperature was so low that the oil stove was started in the cellar to prevent preserves and vegetables from freezing. A short time afterwards the stove exploded and the blazing oil communicated to the woodwork. An alarm was rung in from box 47, Montauk avenue, and with the arrival of the department chemicals were sufficient to extinguish the fire. During the fighting of the flames two women occupants of the upper floors were carried to the street when they fainted, through fear that the building would be destroyed.

He said Genther was on his way from New London Saturday night to his home. On Stanton Hill, Mystic, he attempted to pass the machine operated by John Crandall, Mystic, but because of a car approaching from the opposite direction, Genther was compelled to cut in on Crandall's car with the result that a collision occurred. Girton this evening, charged with reckless driving, operating a motor vehicle when under the age limit and without possessing an operator's license. The charge of reckless driving was nolled but on the charge of operating a car without having a license to do so, O'Connell was fined $25 and costs, but $15 of the fine was remitted and on the charge of operating a car when not of the age to do so, a fine of $3 was imposed. O'Connell was arrested last Wednesday by State Police Officer Giles Watson when O'Connell was detected operating a car on the state highway between New London and Norwich.

Herbert Gillmann, Lincoln avenue, 24, was fined $5 and costs on a charge of passing an intersecting street without reducing the speed of his motor vehicle and not sounding his horn. He paid. Gillman stated that he was giving two young lady acquaintances a ride earlier in the evening and when one of them told him to "step on it" he did as requested. Murphy was one of several officers making an arrest of a quartet of brawlers and was standing on the running board of the police car when the auto side-swiped the commercial truck.

Miss Elizabeth S. Moriarty, 42, daughter of Susan and the late Michael Moriarty, died Sunday at her home, 16 Rogers street. Miss Moriarty has been in ill health several years. She is survived by her mother and four brothers, John and Peter Moriarty of this city, Charles Moriarty, Brooklyn, and Jeremiah Moriarty of Boston.

Woichick Ustach or Moustache as he may be called, was fined $10 in the police court this morning just for a drunk, the same being a load that he took on at a Polish wedding Sunday. Ustach tried to navigate with his cargo of booze, but he got only as far as the street, where he fell and was gathered in. Ustach told the court he did not know anything that happened, but he did know that he attended a wedding, though he was not sure that he was not an unbidden guest.

John N. Dimon admitted that he was drunk, when presented in the police court. He was in bad shape physically when he paid a fine of $10 and departed.

Annie Erickson Kennedy, a woman who has been before the court on many occasions and for various offenses, was there today charged with the theft of three finger rings from John Quinn. The rings looked like a ten cent store lot, but John said they were of value. He did not make an out and out claim to them when they were produced, and Annie declared that they were given to her, though she would willingly give them to anyone who claimed them. Quinn also made the charge that Annie stole a watch from him, but before the case got to court he reported that he had found the watch and was mistaken in alleging that it had been stolen. The case against the Erickson woman was so hazy that the complain was nolled.

Newton Rowley will come before the [illegible] Tuesday to tell how he happened to drive his automobile head-on into a Broad street trolley car, last week at night. He is charged with having been under the influence of liquor when he thus offended against the laws of the state as they apply to the reckless operation of an automobile. There was a policeman on the front end of the trolley car as the auto smashed into it and he saw the auto some distance away and is understood to have told the motorman that the collision was coming. Still the trolley car could not dodge so the smash came when the automobile reached the street car. What defense Rowley will make is not known, but he is said to have a reason to account for the smash. Rowley has before been concerned in a reckless driving case.

The cold weather this morning brought the biggest surprise of the winter thus far to this section. Automobilists who left their cars in the open and many who housed their machines in unheated garages found that they had frozen radiators to attend to before they could use the cars. The temperature went to 12 above zero in places, but the official record is understood to be 15 degrees.

The Union Bank and Trust company made use today of the addition erected on the east side of its place of business. The space was much needed for the business of the bank, for it affords a convenience that both the employes of the bank and the patrons of the institution will appreciate. There is nothing elaborate about the addition, but it provides substantial and lasting accessories to the business.

Says — Now Stiff Joints Must Go!

New Discovery Limbers 'Em Up and Even the Creaking Ceases.

Yes; it's true—the world progresses. All you have to do nowadays to limber up that stiff, rusty knee joint is to squeeze a half-inch of miracle working substance from a tube.

Then rub it on the offending part for about a quarter of a minute or until it soaks through the skin and disappears on its errand of mercy.

Then read the evening newspapers and go to bed.

The chances are that your misbehaving knee joint will lose its "creak" while you are dreaming about the high fences you used to leap when you were a youngster.

"And in the morning," says one who has tried the new discovery, "you'll feel so happy that you'll want to jump into your sportiest clothes and walk briskly down the street just to show the neighbors that you are not as old as they think you are."

Joint-Ease they call this wonder working substance, for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to limber up the stiff, inflamed rheumatic joint, or reduce the swelling, Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good, clean, penetrating prescription that in just a few months has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But Joint-Ease is for bothersome joints, whether in knee, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale is immense.

Lee & Osgood has a big supply of it and druggists everywhere report a big demand.

Always remember, when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—quick.

Streakless dishes in 1/3 less time!

YOUR first trial of snow-white Chipso for dish-washing will be an adventure into the land of discoveries!

Think what Chipso means—

No more handling of cake soap—Chipso is a dry, powderless, "sneezeless," instant-sudsing flake. No more scrubbing to get the grease off—Chipso suds cut grease quickly. No more double rinsings to remove the soap—Chipso rinses at the first dash of fresh water. A third of your time saved for rest or pleasure.

WESTERLY

Miss Dorothy E. Lincoln is having a week's vacation from her duties at the Nash newsstand and will pass part of the time in Boston and as the guest of her aunt in Sharon, Mass. During her absence, Mrs. Harold D. Campbell will substitute.

William H. Clapham, worshipful master; Clarence A. Vars, junior warden, and Albert E. Barber, secretary, were representatives of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. A., of Westerly in attendance, Monday, at the semi-annual communication of the Grand Lodge of the Most Ancient and Honorable Society of Free and Accepted Masons for the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, which assembled in Freemasons' hall in Providence. Past Masters George E. Broughton of Westerly and Arthur Remington of Providence, both of Franklin lodge, were present.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk, Nov. 13th, was the transfer by Frank W. Coy Real Estate Co., and Charles P. Eccleston to Joseph A. Brown and Jane G. Brown of a parcel of land on the north side of Cross street. Nov. 15th Mary C. Scalon, of Westerly, granted a year's lease with the privilege of four one-year renewals to the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company of a store on Pleasant View beach. Nov. 14, John S. Govan, of Hartford, conveyed to the Frank W. Coy Real Estate Co. a certain two-acre tract or parcel of land at Watch Hill between the Atlantic Ocean and Ocean View highway and east of the land of Jane F. Lawrence. Saturday Ellie Aldrich Mowry Luther of Cranston, R. I., deeded to Thomas L. Fontana of Westerly a certain lot of land at Pleasant View with buildings and improvements, on the north side of Atlantic avenue. On the same day Phebe W. P. Burnum, of Westerly, gave a five-year-lease to Dwight W. Ellis of Monson, Mass., of certain land with buildings, known as "The Breakers," at Weekapaug.

Monday evening in the church school room of Christ Episcopal church was held the first lesson of the six weeks' course in handcraft of the Westerly Women's Community club. Miss Sally Coy, president. The classes in millinery began sessions a week ago. There were three classes formed Monday night, beginners' basketry, in charge of Miss Lucy Crowley and advanced basketry, under direction of George Gagnon. Miss Ruth V. Davis instructed the class in handcraft which [illegible] in charge of Mrs. Samuel H. Davis a year. Later in the year Miss Davis will instruct a women's gym class, for the use of which an effort will be made the first of next year to secure the state armory on Dixon street.

An impressive memorial of Westerly granite to soldiers and sailors of Maine who served in the World war was dedicated at Kittery, Me., Armistice Day by Governor Baxter and other state officials. The memorial is built entirely of granite quarried in Westerly. Many Rhode Islanders who enter Maine through New Hampshire will see the monument, as it is ideally located, facing the highway across the recently completed interstate memorial bridge.

The base of the memorial is formed by a broad granite platform 48 feet long and 22 feet wide, with semi-circular ends inclosing curved granite benches. In the centre of the platform there will be a tablet bearing the dedicatory inscription, the seal of the state and a bronze panel depicting the horror of war, sculptured by Miss Bashka Paeff of Boston.

When Miss Paeff completes the work the bronze will be cast in foundries of the Gorham Manufacturing company, at Providence. The Smith Granite company of Westerly designed, cut and erected the monument.

Thermometers in Westerly registering 10, 12 and 14 degrees were reported Monday morning. Following a short rain, squall, and severe wind storm on Sunday evening the temperature dropped rapidly and frozen water pipes were almost as common as dandelions a day previous. Four New Britain girls who visited Pleasant View, three of them going in bathing Saturday, caused but little comment, but Monday at the Watch Hill Coast Guard station. Surfmen Thomas Hartley and John Keegan at 11 a.m. took a swim in the brine deep, as they have been doing daily while one's teeth almost chattered as the stunt was talked about.

Westerly had but one case on the attorney general's docket of eight cases to come before the grand jury in the November session of superior court for Washington county when it convened at the county court house at West Kingston, Monday morning. There was a large attendance of witnesses and lawyers present, for this November term at which Judge Hugh B. Baker is the presiding justice and the attorney general's department was represented by Assistant Attorney General John P. Hartigan. After the delivery of the proclamation by Deputy Sheriff George Phillips Attorney Hartigan examined the grand jury as to their qualifications. Seventeen of the 18 grand jurors were accepted. Ernest W. Webster of South Kingstown was excused as he had served in the United States district court within the past two years. George L. Stillman of Westerly was appointed by the court as foreman of the grand jury which returned at about 11.30 o'clock to consider seven or eight cases.

The grand jury comprises: Charles Cranston, Thomas E. Sturdevent, of North Kingstown; Frank Wilkie, Cyril W. Rifer, Oliver H. Lowe, South Kingstown; Saxton C. Rudlow, Albert L. Young, Duncan McKellar, Edward Sumner, George L. Stillman, Westerly; Clifford L. Dexter, John J. Greene, Hopkinton, and Arthur L. Gardner, Charles S. Barber, Alexander Latondress and Nicholas Pelkey of Narragansett.

There seemed to be some uncertainty Monday, as to whether or not there will be a session at Westerly during this term of the court. Judge Baker said that he is to go to Newport the first of December, and Judge Arthur P. Sumner, who is now in Newport, will go to Kent Dec. 1 and is expected to remain there for about two weeks. For that reason some of the cases which had been assigned to the Westerly calendar were put on the Kingston docket.

But should there be a Westerly session these cases will be tried at the Westerly court house. There were, however, a number of cases assigned directly to Westerly. There are 13 cases on the divorce docket which will be heard at today's (Tuesday) session of the court.

Enrollment in Vienna schools decreased from 105,375 children in 1923 to 92,960 in 1924. The number of teachers has been reduced by 529, and the city now has 7,380 active teachers.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

OPERATION ADVISED FRIEND SAID "DON'T DO IT!"

Tells Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound First. Proved Good Advice

Cleveland, Ohio.—"Just a few lines to let you know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was married going on for three years, and went to a doctor and was taking treatments twice a week for pains every month. I used to lie in bed three or four days with them and the doctor would call and inject something into my arm to put me asleep so I would not feel the pains. At last she said I would have to be operated on if I wanted any children.' Well, I just happened to go to see a friend with her first baby and I told her I was going to the hospital, and she said, 'Don't do it! You go and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you won't need any operation.' So my husband got me a bottle right away. Now I have two lovely children. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every woman. It has helped me and a lot of my friends."—Mrs. A. McANDLESS, 1709 South Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS VIGOROUS.

New York, Nov. 17.—The upward movement of stock prices was resumed with increased vigor in today's market, net gains of one to six points being scattered throughout the list at the close. Both the rail and industrial averages attained new high levels for the year, with sixty individual issues breaking through their previous peak prices.

Buying again spread over a broad list, but the best gains were recorded in the public utility, railroad, automotive and merchandising issues. Trading was in large volume, the day's sales falling slightly below 1,700,000 shares.

The principal news development of the day was the decision of the executive committee of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad company to recommend the inauguration of dividends at the rate of $5 a year on the preferred stock which will require $1,232,500 annually. Net income applicable to such dividends is expected to be in excess of $5,000,000 for the current year. The announcement, which was not made until after the market closed, undoubtedly was a disappointment to many traders who had expected the full $7 share to be established at this time.

There was a good demand for the high grade carriers on today's market. New York Central touched 119, the highest price since 1912, closing slightly below that figure for a net gain of two points on the day. Illinois Central, Southern Railway, Missouri Pacific preferred, "Big Four," and the Wabash issues also mounted to new 1924 high levels.

Realizing sales appeared in rather large volume throughout the day, but they were well absorbed. United States Steel common again crossed 115 to within 1-8 of the year's high and then slipped back to 114 5-8 for a net gain of 1-4 on the day. American Can, which sold as high as 151, fell back to 149 1-2. Baldwin closed more than a point higher at 124 3-8 after having touched 125 1-2. General Electric displayed marked strength selling ten points above Saturday's close at 276 1-2 and then slipped back to 273.

A brisk demand for Radio Corporation carried that stock up more than 4 points to 40 1-4, a record. Other issues to sell at new maximum prices were U. S. Rubber, Mack Trucks, White Motor issues, Mack Trucks, White Motor issues, Lambda Gas, Prairie Pipe, General Asphalt. Assented Dry Goods, May Department Stores, Invincible Oil, Copper, American International Corporation, Famous Players and Savage Arms.

Oils were inclined to heaviness despite the recent favorable trade news. Selling of these issues probably was inspired by the unexpected Sinclair financing. Net losses, however, were held to fractions.

Call money renewed at 2 per cent. rates advanced to 2 1-2 on the increased demand for funds for stock market purposes. The unusually heavy demand for mid-month settlements contributed to the shortage in the supply. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The foreign exchanges displayed an easier tone. Demand sterling sold off more than a cent to around $4.61 1-2 and French francs dropped about 5 points to 5.23 cents. Most of the other recessions were of a nominal nature.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Nov. 17.—Stock prices moved irregularly higher in today's curb market. The oil shares were reactionary but the rest of the list pointed to higher ground. Prairie Oil and Gas broke five points. Ohio Oil and South Pennsylvania four each, while Illinois Pipe, Cities Service common and Buckeye Pipe lost a point or so. Selling of the oils was stimulated by the announcement of a reduction in the dividend on Ohio Oil.

Radio shares were among the outstanding spots in the industrial list. Radio Corporation common advancing one point to a new high at 8, in sympathy with a brisk advance in the new issue of that company on the "Big Board." Thermoidyne sold at 13, the year's high, while Dubilies, Freed-Eisemann and Ware gained 3-4 to one point.

Heavy trading again took place in Goodyear Tire and Rubber, which yielded slightly on profit-taking. Considerable activity again took place in the new Continental Baking Company issues, the A stock touching a new high mark at 113 and then slipping back to 110 3-4 for at net gain of more than seven points on the day and the B stock attaining a new maximum at 22 3-8 and then easing to 21 5-8 for a net gain of 3-4.

A jump of 3 points in American Gas and Electric featured the public utility group.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Nov. 17.—Conflicting price movements marked today's bond trading which was featured by a fresh spurt in New Haven, New York Central and St. Paul Railroad liens and a sharp decline in some of the United States government issues. Resumption of profit-taking in various sections of the list brought about a slight recession in the general price average.

Persistent reports that the successful completion of the New Haven Railroad's refunding programme was assured at an early date, combined with its steady gain in earnings, stimulated accumulation of its bonds. New high records were established by the convertible 6s and 7s and France 7s, on gains of 1 to 2 points.

Buoyancy of New York Central shares promoted active buying of the railroad's six per cent. bonds, which climbed two points to a new top price at 113 1-2 and closed within a fraction of the day's high level. A rise of 1 to 2 points in the active St. Paul issues was attributed to prospects of favorable earnings throughout the fall months. Realizing sales, however, reduced recent gains of Frisco, International-Great Northern and Chicago and Eastern Illinois liens.

Brooklyn Union Gas issues, after being hammered down last week, staged a rally today which lifted prices more than six points above Saturday's close. Prices of other public utility and industrial mortgages moved irregularly.

Liberty bonds wavered despite the ease of the time money market with the treasury 4 1-4s yielding almost half a point.

Bankers reported that a $11,500,000 issue of Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company five per cent. bonds had been sold at par. Proceeds will be used in financing the construction of a $30,000,000 power plant at Avon, Ohio.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Wheat underwent something of a setback in price today after announcement that the United States visible supply total had increased to nearly 100,000,000 bushels. The wheat market closed heavy, 3-8 to 7-8c. Net lower. December 153 1-2 to 153 5-8 and may 160 1-2 to 160 5-8, with corn at 7-8 to 1 1-4c. Grain, oats 1-8 to 3-8c. Up and provisions varying from 12c. decline to a raise of 7 to 10c.

At first, the wheat market was influenced chiefly by reports of frost in Argentina and by an upturn in quotations both at Buenos Aires and Liverpool. Subsequently word was received that Argentina frost had done but little damage, profit-taking sales here tended also to weaken values, but the enlargement of the United States visible supply figures appeared to be the chief factor in wiping out rains and bringing about the lower prices which ruled during the last part of the day.

Corn displayed independent strength. Gossip was current that very little new corn was grading as well as had been expected in view of the excellent weather of the last two months. Wintry conditions today were an incentive to buy. Oats followed corn.

Most deliveries of provisions went higher, sympathizing with corn, despite a downturn in hogs values.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

A Secret

The Old Red Rooster was mending the big wooden rake,—one of its peg teeth was broken, you see,—as Little Jack Rabbit hopped into the Little Red Barn.

"Did you say you had a secret," panted the bunny boy, who, you remember on hearing the old fowl mention it in the last story had hurriedly filled the woodbox with kindling wood.

"S-s-sch!" cautioned the Old Red Rooster, looking toward the open door.

The little bunny boy kept right on.

"A secret's a secret. Mustn't tell anyone."

"Cross my heart," promised the bunny boy.

"Well," slowly began the old Red Rooster, fitting the wooden peg into the rake. "Uncle Lucky is going to give a Lollypop Party."

"Am I invited?" inquired the anxious little bunny boy. I don't suppose for a moment he thought he'd be forgotten but he had a habit of asking questions,—as many questions as the hairs on his head. Why, sometimes the day wasn't long enough to answer all of them.

"You'll soon find out," answered the Old Red Rooster, strutting out of the Little Red Barn with the rake over his shoulder. "You'll find out before I've raked up all the leaves I guess,—and maybe sooner." And with a loud cock-a-doodle, cock-a-doodle cock-a-doodle-do in answer to a near by rooster's call, he set to work.

For a few minutes the little bunny watched him, then hopping down the winding path through the bramble bushes, he reached the Bunny Meadow.

"Hellow, where you going?" asked Timmie Meadowmouse, peeping out of his little grass bungalow.

"Over to Uncle Lucky's," answered the bunny boy, and away he went, clipperty clip, lipperty lip up the Old Cow Path and over the hilltop, where Jay Billy Breeze was dancing a jig and knocking off acorns for Little Miss Pig. Yes sir. The Kind Farmer knew that pigs love acorns and every autumn allowed them to roam in a small fenced-in part of the Shady Forest. Pitter, patter! when the acorns as they dropped from the branches over head as this mischievous little wind whistled through the treetops.

But the little bunny kept right on. Hipperty lip, skipperty skip up the winding trail, in and out among the rocks and the bushes, until, pretty soon, not so very long, maybe a thousand hops or more, he came to his dear old uncle's door—the kitchen door, I mean, for while I've paused to explain, this nimble little bunny has hopped around Mr. Lucky Left-hindfoot's neat white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street, Rabbitville.

And in the next story your Uncle David Cory will tell you what dear old bunny uncle said to his little rabbit nephew.

MADE LIFE MISERABLE FOR "KETCHUP KING"

New York, Nov. 17.—An office boy, a stenographer and a chauffeur were witnesses today when Miss Muriel Buell, of Westchester, N. Y., appeared in Tombs court as defendant to charge of disorderly conduct, with Jefferson Livingston, "ketchup king" and horse-fancier, as the complaint.

Their testimony with that of Livingston, was that Miss Buell made life miserable for the millionaire; that she had walked in upon him and his friends at dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, had driven him from his automobile when it was caught in traffic jams, and had carried a gun when she visited Livingston's office to demand money.

Miss Buell once sued Livingston for breach of contract, declaring that he did not keep a promise to pay her $1,750 a month for life. He contended he had settled with her for $12,500 cash.

She was arrested at Livingston's Wall street office last Thursday and taken to a police station in her own sedan, after a scene which the "ketchup king" described as "the climax to a series of embarrassing episodes."

On that day, the office boy testified, Miss Buell demanded entry to Livingston's presence, saying, "Don't be afraid of me, little boy. I'm not going to hurt you even though I carry a gun around."

The stenographer testified that she had seen Miss Buell rifling the pockets of Livingston's topcoat where it hung in the reception room. When she saw the visitor extract a telegram from the coat and start reading, said the witness, she summoned her employer, who retrieved the message.

Miss Buell's chauffeur also was a witness. She had called him into Livingston's office to see what occurred, after the broker had called in his office boy and stenographer.

The trial will be resumed on Wednesday.

The Danbury fire department received a call for assistance from Carmel, N. Y., 16 miles west of Danbury, where it was reported a fire was raging in the center of the village.

DECREASE IN MORALITY RATE IN NEW YORK STATE

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The morality rate in New York state in September of this year was 11.1 per 1,000 population, or 20 per cent. less than the rate for the same month ten years ago, according to an announcement today by Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Jr., commissioner of health.

Comparisons of statistics on deaths of children showed that there had been a decrease of almost 50 per cent. this year as compared with 1914.

The governor's staff is ordered to accompany the commander in chief, Governor C. A. Templeton, on December 3, when the state armory at South Manchester is to be dedicated.

POETRY

THE WORLD'S WAY.

At Haroun's court it chanced, upon a time,
An Arab poet made this pleasant rhyme:
"The new moon is a horseshoe, wrought of God,
Wherewith the Sultan's stallion shall be shod."

On hearing this, the Sultan smiled and gave
The man a gold-piece. Sing again, O slave!

Above his lute the happy singer bent,
And turned another gracious compliment.

And, as before, the smiling Sultan gave
The man a sekkah. Sing again, O slave.

Again the verse came, fluent as a rill
That wanders, silver-footed, down a hill.

The Sultan, listening, nodded as before.
Still gave the gold, and still demanded more.

The nimble fancy that had climbed so high
Grew weary with its climbing by and by;

Strange discords rose; the sense went quite amiss;
The singer's rhymes refused to meet and kiss;

Invention flagged, the lute had got unstrung,
And twice he sang the song already sung.

The Sultan, furious, called a mute, and said:
"O Musta, straightway whip me off his head!"

Poets! not in Arabia alone
You get beheaded when your skill is gone.
—Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

SALVIA SPLENDENS.

Once, in the long ago, under the harvest moon,
Spreading pale golden sheen over the dusky glades,
Two brawn red-skinned braves fired with a maiden's smile,
By her black flashing eyes, and her sleek braided hair,
Shed blood upon the soil, red blood on the clean soil.
So hot with rage it was, red-hot with hate and rage,
Life in it grew and grew, burst blossoms red.
Bright as the blood they shed, bright her laughing lips,
Blossoms of love and rage.

Cool in this autumn night, passion still and cool—
No little homing wing dips in the sky,
All the sweet flower-things, crushed clammy, desolate,
Sprawl in their death-like sleep on earth's quiet breast,
But, when the harvest moon glimmers goldenly
Down on the garden wall, gorgeous fresco there,
On the gray dingy stone salvia blooms blaze,
Red as the maiden's lips, hot as a brave's blood,
Blossoms of love and rage!
—Selected.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Somehow I never seem to be able to find things where I lay them," remarked the hen in the game of Exchange.

Old man Stebbs is so stingy.
Yes?
Yesterday when he opened his watch let to get carefare three moths be out.—Dartmouth Jack O'Lantern.

"But surely," urged Jones, seeking believing."
"Not necessarily," replied Brown. "For instance, I see you every day."—London Telegram.

What are you drawing, Freddie?
A dog.
But where's its tail?
Oh, that's still in the inkpot!—Tit-Bits (London.)

Your husband looks like a brilliant man. I supose he knows practically everything.

Don't fool yourself; he doesn't even suspect anything.—University of Southern California Wampus.

Doctor—What! Your dyspepsia no better? Did you follow my advice and drink hot water one hour before breakfast?

Patient—I did my best, but I couldn't keep it up more than 10 minutes.—Edinburg Scotsman.

Mother (anxiously)—What is Willie crying for?

Willie's brother—Oh, nothing much. He dug a hole in the garden, and now that the rain's come on, he wants to bring the hole into the house.—Glendale Gazette.

"Yes, sir," declared a stout man in the smoker, "now, that I have wealth and leisure I propes to check up on the song writers.

As to how?

First, I'll count the sycamores along the Wabash and then I'll inspect those braes of Maxwelton.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Harvard University is the oldest American educational institution.

Antelopes will not eat clover hay which has the least mold about it.

Southeast Missouri has the greatest lead-producing district in the United States.

Telephone conversations in the United States annually total about 25,000,000,000 calls.

Mrs. Frank S. Rogers, of South Portland, Me., has a pint glass tumbler which she has filled each year with jelly made from crab apples from the same tree for forty-nine consecutive years.

The Coalville council of Leicester, England, which has a Socialist majority, declined to accept a bid to paint street lamps at $160, saying the work could not be done at that price but accepted one at double the rejected bid.

The National Lumber Manufacturers' Association has estimated that forest fire losses this season in California, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho amount to $4,250,000. Of this, $3,000,000 represented the loss of standing timber in the national parks and forests; $500,000 damages to privately owned standing timber and equal sum for logs and logging equipment; $250,000 in losses to settlers and community property.

One of the most ingenious uses for the portable electric drill was demonstrated recently in the fruit-growing territory of California, where a pair of automatic augers operating from one motor mounted on a small truck bored holes for 60,000 grape vines in ten days says Popular Science Monthly. This resulted in a saving of $400 a day over hand labor. Six thousand three inches in diameter and eighteen inches deep were dug each day.

It isn't every one's luck to see two moose battling in the forest, but to see three buck's enraged is something extraordinary. Seven hunters from Waverly, N. Y., were out recently after moose up in the Abitibi district in Canada, and saw ahead two bull moose charging at each other. A third moose appeared and joined the conflict. One of the moose weakened during the fight and the others charged him viciously. The seven, who had been watching the battle, then shot the three, and these prizes, with two other moose barred in the next day's hunt were taken back to Waverly.

JEWETT CITY

The cold wave struck this burg Sunday night like a thousand of brick. Those who retired early Sunday evening last remembered a gentle rain falling, with the mercury around 60. At 5 a. m., after a night during which a gale from the northwest did steady business, the readings all about the borough were reported as low as 9 and 10 above, with everything frozen hard. During the night the mercury made the unprecedented drop of 50 degrees. Nothing of recent record in this vicinity shows such rapid approach of cold. With early morning chimney fires in three different sections of the borough and frozen automobile radiators, the firemen and garage mechanics were on the jump all day. Twenty-two was the highest the silver was able to reach Monday. At times during Sunday night the gale shook the houses and fairly made the bedsteads rock.

Miss Jennie Blake returned Sunday evening after several days' visit with her sister in Providence.

Mrs. Reginald Potts is at Backus hospital, where she was taken Sunday for a critical operation.

Guests at the home of Mrs. George Robinson Sunday were Willard Cady of Oxford, Mass., Miss Edith Mansfield of Worcester and Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon of Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ross and daughter Katie leave today (Tuesday) for their winter home in Wellesley, Mass. They are to be accompanied by Sarah Louise Hadley.

When the timetable change of Sept. 28th went into effect it broke the connection which the 4.15 trolley has always made at Plainfield with the Sunday afternoon train for Providence. Passengers from Jewett City desiring to reach Providence Sunday afternoon were obliged to go to the Lisbon station, a mile from the town. The new schedule of Sept. 9th re-established the connection, making the trolley leave at 4.15 to accomplish it. Several people during the past week have returned home after missing the 3.13 p. m. train for Boston. It used to leave on the old schedule at 3.35. Passengers from Lisbon for points west of Willimantic who take the last train, leaving Lisbon at 5.55, must now wait an hour and a half in Willimantic. A fine scheme was put over on the regular afternoon passenger traffic between Providence and Jewett City. The last train leaving Providence at 4.10 reaches Plainfield at 5.35. The trolley doesn't leave for Jewett City until 10 minutes of 7. Rather than endure the long wait, passengers are going to Lisbon, paying 26 cents per, in addition to automobile charges, to reach Jewett City from Lisbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Franklin and children of Phenix, R. I., were visitors Sunday at the home of Mrs. Agnes Franklin.

A number of Jewett City people were in Norwich Sunday evening to hear Miss Margaret Slattery at the Central Baptist church.

Not a little interest was felt by the older residents of the borough upon reading in Monday's Bulletin, in the Danielson column, the account of the death of Horatio A. Brown. Around forty years ago, Mr. Brown, with his wife and daughter Minda, lived in Jewett City, where he in company with the late Russell M. Brown carried on a meat business in the basement of the Liberty Hall block. Mr. Brown's father was Ambrose Brown and his son Horatio was a native of Exeter, R. I. Coming here from Bradford, he was at one time the superintendent of the Baptist Sunday school. Many remember his daughter Minda, an especially attractive girl; she married later, and has since died. While Horatio Brown was a resident of Attawaugan there was the desire to have a church. Mr. Brown canvassed the town, thereby learning that there were among the Christian residents a majority of the Methodist faith, whereupon he founded and established the Methodist church, still a flourishing parish. While in Webster, Mass., Mr Brown was in the employ of Samuel Slater & Sons. Deacon John E. Phillips of this place and the late Horatio Brown were schoolmates here in 1865 and then began a friendship extending over half a century which was only broken by the passing of the elder man. Mr. Phillips, hearing of his illness, went to Putnam to call upon him Saturday, but he was able to receive no sign of recognition from his bosom chum. Death was due to a clot of blood on the brain.

A Lisbon man, in thinking over the recent election in that town, was overheard to remark that "Candidates seldom do all they promise, for which, no doubt, we should thank God."

George Norman and Ethel Roode from the Pachaug Sunday school and Walter and Clara Hyde and Albert Bradlow from the Newent Sunday school attended the state Sunday school convention at Waterbury one day.

The Jewett City Speedboys won a most decisive victory over Plainfield 43 to 0. The Speedboys had the following lineup: Stanley le, McCloggage lt, W. Stawicki lg, Western c, Hagberg, Groulette rt, Barry re, Parkhurst (captain) qb, Kaduda lhb, Eichelberger rhb, Jaskiewcz fb. The Speedboys were so far ahead in the third quarter that Captain Parkhurst decided to give all of his subs a tryout, and the played well. The Speedboys have yet to taste defeat.

The death of Miss Florence Wakefield in Norwich is a cause for much sorrow to many Jewett City friends, for her home was here most of her life until she became a student nurse at Backus hospital. She was a member of the Methodist church and of Ann Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R. She has relatives living here and often visited them. On every hand are heard words of unqualified admiration for her perseverance in perfecting herself in her profession.

A meeting of Dorcas circle of The King's Daughters is to be held at the home of Miss M. A. Burdick Wednesday evening.

Actuated by the wonderful tumble in the mercury Sunday evening, George A. Ross, who has weather records dating back 150 years, was able to find that Dec. 3, 1835, 89 years ago the mercury fell between noon and midnight from 44 above to 4 below. The record further states that October and up to the middle of November was unusually mild and exceedingly dry. The latter half of November was very cold, with no rain until the day before Christmas.

Official notice was received Monday by Deputy Game Warden W. R. Palmer that the ban on hunting would be lifted this (Tuesday) morning.

Old Cluey Watson was over to the town Saturday to see about stocking up on ammunition for the coming trapping season, which he predicts will be a profitable one for him. Old Cluey read in The Bulletin last week about an animal out in the western part of the state that is catching and eating the hunters' dogs. The old man was unable to find cartridges loaded with buckshot, so he bought a couple of pounds of shot, and as he owns a set of loading tools he will prepare a few, and with those in the pocket of his hunting coat, ready to slip into his gun at a moment's notice, he said: "I don't calculate any animal will eat up my dog, if I see him first!"

THANKSGIVING APPEAL BY FAMILY WELFARE DEPARTMENT

The grand old New England holiday is almost here—it is only a little more than a week before we shall be gathering with our friends around the festive board, eating our fill of Thanksgiving goodies.

What of those humbler friends of ours who will not have a Thanksgiving dinner if we do not put our hands in our pockets and see that the wherewithall is provided—the where-withal that shall heap their plates with wholesome food on that joyous occasion; and fill their hearts with a new sense of the kindness, generosity and brotherhood that still exists in this world, that sometimes seems to us all upside down.

The part attended to by the devoted women of the family welfare department is never stinted nor begrudgingly given; but willing hands and loyal hearts are helpless if there is little or nothing provided in the way of money for the necessary purchases. Let us see, now just how much money they want and for what.

They have on their list seventy families to be provided with Thanksgiving dinners. Surely we would not have one of these needy friends of ours go without meat on this day of all the year. Therefore the meat is a very important item and one that costs more than all the rest. Then they have to provide coffee, tea and sugar, vegetables and fruit. Some of these latter are given by the school children; but these gifts have to be brought from the school houses to the place where the waiting women stand ready to fill and send out the baskets. So we see there is considerable expense incurred, besides the food, for collecting the school children's donations, and then delivering the baskets to the different families which are scattered throughout the town.

There is the family welfare motor squad that does good work and faithful—but they cannot begin to do it all. The family welfare workers have systematized everything to a nicety and they tell us that if they have a little more than a dollar to spend for each family they can get along all right.

This is a fine humanitarian cause and for our own people!! can we not see to it that the modest sum of $75 is put into the hands of these earnest workers within a few days? This will enable these women who represent you and me to do their work without being hampered and to the best possible advantage.

Kindly send your gift to the Family Welfare Department, No. 9 Washington street. Make it a generous one and it will be gratefully received and well spent and you will have a joyous Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Comstock, now residing on Williams street, have bought the former Myron F. Prentice property, 42 Lincoln avenue, and will occupy it after its alteration into two apartments. For the past year the house has been owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William F. Scully, who are moving from Norwich.

TAFTVILLE

Posters being displayed about the village and in store windows announce the annual roll call of the American Red Cross. The membership drive of the Taftville Chapter is to be held this week. Taftville has always had an unusually large membership for its population, and those in charge of the drive are anxious to obtain a 100 per cent. renewal of old memberships and a great many new ones.

The Community Sewing Class met Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Poneman building.

There were few automobile radiators in the village that were not frozen Monday morning. The unexpected cold snap caught most of the local motorists with no alcohol or anti-freezing mixture in their cars, and the result was either a car that would not start, or a steaming radiator after the motor had run for a few minutes. Stalled cars with clouds of steam coming from the radiators were a common sight about the village streets during the early hours of Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Osten Ferguson of Holyoke, Mass., have been recent guests of Mrs. Ferguson's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bogle of Providence street.

BERT LUCAS STARTS ON FLORIDA TRIP

Herbert W. Lucas of this city started Saturday from Newport, R. I., with a friend from that city on an automobile trip of 2,000 miles which will take them to Miami, Florida, where they are to spend the winter.

Before leaving Mr. Lucas, who has followed the weather for years and is well known for his predictions, made the forecast that we are to have a hard winter with biting cold. Sunday's sudden change to snappy and freezing cold in a few hours helped to substantiate his prediction.

MAKING SOME CHANGES IN NEW TRAFFIC ORDINANCES FOR CITY

Several changes in the proposed traffic ordinances have been made by the committee of the common council, according to their publication of the ordinances which are to come up for a hearing at the December meeting of the council.

In Section 6 it is provided that parking shall be at either the right or the left hand curb.

In Section 16, the addition of the traffic beacon near Ferry street is made as one of the places in Main street where operators of motor vehicles may turn their machines around.

In Section 24 a five-minute parking limit is provided on the southerly side of Main street from Ferry street to a point in range with a line drawn parallel to the westerly line of Ferry street and 75 feet distant westerly therefrom. From this point to Rose place there shall be no parking, and there shall be no parking on the southerly side of Main street in front of the Shannon building.

Willow street, upon which no parking was to be allowed under the first proposed ordinance is to have a 40-minute limit on the southerly side and no parking on the northerly side.

The 40-minute parking limit on the southerly side of Water street is maintained as at first proposed, but on the northerly side, on which it was at first proposed to have no parking, there is a 40-minute limit between Shetucket and Market streets and between Commerce street and Washington square, but no parking on the northerly side of the street between Market street and Commerce street.

Parking on either side of Market street between Main and Water streets was barred in the first proposed ordinances. In the revised ordinance there is a no-parking provision for the easterly side of Market street and a 40-minute limit on the westerly side, both between Main and Market streets.

In the section applying to fares to be charged by jitneys the word "shall" as applied to half fare for children is changed to "may," which makes it possible for children of the half-fare age to ride without paying fare, if accompanying an adult and if the jitney driver, for any reason, does not want to collect a half-fare.

SOURCES OF AUTHORITY DISCUSSED BY SPEAKER

At the noon hour meeting in the Richmond Radiator plant Monday, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts spoke on the topic of "Authority." The address as usual was given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

In part the following is an outline of the address:

When Jesus had driven the takers out of the temple, the priests and scribes were exercised over the question of authority. They say to Him: "Who gave thee this authority to do these things?" It has always been true that when some startling thing has been done, whether it is something new or an old thing done in some new way, if it cannot be easily explained, the authority for doing it is always called in question.

Authority, the speaker explained, is the commission received for the exercise of power, and referred briefly to the following:

1—Authority comes from God. This is the primary source to which all other authority is closely related. What this authority is we learn through Christ who came to establish righteousness in the world, and to interpret the will of God to men.

2—Authority that comes from the state. When the Master said "Render unto Ceasar the things that are Ceasar's, and unto God the things that are God's," it was a tacit acknowledgment that some things belonged to Ceasar in relation to which the officers of the state speak with authority. This is true all the way from a traffic cop up to the president of the United States.

3—Authority comes from the church. If it is true that the church is that institution "against which the gates of hell shall not prevail," then all its branches it has a right to speak ex-cathedra in regard to those things that lie within its legitimate domain. The church is commissioned to speak with authority against money, injustice, cruelty and aggressive warfare.

4—Authority comes from personality.

Some are born to command. Groups of children have their leaders and they are always those who possess stronger personalities. An illustration of this was given in the life of L. Clark Seelye, president of Smith college, who recently died. In early life when pastor in Springfield, Mass., he dispersed a mob, through the sheer force of his power of personality.

HOURIGAN AUXILIARY HAD DELEGATES AT MEETING

The R. E. Hourigan Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, sent three delegates to the quarterly meeting of the state council, Ladies' Auxiliary to the V. F. W., which was held at Red Men's hall, Middletown, Sunday, Nov. 16th.

The state president, Mrs. Percie M. Johnson of Waterbury, presided. Much business of importance was transacted. Plans for the state encampment to be held in Bristol, in June, 1925, were discussed. Interesting remarks on the good of the order were made by Past President Mrs. Emma Williams of Bridgeport. The meeting adjourned to reopen in Bridgeport, Jan. 11, 1925.

The women from Norwich attending were Mrs. Rose Decker, Mrs. Rosamond Jacques and Mrs. Elizabeth McNulty.

THREE PROPOSITIONS FOR TAX APPRAISAL WORK

Three propositions from appraisal experts to carry out and supervise a re-assessment of the property in Norwich were discussed Monday night at a two and a half hour session of the tax analysis committee in the assessors' office at the courthouse. The meeting was called about 7:30 o'clock by James L. Case, chairman of the committee, and following the acceptance of the minutes of the previous meeting as presented by Secretary John J. O'Rourke the propositions submitted by the three appraisal experts were heard. The proposals came from Thomas Linder of New Britain, who is supervisor of the New Britain tax assessment system, and who is installing a new tax system in Middletown; the Manufacturers' Appraisal company of Philadelphia, who have installed systems in New London, Stratford and Winsted, and are now working in Saybrook, and from H. N. Hawes and William W. Crosby of Boston, engineers and architects, who have done extensive work in the appraisal of manufacturing plants throughout the country.

Each proposition was read in detail by Secretary O'Rourke and there was an informal and very general discussion of the terms offered by the various experts.

The sentiment of the meeting appeared to be that the executive committee of the general tax analysis committee make a study of the possibility of having the re-assessment carried out by local supervision. It is expected that a report on this particular phase of the question will be submitted at the next meeting of the committee. The committee, adjourned about 10 o'clock subject to the call of the chair.

The tax committee comprises the following: James L. Case, chairman; Casper K. Bailey, Albert Boardman, C. R. Butts, Michael J. Curran, Grosvenor Ely, Sam Goldberg, Herbert M. Larou, A. R. Manning, Robert McNeely, Charles D. Noyes, Shepard B. Palmer, Frank B. Ricketson, John F. Rogers, and John J. O'Rourke, secretary. Twelve of the fifteen members were present at the meeting.

DEPARTMENT CALLED FOR FOUR SMALL FIRES

The local fire department answered four telephone calls Monday for small fires. The first call came in at 11.41 a. m., when the department was called to the rear of Commerce street, where several ties on a wharf owned by Feldman Bros. were on fire. It is thought the fire was caused by a carelessly dropped cigarette butt.

At 12.21 p. m. the department responded to a call for a chimney fire at 21 Oneco street. At 4.04 p. m. a call was received for a brush fire in the rear of 248 Laurel Hill avenue. The fire, which was on land owned by John Rogers, was caused by boys playing with matches.

The fourth call came in at 6.46 o'clock for an overheated stovepipe at 15 1-2 Boswell avenue. The damage in each case was slight.

APPEAL IS BROUGHT BY BONDING COMPANY

The Maryland Casualty company of Baltimore, Md., one of the defendants in the case of Robert W. Perkins, receiver for the Shore Line Electric Railway company against Louis I. Levinson, et al, has filed an appeal with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court. Not long ago an appeal was filed by the receiver himself. Judgment was rendered for the plaintiff in the superior court for about half the stipulated amount which the plaintiff sought over the contract for rails which the defendants failed to carry out. The Baltimore company gave a bond for Levinson for the performance of his contract with the Shore Line company.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE AGAINST MYSTIC LAWYER

Benjamin F. Hewitt, Mystic lawyer, and former prosecuting attorney in the Stonington town court, will be arraigned there before Judge William A. Wilcox this (Tuesday) morning for alleged reckless driving Sunday afternoon.

Attorney Hewitt was summoned by State Policeman Giles Watson of the Groton barracks while driving between Stonington and Westerly and ordered to appear in court, when the case will be presented by his successor, Prosecuting Attorney George R. McKenna.

William Lyster, also of Stonington, was arrested for reckless driving by the same policeman and will appear at the same time.

END COMES SUDDENLY TO STONINGTON WAR VETERAN

Charles E. Staplin, Civil war veteran, dropped dead at his home in Union street, Stonington, early Monday afternoon. He had gone down cellar to fix a window and when relatives failed to hear him at work they went downstairs and found his lifeless body. He had been in apparently good health and had not been heard to complain of being ill.

Mr. Staplin was a native of Stonington, where he was born on Jan. 1, 1843, and had made it his home all his life.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE IS MADE AGAINST JETTE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 17.—The continued hearing of Claude Jette, Danielson, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Antone Pocari, late of this city, at Stanton Hill, Mystic, a month ago, took place before Judge Cornelius C. Costello in Groton court this morning. Counsel for Jette entered a demurrer, which was overruled and the accused held in bonds of $5,000 for trial before the next term of the superior court.

Jette, who is employed as an inspector by the highway department, was operating his car, in which Pocari was a passenger, up the steep grade when suddenly the car plunged across the highway and collided with a tree. Pocari was hurled from the machine and sustained among other injuries a fractured skull, from which he died almost instantly. Jette has been at liberty on bail since the fatality. Coroner J. J. Desmond, Norwich, has rendered his finding in the accident with Prosecuting Attorney Burrows, in which Jette is alleged to be criminally negligent for Pocari's death.

MISSPELLED WORDS ARE EXCITING GREAT INTEREST

The misspelled word contest being conducted in the advertising of Edward L. McEvoy of the Palace theatre is attracting the attention of hundreds of people and the mails arriving at the theatre have assumed large proportions. Over 2,000 replies had been received up to Monday evening, about 1,200 coming in for the first advertisement and over 800 thus far on the second advertisement. Cards are to be sent out to all winners, giving them two tickets for a theatre performance.

To continue this style of advertising Mr. McEvoy is to start the "Jumble Word" puzzles this (Tuesday) morning and they will run for five days, ending Saturday afternoon. Saturday's Jumble Word will be divided, half appearing in each newspaper and there will be prizes for quick answers.

The "Jumble Word" will be the name of a star or stars or the name of a picture or pictures to be shown at the theatre in the near future.

Other features will be worked out by Mr. McEvoy in the future announcement to be made later.

Patrons of the theatre have been impressed with the new setting of the stage which has been a great improvement. The screen has been moved back on the stage about 20 feet and has been "shadow boxed," being screened by light blue drapes which become deep blue under the rays of the light, completely absorbing the rays thus preventing any return off the stage, and doing away with glare, and softening the picture without taking any brilliancy away from it. In this manner eye strain is relieved and the background and edges brought out clearly, bringing into view the whole beauty of the scenes. The materials for this work were furnished by the Reid & Hughes Co., which also assisted in the decorating. This is made possible through the installation of Cinephor Projection lens, a lens which will in time supercede the old type lenses which are not clear on a long throw.

In addition to the improvement in the pictures a new style of opening is introduced and the presentation of the film is assisted by the playing of Mr. Jeffs, organist, who comes to Norwich from Bridgeport, where for five years he had been musical director at the Dawes theatre.

It takes more than a Sunday suit to make a saint.

MISS SCHNEIDER'S VERSION OF TRAGIC DEATH OF ROGERS

Made Public by Coroner Mix—Tells of the Events Following the Yale-Army Football Game and Preceding the Tragedy After Dinner in an Inn in Wallingford—Witness Admitted Having Had "One Scotch Highball" in New Haven Previous to Leaving For Wallingford—Pushed Rogers Away When He Tried to Kiss Her in Automobile—Following a Blank Period Witness Found Herself on the Ground Facing Rogers, Who Was Hanging Over the Back Right Hand Door of the Car.

New Haven, Nov. 18.—The story of the tragic death of Charles G. Rogers, bond salesman, of this city, and nephew of Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid, New York city, as told by Miss Marjorie Schneider, his companion, was made public for the first time today, when Coroner Eli Mix filed his report of the evidence in the case. Rogers was killed on the night of November 1, when he and Miss Schneider were returning to this city after having dinner at an inn in Wallingford. Coroner Mix's decision stated that no criminal responsibility could be attached to the death of Rogers but that the evidence showed that both he and Miss Schneider were somewhat under the influence of liquor at the time of the accident.

Miss Schneider in her story to the coroner, as revealed in the evidence made public today, admitted having had one Scotch highball" in this city before going to Wallingford after the Yale-Army football game, but said she had nothing intoxicating to drink at Wallingford.

According to Miss Schneider's story to the coroner, she and Rogers attended the football game, then visited a restaurant in this city and about 6.30 left by automobile for Wallingford, Miss Schneider driving. She said that she did not see Rogers drink anything at the inn, but that she suspected that he had by his actions.

While at the inn, her story continued, she met a friend whom she had not seen for several months, Wardwell Jones, of New York city. She said she was so glad to see him that she sent a note to him asking him to meet her out side. They sat in her car and talked for half an hour, she said, and then she returned to the dining room. Asked by the coroner whether Rogers expressed any objection to her going outside with Jones, Miss Schneider said she could not remember but remarked that he "was very happy and talked a lot."

Shortly after that, about 10 o'clock, Miss Schneider's story continued, they started for home, she again driving. On the way home, she said, it was very foggy and she had difficulty in seeing the road. They both had their heads out of the car watching the road ahead, she said.

That Rogers tried to kiss her once was admitted by Miss Schneider. "I told him not to," she said, "and I pushed him away, and I know that he didn't insist. Whether he did that again I don't know, but the people that came and took him in said that I kept saying he tried to kiss me and I pushed him away. That is something I do not remember saying."

"The first thing I remember," her story continued, "was hearing glass break and after that it is just a blank until I found myself standing aside of the car on the right hand side. I was on the ground and seeing Mr. Rogers in front of me hanging over the back right hand door of the car, his feet outside, and his head and shoulders inside, hanging over the door.

"I wanted to get a doctor and I called him by the shoulders to get him out of the car. When I realized I couldn't do anything I ran out in front of the car trying to stop passing vehicles. Several went by without stopping and finally one car, I think there were two boys in it, came up and they had a flashlight. I asked them to take him (Rogers) out and lay him on the ground which they did."

Miss Schneider said she did recall any vehicle passing at the time she heard the crashing glass and that she was not conscious of colliding with anything. Asked if she recalled whether, just before she heard the glass break, Rogers was trying to kiss or hug her, she replied that she didn't recall that. In reply to a question regarding the breaking of the glass, she declared that she did not know what caused it. The coroner pointed out to her that, according to the position of the hole in the windshield, if anything had crashed through it, it would have struck her, she replied that she had her head out of the side of the car and was not directly behind the broken place in the glass.

Asked if she was sure "no one threw anything at the car or no one would want to make trouble for Rogers," she replied: "I don't think so, he was too well liked."

This concluded the coroner's investigation of Miss Schneider but she was recalled later.

Mrs. Ruth Hulse, of this city, who was one of the first to reach the Schneider car after the accident and who drove the machine to this city after Rogers had been taken to the hospital, was recalled by the coroner.

She and her husband stopped when they saw a flashlight being waved, she said. Questioned about what she saw near the scene of the car, she replied that she saw another automobile, a gray sedan which was down in the ditch. It came out of the ditch and drove away, she said.

Coroner Mix said today that since the testimony was taken, the identity of this car was established by him as belonging to a Connecticut man. He said further that four boys, who had taken the car without permission, had sought to cover up the fact that they had taken the car and as a result, the mystery concerning this gray car came into being.

Mrs. Hulse corroborated the testimony of Miss Schneider concerning Miss Schneider's position at the time directly after Rogers was fatally injured. When asked concerning what Miss Schneider said at the time, she testified: "All she said was she wanted to go to the hospital she wanted me to follow them."

Regarding what took place at the inn where Mr. and Mrs. Hulse were dining at the time Miss Schneider and Rogers were there, she said she saw Miss Schneider drink something but that she didn't know what it was. Asked if Miss Schneider had more than one drink she replied that she thought she did. She declared she believed Rogers was under the influence of intoxicants.

Describing the break in the windshield of Miss Schneider's car, she said it was just a half circle like a moon directly in front of the driving seat. When she first found Miss Schneider, she said, the latter was lying in a heap in a dead faint about ten feet back of the car.

Continuing her story of what occurred at the scene of the accident, Mrs. Hulse said:

"We were helping to drag the body out of the car and I don't know where she (Miss Schneider) was while I was helping put the body into the New York car (another car that had come up and stopped.) Then I told her, 'I dont see anything to do Marjorie, but move this car into New Haven. We will stop the first policeman,' and she said, 'No we will go right away to the hospital. I have got to stay with him.' Then I got into the car and we started to drive. Then she said, 'Ruth, I pushed him; I have killed him! what am I going to do."

The questioning in the report continues:

"Did she say anything about a gray car?" the coroner asked her.

"No, only when I mentioned it she asked me to keep quiet about it."

"Was anything said about a gray car?"

"Not then. Sunday night."

"Sunday night you saw her where?"

"Down at her house, she was in bed."

"What did she say to you then?"

"She got indignant because I mentioned the gray car."

MATTERS PLACED BEFORE A. F. OF L. CONVENTION

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 18 (By the A. P.).—A proposal to enlist the American Federation of Labor in support of Woodrow Wilson Memorial college at Valwotta, Ga., was presented to the federation convention today by the joint action of spokesmen for several of the largest affiliated organizations.

A resolution approved by the representatives of the miners, machinists, pressmen and other groups, under which all affiliated organizations would contribute to the support of the college, was referred to the committee on education.

The college already has pledges totaling $1,000,000 and in addition a campus site of 100 acres, the resolution said.

Nearly one hundred resolutions were in the convention hopper when the second business day ended to permit the delegates to march in a body to Juarez, Mexico, for a reciprocal joint session with the Mexican Confederation of Labor.

A recommendation that the federation send to its affiliated bodies work for the appointment of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, as secretary of labor, to succeed James J. Davis, in the new cabinet of President Coolidge, was embodied in a resolution submitted by R. C. Bonney, representing the Order of Railroad Telegraphers. The matter was referred to the committee on resolutions.

SEVEN MISSING MEN RESCUED OFF NANTUCKET

New York, Nov. 18.—The seven men aboard the sloop Frolic, missing from Brooklyn since Sunday, were rescued by the Norwegian steamship Mexicano off Nantucket and about 200 miles from Rockaway Point, according to a message intercepted by the East Hampton Radio station tonight.

News of the rescue brought joy to the men's families who had given up hope of seeing them again, believing the little craft had gone down in the furious gale of Sunday night.

The sloop with her party of seven left Mill Basin Sunday morning for a fishing expedition off Rockaway Point. When the men failed to return at dark Sunday as they had said they would, it was feared that something had gone amiss. Despite the storm and cold members of their families went to the lonely spot from which they sailed, to make inquiry.

Learning that nothing had been heard from the boat, they notified the police, who sent launches cruising nearby waters in search of the missing party. Coast Guard cutters joined the search but after nearly fifty hours of utile searching, hope was abandoned.

According to the message received from the Mexicano, whose next port is Norfolk, Va., all the men were well. The 34-foot sloop Frolic in which they made their enforced voyage is the property of the Bay Ridge Yacht club, it was said.

SEEKING ENDOWMENT FOR EYE HOSPITAL AND SCHOOL

Baltimore, Nov. 18.—Trustees of Johns Hopkins institute have joined the Wilmer Foundation in a campaign to establish in the next forty days a $3,000,000 foundation for the endowment at Baltimore of an eye hospital and school which, it was announced today, would be the first of its kind in America and the equal of any in the world.

The plan is for an institution for the study of treatment of diseases of the eye, for research into causes of blindness and kindred ailments, and for the education of American specialists who heretofore have had to attend European universities and clinics to perfect themselves for the practice of opthalmology.

Forty free beds are to be endowed. Additional facilities are to be installed for the treatment of patients who lack the means to pay for hospital care.

The institution will be conducted as a unit of Johns Hopkins university medical school and hospital. It will, however, bear the name of Dr. William Holland Wilmer of Washington, a noted aphthalmologist, and will be directed by him, according to Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, president of Johns Hopkins university.

LITIGATION INVOLVES R. I. TEXTILE CONCERN

Providence, R. I., Nov. 18.—Litigation between Walter S. Roberts, head of the Aracoma Textile Company, Inc., of New York, and his brother, William Roberts of Central Falls, head of the Aracoma Textile Company, Inc., of Rhode Island was continued before Judge J. Jerome Hahn in superior court today.

Following a hearing of several weeks, Judge Hahn, some days ago, denied the petition of the New York concern for a preliminary injunction to restrain the Rhode Island concern from selling its manufactured product to any other than the New York concern under terms of a contract alleged entered into. Last Saturday an attachment in the $150,000 suit was served on the Rhode Island concern and a keeper placed in charge.

Alleging that $18,00 worth of goods had been tied up by the attachment, which prevents their being shipped, counsel for the Rhode Island concern today asked that the ad damnum of $150,000 be reduced, claiming it excessive. Hearing was continued to Monday to allow the defendant to decide whether a bond will be furnished for release of the attachment.

ON TRIAL FOR PARTICIPATION IN $2,000,000 MAIL ROBBERY

Chicago, Nov. 18.—While the second of four Newton brothers, who with four other men, have confessed participation in the $2,000,000 Rondout, Ill., mail robbery last June, took the stand in federal court here today to relate more details of the thrilling train hold-up, it was reported that a considerable sum of the stolen money had been recovered in Oklahoma.

Brent Glasscock, one of the six who have confessed and the alleged leader of the train robbers, was reported to have led officers to a spot somewhere in Oklahoma, where some of the money was concealed.

It was also learned today that two of the Newton brothers who confessed participation in the robbery, have been in constant fear for their lives and have been kept in the federal building under guard day and night Spectators who entered the court room today were searched for concealed weapons.

CASE TO TEST PUBLICITY OF INCOME TAX RETURNS

Washington, Nov. 18.—The government's action to test the legality of publication of income tax returns by newspapers has been started and an indictment in one case is expected within a few days.

Attorney General Stone announced today that he had instructed United States attorneys to institute proceedings in "six or seven" instances, but he declined to indicate the newspapers against which grand jury presentments have been ordered. He said, however, that one suit will be filed soon, and in well informed quarters it was said the attorney general believed the indictment may be forthcoming within 48 hours. There were indications that it was already under consideration by a grand jury.

CASE INVOLVES PARDONING POWER OF THE PRESIDENT

Washington, Nov. 18.—The pardoning power of the president, as raised in the case of Philip Grossman coming from Chicago, will under present plans be argued before the supreme court Dec. 1. The case has attracted wide attention because it is based upon the theory advanced by federal judges in Chicago that persons held under contempt by courts are outside the pale of executive clemency.

Solicitor General Beck will appear to uphold the action of President Coolidge in the Grossman case and is expected to make a strong argument in support of the contention that the constitutional power of executive clemency applies to all federal prisoners.

DIRIGIBLE ZR-3 TO BE GIVEN TEST THURSDAY

Lakehurst, N. J., Nov. 18.—The German-built rigid dirigible ZR-3 will be given its first test flight over American territory Thursday, it was announced at the naval air station here tonight. It will be the ship's first cruise since the epoch-making trans-Atlantic journey which brought the dirigible from the country of its construction.

The schedule of bankruptcy of G. F. Redmond and Company, Inc., defunct brokerage firm, filed in federal court in Boston showed liabilities of $2,891,915 and gave the assets as "unknown."

Excellent Record By Class One Railroads

Ten New Transportation Records Set by the Industry This Year.

New York, Nov. 18.—The 193 class one railroads of the country got through the peak traffic movements this year without a car shortage for the first time in their history, it was revealed today when the car service division of the American Railroad association presented its 1924 report to the board of directors. The report also showed that seven new transportation records had been set throughout the industry generally during this period.

That 1924 was the first year in which the carriers averted the usual autumn bugaboo of a dearth of freight cars was attributed to a new system in handling of "empties" In the past, it was pointed out, it had been customary to mobilize great fleets of rolling stock which were concentrated regionally for the movement of crops or coal.

This year the car supply problem was analyzed in advance so that it was dealt with in fractions of itself. the report showed. This was particularly reflected in the fact that more cars had been kept on home lines than ever before. Western owned cars, for example, were rushed back to their home yards at far greater speed and their unloading, loading and general handling measurably expedited.

The considerable degree to which the improved system seemed to gather its own headway without noticeable coaxing or monitoring from headquarters in Washington was taken to indicate the likelihood of its becoming permanent.

These results were obtained, it was further pointed out, in a year, except for coal, coke,, ore, bade which fair to become the heaviest transportation year in American railroading, the loadings of all commodities, with these three exceptions, was one per cent. Heavier than for the corresponding period in ther record breaking year of 1923.

The report showed among the new high marks in car movement and efficiency set in 1924:

Greatest number of cars loaded during any one week in history—1,112,345, the week of October 25th last.

New high record for grain and grain products for any one week, 72,474, cars the week of October 25th last.

New high record in movement of both oladed and empty freight cars —1,030,211 moved in one day, Wednesday, October 15th last.

STATE DEPT APPOINTMENT OF JOHN VAN A. MACMURRAY

Washington, Nov. 18.—Announcement today of the selection of John Van A. MacMurray, chief of the Far Eastern division of the state department, to be an assistant secretary of the department, marked another step in th eprocess of reorganization of the American foreign service which has been in progress for some years and has been given particular impetus during the administration of Secretary Hughes.

All recent appointments to the higher ranks in the department, and, to a great extent, in the diplomatic service, have been in the nature of promotions within the service itself. The policy which Secretary Hughes is following is that of recognition of merit within the service, and since the passage of the Rogers bill consolidating the diplomatic and consular services into one line, Mr. Hughes has repeatedly in public addresses held out to the men in the service the hope that eventually they could look forward to selection as ambassadors or ministres if their services warranted that course.

Mr. MacMurray will take the vacancy in the staff of assistant secretaries created by the death of Alva A. Adee some months ago, who was a member of the state department organization for more than fifty years. Mr. Adee was designated as second assistant secretary, but Mr. MacMurray and his colleagues are known only as assistant secretaries, without the numerical distinction as to assignments or seniority.

ALLEGED COUNTERFEITERS OF WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Washington, Nov. 18.—The arest at Uniontown, Pa., of three alleged counterfeiters of war savings stamps directed attention here today to the magnitude of the operations of the stamp counterfeiters whose products have been discovered by federal secret service agents in at least ten cities. Investigation of the vast network of the alleged counterfeiters is not complete, it was said at the treasury and no officials would suggest where the ramifications of the plot may lead the agents in their search.

Treasury officials declined to estimate the amount of spurious war savings stamps thus far scattered among unsuspecting purchasers, but their operations to date have been traced to New York, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati, and St. Louis, and clues have been found indicating sales of the illegal stamps in many industrial towns in the east where the foreign populations have proved fertile fields for the distributors of the stamps.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 18.—(By The A. Arguments in Gov't Oil Suit Closed

Elks Hill Naval Reserve Case Now in Hands of Federal Judge Paul McCormick.

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 18.—Trial of the government's suit for cancellation of $100,000,000 in naval oil leases and contracts with the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company was brought to a close in federal court here late today, after having been in progress for slightly more than four weeks.

The filing of briefs by the litigants will place the case entirely in the hands of Judge Paul J. McCormick, who, it was indicated at the close of court today, expects to render a decision within the next two months.

Government Counsel Owen J. Roberts, arguing in rebuttal, brought the trial to a close in an address in which he briefly summarized the government's case.

As in previous government arguments and testimony he laid particular stress upon the $100,000 loss from E. L. Doheny, oil magnate, to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and the fact that Fall was in constant touch with all negotiations leading up to the leases and contracts in litigation.

"We have averred and still insist that there was, and that it has been proved that there was a conspiracy between Fall and Doheny," Roberts stated, referring to the $100,000 loan, and added that the transaction had every element of a bribe and that a fraud had been committed against the United States.

Roberts doubted that the truth was yet revealed in connection with the signature being torn from the $100,000 note given Doheny by Fall.

"We know as ordinary business people that that is not the way a note would be handled," he declared, referring to the defense contention that the note was mutilated so that Fall would not be pressed for payment should Doheny meet an accidental death.

"To say that Fall had nothing to do in these negotiations is to say what the record does not show," Roberts said in attacking the stand of the defense that Fall played an insignificant part in bringing about the Pan-American leases and contracts. "When a crucial moment came, Fall was there."

DECISION RESERVED ON WILLS-CAMPBELL ACT

New York, Nov. 18.—Decision was reserved in United States circuit court of appeals here today after argument was heard on the constitutionality of the Wills-Campbell act which prohibits doctors from prescribing beer and limits prescriptions to not more than one pint of spiritous liquor or one quart of wine to any one patient within a period of ten days.

The case came to the circuit court through an appeal taken by the government from a decision recently rendered by Federal District Judge John X. Knox pronouncing the law unconstitutional. The Knox decision was rendered in an equity proceeding brought by Dr. Samuel W. Lambert for a new preliminary injunction restraining government agents from enforcing the law. The injunction was obtained but the government was granted a stay pending appeal to the circuit court.

Judge Knox declared the law unconstitutional on the ground that congress had not sufficiently investigated to determine whether the amount allowed was the maximum potential requirement of a patient in ten days time.

Previous actions brought against the constitutionality of the act by breweries have all been dismissed on motion of the government.

Counsel for Dr. Lambert argued that the right to be cured of ailments is one of the natural, inalienable rights of man, recognized in all ages and by all governments, and that therefore the prescription rights of physicians can not be limited.

Should the Knox ruling be upheld, lawyers said today, the matter would have to be threshed out by a Judge of the district court sitting in equity, and that this would necessitate examination of Physicians as experts as to whether or not maximum amount of liquar necessary to a patient can be determined by law.

CONFISCATED CARS SOLD FROM 10 CENTS TO $375

New York, Nov. 18.—The used-car market hit greased skids today at the police departments' 222nd auction of confiscated automobiles "as is." Prices ranged from 10 cents to $37, and bidding was fast and furious among 35 optimists who coveted the 36 vehicles offered.

The heavy money piece was a racing car which along of the list, was able to lip away under its own power. One flivver brought 50 cents. That was five times as much as the auctioneer's hammer brought for a speersted of noble lineage that had seen better days—far better.

Spirited bidding boosted the price of this latter vehicle from three cents to 10 cents, at which figure it was knocked down to an imaginative mechanic who declined to give his name, paid cash for his purchase, hitched it behind a horse and drove away.

With him went a bargain—considering. All the ex-speedster lacked of being in complete repair was a set of tires that would hold air; a set of workable bearings; an ignition system that wasn't worn out; a transmission system that wasn't torn out; and a few mud guards.

A patrol wagon upon an internationally-known chassis brought $45.

RECORD DEALINGS CONTINUE IN NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

Heavy Buying Yesterday Sent 93 Issues to New Peak Prices For the Year—Total Sales, 2,286,400 Shares, For the Sixth Consecutive Day Since Election Day Exceeded Two Million Mark—Movement is Based on Anticipation of a Marked Revival in Trade in the Next Two Years.

New York, Nov. 18.—(By The A. P.)—Stock prices whirled upward today to the highest general level in eight years in a wild burst of bullish enthusiasm that carried 93 issues to new peak prices for the year, the largest Total sales were 2,286,400 shares, number of any single day on record, makin it the sixth "two million share" session since election day. The number of individual shares traded in was 541, or 14 below the record established one day last week.

Never before in stock exchange history has a buying movement reached such proportions and been as sustained as the current one, which started on the day after election in apparent anticipation of a marked revival of trade in the next two years. Professional traders, most of whom predicted a brief rally in the event of the election of President Coolidge and then looked for a moderate decline on the theory that traders who bought stocks before election would be quick to convert paper profits into cash, have been frantically amazed at the tremendous demand for stocks. The profit taking which they looked for has taken place, but they never anticipated that the so-called public would come into the market so quickly and in such great numbers.

Heretofore such wild trading as the market has witnessed in the last two weeks has taken place at the beginning of "bear" markets when prices were on the down grade and every one seemed to be trying to get out of stocks at once. "Bull" movements such as the present one, ordinarily have taken weeks to get started, and have been marked by frequent reactions. The present advance, which to date has added nearly $4,000,000,000 to the quoted value of securities traded in on the local markets, has been an almost perpendicular one.

Railroad shares regained leadership of today's market, 27 issues in that group breaking through their previous high levels of the year. Buying of the carrier stocks has been influenced by a number of factors, including the growing belief that the railroads will be given an opportunity within the next few years to work out their development and consolidation plans without legislative interference, and the possibility of favorable dividend developments, particularly in several low priced carriers whose current earnings justify a distribution to stockholders.

St. Louis, San Francisco common was the leader of the railroad group soaring over six points to 56, the highest price since the reorganization of the railroad in 1916. New York Central crossed 119 to the highest price since 1913. Other issues to attain new maximum prices were Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Atchison, Rock Island, Southern Railway, Baltimore and Ohio, Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville and Nashville, Texas and Pacific, Missouri Pacific common and preferred, Illinois Central common, and preferred, Chicago North Western, St. Louis Southwestern, and Great Northern preferred.

United States Steel common was bid up over two points to 116 3-4, the highest price in five years.

Sears Roebuck was the sensational individual performer, sky-rocketing over nine points to 142, as compared with the year's low of 78 3-4 established on May 15. Other merchandising issues followed that stock into higher ground.

Net gains of 1 to 6 points were registered by more than 125 issues while less than a dozen stocks declined a pointor more.

CHARGE AGAINST "FLYING COP" NOW SECOND DEGREE MURDER

New York, Nov. 18.—The charge of first degree murder against Robert F. McAllister, sprinter and former New York patrolman on trial for the fatal shooting of Vincent Fighera, a young clerk, was reduced to murder on the second degree or first or second degree manslaughter by general Sessions Judge Rosalsky today.

Judge Rosalsky's ruling removed the possibility of a conviction which would have meant death in the electric chair.

The case will be given to the jury tomorrow.

McAllister took the stand in his defense today and related the circumstances of the shooting of Fighera, which occurred on an upper Manhattan street Aug. 12. He said he had gone up to Fighera and his companion, Joseph Dandio, to question them concerning their business in the neighborhood. Dandio, he testified, had snatched his baton from him and at the same time made a movement which McAllister said he interpreted as an attempt to draw a gun.

"I jumped and fired at the same time," McAllister testified. Fighera fell, mortally wounded.

CREMATION OF A WOMAN BAFFLES COLUMBUS POLICE

Columbus, O., Nov. 18.—Police tonight admittedly were without a clue to the mysterious cremation late yesterday of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, 59 years old, wife of the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, pastor of Christ Lutheran church of Bexley, a suburb, whose charred body was found in the heating furnace in the basement of their Bexley home.

County Prosecutor King, with police Lieut. Shellendbarger, spent the entire day questioning members of the family and witnesses.

The tragedy, last night declared by Coroner Murphy to be a suicide, but held to be a murder by County Prosecutor King, is one of the most baffling in the history of the Columbus police department.

The Sheatsleys have lived in the community for nine years, all of which time the minister has had charge of the church. Their relations have always been amicable, police were told.

Unwilling to accept the coroner's version of the affair, Prosecutor King said a full and complete investigation would be made.

Deaths from alcohol went from 100 in 1922 to 132 in 1923; to 148 in 1924. An increase of more than 100 per cent fatal cases of typhoid fever was shown.

SENSATIONAL STORY OF THE OPIUM CONFERENCE

Geneva, Nov. 18 (By the A. P.)—Delegates to the international opium conference, in session here, exhibited considerable interest tonight in what was regarded as a sensationally worded article in the conservative Geneva newspaper, The Journal De Geneve, entitled "Opium and the United States."

Although the United States did not participate in the first conference of far eastern opium problems, the editorial alleges that the slow death of that conference represents a new episode in the struggle between Japan and the United States which has almost caused the ruin of the league of nations' protocol for the Pacific settlement of international disputes.

The newspaper continued by alleging that, although the Japanese by draconian methods have succeeded in preserving themselves from the opium vice, they nevertheless import huge quantities of the narcotic to manufacture morphine which they later smuggle into China and the United States.

The article insists that the United States, actually in the present conference, as she was by implication in the preceding far eastern opium conference, will find herself in opposition with the interests of Japan and India. It concludes with the fervent hope that the second conference may succeed, otherwise American public opinion will certainly draw the inference that the league of nations, already judged dangerous from a political point of view, is not even useful in a humanitarian domain.

The conference adjourned until tomorrow morning, when Representative Porter or Bishop Brent will present the American proposals.

The civil suit of Edwin Morin of this city vs. Arthur W. Pierce of Winsted for damages to a motorcycle and injuries to the defendant, took up the entire session of the Windham county superior court in this city Tuesday and was the only one of three cases assigned for the day to be heard. The suit is the outcome of an accident one mile east of Bolton Notch bridge, late in the afternoon of Sunday, Sept. 30, 1923. The other cases listed were announced as being off for the present term and were those of Max Udell & Sons vs. Charles Seder and Rosenbaum Bros. Inc., vs. E. A. Buck company.

Edwin Morin, plaintiff in the case of Morin vs. Pierce, related the incidents leading to and concerning the accident, stating that on the afternoon of September 30, 1923, he and his brother, Alfred Morin were returning from Hartford. Plaintiff was driving and his brother was sitting on the carrier seat of the motorcycle. In rounding a wide curve at a rate of 35 miles an hour a second motorcycle with a side car suddenly shot out from behind an automobile approaching from the opposite direction and about 30 feet away. The driver of this motorcycle took to the center of the road and then turned to the left at an angle of 45 degrees, approaching in front of the Morin machine and colliding with it. Morin had in the meantime pulled up to the side of the road and slowed down. Morin sustained cuts and abrasions on the face and le gand the bill for doctor, hospital, loss of time and repairs to his motorcycle came to a good sized sum. Cross-examined by Attorney Frank B. Munn of Winsted for the defense, Morin admitted that it was his machine which struck the second motorcycle, but he upheld his statement that he could not avoid an accident, as Pierce had driven directly in front of him. Morin was thrown ten feet from the saddle and his brother was thrown even farther. Dr. F. M. Smith, who attended Morin, described the man's injuries as consisting of bruises on the face, a bad cut on the left leg below the knee and a cut on one thigh.

Anthony Latusek testified that the motorcycle which Morin was driving on the day of the accident was one which he owned and had loaned the plaintiff. He gave his estimate of the damage. Alfred Morin, brother of the plaintiff, repeated the testimony as given by his brother and added that after the accident Pierce had said that he knew he was to blame, but that Morin was running his motorcycle too fast. Alfred Morin's testimony appeared to have considerable weight with the court officials. Michael Sutner, of Torrington, witness of the accident, said that he saw Pierce pull out from behind a long string of cars and other motorcycles and after taking to the middle of the road, turn sharply off to the left of the highway, where the collision with Morin took place. Earl Mastin, Eugene Moriarty, Dennis Sheehan, John Regan and William Jones, local young men who arrived at the site o fthe accident shortly after it had happened testified as to the condition of the machines and the actions of the defendant and plaintiff.

At the afternoon session the defense started. The defendant, Arthur W. Pierce of Winsted was the first witness and was followed by his wife, who rode in the side-car of the machine at the time of the collision. Both stated that Morin was driving too fast. On cross-examination their testimony was shaken in several technical matters by Attorney Harvey. A motorcycle mechanic estimated the amount of damage to the Pierce machine and an additional witness for the defense who arrived at the location of the accident shortly after the collision closed the evidence for that side of the case. The court adjourned shortly before 4 o'clock until this (Wednesday) morning when the attorneys in the case will make their arguments and the case will go to the jury. It is expected that the case will take up a large part or all of today's session of court.

The much discussed Alfred P. Abee and Wilbur G. Stevens tie vote for constable in the last town election, has been definitely settled by the board of selectmen who have made use of a power which the board possesses and made both contestants special constables. There are eight contesting candidates for constable in the town elections and seven of that number, those having the most votes are elected. There is one outcast. At the last election Abee and Stevens, both republicans, were tied for the smallest number of votes and the matter of awarding the consolation prize became complicated. No recount was asked for but both men appeared very anxious of securing the post, so the selectmen pleased both by appointing them special constables, at the same time giving the boarding of constables the only two republican members which it possesses. The democrats on the board are: Gus Segal, Gilbert P. Flynn, John T. Meikle and William Kelley.

Only six of twenty well known local jurists and laymen elected justices of the peace on election day, Nov. 4th, have so far qualified and out of that number only one lawyer o fthe several elected. Webber, of the American Thread company employment office.

JEWETT CITY

Lewis Gill has completed on the Plainfield road, two modern bungalows, the construction of which was begun July 1st. Mr. Gill and his family occupy one, and his father's family the other. Being too far removed from the borough electric circuit to secure his lights from them he tapped on to his ever ready inventive genius instead. Not far from his two new homes runs Havey's trout brook, which, after the drop from the highlands to the north, has considerable power at the point where it flows under the railroad tracks just above Tadpole. Mr. Gill built a house of rough boards 8x10, right over the brook, which permitted the entirely proper name of the Gill electric light plant. Here a three h. p. waterwheel of the old undershot type ran a one horse power generator, which furnishes the current for a load of 72 lamps All Mr. Gill bought of the whole outfit was the bare motor, wire and bulbs Malicious boys, several times have floated railroad ties down the brook, to see them pass under the little plant and hear them crash into the wooden paddles of the wheel. Passers-by on the trolleys have wondered for some time what the little building was built over Havey's brook. It was Gill's electric light and power plant.

Boroughites were much interested in a G. W. Buckhardt and Son moving truck that passed through the borough Tuesday afternoon. It was the size of an ordinary freight car

Turkey raisers all through this section are balling with delight the sudden and altogether unexpected drop in temperature. The solution of getting a fair price for Thanksgiving turkeys is freezing weather. If a warm week or ten days precede Thanksgiving farmers are obliged to sell low or lose all. Some years ago the late John C. Hawkins for the Providence market handled tons of it regularly, which he bought all through the local surrounding district. He would tell what a man had to sell, be it a bird or a flock of fifty. Mr. Hawkins himself always raised a famous white breed known in the Providence poultry stalls as "Hawkins Whites." The price always brought a fancy price. Interesting were his stories. "The Tropical Turkey Raise" One year he lost a half ton of dressed birds he was shipping to Cuba, due to rise in temperature. Wharfage rate one summer gnawed their way through a floor into his storage in the coops and in a single night killed over a hundred turkey chicks

Red winterberries were never more prolific or more beautiful than this fall. Every day parties returning from trips in the swamps or byways or walks along the country cross roads are bringing home armfuls of the handsome branches. The berries seem to be more abundant than usual and now, with the foliage gone a short can be spotted a half mile away. At the Central Baptist church in Norwich on Sunday evening a fine bough of winterberries stood a close second for honors, with a hardiniere of gorgeous chrysanthemums. Another name is black alder. The low water at present, and like conditions which will exist again, have caused the Aspinook Co. to establish an emergency electric lighting connection with the power station of the Connecticut Light and Power Co., at Ashland. The capacity of the transformer and transmission lines is 700 kilowatts but it is probable that the usual load will not exceed 500. The Aspinook Co. manufactures its own electricity—for dozens of purposes, which includes lights for its plant, grounds and hotel.

At night, a small turbine, to which a water draft is available from the reservoir, does the work of operating the generator. Of late the exceeding low water stage of the pond has made the running of the night turbine impossible. Now, with the new arrangement, if low water carries now or comes again, Aspinook will hook up the transformers with the Connecticut company's high tension feed lines, thus easing the load during the day, and entirely attending to the power factors at night.

He leaves seven grandchildren. His wife died four years ago while Mr. and Mrs. Purdon lived in Jewett City.

Breed Theater

Don't miss seeing the greatest all-star cast ever assembled in a photoplay by failing to witness a showing of the William Fox special production which closes a four day run at the Breed theater tonight.

Every actor and actress in the cast of this film version of Jules Eckert Goodman's stage play of the same name, from the story by John Fleming Wilson, might easily be starred or featured in an ordinary production.

George O'Brien, playing the title role, may be new to the fans but he will be forever endeared in their hearts after his performance in The Man Who Came Back, while Dorothy Mackaill, in the leading feminine role, never before attained such perfection in her acting. The others are Cyril Chadwick, Ralph Lewis, Emily Fitzroy, Harvey Clark, Edward Piel, Kathleen Clifford, David Kirby, James Gordon, Walter Wilkinson and Brother Miller.

The Fox news, a cartoon and pictures of Armistice day celebration make up the remainder of the bill.

Besides Miss Loran, Gregory Kelly, well known on the stage for his work in the Tarkington plays, Seventeen, Tweedles, Clarence, etc.; George Seigmann, in a "heavy" role; Gunboat Smith, the old war-horse of the ring; Oscar Figman, Edna May Oliver, Alice Chapin and others have prominent parts.

R. H. Burnside directed the production, his first screen work.

Broadway Theater

One of the greatest moments in her latest Paramount production, Wages of Virtue, due at the Broadway on Sunday, is where Gloria Swanson, as Carmelita, gives a vivid interpretation of the famous "dance of the seven veils," for the hard-bitten soldiers of The Foreign Legion.

Swathed from head to foot in soft black veiling, the first veil of the seven over veils of lighter color, she not only proves by the grace and rhythm of her postures that she is an accomplished exponent of the intoxicating beauty of the dance, but enacts a remarkable change of characterization as she ceases to be the exquisite little mother of lost men and becomes the provative, daring little cafe dancer, striving to amuse the worshipping legionnaires and make them forget the horrible boredom of the Algerian barrack town.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Earl Wilbur, in the freight service of the New Haven road as a brakeman, and resident here, was injured at Worcester Monday night when one of his gloves caught in a bolthead as he was coming down the side of a car and so twisted him about that he was thrown to the ground and rendered helpless. His head struck a tie and he was thrown so that he lay across the rails after the accident. Another brakeman who saw the affair came to his assistance. The train was moving away when Mr. Wilbur fell, so he was in no danger of being run over by falling off the rear of a string fo cars. He has a cut on the ankle and is bruised considerably, but not at all seriously hurt.

John A. Dady of Putnam, Urgele La-France of Plainfield and E. H. Cortlis of Thompson, members of the board of county commissioners for Windham county, entertained the senators and representatives-elect of the county at a dinner given at the county jail in Brooklyn Tuesday. The visitors inspected the institution and found much about the well kept place to interest them. It was stated that there was no political significance to the gathering.

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday—and the end of the hunting season for 1924. That is, excepting for rabbits. The season officially closes with Saturday this year. It hasn't been much of a season, the hunters will tell one. They were bothered with heavy foliage in the early part of the period, and then came the ban by the governor as a measure of safety against forest fires. But a few days remain for bird shooting. Maybe they will be so productive of good bags as to offset in some degree the disappointments of the season.

The mercury slid down to 4 degrees above zero again Tuesday morning, duplicating its feat of Monday. The element of surprise was lacking Tuesday morning, so the damage to motor cars and to water systems in homes was reduced to a minimum. Perhaps no more extensive damaging of cars ever took place in this town in a single night than on Sunday. Garage men continued to be rushed with work Tuesday, getting cars in condition to be put on the road again.

Gasoline coaches, instead of passenger trains, is the promise over the local line of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company within the next few days. It will be something of an innovation for this territory.

Seemingly it is about time for warnings against allowing children to get out their skates and try the ice for the first time this season. There is no safety in the thin films that covered ponds hereabouts Tuesday.

Good progress has been made the past two days by Red Cross workers in carrying on their roll call drive in Danielson. The workers will continue active throughout the week.

Just before 5 o'clock Tuesday evening the fire department answered a bell alarm for a fire on the roof of the Danielson inn. The roof, exceedingly dry, is believed to have been ignited by sparks. The firemen made short work of the job and were back at the station in 20 minutes. The damage to the hotel was negligible.

NECKLACE BOUGHT ABROAD NOW VALUED AT $40,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Nov. 18.—There is real romance in an incident told of by a woman who is a respected residenot of Killingly relative to a necklace that a friend of one of her acquaintances purchased while in Europe last summer. This young American girl, a teacher, was visiting and inspecting a curio shop in an unpretentious section of a certain city when a string of amethyst beads, with gold spacings between them, attracted her attention. The dealer said she might have them for $10. The price seemed high and the young woman left without buying. Changing her mind the next day, she returned and bought the beads. Having returned to America, she took the beads to a jeweler to be cleaned and to have the clasp repaired. After a casual glance at the necklace, the jeweler offered to purchase for $10. Eventually he raised his bid to $10,000 for the jewels. His offer was refused, that the owner might ascertain the real value of her incidental purchase, for the offer opened her eyes to the fact that there was something extraordinary about the necklace. The necklace later was offered to a famous New York jeweler for appraisal and he offered $40,000 for it. The fact is that the necklace formerly was the property of an empress. On each gold spacer between the beads was the diminutive inscription "Napoleon to Josephine." This had been overlooked when the teacher bought the beads, with all their grime, in the curio shop abroad. The teacher still has the necklace.

Managers of garages report that more than one-third of the automobiles in this section were out of commission Monday morning as the result of the sudden intense cold snap. Full one-half of that number required the service of experts to start them, nor did it seem to make any difference whether it was a flivver or a high priced limousine, the radiators froze just the same. In some cases the cylinder boxes were cracked. The employees of every garage in the city were kept working until late at night. There wasn't enough denatured alcohol in the city to meet the demand and supplies were brought in from Providence and Worcester.

REV. DR. H. E. FOSDICK FRIEND OF G. H. GILPATRIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Nov. 18.—The acceptance of the resignation of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick by the First Presbyterian church of New York city interested many people in Putnam where Dr. Fosdick visited semi-annually. He was a close personal friend of G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer and cashier of the closed First National bank. They were joint owners of Mouse Island, off the cost of Juniper Point, Maine, where both had summer homes. Dr. Fosdick always stopped in Putnam both in going to and coming from Maine. He has written many encouraging letters to Mr. Gilpatric and to his family since the tragedy, three months ago.

What is described as the most important visitor from the skies ever to fall to earth has been discovered in the North African desert. It is an enormous mass of meteoric stone, with a volume in the neighborhood of 160,000 cubic meters. M. LaCroix, French geologist who studied the meteorite, says it contains some rare metals.

THROWN FROM MACHINE SHE SUES FOR $5,000

Suit for $5,000 damages has been brought in the superior court against Myer Levine by Bessie King, both of Colchester, for injuries she received when thrown from a motor truck in which she was riding and which Levine was driving in August, 1924.

She charges that Levine drove into a "silent policeman," at New Rochelle N. Y., and that she was thrown out and received serious injuries. She was unable to work for several weeks at her occupation as a sewing machine operator, at which she earned $20 per week.

The suit is returnable in December.

STOMACH UPSET?
Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

POETRY

A DOUBTING HEART.

Where are the swallows fled?
Frozen and dead,
Perchance upon some bleak and stormy shore.
O doubting heart!
Far over purple seas
They wait in sunny ease,
The balmy southern breeze,
To bring them to their northern homes once more.

Why must the flowers die?
Prisoned they lie
In the cold tomb, heedless of tears or rain.
O doubting heart!
They only sleep below
The soft white ermine snow
While winter winds shall blow,
To breathe and smile upon you soon again.

The sun has hid its rays
These many days;
Will dreary hours never leave the earth?
O doubting heart!
The stormy clouds on high
Veil the same sunny sky
That soon (for spring is nigh)
Shall wake the summer into golden mirth.

Fair hope is dead, and light
Is quenched in night.
What sound can break the silence of despair?
O doubting heart!
The sky is overcast,
Yet stars shall rise at last,
Brighter for darkness past,
And angels' voices stir the air.
—Adelaide Anne Proctor.

A THOUGHT.

I had a thought so fairylike,
So delicate, so exquisite,
My dear heart was filled with ecstasy
To think I had created it.

My thought it was a butterfly
That while I held it struggled free
And hov'ring on bright filmy wings
Just out of reach, eluded me.

Some day again that errant thought
May softly flutter through my mind,
Then I will stay its flight, and all
Its beauty to my memory bind.

I had a thought so fairylike,
So delicate, so exquisite,
My heart was filled with ecstasy
To think I had created it.

There is a man in New York who has gone to the theater every night for the last fifteen years, and yet has never seen a complete performance. "Longer and better" movie films are promised by a new German film-developing machine, invented by Otto Fliess, a Berlin engineer. By the present method, films are made in short lengths and glued together, frequently as many as 150 pieces to the reel. By the Fliess method the pieces of negative are printed against a continuous positive film, which may be as much as 500 meters long—half again as long the the average reel. The position of each scene and subtitle is determined by marks previously made on the positive, and the amount of light necessary for printing is controlled according to the known density of the negatives. The whole plant is operated by two men and has a capacity of 3,600 meters of film in eight hours.

PAYING WAR DEBTS.

Long and persistent efforts have been made to get this country to accept the view that it should cancel the war debts of the European countries. They have encountered no success. Each time they have been advanced they have been met with the emphatic negative, showing that a decision had been reached and there was no chance of a change.

Europe contracted its debts the same as this country might have done. It was expected that they would be paid. The fact that they were contracted for war purposes furnishes no better reason for wiping them off the slate. There always has been the claim that should such debts be cancelled it would simply provide those countries with the encouragement to immediately proceed to pile up funds and materials for future conflicts. When it is necessary to meet the expenses of past wars it furnishes a damper for rushing its more.

Likewise from the standpoint of credit it works out much more to the credit of the European countries when they step up and refund their debts than it would to seek cancellation. Credit stands much higher when obligations are met than when there is an eagerness to escape them.

Poland is the latest of the countries to make arrangements for paying their war debts to Uncle Sam. Its obligation is only $178,000,000, but Poland was hit hard and how fine a recovery it is making is reflected by its action. Its credit certainly does not suffer by such action.

This country made it clear that while it expected the debts to be paid it would not press the debtor nations. Sufficient time is being provided to avoid making the payments burdensome, but if it is a precedent that is established in requiring the payment of war debts it must be regarded as one of the most commendable things that has been done in this direction. When more attention is given to the paying of war debts it may be that more thought will be given to the value of peace.

AUXILIARY SERVICE.

Meeting the present day situation is what the Boston & Maine railroad must be considered as doing when it organizes a transportation company for the purpose of operating busses and trucks in cooperation with the railroad. The belief being that there is a legitimate field for busses and trucks as an auxiliary to steam service sets in motion a study of the railroad system to find where such busses and trucks can be operated for the benefit of both the public and the railroad.

Steam roads as well as trolley lines have felt the effects of the motor driven vehicle. It has caused trolley lines to go out of business and it has caused the reduction of steam road service. Those who patronized such lines in the past are making use of busses or motor trucks. In part this is because better service is obtained, in part it is the spirit of the times.

The Boston & Maine is doing only what the Long Island railroad has been experimenting with. There are branch lines where the running of steam trains does not pay. The patronage is not sufficient to increase the service and because improved service is obtained by trucks such schedules as are maintained on these branch lines are steadily growing worse. It is therefore only a logical view when the railroad considers it time to meet the situation by furnishing the service that is desired and therefore meet the public requirements and retrieve the business that it has been losing.

This would mean a concentration of greater attention upon the main steam lines in providing such service as they will continue to do and to stimulate the business of such through branch line feeders through motor vehicle service. With one large transportation company establishing and maintaining such service schedules should be carefully maintained.

It is fair to presume that such attention as the Boston & Maine is to give this question will get or has got the serious consideration of many other roads.

THE LOS ANGELES CASE.

Just what the merits of the situation prevailing concerning the Los Angeles water supply are may not be well understood at this distance, but it is impossible to find any justification for the manner in which those who feel they have been aggrieved have proceeded to get relief. When it comes to turning loose a city's water supply it is a serious matter.

In its effort to protect itself the city of Los Angeles apparently resorted to the use of the Owens river for the purpose of increasing its water supply. According to reports the utilization of the water for this purpose, or its storage resulted to the detriment of certain ranchmen who claimed it for irrigation purposes. Instead of proceeding to get an adjustment, or of having their rights established in the proper manner they took the law into their own hands, released the water from the reservoir and have encamped on the watershed to see that the water is not again diverted.

Possibly they are right when they insist that the water belongs to them and it may be that the city of Los Angeles has done what it has no business to do in establishing a reservoir there. There is a way to determine these matters, however, in a manner that is just to all. The ranchmen do not strengthen their case, or establish the correctness of it, when they proceed to adopt lynch law methods. This is particularly true when their attack is made upon a water supply, which so far as Los Angeles is concerned, they have insisted upon wasting.

If they have claims which Los Angeles should settle there is a legal way of going about it, and it is their failure to do so which denies them the sympathy which they might otherwise command. Their method savors too much of the southern practice of stringing a man up to a telephone pole and then make an investigation to find out whether he was guilty of the crime for which he was thought to be responsible. Emptying a reservoir is a serious matter.

THANKSGIVING DINNERS.

An appeal that cannot, and we have good reasons for believing will not, be allowed to go unheeded is that made by the family welfare department of the United Workers in behalf of Thanksgiving dinners for those of the community whose poor or unfortunate condition means that without such service as the department plans to render there is little likelihood that the holiday would have any distinction from other days of the month.

This is a service that has been rendered to the worthy poor for many years. It is a time of year when those who have greater reasons than others for giving thanks are looking about for some means of expressing it through the extension of help or cheer to the unfortunate. This means of reaching the poor families is not an experiment. It has been tried and the good that it has done is not unknown. The spirit of the season justifies its generous continuance.

Meeting the requirements necessary to furnish a Thanksgiving dinner to 70 families involves much work, much planning and not a little outlay. The desire to participate in such an undertaking is invariably general. Certainly it is fitting that those who have enjoyed the favors and bounties of the year should be desirous of helping to give a bit of the real meaning of Thanksgiving to those who through sickness, misfortunate or accident may otherwise be deprived thereof. Thanksgiving day will be the better enjoyed for having made it possible for others to share in the enjoyments of a Thanksgiving dinner.

Norwich has met the appeal in years gone by and there is good and sufficient reason for believing that it will do so quite as willingly this year

CLOSE ELECTIONS.

By the time the next election rolls around, and that isn't so far off for Connecticut, it is probable that the electors will forget all about the importance of each vote. There will continue to be those who will maintain that "My vote would make no difference."

One excellent example of what one vote will do is furnished by the recent contest in Indiana for a judge of the supreme court. In that state they are elected. Possibly the state would have been equally well served had either been chosen, and the vote might seem to bear that out, but when the majority was only one out of a total vote of nearly a million and a quarter it becomes evident that the individual vote does count and that there is no telling when the person who stays at home or the one who goes to the polls is actually changing the election result.

It was only a few years ago that a local municipal election turned on one majority, and in one Colorado county a commissioner has just been elected by that figure. What might have been the situation had voters thought that was going to be the result has little or no bearing. It is simply an illustration of the claim that the exercise of the franchise should not be neglected. One vote has repeatedly made a difference one way or another. There's no telling when it will be repeated. The one way to give the best assurance that it will not occur is for all the voters who are able to insist upon getting to the polls election day. Those who say "My vote makes no difference" should discard the idea.

THE LATE BLOOMERS

"Well, I can't make it out," grumbled the tall, lank householder, shaking his head despairingly. "I mean, about that couple who have moved in across the way—she is so pretty and he is such an insignificant little runt! You'd think a girl like that would be able to pluck something better to look at in any direction she reached! What did she pick out anything like him for?"

"Aren't you dumb!" scoffed his wife. "I am surprised at you! I don't know them at all, but I can tell you all about how it happened and so could you, if you weren't a man.

"I suppose that when he was a boy going to high school he was exactly like Arthur Heartburn in my class. My, but we girls were mean to Arthur! When we compared him with Theodore Gilsh and Reginald Boshe, for instance, the two handsomest and most popular boys in the crowd. Theodore and Reginald looked just the way we wanted to have boys look. They danced like dreams, could tip their hats with a grace which savored faintly of courtiers and plumes and we fought over them and adored them.

"Arthur was just a joke. He was rather smallish and pale and quiet, awfully bashful and when he occasionally would get up courage to talk to one of us or ask us to dance we almost laughed in his face.

"Whenever Arthur invited us we either had another date, a hard headache or our mother had ordered us to stay in that night. No matter what we brazenly told him he would believe it and say he was sorry and would try again, not hearing our groans as he departed. Perhaps if he had thrust out his jaw and announced that we were beautiful little liars but not so good after all, we might have blinked twice and taken notice. We couldn't have seen him with a magnifying glass when Theodore and Reginald were around. We could imagine nothing more marvelously wonderful than we were grown up than to become the bride of either Reginald or Theodore—men like Greek gods, whom we could walk beside bursting with pride.

"I guess we were about 19 or 20 before doubts began to pop up in our minds about the desirability of our heroes. Constant adulation had so spoiled them that they demanded too much attention. They preferred home-made cake and fried chicken to cafe fare, and besides it was cheaper and they didn't want to bestir themselves to be entertaining.

"We noticed Arthur occasionally then, but he was too busy with his job to waste much time on us. He had a pleasant, crisp, friendly way with him that was refreshing and had developed a fascinating quick smile. He fascinated and burrowed his way right on up to the president's desk in his company and the prettiest girl in our crowd grabbed him while the rest of us weren't looking and when she sallies out these days she has to decide whether she'll take the blue limousine, the purple town car or her special sedan and drive herself. And the Paris modiste have her on their mailing list. I believe Theodore is in the hardware department in the basement and Reginald is still saying "yessir" in a broker's office and reading literature which says the rich are all criminals and down with 'em.

"Whenever the caption under a newspaper picture reads 'President of the X. Y. Z. Road,' 'Ambassador to Umpty-Um,' 'Author of the Best Seller,' or something like that it is a safe bet that it's a face nobody would turn around twice to look at in a crowd and most usually people say, 'Goodness he doesn't look like much, does he?' But his wife is never going to elope with a matinee idol or go into business because she is bored with existence, and his children are really quite fond of him.

"Men and women in hall bedrooms and back streets and the poorhouse are going to say they knew him when, and whoever would have thought he had it in him. So I have no doubt this pretty girl across the street is merely too bright and clever for anything and her insignificant husband is going to be one of the twenty billionaires written up in a gold-plated book presently and is so interesting and delightful she has never realized he isn't an Adonis!"

"Gee!" mourned the tall lank householder, "how you make me regret that I am merely handsome! Darn the luck."—Chicago News.

Conrad Learned English at 25

After all the happiness of a refined home was ruthlessly taken from him and he was left to fight his way alone in the world, Joseph Conrad underwent the hardships of his chosen vocation, but had to give that up because of ill health.

Joseph Conrad Korzeniowski, son of a student member of the landed gentry of the Ukraine, Poland, learned French from a governess at six, read Shakespeare at eight, later attended the University of Cracow and afterward traveled with a tutor, but said that "studies came hard to him."

Zealous writings of his father championing Poland's nationality, forced the family into exile. Compelled to make a long journey while seriously ill, his mother died and her death hastened the death of his father. The boy sought refuge with his uncle whose home felt the sorrow and suffering of the lost cause of Poland under Russia's heel.

Resolving at nine to go to Africa and at 15 to be a sailor, he ignored the advice of relatives and friends and at 16 went to Marseilles, France where he shipped as a common sailor on a French vessel, but vowed he would be an English seaman some day.

When he went to England at 25 he did not know a word of English, but learned the language sufficiently to pass an examination for second officer. Then came 15 years of the hardships and roving life of the sea as he gradually made his way to the rank of Master in the Merchant Service.

Spending his spare time in study, he conceived an idea for a story and began to write it as a pastime. During five years of sailing in Africa and other waters he wrote Almayer's Folly, completing it when he was 40. Invalided to England in broken health and with scanty funds he sought a publisher. When the book finally appeared it met with instant success. Then An Outcast of the Islands, The Nigger of the Narcissus, Lord Jim, and many other books followed and added to his reputation as a master of the English novel, some of his later manuscripts selling for as high as $100,000.

And when he died recently the world mourned the passing of a literary genius.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Charles Curtis, who is prominently mentioned to succeed the late Henry Cabot Lodge as republican leader in the United States senate, has been a senator from Kansas since 1907 and is at present the republican party whip in the upper house. Senator Curtis has been spoken of as "a man who levitated opportunity and tied it fast." In his youth he was a jockey riding at the county fair tracks in Kansas. Between seasons he drove a cab in Topeka. At all times he was watching for opportunities. When he had an opportunity to read law he grasped it. In due time he was admitted to the bar, won success in his profession and became recognized as a political leader. He was the first native Kansan to be sent by that state to the senate, also the first man, or one of the first with Indian blood in his veins to sit in the upper house. Senator Curtis is one quarter Kaw Indian. He has the reputation of being a skilled leader and worker, and knows the senate and its ways well.

NEW BOOKS

The Enchanted Hill. By Peter B. Kyne. Illustrations by Dean Cornwell. Cloth, 369 pages. Published by Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York. Price $2.

Peter B. Kyne needs no introduction to the reading public. His latest book, The Enchanted Hill, deals with the southwest. Gail Ormsby goes from civilization to the ranch her uncle bequeathed her. She alights at a railroad station expecting to find an acquaintance there. Failing to do so she accepts the protection of a gentleman who has just shot down a man from ambush, rather than spend the night in solitude with the coyotes and no shelter but a watertank.

Rough enough jolts follow which shock her femininity and the mystery of Lee Purdy who has befriended her baffles her for a long time. There are strange contradictions of mercy and mercilessness.

The whole story moves with the episodic vivacity which comes so spontaneously from the well known author, and in addition to being a good yarn of robust humor and brisk characterization, it subtly emphasizes the fact that modern life is full of romantic wonders.

Cowboys and cattlerustling are not new in fiction, and beauty in distress has been succored by knights errant since the middle ages, but when a cattleman discovers he is host to the lovely songstress whose voice from a far city he has enjoyed for months on his radio, and when beauty flies with the cowman in his airplane over the forest reserve of which he is the volunteer patrol, then romance blooms afresh and cattle ranches are well named The Enchanted Hill. The author becomes more and more endeared in his new book to those who have been charmed by his previous efforts.

Prilligirl. By Carolyn Wells. A Fleming Stone Detective story. Cloth, 332 pages. Published by J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia, $2.

This story surrounds a crime in theatrical circles—a popular playwright has been found stabbed with his own pen, curiously made from a medieval dagger. Unconscious on the floor of a telephone booth built into the room lies pretty little Mrs. Guy Thorndike, wife of a prominent actor. On the handle of the weapon, the door of the booth, the cover of the telephone book are the prints of small bloody fingers, which the expert readily identifies as hers. But why should Prilligirl kill Mallory Vane, when he had just completed the play which is to crown her husband's triumphs? And why does Thorndike confess to the murder?

In the room, unheeded by police and detectives, is a clue upon which Fleming Stone, master detective, constructs a daring solution. Through his ingenuity the murderer is tricked by radio in a climax unique even for detective fiction.

There is more careful characterization in this book than in the usual mystery story plot and a well sustained love interest, developed in the best style of this popular author. It begins in fact with as pretty a love story as one can find in the annals of light romances. Those who are familiar with Carolyn Wells' pen may well anticipate the treat that this latest book has in store.

The American Code of Laws for Mah Jong. By R. F. Foster, I. F. Hartman, John H. Smith and M. C. Work. Paper, with index. Published by J. H. Smith Publishing Corp., New York. Price 50 cents.

Through the influence of the Auction Bridge and Mah Jong magazine a group of leading authorities was induced to give many months of their time for the purpose of formulating a code of laws for the benefit of the players of this country. The reception has been one of unanimous approval and thankfulness and generally accepted as a standard. It is also valuable to the beginners. It meets that need for a standard code experienced since the game was introduced here.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

The Geography of Modesty

"A Chinese woman would not think of exposing to the public gaze her bound feet, a lady of Yap would never be seen promenading down the mud-hut boulevard of her native village without her woven necklace of hibiscus leaves though her grass skirt was her only garment, and the Mohammedan woman of a few years ago would not be seen without a veil. "Modesty has a geography all its own," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society, in connection with the winter fashion decrees from Paris.

Alexander von Humboldt, who traveled extensively over the world known in the eighteenth century, recorded in his travels that some of the central Asian peoples are reluctant to let any one see their finger tips. A traveler who visited the Alaska coast, in the same country, found that native women, after he had persuaded them to remove anornament which made the lower part of the mouth protrude two or three inches, were greatly embarrassed.

"It seems paradoxical that clothes originated out of the desire for ornamentation rather than for warmth. Arabs of the hot deserts of Arabia and Africa are fully swathed in flowing garments, which only in part serve as protection from the heat, while the Patagonians, from the coldest portion of the South American continent, wear only the skin of one animal as a kind of wind-shield. Our word, modesty, came from the Latin modus, meaning measure of standard, and the clothing which was customarily worn therefore became our first conception of what was the proper or modest thing to wear. Each of the world's peoples consequently has its own standards.

"The explorers who first came to America also found that the Carib Indian women, who simply wore embroidered girdles, often appeared without this single garment, but they were never so remiss as to forget to paint their bodies with annatto, a red or yellowish-red dye. This constituted their idea of womanly modesty. One explorer reported in his journals that a woman of a tribe in Brazil, whose custom it was to go unclothed, had in some mysterious manner acquired a petticoat which she put on for special occasions, but it seemed to have the effect of making her thoroughly ill at ease.

"The Chinese women are among the most demure and modest in the world, but they wear trousers! And, furthermore, some of them would be horrified at the immodesty of a skirt.

"The beaches of American seaside resorts would pain the fine sensibilities of the Sumatra and Celebes savages who consider it highly improper to expose the knees.

"In one of the New Hebrides Islands in the Pacific, a married woman can be modest only by being snaggle-toothed. Part of the wedding ceremony consists of relieving the lady of her two middle incisors by smashing them with a rock.

"Some of the Mohammedan women of the Saharn region will tear off their last garment to cover their faces upon the approach of a stranger. The demure Breton maiden wears a cunning little close cap, because it would be dreadfully immodest to uncover her hair. Sturdy German peasant women paddle around their homes and fields in dresses that just escape their knees, but they would be shocked at the idea of wearing a dress which was open at the neck.

"In the Tonga Islands a man would consider himself thoroughly unprepared to appear before his fellow mortals unless he was tattooed, and the Marquesans follow much the same practice, the amount of the decoration varying with the rank of the individual, but the legs are always tattooed from ankle to thigh. Warriors have themselves done in geometrical designs with squares and inverted triangles on their faces, and the women are ornamented in patterns which resemble fine lace-work. Some of them wear loin cloths and girdles of tapa cloth a fabric made from the bark of the breadfruit tree.

"An American lady of 1924 is not selfconscious at exposing her arms and shoulders in the evening, but she would be shocked at wearing a decolete gown to breakfast or lunch. Our demure grandmothers, who represent to us the personifications of modesty, wore their sleeveless and neckless dressess all day."

A Little Talk on Thrift

Ways of Thrift

The mere act of saving money can not be designated as the only standard of thrift. Not every one who saves money is thrifty in the truest sense. The principles of thrift may manifest themselves in ways other than the piling up of funds in a savings bank. For example, there are thousands of Americans whose savings go directly into payments on homes.

However, the development of the country's savings accounts is an excellent barometer of the popular development of thrift practices. It is gratifying to note, therefore, a constant growth in the number of savings accounts, amount of savings deposits, and per capita of savings.

According to figures compiled by the savings banks division of the American Bankers Association, the 1924 savings banks deposits are in excess of $20,700,000,000, a gain over 1923 of $2,300,000,000. Only as far back as 1912 our savings bank deposits were $8,425,000,000. The per capita of savings was then $89. Today it is more than $146.

For the past ten years savings have grown steadily, but at no time has the yearly increase been as great as the current figures show.

While the average American is earning more money today than ten years ago, and his saved dollar does not represent the value of the dollar saved in previous years, we cannot get away from the fact that the great mass of the people of this country are constantly learning their lessons in thrift.

Many forms of extravagance are being indulged in. There is waste on every hand. One does not need to look far to find inefficiency.

But, taken in its entirety, personal economic conditions in the United States are growing steadily better. Besides the growth of savings bank and school bank deposits, we have increased investment in legitimate securities, gains in building and loan association memberships, a tremendous increase in home ownership, and a host of other equally favorable indices.

This is all the result of direct and indirect educational work which has intensively been in progress in the last decade.

It is encouraging and significant to note these developments. They mean more happiness for the people, greater advancement for the nation.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

If Not Here, Where?

The inebriate sidled up to the ticket window. "I want a round trip ticket," he told the agent.

"Where to?"

The prospective passenger looked rather confusedly about him and said? "Why back here, of course."

Mr. Train, Please.

Even the brightest and the mightiest fall. This man who likes to play practical jokes, went down in defeat the other day, though he seldom gets caught.

This note was found on his desk when he came back from lunch several days ago: "While you were gone a Mr. Train called and left his number 215." (This is the railroad station.) He adjusted himself in his chair, pushed aside some important papers on his desk and reached for the phone. All others near him listened and this is what they heard: "Hello, is this 215? Well, I want to speak to a Mr. Train—oh, I beg your pardon."

He banged the receiver and chuckled to himself, but his expression changed on looking around.

Etiquette has nothing to do with the good form displayed by the girl in knickers.

OBITUARY.

Francis E. Dowe.

The death of Francis Eugene Dowe, formerly of this city, occurred Tuesday morning at his home, 4307 Pechin street, Roxborough, Philadelphia, where he had made his home with his daughter, Miss Amy Haslam Dowe, since the death of his wife seven years ago.

Mr. Dowe was born Sept. 5, 1842, in Springfield, Mass., and was the son of Henry T. and Wealthy Ann Higgins Dowe. Most of his early years were spent in Springfield where he was a member of the First Congregational church. An ardent abolitionist and unionist, he attempted three times to enlist in the Union forces, but was refused the first time because he was under age and at his two later attempts because of weak lungs. Before the close of the Civil war, he entered the Freedman's Bureau at Norfolk, Va.

After the war was over he met in Virginia Miss Emma F. Haslam of Philadelphia who, under the auspices of the Society of Friends, was teaching a colored school near Heathsville. They were married by Friends' ceremony in Camden, N. J., in February, 1871, at the home of the bride's brother-in-law, Col. George W. Whitman, brother of the poet, Walt Whitman. Mr. and Mrs. Dowe removed to Norwich where for over forty years he was a merchant, conducting a fancy goods, embroidery and linen store on Main street. During the summer season he conducted a branch at Watch Hill for a number of years. He belonged to the Arcanum club for many years.

Mr. Dowe's ancestry traced back to the earliest New England times. He was a direct descendant of Stephen Hopkins, one of the signers of the Mayflower compact. On his mother's side he belonged to the Brainard's and Seldens of Connecticut and on his fathers' to the Silleys and Dowes of New Hampshire. Of purely Puritan ancestry, he was far removed from the sternness and bigotry so often ascribed to these early New Englanders, for his family and his friends knew him as one of the gentlest and sweetest of men, self-sacrificial to the point of self abnegation and courtesys in Cardinal Newman's phrase, "A gentleman is one who never inflicts pain."

Mr. Dowe is survived by two children, Warren Kinsman Dowe of New York, and Miss Amy Haslam Dowe of Philadelphia, with the latter of whom he had made his home in that city.

Henry G. Austin

Henry G. Austin of Marlborough, who died Monday morning at the Middlesex hospital, Middletown, from paralysis, was born in Bozrah, the eldest child of George Avery and Mary McGowan Austin. He was a resident of Hebron for many years, Samuel Avery Austin of Hebron being his paternal grandfather, and his wife Harriet Penfield of the Penfield family of Portland, Conn., his grandmother. Mr. Austin was educated in the school of Hebron and for nine years was clerk and postmaster in the store of Lucien Leonard. He voted the democratic ticket always and represented Marlborough in the house of representatives during the session of 1900-1901. He held many public offices in his town, being first selectman a number of years, also town clerk and treasurer, grand juror and justice of the peace. He served as juror in the Hartford court for nine consecutive terms.

Always fond of horses he at different times owned some the record makers of the time.

Mr. Austin is survived by his wife, Mrs. Carrie Jones Austin, and two sons, Frank and Fred and several sisters. Mr. Austin had been in ill health for a number of years. Burial is to be in Hebron.

Mrs. Maurice Welch.

After a lingering illness the death of Annie E. Herbert, widow of Maurice Welch occurred Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Kampf, of No. 66 Union street.

Mrs. Welch who has been a resident of Norwich for about 59 years years was born in Litchfield, Conn., the daughter of Maurice and Bridget Mahoney Herbert, and was married to Mr. Welch in St. Mary's church by Rev. Dennis Desmond. She was a member of St. Patrick's church.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Charles Kampf, Mrs. Patrick Coleman, Mrs. William Fitzgerald, Mrs. Thomas Hynds and one brother, Maurice Herbert, all of Norwich, and a sister, Mrs. Bridget O'Donald, of Passaic, N. J. She also leaves seven grandchildren.

The bridal couple was unattended. Dr. Osgood's residence is at North Windham, Me., where he has had a summer home several years but he is a successful practicing physician in New York city. He graduated from the Norwich Free Academy in the class of 1898 and took his medical degree at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, in New York.

Miss Margaret Elizabeth Moran of Hartford and John Condon Quinlan of Norwich were married Monday morning at St. Augustine's church, Hartford. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Henry Moran. TESTIFIES HE SAW BOY FALL INTO CHUTE AT PAPER BOARD MILL

An eyewitness of the death of nine-year old William Slaga at the Thamesville plant of the Uncas Paper Board Co., gave testimony in the trial of the suit of the boy's father against the paper mill company for $10,000 damages. The trial opened the November session of the court before Judge George E. Hinman and a jury.

The witness was Frank Constantine, alias Frank Miller, who has been employed at the mill as a beater tender for six years and was working there on Aug. 7, 1923 when the boy was killed. Miller said he was in the room on the third floor of the mill when he saw the Slaga boy, who had brought his father's lunch, playing about the room with two other boys. He saw the Slaga boy run across the room onto a bale of paper near a chute that led to the beaters and tumble off the bale into the chute, the bale of paper going in after the boy. Miller ran to the edge of the chute to catch the boy but was too late and then spread the alarm and told the boy's father what had happened. Miller told of children playing about in the room and that he had warned them away, but they swore back at him and he let them alone.

L. D. Sterritt, assistant manager at the plant, testified that there is a guard about two or three feet high about the mouth of the chutes and he described some of the conditions of the manufacture of paper.

Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, medical examiner, told of finding bits of the boy's body and his clothing, when the contents of the vats and beaters were run off after the accident. He said that he found a wooden cover for the chute which was some distance away when he made his inspection of the premises.

Other witnesses for the plaintiff were Anthony Gromko, Arthur Barrows and John Slaga, the father of the boy.

Attorney F. W. Perkins, counsel for the defendant moved for a non-suit after the testimony for plaintiff was in. This was opposed by Attorney Morris Lubchansky, counsel for the plaintiff, and Judge Hinman denied the motion.

William H. Covey Jr., watchman at the plant, was called as a witness for the defendant, and was followed by Treasurer Frank W. Browning, and by Norman Chalmers, an employe.

Herbert B. Wightman, employed in a civil engineer's office, testified of measurements he had made in the mill room and how it was lighted by windows and by electric lights. He said that the mouth of the chutes were about 3 feet square and were protected by a wooden rim two feet four inches high. There was also a cover attached to the chute, he said.

Court adjourned at 4.20 in the afternoon to continue trial of the case the next day.

The jury chosen for the case is as follows: Albert W. Lillibridge, Norwich; Daniel Lynch, Appleton Main, Preston; William A. Edmund, Bert F. Grenier, Griswold; William P. Babcock, North Stonington; William Church, Jabez Bailey; Bozrah; Charles Frink, Roland Browning, Franklin; John W. Crots, Sprague; James McCann, Lisbon.

It is understood that the attraction for the children at the mill are the illustrated supplements of newspapers and also the chance that they may find money or other articles of value among the bales of paper which are to be ground up in the beaters.

NIANTIC PUBLIC SCHOOL DAMAGED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Nov. 18.—The Niantic public school was threatened with destruction by fire this afternoon and so serious did the blaze become that assistance was asked from the New London fire department. Konomoc Hose company was sent in response and aided materially in subduing the fire.

The fire was discovered shortly after noon and is believed to have originated from an overheated furnace as the extreme cold temperature had resulted in the furnace being forced to provide ample heat for the children.

When the fire was discovered it was burning fiercely and fortunately during the noon recess so that pupils were not in the structure. The fire gained headway rapidly because of the high wind and in a short time it was realized that the village pumper was inadequate to cope with the fire. A telephone message was sent to New London fire headquarters and Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and the Konomoc apparatus responded. With the arrival of the New London firemen the flames were fought with vigor and after an hour's work the blaze was subdued, but not until the building had been extensively damaged.

The loss has not been determined, but it is believed that it is fully covered by insurance.

JEWISH WOMEN'S COUNCIL AFTER 500,000 NEW MEMBERS

The National Council of Jewish Women, with a membership of 52,000, began its annual meting Monday in New York at the Hotel Commodore. Miss Rose Brenner of Brooklyn, president, declared in her address that the coming year would see greater progress in organized Jewish work than ever before.

"Organizations of Jewish women throughout the world," she said, "are adopting our program. Councils have been established in Holland, Belgium Latvia, Poland and Italy and most recently of all, in Australia. The Jews of Egypt are likewise taking steps to found a council in their country."

A drive for 500,000 new members was announced by Mrs. Estelle M. Sternberger of New York, National Executive Secretary. "The great demands made upon the council during the past year," she said, "make it urgent for us to increase our membership and resources. A million and a quarter will be spent in the next three years for welfare and educational work among the farmers. This will be only one item in our program."

STATE DEPUTY ADDRESSED WOODMEN'S OPEN MEETING

An open meeting of Ionic Camp, No. 7694, Modern Woodmen of America, at which State Deputy J. R. Hughes of Hartford was the speaker, had a large attendance in Steiner hall Tuesday evening and an instructive address upon the valuable features and the strength of the order was given by Deputy Hughes.

He brought out the fact that the Modern Woodmen have a membership of 1,150,000 with one billion six hundred and fifty million of insurance in force. In its 41 years it has paid 178,802 death claims for a total of $308,160,315.18 and it has a surplus of thirty-eight million dollars. In the present year it has been making a remarkable gain in membership, having added 120,000 between the first of January and the first of November.

Venerable Consul George Shafer presided at the meeting which opened with the singing of America. Musical numbers of the programme were solos by James Logan and William Rush, with Alfred Brukschy at the piano, and there was an interesting exhibition of sleight of hand by Professor Banfield.

Refreshments were served under direction of the committee which comprised Albert Turner, Ernest Witte and William Barwell. The camp anticipates a pleasing gain in membership through the visit of State Deputy Hughes and the convincing talk he gave them and their visitors and guests upon the merits of Woodcraft.

ADDRESSES K. OF C. ON DUTIES OF MEMBERSHIP

Speaking on the topic The Obligation of Membership in the Knights of Columbus, Edward E. Regan, president of the New London Rotary club, and an official of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, addressed the members of White Cross council, No. 13, K. of C., at their regular semi-monthly business meeting. The business session, presided over by Grand Knight M. Frank Leonard, was brief, after which the meeting was turned over to the lecturer, Francis T.

EDWARD E. REGAN

Diggins. Rev. Michael H. May, rector of St. Patrick's church, briefly addressed the gathering, after which Mr. Regan was introduced by Lecturer Diggins.

I am glad to come here, because I have a great many friends in Norwich, said Mr. Regan. I am going to talk to you on The Obligation of Membership in the Knights of Columbus. As I visit the different councils it seems to me that prospective members are not always impressed as they should be with the obligation of membership. The prospective member is not impressed at all times with his responsibilities, such as attending meetings, paying his dues and taking part in the council activities. It is surprising how new members sometimes become members in name only. If you solicit some Catholic young man to become a member of the Knights of Columbus you should explain to him in detail the duties and obligations. You should attend all the degrees with him. See him through from start to finish and show him you are interested in him. To be a good member of the Knights of Columbus you have got to be a good Catholic. I find a lot of young fellows nowadays don't seem to know much about their religion.

If we don't show by our lives that we are living up to the faith, then we are living under false pretenses. If you will follow the teachings of the church, you are bound to be a good member of this order. It is true we depend on our clergy to save us. They are doing all they can. But we can do more than they can just by the power of example. We can reach men they can't reach. We can teach them a doctrine they can't teach, because they can't reach them. I feel the example I give to the men working under me and associated with me places a great responsibility on me. I believe we ought to keep the thought that our example is going to make for good or bad, according to the example we give.

I venture to say every boy had some hero in his own mind, someone to whom he looks up to. If some boy singles you out as his example and you live and act in a way that is not creditable to you, you are responsible for that boy's after life.

The K. K. K. think we are so organized that we are eternally at the beck and call of the pope, that we are all organized as trained soldiers and that our churches are filled with guns and ammunition. All the pope requires of us is that we live in accordance with the precepts of the church. This organization can do more good through the power of example than they can in any other way. We haven't any quarrel with anyone outside the faith. We shouldn't have. Some of the very best friends I have are members of different creeds and some profess no religion whatever. In the handling of the men placed in my charge I couldn't if I wanted to, show any distinction between those men, whether it be race, color or creed. I wouldn't for one moment let anything interfere with the progress of a man because he was not of the same faith as I. I believe it just as much a part of my duty as a Catholic to be absolutely fair to the men under me as it is for me to comply with the rules of the church.

I believe if less publicity was given to the activities of the K. K. K., they would die out so quickly they wouldn't be heard from in a few years. Half of what is said of them isn't true and the other half you can take with a grain of salt. We give altogether too much importance to the things written about the K. K. K.

I am greatly interested in the boy. What the boy of today is portrays what the man of tomorrow is going to be. The closer you can get to the boy, the more of a companion you can make of him, the better the boy will be and the better the future of the country will be.

Mr. Regan was given a rising vote of thanks for his very interesting address. The meeting closed in the usual form with Grand Knight Leonard in the chair.

JEWETT CITY POLICE CHASE TAFTVILLE MAN

A Taftville man named Lebarre, who lives on Hunters avenue, was run to earth by Jewett City officers Tuesday night about 9.30 o'clock in an automobile race that started at the Jewett City post office and ended in Versailles with the gasoline tank on the Taftville man's Velie car punctured by bullets from the revolver of Officer Veglard.

Lebarre was suspected of rum running and was pursued by the Jewett City officers in a Chrysler car with Officer Vacon driving. The chase led down through Taftville and it was reported that Lebarre threw overboard some of his cargo on the way before he was caught. Norwich police headquarters was notified of the chase and Captain Twomey got Constable McGuire of Baltic out on the watch for the fleeing car, but Lebarre kept out of the way of the Baltic constable.

After the arrest Lebarre was presented before a justice of the peace where he gave bonds for his appearance in the Jewett City court.

Twenty members of the lodge have announced their intentions of travelling to Bridgeport on Sunday, Nov. 30th, to attend the frolic and quarterly meeting of the Hy D Davis Legion.

Burial was in the Reed Haskell cemetery, Lisbon, where Rev. Mr. Abbott conducted the committal service.

Pekari, manager of the Bridgeport office of the Beneficial Loan Society, is implicated with four others in shortages in the local and Stamford offices of the organization, police allege.

CLIMAX OF EASTERN FOOTBALL WILL BE SATURDAY WHEN YALE MEETS HARVARD

New York, Nov. 18.—(By The A. P.) Eyes of eastern football students, although centered on New Haven, where a Yale Bulldog hopes to lap Harvard soup from the Bowl on Saturday, are occasionally glancing toward a battle-field in Philadelphia where little Bucknell comes forth to meet the undefeated Rutgers eleven, led by the powerful Homer Hazel and the high-scoring Benkert.

Bucknell has conducted a determined fight for recognition in this turbulent season and has fallen but once, when Lafayette triumphed over it, 21 t o3. Among other scalps on its belt are those of the Navy, Muhlenberg and Georgetown. The Pennsylvanians have scored 149 points to 45 for their rivals. Rutgers, which trumbled Lafayette at the Palmer stadium in Princeton, 42 to 7, has compiled 242 points, which ties West Virginia for high scoring at the present time and had permitted but three touchdowns and a field goal to opponents.

The engagement at Philadelphia is not a crucial one but an upset, of which there have been scores in recent weeks, will throw a powerful Rutgers eleven out of the first five teams in the east, those which have survived the tempest without defeat.

At Syracuse, Colgate, with an unimpressive past, will attempt to further Syracuse's plunge into inconspicuousness which was started by West Virginia Wesleyan, 7 to 3, the same team that conquered the Navy, 10 to .. The men from Hamilton are facing an almost impossible task in view of their early showing.

Yale, resting after its victory over the Princeton Tiger, is concentrating on field maneuvers. Any sort of misplay might be costly, for Harvard, although battered in its early games, traditionally rises beyond its apparent powers against Yale. The Yale game is the Harvard football season.

At Cambridge a certain confidence maintains and further spirit will be impaired to the eleven at mass meetings this week. Half of the Crimson squad is out of action with injuries, but the Fisher production expects to reach its peak at New Haven. Its backfield may be in poro shape, its line shreds, but the spirit of John Harvard follows the team and the season may yet produce the greatest surprise of all, according to Crimson enthusiasts.

Another interesting gridiron debute will be settled Saturday at South Bethlehem, Pa., when the squads of Lehigh and Lafayette clash.

CHAPMAN TECH HAS ABOUT CLINCHED EASTERN TITLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 18.—With five victories in Eastern Connecticut league competition, Chapman Tech has about clinched the title. The remaining game on the schedule with Westerly High will not only terminate the football activities for the Red and Black, but will also end all efforts of Tech in the league. With visions of finishing first with a margin to spare, Westerly's only hopes is to have Chapman Tech lose its first contest, with a high school team. But even though Westerly is victorious in the game with the Red and Black, the tie game played with Norwich Free Academy will hold up that team's attempt to emerge better than second in the standing. Westerly has two games remaining, one with Chapman Tech and the other with Stonington High.

At present, there is not a team in the league which can come close to the record of Tech. But even though the game with Westerly will have very little bearing on the outcome of the league, nevertheless, it will be an interesting struggle. Apparently when the makers of the schedule of the league arranged the schedule, the expected that the race for league honors would be as close this year as last. But they were a trifle disappointed in their calculations. For Tech ran away with all the honors, not one team in the league furnishing them much opposition. And what was to be a deciding game with Chapman Tech and Westerly, is merely the final game of a very uninteresting race for the top honors.

FIRST ANNUAL TURKEY RUN TO BE HELD SUNDAY

The first annual turkey run for local motorcycle riders will be held next Sunday. The run is put on under the direction of James P. Donovan and is open to all riders in the eastern part of the state. The run will start promptly at 10 o'clock, each rider leaving the starting point at intervals of one minute, and then traverse a route of 104 1-2 miles, returning to the starting point. It is expected that over 30 riders will participate in the run.

Each contestant is credited with 1,000 points before he leaves the starting point and then he loses a certain number of points during the run for failure to obey the regulations. The penalities are: 5 points for failure to stop at railroad crossings; 2 points per minute for a rider who arrives ahead of his schedule at the checking stations; 1 point per minute late at checking station; a rider will be disqualified for not checking at appointed places; any rider using other than officially designated and marked courses will be disqualified. A time allowance of 59 seconds is given at checking stations on the schedule. A number of secret checks will also be taken along the route. The average speed on the road will be between 20 and 25 miles per hour.

The first prize will be a turkey, the second prize a goose and the third a chicken. There will be a meeting of the contestants on Saturday evening.

BULKELEY TO RESUME BASKETBALL AS MAJOR SPORT

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 18.—The resumption of basketball at Bulkeley High school as a major sport, has brought about the announcement of the basketball schedule made public today for the first time. One of the most pretentious schedules yet to be undertaken by a Bulkeley team in basketball will include a total number of 20 games when the final schedule is released. All games are not scheduled as yet, but there are three pending all to be played at home. Of the twenty games already scheduled, thirteen will be away from home and three pending to be played at home.

Intersectional basketball contests, an innovation in Bulkeley basketball circles, will be played at regular intervals during the season. Of the number of games played with teams out of the state, two will be played in Rhode Island, one team in New York and three with teams in Massachusetts. With the exception of Deep River, Bridgeport High, Hartford High, Crosby High school and Stamford High, all other teams on the schedule were not played during the season of 1922-23, the last year Bulkeley engaged on the court.

The games arranged from home are attractive, and easily overbalance the games scheduled to be played at home. Two freshmen college quintets will appear on the schedule, all newcomers. Fordham college, which is assuming relations with Bulkeley in all sports, will be one of the leading teams on the entire basketball program. Clark college freshmen will also be played by the Orange and Black and like the game with Fordham freshmen will be played away from home. This game being played at Worcester. A home and home game has been arranged with Springfield Commerce High of Springfield. With this game played at home, another interscolonal contst which is expected to arouse much interest is the game scheduled with Leominster, Mass., High school. These two games will feature the home schedule.

Although Bulkeley has never been able to turn out a fast quintet, she will engage some of the leading high school basketball teams in the state. Among these are Bridgeport High school, Torrington High, Hartford High, New Haven Hillhouse, Crosby High, Wilby High and several other teams. In order to be a contender for the High school title Bulkeley will have to step fast.

With the termination of football expected on Thanksgiving at the latest, the advance squad will assemble for the preliminary work. It will be a monotonous undertaking to pick a teams in the short time the Bulkeley mentor will have to do this in. Several experienced players will respond to the first call, and among these a captain will be chosen to lead the team for the coming season. Rice of the football team, Taylor, Parisi, Shefiott are the leading contenders for positions on the quintet. Taylor is especially noted for his excellent court work during the past season playing with an amateur team.

If the schedule is only a sample of the earnestness of the Bulkeley team to enter the basketball field, then it will act as a judge upon the Orange and Black efforts on the marked court this season. The success of the Bulkeley team will be watched carefully.

The complete schedule for the season 1924-25 is as follows:

HARVARD HAS LIGHT WORK OUT YESTERDAY

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 18.—The Harvard varsity football squad preparing to give battle to the highly rated Yale team at New Haven Saturday, devoted this afternoon to dummy drill with the second team running the scouts' versions of Eli plays.

Joe Scalione acted as first team pilot in the absence of Stafford, who reported with a pair of crushed toes received when a bench fell on his foot during yesterday's practice in the baseball cage and Spalding, who on crutches was resting a leg injured in the Brown game. Mayer, Hammond, and Sayles were relegated to team B. Gehrke and Deley, carrying canes, watched from the side lines. Dr. T. K. Richards, however, announced that Robb an end who left the Princeton game with a broken ankle bone, was the only member of the squad definitely out of the Yale contest.

DE MARCO AND VICENTINI FIGHT SLOW BOUT

Waterbury, Nov. 18.—Cuddy De Marco, of Pittsburgh and Luis Vicentini, of Chile fought to a draw in a 12-round bout here tonight. There was considerable clinching and the bout was not popular with the crowd. Vicentini endeavored to lead, but De Marco kept inside, preventing his hard hitting opponent from doing any damage. Vicentini weighed 136 1-2 and De Marco 134.

Brookie Stevens, of San Antonio won the decision from Georgie Day, of New Haven in one of the fastest semi-finals ever witnessed here. A final round rally, gave Stevens the edge.

Chuck Burns, of San Antonio, Texas, won on a technical knockout from Knockout Lenny of Danbury in the fourth round of a slugging match.

Eddie Lord, of this city and Max Mavernick, of Meriden fought to a draw in the six round preliminary.

DENNY MURPHY PLAYING IN THE WINTER LEAGUE

Denny Murphy, Taftville boy, who was rated as the best catcher in the Pacific Coast league during the recent season, is now playing in the Winter league in California. Denny in the opening game secured three hits, the last one being a single which scored the winning run. Denny is playing with the Chadbourne Tigers, which team is composed largely of Pacific league players and a number from the major circuits.

FULTON ARRESTED FOR FIGHTING IN CALFORNIA

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 18.—Fred Fulton, Minneapolis plasterer, who last night "took the count," after 35 seconds of fighting in a bout at Culver City, with Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, was arraigned in justice court here late today with his manager, Jack Reddyk, on charges of violating the state law against prize fighting. The pair were released on cash bail of one thousand each, pending preliminary hearing next Friday.

MASCART WINS EUROPEAN FEATHERWEIGHT TITLE

Paris, Nov. 18.—Edouard Mascart tonight defeated the veteran pugilist Charlie Ledoux on points in a twenty round fight for the featherweight championship of Europe. Ledoux displayed bulldog courage, and this is the only thing that saved him from a knockout, as he was a badly beaten man after the tenth round.

But Dempsey of New York defeated young Ascensio, one of Robert Eudeline's contingent, on points in a ten round bout, the curtain raiser.

A hard twelve round bout between Paul Fritsch, one of Descamps' men who recently fought in the United States, and Fred Bretonnel, former lightweight champion of Europe, ended in a draw.

Mrs. Snyder claims Frank was in arrears in the matter. The catcher has a farm near San Antonio.

The Salt Lake Club of the Coast League, has signed Pitcher Orville McMurtrie, a Fresno high school lad. He is a big righthander. It is reported that the Bees plan to try out a record number of young players in the spring.

An impression prevails in Coast League circles that George Burns, veteran outfielder of the Cincinnati Reds, will be made manager of the San Francisco team in the event that Bert Ellison is obtained by Jack Hendricks to play first base for the National Leaguers. Burns has been angling for a minor league berth ever since it became apparent that he would not be retained by the Reds in 1925.

George Stallings has signed Earl (Snuffy) Spencer a pitcher of Washington, Pa., for the 1926 Rochester International League team. Allen, assistant district attorney of Danville, was named secretary, and Major Frank T. Bott, treasurer of the National Soldiers' Home, on whose grounds the games are played, replaced Captain Henry Finley on the board of directors.

McGraw told London newspaper men that he would have a team in Europe again next fall, following the final game of the trip in London before going to France.

One of the social events of the past week in St. Louis was the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Byron Bradsby, parents of Frank W. Bradsby of Hillerich Bradsby, the Louisville Slugger builders. More than 500 guests, including children and relatives of the aged couple attended the reception.

Ed Holly's Majors, a basket ball team made up of major prominent minor league baseball stars, and having Nick Allrock and Al Schacht as added attractions, are to form for their third straight season, and Snooli Dowd of Springfield, Mass., is again to be a member. Dowd has already signed his contract. The tour begins the latter part of the month.

Ben Egan, former Baltimore catcher, who aided in the development of Babe Ruth, Ernie Shore and Bab Groves, has been made pitching coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Dodgers purchased his release from Jersey City.

Dr. Cecil Ferguson! Never heard of him? Well, he's none other than old Fergy, who used to pitch for the Giants and Braves of the National League. Doc is running a bone-setting business in Terre Haute, Ind., and is beginning to attract a lot of attention. Six members of the University of Illinois football team, including Red Grange, recently paid him a visit, and he is said to have done them a lot of good. Most of them had bulky tendons.

Pittsburg has obtained Infielder John Chapman from the Philadelphia Athletics on a waiver price. Chapman formerly played in the Eastern and Blue Ridge leagues.

Manager Bert Niehoff of the Atlanta Southern League club, is trying to get Outfielder Walton Cruise from the Los Angeles club. Cruise went to the Angels from the Boston Braves.

Reading is said to be ready to dispose of the veteran pitchers, Walter Smallwood and Patrick Martin Rochester is said to be in line for Smallwood and Martin may go to the Baltimore champions.

Charley Dressen, star second baseman of the St. Paul team, who joins the Reds in the spring, is soon to leave for Cuba along with Outfielder Bruno Haas, his 1924 team-mate.

In the early days of boxing there was no time limit to the length of a round, which might last for one second or one hour. It ended only with a knockdown, and no more than thirty seconds was allowed for rest and recovery. The knockout blow had not then been invented. Consequently, contests were likely to be prolonged far beyond what is the case nowadays, when champeonship battles that are counted in terms of seconds are by no means uncommon.

Ty Cobb is spending a month in the Hudson Bay district with Jack Miner, the well-known Canadian naturalist. Cobb doing his hunting with a gun, while Miner uses a camera.

A report is out that Owner E. C. Landgraf of the Allentown, Pa., Dukes, a strong independent team, will try to place a team in Pottsville with a view to getting into organized baseball. He would like to be in the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Fuller Thompson, once with the Giants, won the professional baseball players' golf tournament in Las Angeles, beating Arnold Statz, Clubs' outfielder, two up and one to play.

Jack Lelivelt, manager of the Tulsa Western League team, has been spending a vacation in Jaurez, Mexico.

Fred Schpit, the outfielder, who led the Mississippi Valley League in hitting in 1924, has signed a contract with Milwaukee of the American Association. He was obtained from the Champion Waterloo Club.

From the salary viewpoint hockey shows a tendency to rival baseball one of these days. The three-year contract just signed by Dunc Munro to play with the Montreal team in the National Hockey League calls for a total of $22,500 in salary. Before turning "pro," Munroe was a star player and captain of the world's champion Canadian Olympic team.

Several college gridiron teams in the northwest have decided to follow the example set by the crack seven of Idaho university in playing football without the services of a regular team captain. Under the Idaho plan the coach names a field captain before the start of each game.

It has been claimed by some historians that football was first introduced into Britain by the Romans, but Irish antiquaries hold that a variety of the game has been played in the Emerald Isle for over two thousand years.

The Waterloo Cup, the most famous coursing event in the world, was first run in 1836, when the proprietor of the Waterloo Hotel, in Liverpool, improvised an eightdog stake which he called the Waterloo Cup. Today the sweepstake is one of sixty-four nominations, each entrant paying $125. The winner gets $2,500.

The report is out that the Seattle club made $70,000 the past season and that Manager Wade Killefer's bit was $25,000 including salary and money his stock in the club earned.

DOCUMENT ALLEGED TO BE CHARTER OF PENNSYLVANIA

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—A document said to be the charter of Pennsylvania, given to the people by William Penn in 1682, brought $21,500 at an auction sale today of the collection of autographs and rare volumes of the late George C. Thomas, for many years a partner in Drexel and Company and J. P. Morgan and Company. Gabriel Wells of New York, was the purchaser.

A golden pen, purported to have been used by Abrahem Lincoln in signing the emancipation proclamation, was sold to a local dealer for $1,000. Before it was placed on sale the auctioneer read a telegram from Worthington C. Ford, president of the Massachusetts Historical society, declaring the pen "a fake." The auctioneer, however, said the records showed the claim for the pen were "just as good as those of the Massachusetts society."

SACRED ADAM'S APPLE

What is said to be the costliest fruit in the world is the "etrog," or sacred Jewish citron, sometimes known as the paradise or Adam's apple, a single perfect specimen of which will sell for as much as $25. Outwardly resembling a lemon, the etrog is said to be so extremely aromatic that one suffices to perfume a whole room. It has a thick rind, bitter and seedy pulp and scanty juice of a sweet-sour taste and is suitable for making jelly. Popular Mechanics says it is used in ceremonies during the feast of the tabernacles.

AMERICA LIKES VAUDEVILLE

If any one doubts that Americans like vaudeville they have but to look at the financial statements of one of the large vaudeville booking organizations. During the first six months of 1924 when the legitimate theatres were reporting slow times, this one circuit, which ranks with the largest, earned more than 100 per cent. after all charges were taken care of. The previous year it paid 60 cents on the outstanding capital also.

NEW LONDON MAN DRIVING HOME FROM NORWICH PARTY BUMPED TROLLEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Nov. 19.—Newton Rowley was today fined $100 in the police court for operating an automobile Armistice day while under the influence of liquor. Rowley put up a defense that he was trying to avoid a couple of pedestrians who were making their way along Broad street, shortly before midnight, when he ran into a street car that was passing along, approaching him. Nobody saw the pedestrians but Rowley and the court did not believe he saw them either. Fred A. Livermore of Waterford, the motorman of the car with which the Rowley machine collided, said he saw the automobile approaching when it was 500 feet away. He expected the automobile would turn out, but it did not do so and kept on in a straight line in the middle of the trolley tracks till the crash came. The automobile didnt stay in the tracks after that. It was hurled to one side of the road and tumbled over. Rowley was found under the automobile when a search was made for the operator of the car. He was bruised and dazed and was taken to the hospital. Patrolman Howard Sloan happened to be on the trolley car and was on the front end in conversation with the motorman. The pair wondered as Rowley approached them whether he was to turn out. He didn't seem to have that intention. Police Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh had come into town in his automobile just ahead of Rowley, but the latter passed him at Learned street and went on into his area of trouble. Officers Cavanaugh and Sloan told the court that Rowley had been drinking and that he showed the effects of his beverage. Rowley admitted to Sloan, the latter testified, that he had "hit the red, that he had been to a party a booze." This statement Rowley denied today, when he told his story in court. Dr. Charles Kaufman attended Rowley at the hospital and he, too, was of the opinion that the autoist had been drinking liquor. Rowley was found guilty as alleged. His license was taken from him when the fine was imposed.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Preston, of Monument street, Groton, celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of their marriage Monday evening with a party of friends who gathered to manifest their good wishes in a substantial way. The Ladies' Aid society of Seabury church presented them a $5 gold piece, with other gifts from close friends made Mr. and Mrs. Preston feel that they had won and preserved the friendship of those with whom they had been associated all the years they had made their home in Groton. For 23 years Mr. and Mrs. Preston have resided in Groton. They were married in Montville Center where Mrs. Preston, then Miss Lanphere, resided. Mr. Preston is lay reader of the Seabury Memorial (Episcopal) ...

One of the buildings of the Central New England railroad, a wooden structure with a frontage of 12 feet, located in the East New London yard of the company and close to the state pier was gutted by fire this afternoon. The fire was discovered about 12.40 o'clock, following laborers having partaken of lunch in the place. A stove in which soft coal was burned to heat the place was forced, and it is believed that an overheated chimney caused the woodwork near the roof to become ignited. The fire was discovered by laborers, following their return to work when the roof was found ablaze. An alarm was rung in from Box 13, located on the state pier, and with the arrival of the department the flames were attacked and quickly subdued with chemicals.

For the first time in many months, through traffic on the state road between this city and New Haven is now possible. The final installation of the concrete was concluded about six weeks ago when that section of the highway on Bank street, between Willetts and Montauk avenues, was completed, but since then a detour has been necessary because of the greater part of the road being covered with dirt to prevent damage by frost. Today the dirt was entirely removed from the macadam surface, so that through traffic is now possible in both directions. The work has been speeding up of late in order to have the highway open to traffic prior to the big football game in New Haven Saturday between Yale and Harvard.

Sophia A. Crandall has sold a house and lot, corner of Ocean avenue and Squire street, to Antone Basci.

William Rice of Montville; Mrs. Clyde Shirley, Galesc Ferry and Mrs. Benjamin Kaplan and infant son, Squire street, were patients dismissed at Lawrence hospital today.

The funeral of Miss Elizabeth S. Moriarty, daughter of Mrs. Susan and the late Michael Moriarty, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a large congregation attending the services. The high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. The bearers were Miss Moriarty's four brothers, Charles Moriarty, Brooklyn; Jeremiah of Boston, and John and Peter Moriarty of New London. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

The Thames River Lumber company complained to the police this afternoon that a rowboat belonging to the company which had been moored north of the Thames river railroad bridge was stolen last night.

Probation Officers Richard W. Mansfield complained to the police this afternoon that obscene words were being inscribed on sidewalks and conspicuous places on buildings and requested that the offenders be taken into custody. The inscriptions are undoubtedly the work of children and the writing is done with chalk.

David Banks, 20 Vesey street, New York, a summer resident at the Pequot, has communicated with the New London police in an effort to locate Henry Miller, whose last known address was Waterford.

Dr. Thomas Soltz reported to the police today that while his automobile was parked on Huntington street yesterday a commercial truck of the Corticelli Silk company backed against the car and damaged it.

Joseph Dupres, of Clark lane, Waterford, reported to the police today that some time within a month a ring was either stolen from him or lost from the pocket of his coat. The ring has a topaz setting and the stone is cracked.

Patrolman Patrick Sheehan in making his rounds late last night on Bank street, discovered the side entrance to the store of the Schwartz Furniture company unlocked. The officer secured it for the remainder of the night.

Passengers on the Connecticut company's line between New London and Norwich, late this afternoon and evening were greatly interrupted because of the irregular departures and arrival of cars at the State street terminal, because a car became frozen near Montville and was disabled, causing the other cars to be operated off schedule.

An automobile, owned and operated by Henry Maynard, 56 Coleman street, struck and killed a dog owned by Michael Glynn, Willetts avenue, on that thoroughfare this afternoon.

The Fishers Island Farms Co., Inc., Fishers Island, late this afternoon requested the New London police to conduct a search of the pawnshops in an endeavor to recover a shot gun the property of J. D. Telford, stolen a day or two ago. A search of the pawnshops failed to reveal the shotgun having been disposed of at any of the places. The shotgun is of 12 gauge, 32-inch barrel with broken rubber butt. Telford's name is on the gun case and on a tag attached to the case.

Harry and Charles Pearl were taken into custody this evening, by Patrolman Braxton Hill, charged with breach of the peace. The Pearls are brothers and sons of Manson Pearl and with their being placed in cells at the police station it was of great relief to members of the department who were on duty at the police station and of much annoyance to other prisoners as the brothers carried evidence and strong evidence that they had been in communion with a skunk. Charlie Pearl resides on John street with his father and shortly before 6 o'clock Harry put in an appearance at the home. Besides the brothers in the house was the skunk and when Harry attempted to rid the place of the animal, Charlie remonstrated, with the result that the pair engaged in a fight and during the battle the skunk left evidence of his presence in the place upon the clothing of the brothers. In the meantime the disturbance caused by the two brothers fighting resulted in a complaint being made to the police and the arrest of the brawlers followed.

Mrs. Sarah M. Green Lewis, 85, the widow of David Lewis, of Thames street, Groton, died at Lawrence hospital today as the result of injuries sustained about ten days ago when she fell near her home. Mrs. Lewis sustained a fractured leg and suffered greatly from the shock. Mrs. Lewis is survived by a half-sister, Mrs. Addie Mumford, of Groton.

City Manager William A. Holt was absent from his desk at the municipal building today, being in New Haven.

John D. Avery of Granite street and Miss Beatrice Daniels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard V. Hawley, of Ocean Beach, were married last evening at the parsonage of the Second Congregational church by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee. They were attended by Robert Burchard and Mrs. H. Ellsworth Rowland. Mr. and Mrs. Avery will make their home at Ocean Beach.

Mrs. C. William Kaneen has returned home, having spent several days with her mother, Mrs. Winifred Jones, in Worcester, Mass.

John Connors is ill at his home on Jefferson avenue with a severe attack of grip.

The little son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Murray, seriously ill several days as a result of an infection, is now believed to be out of danger.

A still alarm caused the Niagara Engine company and the Allen Hook and Ladder company to be dispatched to the three-story brick building, corner Montauk avenue and Hobron street, and occupied by the Shallett Dyeing & Cleaning company and several tenements. No damage of consequence resulted as the burning soot was extinguished with chemicals before the fire could reach the interior of the building.

As a result of a collision of automobiles in Chesterfield, a week ago Saturday, Mrs. Arthur Demers and daughters, Leah and Natalie, 14 Pearl street, are confined to their house, but all three are on the road to recovery. Mrs. Demers sustained contusions about the head and body and nervous shock, while Leah received a fractured collarbone and concussion of the brain. Natalie sustained a multiple fracture of the right arm and lacerations. The accident occurred when the Demers automobile is said to have been struck by an automobile driven by Miss Jane Nevins, of the Connecticut College for Women. Miss Nevins was not injured. The Demers automobile was wrecked and was towed to a local garage.

The offer of the Lawrence Hospital association of the property on the east side of Main street above Federal for the extension of North Bank or Bradley street, is regarded as a proposition the city should not turn down without serious consideration. The extension of North Bank street has been before the planning board and by that body has been approved. It is recognized that Bank street should have an outlet in order to lessen congestion there. The cost of the improvement would not be large and would consist in great part of the purchase of the Lawrence property. There is a little property intervening between the Lawrence property and North Bank street that must be purchased, but the land is of small dimensions and would not be expensive. There has been speculation as to the widening of Bank street but the change that is suggested would obviate the necessity of that course to relieve traffic. Green street is another highway that must soon be cut through to Bank street, in order that traffic may have a parallel street from State to Bank and from Bank to State.

Members of the city council are puzzling over the laying of a sewer in Norwood avenue and connecting streets, but the project is an expensive one when it is considered how few properties are to be accommodated by the sewer. The members are understood not to be agreed on a course to pursue, but they are agreed that nothing can be done in the matter before next spring. To open the streets now, at a time of freezing weather is not regarded as the thing to do, so the sewer project must wait.

Automobile thieves were busy in New Haven this evening for between 8 and 9 o'clock four valuable cars, two Hudson coaches, one Oldsmobile and a Willys-Knight sedan, were stolen from the streets of that city. The New Haven police requested the New London authorities to maintain a lookout for the stolen machines three of which are 1924 models and the other a 1925 model.

Two sneak thieves have made a number of bold visits to poultry yards here recently.

The name of the ringleader who is still running scott free is Raymond Fox. A charge of cold lead is waiting for him, however. The other thief left some tell tale tracks. The thermometer took another drop Tuesday morning and went down to 10 degrees, but the wind had abated, so that it was not as disagreeable as Monday. The garage men Monday had a busy day, repairing radiators for no end of people got caught without the proper mixture to prevent radiators from freezing.

The Church School of Missions, which is proving very interesting and instructive, is to be continued at the Union Baptist church this (Wednesday) evening at 7 and will be followed by the mid-week prayer meeting.

VITAL FACTS FOR WOMEN

Sooner or later almost every woman is brought face to face with the fact that she is a victim of some weakness or ailment peculiar to her sex. It may be the young woman suffering from pain or irregularities, a mother who has brought on some weakness or displacement from overwork, or the middle aged woman passing through the most critical period of her life. For each of these trying periods Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved the greatest boon ever given to women, and there are women living in every town and city in the country who testify to its value.

Into The Discard Go Wasteful Designs

If you analyzed the public's unbounded enthusiasm for the Chrysler Six you'd find that it included a decided feeling of relief.

They are overjoyed to find that at last brilliant performance—more brilliant than they have ever before experienced—can be had without penalties and annoyances. That's why the Chrysler Six has invaded so many price fields.

It is not a question solely of economy, although the Chrysler Six gets its results with an economy of means that makes one marvel. It is not solely the car's power, speed and agility, although they give even the most experienced a genuine thrill.

It is the idea that here at last are all these things plus riding qualities and ease of handling and parking that make all conventional designs seem absurdly cumbersome, unwieldy and wasteful. Once you experience it, you will be as great a Chrysler enthusiast as anyone.

A large gang of workmen in the employ of the Westerly Gas and Electric Light Co., has been rushing the copletion of the laying of the new 6-inch gas main from Bradford to the gas plant on Canal street in Westerly. An extra endeavor is being made to complete the work before stormy and very cold weather interferes. The entire length of Railroad avenue, from High street to the finishing point on Tuesday night near the entrance to the Westerly railroad station at the east side had been opened and partly filled. The pipes are being laid in the gutter on the north side of Railroad avenue and a pneumatic drill driven by a gasolene engine was used in breaking out the edge of the asphalted street surface. Capt. Charles E. Staplin, 81, one of the two remaining war veterans in the borough, dropped dead at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Staplins, Union street Monday in the latter part of the afternoon, as noted in Tuesday's Bulletin.

He had complained of feeling ill for some days and Sunday Dr. W. I. Veal was called to attend him. He rose late Monday morning and toward noon feeling better went to the cellar to put in a small window. Relatives becoming alarmed at not hearing Mr. Staplin at his work went to investigate and found Mr. Staplin dead at the foot of the cellar stairs. Dr. William H. Gray, medical examiner of the town of Stonington gave the cause of death as pneumonia and heart disease.

Captain Staplin was born in Stonington Jan. 9, 1843, the son of Enoch and Edith Reed Staplin. Early in life he learned the trade of a moulder and worked for the A. B. Mills company and the Atwood Machine Co., at that trade. Mr. Staplin went on several sailing vessels out of Stonington and later was in the coasting trade, sailing in vessels between New York and Connecticut ports.

He enlisted March 17, 1862, for three years' service, being assigned to Co. E. of the First Conn. Artillery. He served until March 17, 1864. The regiment was at that time stationed at Arlington, Va., and on the following day he enlisted for a second term of three years in the same regiment and company. He was given an honorable discharge at the end of the war. He took part in many battles. He was a member of J. Trumbull post, No. 52, G. A. R., Stonington. Returning home he followed his trade and later went into the employ of the Providence and Stonington Steamship Co.; and the New England Navigation Co. Capt. Staplin was highly esteemed.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
by DAVID CORY

The Secret Is Out

"Hello, hello, who's calling me. Do you spell your name with P or B?" shouted dear Uncle Lucky across the telephone as Little Jack Rabbit hopped out of the last story into the end and then, before I've had time to print it with my typewriter, into the sitting room of the nice old gentleman rabbit's little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street, Rabbitville, on the other side of the Bubbling Brook.

"Dearest me!" suddenly exclaimed the dear old rabbit Uncle. "Maybe

Contrary now I'm going to succeed.

I'm growing deaf or hard of hearing. Spell your name, Sir. If you please. Goodness, now, I'm going to sneeze," and dropping the receiver, poor Uncle Lucky rumbled for his blue silk polka-dot handkerchief.

"Here it is," cried Little Miss Mousie, his dutiful little housekeeper. "You left it on the table after wiping your spectacles."

"So I did, so I did," mumbled dear Uncle Lucky, "thank you. Dearest me, I'm getting full of forgetfulness and rheumatism," and again he picked up the receiver.

"Oh, now I see you, he exclaimed the next minute "Big Brown Bear. I thought you said 'Pig Brown Pear.' Queer of me, wasn't it? Still, if you had mentioned lollypops, I would have placed you at once. Yes, indeed. Nopens but you has a lollypop tree." Then, banging up the receiver, he turned and said: "The lollypops will be over today,—a barrel of them."

"Hurrah!" shouted the little rabbit, when for the first time the dear old gentleman rabbit noticed that his small nephew was in the room.

"When did you come?" asked Uncle Lucky, smiling all over at the sight of his small bunny relation. "How did you come in so quietly? On your tipperty, tipperty tip, tipity toes?"

"Yes, Oh so quietly!" answered the kind little rabbit. You were having a dreadful time spelling out,—the Big Brown Bear's name, I mean."

"Well, it's a long time since I've been to school," replied the old gentleman rabbit, sitting down in his easy chair while Little Miss Mousie tucked in a cushion behind his back. "A long time. Guess I've forgotten more than I ever learned," and he winked his left eye behind his spectacles and crossed his leg.

"Goodness gracious meebus!" he suddenly exclaimed, glancing sideions at Little Miss Mousie, "Half the secret is out."

"Ha, ha," laughed the little bunny boy. "I know you're going to give a Lollypop Party."

"Who told you?" asked Uncle Lucky, sitting up straight quick as a wink, just like that.

"Oh, I can't tell you. I promised not to," answered the little rabbit.

"Well, no harm'd done," sighed the dear old bunny gentleman and in the next story I'll tell you what happened after. Ha, ha, ha.

CUTTING DOWN RAVAGES OF THE WHITE PLAGUE

"If the present organization, local, state and national, now maintained against tuberculosis, can be continued a dozen years longer, there is every reason that the death and devastation caused by the disease will be cut down until it ceased to lead all others," said Doctor Stephen J. Maher, chairman of the State Tuberculosis Commission, in a statement made Monday.

His prediction of certain conquest of disease which has always led all others in Connecticut was made in announcing plans for the 17th Christmas Seal Sale, which will be conducted by the commission from November 25, to December 25.

In the opinion of the members of the commission, who include Wallace S. Allis, of Norwich, and Arthur Reed Kimball, of Waterbury and Doctor Maher of New Haven, the work which the Christmas seals are doing is not all accomplished. There is about half as much tuberculosis in Connecticut as when the commission was appointed in 1908, says a board, and the good accomplished by the Christmas seal fund is felt to be an indispensable part of the annual campaign and the work of the commission.

Last year nearly $96,000 was raised and it made possible tuberculosis nursing in 65 towns of the state, it partly financed several open air schools and camps, it provided nutritional care for under-nourished children in nearly 50 towns and it gave, when needed, timely relief for sufferers of the disease.

In 95 cities and towns of the state, tuberculosis clinics were maintained by the commission, active and suspected cases were diagnized and nurses carried an educational and preventive work among contact cases. This linking of medical treatment, nursing and preventive measures is responsible for the success of the state in reaching cases of disease in curing them and in preventing them from spreading.

Police were investigating an attempt to wreck the home of General Victor A. S. Williams, commissioner of the Ontario provincial police in Toronto with a bomb.

HENS DO WELL IN SECOND WEEK OF RACE

In the second week of the Storrs laying contest the egg production jumped 1,142 eggs over the yield for the previous week. In other words the increase from the first week to the second week amounted to more than fifty per cent. Hilltop Farm's pen of Leghorns led the list of 140 pens with a score of fifty-seven eggs. Another pen of the same breed owned by Hansons Leghorn Farm at Corvallis, Ore., was second best for the week with a total of fifty-three eggs. Two pens of Leghorns owned by Ruehle's Sunnyside Farm of Pleasant Valley, N. Y. and Meadowedge Farm at Sterling Junction, Mass. tied with a pen of White Wyandottes owned by William A. Ellis from Warwick, R. I. These three pens laid fifty-one eggs each. Thomas H. Matteson's pen of White Wyandottes from Davisville, R. I. and two pens of Leghorns owned by S. G. McLean of So. Glastonbury, Conn., and Mount Hope farm at Williamstown, Mass., all tied for fourth place with fifty eggs. The total production for the entire fourteen hundred pullets amounted to 3,219 eggs or nearly 23 per cent.

Poultry breeders who have egg laying contests are gaining commanding regional recognition for the managements of poultry exhibitions. More than sixty years ago from the time of the first egg show in Boston in 1849 until 1870 when the first laying trials in America were started. It is not therefore surprising that a dozen years ago there seemed to be little or nothing in common between the poultry show and the laying contest. But, times have changed. Meanwhile there is an ever increasing public demand for hens that both look well and lay well. The Baltimore Poultry show which opens on December 2nd affords an excellent example of this changing attitude towards poultrymen who are breeding hens for egg production. In addition to the regular show room awards, special cash prizes are being offered by Professor Roy H. Waite of the Maryland Agricultural college. All hens entered in this special class must have an official contest record of 175 eggs or better in order to qualify.

Patrons of the Storrs contest can obtain additional details by writing the secretary of the show, Howard F. Thompson, 33 Franklin Building, Baltimore, Maryland.

CONNECTICUT'S POTATO CROP BELOW LAST YEAR

The average potato yield in Connecticut for 1924 is estimated at 127 bushels an acre compared with an average yield last year of 150 bushels according to statistics of the New England crop reporting bureau issued Tuesday.

The production for the state, however, is 3,562,000, but a slight decrease from last year, when 3,565,000 bushels were harvested. Compared with the potato crop in other New England states Connecticut leads only New Hampshire with 2,405,000 and Rhode Island with but 330,000 bushels. Maine, with a spud production this year of 38,480,000, is far ahead of the remaining New England states.

Connecticut's yield and production figures for 1924, however, are far above the average for ten and five year periods. The average yield for ten years is 106 bushels per acre, while the average production for five years is 2,771,000 bushels.

With the average yield of 246 bushels per acre, New England has 53,172,000 bushels of potatoes. This compares with 47,162,000 in 1922 and the five-year average of 40,431,000. Quality is generally high. Maine has an average yield per acre of 296 bushels has 38,480,000 bushels, or 72 per cent. of the New England total, and its famous Aroostook county has at least 33,000,000 bushels or about 85 per cent. of the Maine total.

In New Hampshire and Connecticut the crop is about the same size as last year, while in Vermont, Massachusetts and Rhode Island it is considerably less. Vermont has had considerable rot in several counties.

Unusually favorable and dry weather in October has allowed the country's potato crop to increase rapidly and the estimate now is 545,199,000 bushels. This slightly exceeds the two recent big crops of 1917 and 1922. The crop in some regions escaped frost and grew far into October, and dry weather prevented or checked most of the rot which last month was threatening heavy loss in places.

PROPOSE TO BUILD MORE "FEEDER" ROADS

The establishment of a definite secondary system of state aid roads in Connecticut, supplementing the existing trunk line system, will be recommended to the incoming session of the general assembly by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald it was announced Tuesday at the capitol. Such an arrangement contemplates the allotment and mapping out of those town-to-town roads which are known as "Feeders" to trunk lines, on a proportionate mileage basis for each town. In this manner, the state would be equipped with its trunk line system, as at present, and in addition, would have a state aid road system, whereas at present the state aid system is indefinite and is not built systematically, the department points out.

Commissioner MacDonald's proposal will take the form of a request to the legislature that it authorize the state highway department to survey the situation and prepare a report for the succeeding general assembly.

Under the present arrangements, state aid roads which are built by the state and towns in co-operation are decided upon by the highway commissioner and town selectmen in conference. The department's recommendation will be that in the future, towns be required to concentrate their state aid expenditures on one road until it is completed rather than allotting the money piecemeal to a group of roads. This it is believed, would result in a greater efficiency.

The plan contemplates the laying out of a ten year state aid programme. This would be determined by conferences with town selectmen, when the percentage of roads within the towns that could be included in such a period could be decided upon. The roads would then be definitely assigned to the state aid system and the money would be expended upon them until completed.

Under the statutes, towns, whose grand list is less than $1,250,000 pay one-eighth the cost of constructing state aid roads, while towns above that amount pay one-quarter the cost.

Approximately seven per cent. of the highways in Connecticut have been declared in the federal aid system, under which arrangement they benefit by allotments of federal money for road work. Likewise, the trunk line system in this state is definitely mapped out for a number of years in advance and the protocol is to have the state aid roads classified in the same manner. With the addition to the state town roads, the state would possess four separate road systems, namely: federal aid, trunk lines, state aid and town roads, which if it is expected, could be operated for maximum efficiency.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

STOCK PRICES ADVANCED

New York, Nov. 18.—Stock prices advanced in spectacular fashion today with total sales crossing the two million share mark for the sixth time since the day after election. Both the rail and industrial averages were at new highs, with more than ninety issues breaking through their maximum prices for the year.

Road shares again came into the fore, contributing at least two dozen of the new highs established during the session. Buying orders were fairly well divided between the high grade dividend paying issues and the low-priced carriers, the demand being stimulated by the prompt oversubscription of three railroad stock offerings today.

Frisco common, which is expected to be placed on a dividend basis next month, was the outstanding feature in that group, scoring over six points to a new peak price at 56 on total transactions of approximately 70,000 shares. Other rails to establish new peak prices were Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Missouri Pacific common and preferred, New York Central, Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville and Nashville, Baltimore and Ohio, Rock Island, and the Wabash issues. "Katy" issues were heavy in reflection of speculative disappointment over the failure of the directors to inaugurate dividends on the preferred at the full $7 rate.

Strength of United States Steel, which moved up more than two points to 116 3-4, the highest price in five years, gave impetus to the advance in other stocks.

Public utilities gave an excellent exhibition of group strength under the leadership of Radio Corporation common, which soared 8 points to 48 1-4. Consolidated Gas touched 76 3-4, a new top, and then dropped a point from its high. Laclede Gas, Peoples Gas and Columbia Gas also sold at the year's best levels.

Merchandising issues also displayed marked bouyancy, Sears Roebuck standing out with a gain of more than nine points at 142. Other issues in that group to move to new high ground were H. R. Mallinson, Associated Dry Goods, May Department Stores, Montgomery Ward and Brown Shoe.

Other outstanding individual strong spots included the Maxwell Motor issues, United States Cast Iron Pipe, American Ice, Commercial Solvents and United States Distributing preferred, the net gains in which ranged from 4 to 6 1-2 points.

Call money renewed at two per cent. but advanced to 2 1-2 in the afternoon when local banks called about $20,000,000 in loans to replenish their reserves at the Federal Reserve bank. Time money rates were unchanged. Commercial paper was slightly firmer with 3 1-2 per cent. the ruling rate for prime materials.

Foreign exchange rates displayed a firm tone. Demand sterling rallied more than a cent to around $4.63 1-2 and nominal gains were registered by most of the other European currencies.

BOND MARKET

New York, Nov. 18.—Profit-taking imparted considerable irregularity to today's bond market, which was featured by further declines in U. S. government obligations and buying of selected railroad issues.

Speculative interest in rail securities appeared to have found a more satisfactory outlook in the stock market and high yielding bonds of these companies, with a few exceptions, showed narrow price changes. New high records were established by some of the Denver & Rio Grande and the New Haven issues, and fractional gains were scored by Seaboard 4's and 5's, Reading General 4's, Erie General 4's, Baltimore & Ohio 4's and Norfolk and Western convertible 6's.

A reaction of more than a point in "Katy" adjustment 5's was in line with a drop in the road's shares, reflecting speculative disappointment over the announcement that declaration of the full seven per cent. dividend on the preferred stock would be deferred for another year.

Individual strong spots included Federal Light and Traction 7's which jumped almost 5 points to a new 1924 high at 119 and Maxwell Motor 7's, which extended their recent gain by two points and reached a new top at 107 3-8. American Water Works 6's and several other public utility liens responded to a revival of interest in these issues.

Liberty bonds continued to work lower despite earlier time money rates but strengthened slightly towards the close of the market.

CURB MARKET

New York, Nov. 18.—Radio shares led an upward movement in stock prices in curb market trading today with several issues reaching new high ground for the year on an expanded volume of business.

Heavy buying of Radio Corporation common, in line with a sharp advance in the shares of the New York stock exchange carried that issue up 1 3-8 to a new top price at 9 3-8. Dubilier jumped 2 3-4 and Hazeltine 2 5-8.

Solar Refining responded to the declaration of a $5 extra dividend by a 7 point spurt to 205 with Vacuum Oil and Standard Oil of Indiana joining in the upward movement. Both scored gains of more than a point on heavy turnovers, fractional losses in other oil shares partially offset these gains.

Individual strong spots included Cleveland Motors, which advanced 2 1-4 points and American Gas and Electric up 1 1-8. Continued nervousness over merger developments in the baking field was reflected in another slump in Winter Bakeries which fell back 3 1-2 points to 147 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicag, Nov. 18.—Corn went soaring today, and reached new peak prices for the season, May delivery touching $1.22 1-2 and July $1.23 1-4 a bushel. Freezing temperatures and increased feeding demand together with scantiness of country offerings led to active general buying of corn, and the market closed buoyant, 1 3-4 to 3 1-4 cents net higher. May 1.22 1-8 to 1.22 3-8. Wheat finished unsettled, at 1-2c net lower to 1-4c advance. December 1.53 1-8 to 1.53 1-4 and May 1.60 5-8 to 1.60 3-4, with oats 1-2c up, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to 37 cents gain.

Corn quickly shook itself loose from the effect of weakness in the wheat values. At first, corn prices had sagged a little owing to sympathy with the bread grain, but the fact soon became evident that sellers of corn were relatively scarce. Downturns in price were then more than wiped out, and throughout the remainder of the day the course of the corn market was an irregular ascent that toward the last grew decidedly rapid.

Brisk demand for corn available to be delivered at once was much in evidence, with reports current that husking returns from surplus producing states were a series of disappointments. Receivers were quoted as saying that they looked for little movement of corn until the end of November, and that arrivals in the west were much smaller than a year ago.

Wheat and oats proved responsive to the corn bulge but were inclined to sag during the earlier trade, wheat especially so. Lower quotations on wheat at Liverpool and Buenos Aires were the chief depressing influence. Besides the foreign wheat crop summary was favorable, and export dealings limited.

Provisions advanced readily on commission house buying that was associated with the upward swing of the corn market.

N. Y. COMMISSION APPROVES GIBBONS-NORFOLK BOUT

New York, Nov. 18.—The state athletic commission today placed its official stamp of approval on the Tom Gibbons-Kid Norfolk 15 round match at Madison Square Garden Tuesday, Dec. 9, after a hectic session in which every available heavyweight outside of Jack Dempsey was considered as an opponent for Gibbons. This match is the headliner of the Christmas fund show, the net proceeds of which will be distributed among the poor of New York.

Harry Wills, Bartley Madden and Jack Renault were called in at the meeting and each asked if he would agree to fight Gibbons. Wills and Renault were forced to decline, due to injured thumbs, but Madden agreed to accept the assignment. When it came to a vote, however, Wills was picked.

The board of deputies reported on the weights and condition of the six contenders in the featherweight elimination tournament. It developed that Kaplan, Paluso and Garvin weighed 127 pounds, one pound over the recognized featherweight limit of 126 pounds, but the boxers in each instance convinced the deputies that they could get down to 126 pounds before 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, the time set for the official weighing in. Billy Defoe of St. Paul and Babe Herman of New York, alternates in the tournament, will be substituted in the order named in the event any boxer is unable to make the stipulated 126 pounds.

The commission also ruled that in Friday's matches, the first round of the tournament, draws would be determined by the principals continuing on for two more rounds as in amateur competition. If the ballots of the judges and referee determine that the fight has been even for the ten scheduled rounds, the fighters will continue on, as soon as possible, for two more rounds, after which a new ballot will be taken up.

The second round of the tournament, scheduled for three weeks later, brings together two of the three winners at this week's matches in a 12 round encounter. The commission decided that if this semi-final match was declared a draw at the termination of the 12th round, the boxers would continue until they have fought 15 rounds.

MURRAY HULBERT ELECTED HEAD OF AMATEUR UNION

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 18 (By the A. P.).—The 36th annual convention of the Amateur Athletic union, national governing body in a dozen different branches of sports activity, brought its two-day sessions to a close today by electing Murray Hulbert of New York president to succeed William C. Prout of Boston and selecting Pittsburgh as the 1925 convention city.

Acceptance of two new spring record performances, one by Louis Clarke and the other by Charley Paddock, in spite of disapproval of them by the record committee, and promise of action to prevent instances of such athletes as Willie Ritola, Finnish-American running star, from competing for their native lands in the Olympics after receiving the benefit of American training, also were prominent in the convention's closing developments.

Other features marking the two-day gathering included provision for extensive expansion of A. A. U. activity and governing power, award of 1925 championships and approval of a recommendation by the retiring president for direct selection and financing by the A. A. U. of future Olympic teams in the branches of athletics over which it has control.

Spirited controversy developed today over the Clarke and Paddock records. The formers mark of 9 4-5 seconds for 100 yards indoors, made at Baltimore last February, and the California star's record equaling performance of 9 3-5 seconds for 100 yards outdoors, made at the national championships in September, were accepted by convention vote after the record committee reported adversely on them.

It was claimed that incompetent timing existed in Clark's performance and that Paddock was aided by a slight wind, but testimony of officials who watched both performances that they were legitimate swayed the convention's favorable action.

Paddock also was credited with equaling his own 220 yard record of 20 4-5 seconds, also made in the national title competition. The record committee's supplementary report resulted in approval of the following additional records: 220 yards breast stroke swimming, 2.56 2-5, Robert Skelton, Illinois A. C., at Indianapolis, June 7; women's 70 yard low hurdles, 10 1-5 seconds, by Nellie Todd, at Chicago, Oct. 11; women's 100 yard dash, 11 3-5 seconds, by Norma Zilk, Chicago, Oct. 11.

Other developments of the closing session included approval to the holding of all-southern track and field competitions in 1925, as proposed by L. Dibenedetto of New Orleans; passage of resolutions in memory of Harry S. Burdick of Spokane, A. A. U. official who was killed in an accident recently; resolutions praising the three year leadership of President Prout, and the transfer of two Florida counties from the jurisdiction of the new Florida association to the Southeastern association.

SIGNAL DRILL AND SHORT SCRIMMAGE FOR YALE

New Haven, Nov. 18.—While the Yale varsity football team was put through a stiff signal drill today, the coaches ordered a short scrimmage for the second team against the scrubs. The scrimmage lasted for 20 minutes during which the second varsity scored one touchdown, McGunigle taking the ball over on a short line plunge. The playing was entirely in the scrubs territory, the second varsity taking the ball in midfield and proceeding straight to the scrubs' line.

All of the men of the Yale squad were in uniform today. Stanley Gill, who played left end throughout the Princeton game and who has been in the infirmary ever since, was in his football togs. An x-ray examination of his hand, injured in the game, show that no bones were broken, and his muscle bruises are disappearing. Larry Noble, who was hurt in the Maryland game, also was at the field.

The varsity will have a long practice tomorrow, consisting principally of signals, with a shorter one in the gowl on Thursday. The practice season will close on Friday with a light signal drill.

WILLS CLAIMED BAD THUMB SAVED FIRPO FROM KNOCKOUT

New York, Nov. 18.—(By the A. P.)—A sprained thumb, suffered in the first round of his match with Luis Angel Firpo at Boyle's thirty acres in Jersey City September 11, was the only thing which prevented Harry Wills from knocking out the Argentine, Wills himself said today.

Exhibiting a badly swollen thumb joint on on his left hand, Wills today appeared before the State Athletic Commission in answer to a summons requesting his presence to confer on a possible match with Tommy Gibbons, the St. Paul phantom.

Wills declined the match because of his bad thumb and for the first time gave a reason why, "he allowed Firpo to go 12 rounds."

He said in the first round he jabbed with his left hand and in so doing sprained the member and rendering it unfit for use during the remainder of the match. This, he explained, was why he fought the battle with his right hand.

WASHINGTON FANS REGRET JOHNSON'S LEAVING CLUB

Washington, Nov. 18.—(By The A. P.)—The deposit at Oakland, Calif., by Walter Johnson of his first payment for the Oakland club of the Pacific coast baseball league is accepted by Washington fandom as definitely meaning the loss of the star pitcher to Washington, although his formal release from the local club has not as yet been granted.

In passing from the major league baseball, Johnson has brought to pass something that has seldom happened in competitive sports—the retirement of an athlete at the top of his form and at the point of his greatest glory.

Down through the line of Athletic endeavor from pugilism to the tossing of horse shoes, the successful ones who have willingly foresworn the plaudits of the crowd and all that goes with the name of a winner can be counted on the fingers of one hand.

His departure means the passing of an institution and a tradition. Just as the White House or the Washington Monument are first thought of in the mention of the capital city, so Johnson has been linked up with the baseball fortunes of the town. Nobody thinks of the Washington club without thinking of Johnson, and for years a great deal of its patronage has been due to a desire of persons to see him.

Some of the most rabid fans who frequent the Georgia avenue park of Clark Griffith were babies in arms when Johnson pitched first here and to these Johnson has become a matter of fact, guaranteed to win twenty or more games, regardless of the strength of the club behind him. They are now looking vainly for some one to take his job.

JOHNSON MAKES FIRST DEPOSIT FOR OAKLAND CLUB

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 18.—Walter Johnson, Pitching ace of the Washington club, and George Weiss, owner of the New Haven club in the eastern league, today deposited a check for $10,000 with J. Cal Ewing, owner of the Oakland club of the Pacific coast baseball league as first payment on the Oakland club, it was announced by Ewing.

Johnson and Weiss guaranteed to put up an additional $25,000 by Saturday, when the final papers will be signed. Ewing said according to the retiring owner, the total price is $350,000. A price of $385,000 was first agreed upon, he said, but later negotiations were re-opened and the reduction was made.

The new owners will have until January 2, 1925 to make up the balance, Ewing said.

The final details of the sale were completed today at a conference of all interested parties. It had been expected that the transfer papers would be signed today but the developments in regard to the payments made a postponement necessary until Saturday.

Hockey Players Leave West

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 18.—Lloyd Cook, captain and star defense player of the Vancouver Maroons last season, will leave tomorrow night for Boston where he will join Art Ross, aggregation in the National Hockey League.

The departure of Cook ends the exodus of former Pacific coast Hockey association players to the other side of the International line.

UNABLE TO FIX IDENTITY OF STRATFORD BANDIT

Stratford, Nov. 18.—With Patrolman Edward Manchester, wounded Stratford policeman, "holding his own" at Bridgeport hospital, his fellow officers today continued their difficult task of trying to establish the identity of the bandit who shot Manchester Saturday night shortly after a holdup at the Dewey Brothers grocery store on Barnum avenue.

In seeking to definitely fix the identity of the Post road bandit, Chief William Nichols took witnesses to Bridgeport, New Haven, Cheshire, and other points where police have on file collections of Bertillon photographs of criminals who have at one time or another been in custody.

Although hundreds of photographs were view by Nicholas Powers, of 427 Sheldon street, Bridgeport, manager of the grocery store which was robbed, and 14 years old Charles Walker, his delivery boy, both of whom were trussed up Saturday night by the bandit, neither Powers, Walker nor other witnesses were able to pick from the photographs the likeness of the fugitive holdup man.

Patrolman Manchester's condition, which improved somewhat last night, remained about the same today. While he failed to show further improvement he did not get worse, and under the circumstances, the attending physicians and nurses considered this a hopeful sign. The policeman's condition is not yet such as to permit of an operation for the removal of the bullet fragments from his head.

P. E. BOARD OR FOREIGN MISSIONS IN DEBT $2,500,000

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 18.—A committee of seventeen headed by Bishop L. Waldorf, of Kansas City, Mo., was appointed today at the annual meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal church to make a study of the board's financial problems and to recommend a plan for funding a debt of approximately $2,000,000 incurred during the last year.

NORWICH TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tague have returned to their home on McClellan avenue, after passing a few days in Boston and Roxbury, Mass. While in Boston they attended the meeting and banquet of the Worsted and Woolen Overseers' association, of which Mr. Tague is a member. This annual affair, which brings together overseers from all over the United States, was held at the American House. Wives of members are privileged to attend the banquets. At a special outing held last May at Rocky Point, the plan was suggested that a ladies' auxiliary to the association be formed. This was carried out at the Boston meeting, and after the auxiliary organized, plans were formulated for the coming year. Mrs. Tague was made a member of the auxiliary. During their stay Mr. and Mrs. Tague were guests of Mrs. M. Mullaney, of Roxbury.

Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters, is to hold a meeting this (Wednesday) evening at the home of the leader, Mrs. Jennie L. Congdon, of Mediterranean lane.

Rev. Oscar J. Aldrich, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Taunton, Mass., was the guest over Friday night at the home of his parents, Rev. and Mrs. James B. Aldrich, of West Town street.

The Home Missionary society of the First Congregational church, is to meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin, of Town street, to pack a Christmas box containing useful articles and gifts. This is to be sent to Miss Ruth Beebe of Athens, Alabama, to be distributed by her among her pupils at Trinity school, where Miss Beebe is a member of the faculty. There also will be personal gifts for Miss Beebe.

Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey were in Westminster to attend the last in a series of fellowship meetings for 1924. Rev. Mr. Bailey had the address of the morning, his theme being The Christian Citizen.

At the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, Rev. Mr. Bailey preached from Matthew 11-6. And Blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in Me.

Members from this parish were in the large audiences Sunday afternoon and evening in two of the Norwich churches, when Miss Margaret Slattery of Boston was the special speaker. Because of this, the Young People's Christian Endeavor service was omitted that evening. The mid-week prayer service of the First Congregational church, Thursday evening will have for its theme Successful Living.

It is expected that the service next Sunday morning will be held in the church. For the past four weeks services have been held in the chapel, owing to work that was in progress in the church. A new furnace has been installed during this time on the east side, one having been installed on the west side of the church last year.

The interior of the church has been renovated, also re-decorated. The walls have been painted a light buff and the woodwork done in ivory while the mahogany pews remain unchanged.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning, Rev. James B. Aldrich preached from Matthew 20-26-27, 28. But it shall not be so among you; but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister. And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant. Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.

This church also had a good delegation present, including the pastor and his family; at the address by Miss Slattery, Sunday afternoon at the United Congregational church.

At the Methodist Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening, Miss Gladys Cruthers was the leader. The topic assigned to this meeting was, Our Money for Christ. This is the second in a series of meetings on Stewardship.

Following the C. E. service, Rev. Mr. Aldrich gave a talk from Luke 24-46-47, 48. And said unto them. Thus it is written, and thus it behooved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day. And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. And ye are witnesses of these things.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Geer attended the conference in Westchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Gallup of Moosup were callers at George Tanner's home Sunday. They also called on Mr. and Mrs. George Frink in Jewett City.

Luther Tanner has gone to Malden Mass., to spend the winter with his brother, William and the latter's family.

A. W. Neone of Petersboro, N. H. spent several days recently at the Gallup homestead which he now has closed up for the winter. He has taken his radio to George Gallup's for their use through the winter.

Miss Lillian Laramie has returned to her home on North B street after a short stay in Attawaugan with relatives.

In an effort to make the entire annual roll call canvass of the Taftville chapter, American Red Cross, in one week, workers began their work shortly after noon on Tuesday and brought it to a close in the late evening, reporting to headquarters which had been established in Poneman hall. Many of the local societies, clubs and other organizations aided in the work, and the Boy Scouts rendered valuable service in the house to house canvass.

The Aowakiya Camp Fire Girls held a dress rehearsal in Poneman hall Monday evening for the play that they are to give.

COMFORT WAS DENNED ANNULMENT OF MARRIAGE

New York, Nov. 18.—Lieut. Commander Rowland M. Comfort, U. S. N., who was naval aide on the staff of President Wilson, failed to gain an annulment of his marriage to Helen Watson McFadden Comfort in the supreme court, Brooklyn, today.

Justice Hagarty dismissed the complaint of the naval officer on motion of Mrs. Comfort's attorney, William C. Butler, who later said she soon would file an action in separation and seek a court order granting her the custody of her four years old child.

Comfort asked the annulment on the allegations that his wife had concealed from him that she was subject to epileptic attacks and that she had been disloyal to the United States during the war. As evidence of her disloyalty he testified she had torn an American flag given her by Orville Wright. Mrs. Comfort produced the flag, untorn, in court.

Under cross examination yesterday the naval officer admitted he had expressed in letters the desire to "bump off" former Secretary of the Navy Daniels because he had issued orders which sent him to foreign ports and caused him to be separated from his wife. The Comforts were married in 1919.

EASTERN CONNECTICUT POWER CO.

OFFERS TO PAY AS MUCH CASH AS ANY

In a supplemental communication to Mayor Milo R. Waters concerning negotiations for the sale of the city's gas and electric department, The Eastern Connecticut Power Co. offers to pay as much cash for the city's plant as any other accredited bidder would pay.

The following letter to Mayor Waters contains the power company's offer:

Norwich, Conn., Nov. 15, 1924.

To the Honorable Milo R. Waters,
Mayor of the City of Norwich,
Norwich, Connecticut.

Dear Sir: In reply to your favor of the 8th, I beg to say:

We believe that the offer which we have already made for the gas and electric property is more to the advantage of taxpayer and consumer than any restricted offer at a higher price.

This offer was made at the book value as given by the gas and electrical department, and sets up what we believe to be definite and real advantages to the city and citizens. If however, it is your judgment that a higher price is of more benefit than the stipulations and restrictions contained in our offer, we can meet that condition as well as any one else.

We are, therefore, prepared, if and when the city decides and is authorized to sell its gas and electric property, to enter into an agreement to purchase for cash at a price as high as any other accredited bidder would bind himself to pay.

Yours very truly,
H. D. LARRABEE,
General Manager.

Mayor Waters has acknowledged receipt of the communication, stating that it will be duly considered by the special committee of the common council.

Meanwhile the committee is awaiting further word from Mr. Brodel of Providence, who has made an offer for the gas and electric plant on behalf of a purchaser whose identity has not yet been made public. At a recent meeting when Mr. Brodel and his attorney, Arthur M. Brown, appeared before the common council committee, the two men representing the unnamed bidder were requested to prepare a statement that would clarify and make more definite certain points in the offer that had been made. The common council committee is awaiting this statement.

These two offers that are now before the council committee will not be the only ones that are received for the gas and electric plant, according to Mayor Waters. He stated Tuesday afternoon that he had good reason to believe that offers from others who would like to buy the gas and electric plant would undoubtedly be received.

PARK CHURCH MEN HELD ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Men's club of Park Congregational church was held Monday evening, nearly one hundred members and guests being present. At 6.30 o'clock an appetizing supper was served in the dining room of the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial parish house being arranged for by Samuel E. Smiley. Frank W. Clapp and Richard Lewis and served by an active corps of Boy Scouts under direction of Mrs. Robert A. Smith and Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley.

James M. Morton, president of the club during the past year, who is in great part responsible for the year being the most successful one in the history of the club, kept things moving rapidly and his witty remarks were a treat. After the reading of the minutes by Secretary Frank W. Clapp and the annual report by Treasurer Samuel E. Smiley, the old board of directors were unanimously re-elected, comprising James M. Morton, president; George L. Ingalls, vice president; Frank W. Clapp, secretary; Samuel E. Smiley treasurer.

Interesting remarks were made by Henry A. Piersh, Frank S. Bunnell, Rev. Dr. George C. Pollock and Rev. Robert B. Day of Yantic, after which President Morton introduced as the principal speaker of the evening, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London, who gave one of his characteristic and entertaining addresses. Dr. Danforth spoke particularly of the opportunity now open in which a renewal of the era of good feeling, such as prevailed throughout the country after the Civil war, might again sweep the country. This is possible, he said, through friendly, personal contact of man to man. Following his splendid address Dr. Danforth was given a rising vote of thanks as a token of appreciation of his message.

For the general committee,
Very truly yours,

Refreshments were served in the dining room which was attractively decorated with Thanksgiving novelties.

When a man finds a button in the salad he should bear in mind that it is only a part of the dressing.

GRAVE OF COLCHESTER HERO IS NEGLECTED

That Colchester possesses a spot of historical interest was brought out by Olive C. Gardner of Yantic, who tells of the location and present condition of the cemetery wherein is the grave of Col. Elias Worthington, a Revolutionary hero. The grave is marked by a weatherbeaten, time-worn slab and upon it is carved in hardly discernible characters the ancient inscription. The neglected grave lies in a barnyard formerly owned by J. E. Day and now used by lumbermen as a driveway over which to haul loads of wood and other commodities. The stone is in the midst of a heterogeneous collection of rubbish, fragments of other gravestones, sand and fallen trees. At one time a stone wall surrounded the plot but indifferent owners and the ravages of time have both contributed to the deterioration. Many of the ancient slabs have been shattered by the heavy wagon wheels that frequently pass over the place.

This cemetery should be of interest to some historical society whose members seek to place every link in the chain of historic places and events.

Across the street from the home of G. S. Morgan of Salem is another cemetery overgrown by trees and briars, making it invisible from the highway. In this burying ground lie the bones of the Holmes, Rathbone, Comstock and Armstrong heroes of 1776. Below this cemetery, on the old Witter or Lathrop placer, at the four corners, is the Lathrop cemetery, which has also suffered from neglect.

Morgan Gardner, a former resident of Colchester, has set a good example for the younger generation in the incorporation of the Gardner-Bulkley Cemetery association at Gardnertown, Gardner Lake. Morgan Gardner bought one of the old homesteads from Stephen Gardner, a Rhode Island settler, who purchased the original tract in 1743.

MAY MOVE RAILWAY SHOP TO BRATTLEBORO

A Brattleboro dispatch to the Springfield Republican says

Rumors became current in railroad circles here that the Central Vremont Railway company plans to bring part of its machine shop to Brattleboro from New London, Ct., but E. J. Guthrie, superintendent there, would neither deny nor confirm the report. A railroad machine shop formerly was located here, but was moved to New London 20 years ago. The company is providing greater yardage facilities here and already has laid several hundred feet of additional track.

It is expected that within the next month work will be completed on a new automatic coal and sand chute which is being built. The cement foundation for a new ash pit has been put in.

TANNEY'S SANTA CLAUS HOME IS COMMENDED

The unique Christmas plan of the Tanney corporation last year is given very complimentary mention in a trade paper which has world-wide circulation. A picture of the Tanney "Home of Santa Claus" at the Thayer building is shown with Officer Barney Keenan standing on the main entrance of the store above which is the "Home of Santa Claus."

The Tanney arrangement of a special feature for the holiday season is especially commended because it does not interfere with the regular window display or the approach to the store.

Painting of John H. Ayling.

An attractive painting of John H. Ayling, son of Judge Nelson J. Ayling, painted by Cooley, is on exhibition in one of the display windows of Butts Art & Gift Shop. It is a fine likeness of the boy, who if he had lived, would have been 13 years of age and many favorable comments upon the picture have been made by those who knew and loved the boy.

JUDGE BOOTH GIVES DECISIONS ON QUESTIONS

Questions on which a court interpretation was asked in the suit of William Z. White, receiver of the Mystic Manufacturing company of Stonington, against the Winthrop Trust company of New London, are answered by Judge John R. Booth of the superior court in a decision filed with Judge George E. Parsons, clerk of the superior court.

The following were the questions:

1. Did said, The Winthrop Trust company, have a right to charge or set off against said deposit of $11,924.44, the note of $3,000, with interest and revenue stamps thereon amounting to $3,025.60, as mentioned above?

2. Did said, The Winthrop Trust company have a right to charge or set off against said deposit of $7,093.33, the balance of $6,792.78, due on said note and to charge and set off against said deposit said item of $330.55?

3. Are the respective rights of the parties hereto to the said sum of $5,574.72 being held by said S. Stein & Co. as mentioned above?

Judge Booth's decision follows:

Three questions were originally presented by the agreed statement of facts, but upon argument, the first one was abandoned, the receiver conceding that the trust company had the legal right to charge off the $3,000 note against the general account of the company. Therefore, the questions pursued are the remaining two, numbered respectively 2 and 3.

The first of these, No. 2, relates to the right of the trust company to charge or set off against the deposit of the company, designated as "The Mystic Manufacturing Company, Special," the notes of the Mystic company. Whatever may be the rule preventing a bank from appropriating trust funds to the individual indebtedness of the depositor, the weight of the words "Special Account" to the deposit without anything further does not charge the bank with any knowledge of such trusteeship.

Furthermore, this amount so held on deposit cannot be said to be money belonging to the Chautauqua Worsted Mills, such as trust funds. It was money given to the Mystic company for a specific purpose, namely, to pay the worsted mills' bills as they came due. There was nothing due at the time the deposit was made, and it does not appear how much of it would ever be needed for that purpose. The trust company, therefore, has a right to charge against it the individual indebtedness of the Mystic company.

The remaining question relates to the ownership of the sum of $5,574.72 owing by S. Stein & Co., at the time of the receivership.

The note to secure which the assignment of the Stein accounts were made to the trust company refers to this security as "assignment of accounts of S. Stein & Co., dated Jan. 23, 1923." The assignment itself transfer "all and whatsoever sum and sums of money now due and becoming due to Mystic Manufacturing Co. from S. Stein & Co."

In addition to this, the Mystic company mailed to the trust company, certain statements of accounts of merchandise sold and delivered to Stein & Co., aggregating $23,887.34. Whether these accounts were then due or "becoming due" does not appear, but presumably the latter.

Judge Booth further says:

Taking them into consideration the form of expression used and the fact of the assignment of these specific accounts, I shall construe the assignment as not including the account of $5,574.72 created in February, 1924. Stein & Co. have paid this sum into court in pursuance of the stipulation of the parties, and the clerk is therefore directed to pay the same to receiver.

A judgment file may be prepared in accordance with the above findings.

This is a cold, cold world—and the coal man is glad of it.

RAILROADS ASK ECONOMIC TREATMENT, NOT POLITICAL

Executives Contend Their is No Condition Existing Today Calling For Any Urgent Legislative Action by Congress, Either as to Rates, Labor Relationship or Valuation—Assert That They Are Determined to Keep Transportation Facilities Abreast of National Growth.

New York, Nov 19.—No condition exists today which calls for urgent legislative action by congress with respect to the railroads, declared the Association of Railway Executives at the annual meeting here today.

In an extensive "declaration of policy" for the coming year, the association held that: All railroad problems should be met as economic questions and not as political issues; rate making by legislative action would be destructive; Amendments to the transportation act must be kept from political doctors; adequate revenues would be assured the carriers to meet needs of service and expansion; more educational publicity should be developed by the roads themselves; and, the roads are determined to keep transportation facilities abreast of national growth.

E. H. Ashton, who is also president of the American Railway association, was elected chairman of the executive committee to succeed Hale Holden, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad. Mr. Holden retired after two years' service because of pressure of other duties.

With Mr. Ashton, Z. L. Mapother, president of the Louisville & Nashville railroad was added to the present membership of the executive committee which was continued for the coming year.

The carriers defined their position and policy for 1925 as follows:

"1—That all railroad problems as they arise should be dealt with and settled as economic questions, which they are, and not as political issues, which they are not.

"2—That there is no condition existing today which calls for any urgent legislative action by congress with respect to the railroads, either as to rates, labor relationship, or valuation.

"3—That railroad freight rate and passenger fare adjustments should be left to the duly constituted government regulating body, where they will receive a full and fair hearing and an adequate economic analysis, and not be made the subject of direct legislative action. Rate making by legislative action would be destructive.

"4—That amendments to the transportation act which may be demonstrated to be necessary by experience under normal business conditions, should be made only after a fair and judicial consideration of all pertinent economic facts, and not as the result of political agitation or of political pressure upon congress.

"5—That a continuation of adequate transportation facilities and service carries as an inevitable corollary the necessity for adequate revenues to be earned and retained in order that railroad credit may be restored and re-established in the confidence of investors and that ample additions, improvements, and repairs may be made at reasonable financial costs.

"6—The carriers schould seek in every legitimate way to enlighten the public on all phases of the complex transportation industry by the dissemination of authoritative information and should foster and aid the tendency recently observed to remove railroad questions from the arena of politics to the field of economic analysis so that the private management of the railroads may continue a program of increasingly adequate and efficient service. Under full and proper regulation, and may continue the efforts they are making to serve faithfully the public interest.

"7—And that, looking forward with continued confidence to the fairness of the American people, the railroads are determined to continue their policy of expansion to provide adequate transportation for the increasing commerce of the country and to strive in every way to bring about greater efficiency in operation and a progressive reduction in cost."

Mr. Holden as spokesman further set forth that the railroads still fall "far short of realizing the fair rate of return contemplated under the terms of the transportation act."

"The property investments of class one railroads," said Mr. Holden, "including materials and supplies and supplies and cash on hand, is $21,725,165,404. At the rate of 5 3-4 per cent. the return realized should have been about $1,250,000,000. In fact, the net railway operating income for class one carriers in 1923 was $961,955,465, or a return of 4.43 per cent. on the property investment. Returns for the year 1924 are not complete but for the first nine months, the return realized has only been 4.21.

Although $3,896,000,000 new capital had been added to American railroads since 1916, when the net railway operating income was $1,040,084,517, profits had actually declined. The best year since then, the year of 1923, had produced only $962,000,000 for this item, some $78,000,000 less than in 1916. Mr. Holden commented:

"From these facts it appears that the "transportation act has not been responsible for successive returns."

Mr. Holden also noted that harmonious labor conditions and improved relations with shippers the country over had marked the past year.

The member roads of the American Railway association met earlier in the day, when it was shown that capital expenditures for improvements authorized in 1924 were $18,000,000 higher than in the record-breaking year of 1923; $1,077,297,000 in 1924 as compared with $1,059,149,426 in 1923.

TELL OF HER RELATIONS WITH "KETCHUP KING"

New York, Nov. 19.—Miss Marion Buell, on trial for disorderly conduct, told today in Tombs court of her relations with Jefferson Livingston, millionaire "ketchup king" and turfman, prior to the recent episode in a Wall street office which caused her arrest on Livingston's complaint.

She denied she forced entry to Livingston's presence, frightened an office boy with talk about a pistol, or threatened to "blow his (Livingston's) head off" if he didn't consider her demands for money. She levied further that her unexpected appearance had broken up a party the sportsman-financier was giving at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

"I believed that if I had an opportunity to talk with him I could settle the matter," she said.

She testified concerning her suit in Westchester county courts to compel Livingston to fulfill an alleged agreement to pay her $1,750 a month for life in lieu of keeping a promise to marry her. This action, she said, was settled last September for $12,500 cash. Miss Buell asserted, however, that although she signed a form of release, she did not know it was an affidavit.

Her recent attempts to see Livingston, she said, were prompted by a desire to confer with him over $30,000 in $40,000 of debts she had incurred, for which 10 creditors were suing her and him jointly while subpoena servers caught her "almost every day" with papers in new suits.

The court ordered both complainant and defendant to submit briefs in the present case, saying a decision would be announced on December 1.

SILVER DOLLAR WOULD SAVE GOVERNMENT $1,000,000 A YEAR

Boston, Nov. 19.—Use of the silver dollar in place of bills will save the government $1,000,000 a year, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Charles S. Dewey said today in an address at the second annual conference of New England banks that are members of the Federal Reserve bank.

To the 54,000,000 cartwheels now in circulation, the treasury intends to add 30,000,000 in this country and 9,000,000 in the insular possessions, he added. As it costs one cent to mint a silver dollar and 1.7 cents to make a $1 bill, Mr. Dewey explained that a tremendous saving could be effected if the plan was accepted by the public.

Frederick H. Curtiss, chairman of the directors of the Federal Reserve bank of Boston, said that he had just returned from a conference in Washington of federal reserve officials, at which he obtained "a picture of credit conditions throughout the country—and they are excellent. The situation needs watching, however, but I feel that in view of the temper of the bankers and the business men there is little danger."

CARDINAL LOGUE, DEAD; PRIMATE OF ALL IRELAND

Belfast, Nov. 19—(By The A. J.)—Michael, Cardinal Logue, primate of all Ireland, died early this morning at his residence, "Ara Coeli," in Armagh.

To the very end of his life the eminent prelate exercised his powers as a priest of the church. He said mass Tuesday morning, and Tuesday night, less than twelve hours before he died, he paid his customary evening visit to the Blessed Sacrament. Cardinal Logue was born October 1, 1840, at Raphoe, and therefore was 84 years old. He was proclaimed cardinal in 1893.

The last public appearance of Cardinal Logue was in October, when he attended the Catholic Truth Society's annual convention in Dublin, a gathering in which he never failed to participate. He said then, however, that he expected to spend the next anniversary of the conference in purgatory. The funeral of the prelate will be held next Tuesday.

The death of Cardinal Logue leaves Ireland without a representative in the college of cardinals. Prior to the bestowal of the red hat on Logue, St. Patrick's See, Armagh, never had had a cardinal. Cardinals Cullen and MacCabe were archbishops of Dublin.

Cardinal Logue's successor as archbishop of Armagh will be his coadjutor, Archbishop Patrick O'Donnell.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTING TO SELL BABIES

New York, Nov. 19.—Anu attempt to sell two babies, a boy for $100 and a girl for $40, was made recently by a woman in charge of a Niagara Falls children boarding rome, the State Charities Aid Association announced today.

The babies who are not related, were placed in the home by their parents and then abandoned. After keeping them for some time, association officials said, the woman advertised in a newspaper that they were for sale, setting the prices at the amount of their respective board bills.

An agent of the association, the statement continued, noticed the advertisement and dcalled it to the attion of the Niagara Falls board of health which revoked the woman's license to operate the institution and placed the children in family homes.

UNDECIDED AS TO SLAYER OF NEW BRITAIN POLICEMAN

New Britain, Nov. 19.—After further checking up today, the New Britain police tonight were still undecided whether Gerald Chapman, notorious gunman, or George Stuyvesant, of Troy, N. Y., arrested in New York last Friday, is the man they are looking for as the alleged slayer of Patrolman James Skelly here October 12 during an attempted robbery at a department store. Chief Hart again said today, however, that he is still of the opinion that Chapman is the slayer.

INJUNCTION RESTRAINING RANCHERS IS DISMISSED

Independence, Inyo County, Calif., Nov. 19.—(By the A. P.)—The restraining order commanding Owens valley ranchers, who last Sunday seized the Los Angeles aqueduct, to release the city's property and cease interfering with the water supply, was vacated today by the Inyo county superior court judge who issued it last Monday.

Vacation of the court's order, which had already been defied by the ranchers, some of whom had cast copies of it into the water when served, was looked upon here as placing the aqueduct situation in the same position as it was early Sunday when the Alabama waste gates of the aqueduct were seized and the water diverted into the Owens river.

Immediately following his action, the jurist, Judge William D. Dehy, telegraphed to Gov. Friend W. Richardson asking him to apointed another judge, "to act and preside in the case," as he (Judge Dehy) was convinced after consulting legal authorities, that he was not qualified to hear the case.

The vacated restraining order, which was issued against Mark Q. Watterson, and more than 100 other valley residents, was never enforced. Sheriff Collins, maintaining that any attempt to forcibly eject the "army of occupation," which still remained in possession of the Alabama waste gates would result in "bloodshed and civil war in the valley."

GENERAL SIR LEE STACK WAS SHOT IN STREETS OF CAIRO

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 19 (By the A. P.)—Six or more gunmen, using both bombs and automatic pistols, created a sensation in the streets o Cairo today by attacking Major General Sir Lee Stack, sirdar of the Egyptian army and in whose person is combined the highest civil and military positions in the Soudan.

Three bullets hit General Stack as he was being driven in an automobile from the war ministry down the Sharia Kaar El-Ainl. The spot chosen by the assassins for their attack was within a few yards of the place where two years ago two British subjects, Brown and Robson, were murdered.

At the residency, where the sirdar was taken, it was found he had sustained a gericus wound in the abdomen and wounds in one of his hands and one of his feet. The bullet in the abdomen had lodged under the lung. Late tonight after an operation for transfusion of blood, surgeons expressed hope for the sidar's recovery.

The rain of bullets directed at the sirdar's car, seemingly from every angle, also wounded but not seriously, the sirdar's aide, his chauffeur and a policeman. The chauffeur, an Australian, although wounded twice, remained at the wheel of the car and drove rapidly to the residency.

All the assailants escaped.

THOMAS H. INCE DIED AT HIS HOME IN HOLLYWOOD

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 19.—Thomas H. Ince, motion picture producer and a leading figure in the industry since 1911, died today at his home in Hollywood. Death was due to angina pectoris.

Until stricken while on a trip to San Diego last Monday, the film director apparently was in the best of health, and was active in his motion picture work.

At the time of his death, Ince was supervising director of the Ince studio at Culver City. He was rated in the film industry as one of the master producers.

Ince was 42 years old. His widow and three sons survive.

His career in public entertainment started as a song and dance artist. In the development of motion pictures the building of the Triangle and Red-Art studios in Los Angeles ten years ago was among his first production plans and later he erected Inceville near Santa Monica, the plant at Culver City, now operated by Metro-Goldwyn and then Thomas H. Ince studio there, which he managed up to the time of his death.

He was born in Newport, R. I., and twice married, his first wife being Lucy Stewart, sister of Anita Stewart, and his widow is Nellie Kershaw Ince, sister of Willat Kershaw, of the musical comedy stage.

OSBORN DIRECTOR UNITED HOSPITAL FUND OF NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 19.—Minott A. Osborn, secretary of the Yale alumni advisory board, was selected as director of the United Hospital Fund of New York at a meeting of the executive committee today. In this capacity Mr. Osborn will direct the free service for the sick poor of 57 non-municipal hospitals of the city.

Mr. Osborn was graduated from Yale college in 1907 and received his M. A. degree in 1910. He has been continuously identified with his alma mater since graduation, first as associated editor of the Yale Alumni Weekly, to 1919, and then for three years assistant secretary and acting secretary of the university, and for the past two years secretary of the alumni advisory board.

His home has been in New Haven, Conn., where his father, Norris Galpin Osborn, is editor of The Journal-Courier. Mr. Osborn is forty years old.

MRS. HARDING DISPLAYS MARKED SIGNS OF COMA

Marion, Ohio, Nov. 19.—Reports late today from Mrs. Florence Kling Harding's bed chamber at White Oaks sanatorium near here, where she is making her home, are to the effect that she has rallied from a sinking spell that attacked her this afternoon. Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, her physician, issued a bulletin at that time, saying marked signs of a coma were overtaking the widow of Former President Warren G. Harding.

While Dr. Sawyer has issued no official bulletin since 3.30 p. m., it is now understood that the former mistress of the White House is conscious and able to talk.

Modern Life Sapping V.tality of Women

Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk so States Before the American Education Conference.

New York, Nov. 19.—Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk told members of the American education conference tonight that modern young woman's "serene" self-confidence in her ability to defy convention and tradition as to the ethics of living may be somewhat shaken by the knowledge that she is giving way under the strain and that she is not as good an animal as her "brother."

The price exacted of the flapper by what she considers her freedom, Dr. Fisk said, is lessening of her years, an inability to get all that should be obtained from life, physically and spiritually, and a general depreciation of health.

"I am not charging these results wholly to the neglect of personal hygiene," he added, "but to the whole post war situation emphasizing the materialistic and self-indulgent standard of living; a certain hard crust of selfishness leading to unwillingness to do anything that is troublesome or distasteful—especially to take advice and act upon it if it interferes with pleasure."

"At every age period of life the female portion of the population enjoys a lower death rate than the male portion, except during the period ages 17 to 32, when the rate is decidedly higher among females Tuberculosis, influenza, and the mortality of childbirth are chiefly responsible for this excess of loss among young women. Particularly distressing is the fact that tuberculosis which has been sturdily yielding in most groups of the population is here so defiant and resistant."

The growth of the cigarette habit among young women has led directly to an increase in the tuberculosis rate, Dr. Fisk maintained. Faulty diet, late hours, added to the strain of commercial and industrial employment and the unfavorable influence of business life also are factors in the returning prevalence of the disease, he said.

This condition is not a necessary accompaniment of present civilization, the physician contended, asserting the graduates of women's colleges show a very low mortality rate and "an apparent substantial improvement in physique as compared with the college girl of a quarter century ago." On the other hand, he went on, examination of many thousands of young women in commercial and industrial life has disclosed "a high ratio of physical impairment and a regrettable prevalence of tuberculosis or pre-tuberculosis conditions."

The hope of the modern young man, he held, lies in personal hygiene, and he maintained that the public education authorities should be the leaders in this work.

PROHIBITION NOT EFFECTIVE IN THE SLUMS OF NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 19.—Thomas J. Noonan, affectionately known as "The Bishop of Chinatown," today rounded out twenty years of missionary work in the slums of New York.

The "Bishop" conducts services at the Rescue Mission in the heart of the Chinese quarter, every night.

He got his title from the late Bishop Burch of the Episcopal diocese of New York, who referred to him as "Bishop" in a sermon. He was born in the East Side tenement district 47 years ago, was an orphan at ten, and an inmate of Damnemora prison at twenty.

Commenting today on the changed conditions in Chinatown in twenty years, he said the quarter was not the "cesspool" that it once was, but that his work was hindered by drinking.

"Prohibition may have had its effect somewhere, but not here," he said. "Men and women are not only drinking, but drinking themselves to death. I have seen men go blind—go stark raving mad—from the vile stuff they get from bootleggers or from denatured alcohol they buy, knowing full well that it is poisonous."

Profit-Taking Causes Break in The Market

Upward Trend of Prices Was Checked by Bear Selling of Gigantic Proportions.

New York, Nov. 19 (By the A. P.)—One of the wildest buying demonstrations in recent stock exchange history broke out at the opening of today's market and continued with increasing fury until noon when profit taking sales and bear selling reached such gigantic proportions as to check, at least temporarily, the main upward movement which has been under way, with a few minor interruptions, since election day.

Two records were established during the session; the number of issues traded in totalling 574, or 19 above the previous peak established last week, while the new 1924 highs totaled 108, or 1s above yesterday's high record. Total sales of 2,446,00 shares were less than 20,000 below the high water mark of the present "bull" movement touched on Nov. 11.

Total sales in the thirteen stock market sessions since election day, two of them half holidays, fall slightly short of 20,000,000 shares.

The spirited advances in the early trading probably were due to the fact that large blocks of stocks had been taken out of Wall street by recent purchasers, resulting in a scarcity in the so-called "floating supply."

So rapid was the execution of buying orders that when the movement was at its height, the stock exchange ticker was 49 minutes behind the market.

The list of new highs today included 34 rails and embraced practically every class of stocks listed on the exchange. United States Steel common, regarded by many as a market barometer, touched 116 7-8, its highest price in about five years, and then sold down to 115 3-4, for a net loss of 3-4 of a point on the day. American Can attained a record top at 155 1-2, and then fell back four points. Other popular industrial issues to better their previous high marks were Nash Motors, Pullman, People's Gas, Consolidated Gas, Sears Roebuck, H. R. Mallinson, Associated Dry Goods, Famous Players, Marine preferred and Fleischmann, the gains running as high as 7 points.

Radio Corporation, which has nearly doubled its price in the last five weeks, was the chief target of bear traders, cracking 7 1-4 points from its high of 48 1-2 established earlier in the day. United States Cast Iron Pipe, Worthington Pump, Mack Trucks, Savage Arms and United States Industrial Alcohol, which dropped 2 to 5 points below their early high prices.

MUSCLE SHOALS AGAIN A LEGISLATIVE PROBLEM

Washington, Nov. 19.—Senators who favored the Ford bid for Muscle Shoals are seeking the aid of western senators for a compromise government plan of operation for the properties to be submitted when congress convenes in December.

At the same time Secretary Weeks is taking steps to ascertain the scope of his authority to contract for the temporary disposition of power generated at the plant, should congress fail to make final disposition of the properties prior to completion of Wilson dam next July.

Should congress fail to dispose of the question and should the secretary find himself without authority to lease the output of the plants, they would lie idle.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, has submitted a government operation plan, and leading advocates of the Ford bid, convinced that Mr. Ford has withdrawn from the competition, are engaged in efforts to put together a plan having many features of the Norris proposal but considerably amended.

Secretary Weeks has asked Major General Hull, judge advocate general of the army, to furnish him with an opinion as to his powers in handling the properties. If that opinion should hold that he has no authority to make temporary contracts for power which he has in mind, he probably will ask congress to confer the authority on him if it should appear that Muscle Shoals legislation is not to be completed during the short session.

Secretary Weeks conferred today with Elon H. Crocker, of New York, who has been at work for some time on a proposal for the creation of a gigantic chemical and industrial plant at Muscle Shoals. It was said that Mr. Hooker hoped to have his proposal in shape for submission to congress at the forthcoming session.

TRUSTY ESCAPED FROM NEW HAVEN COUNTY JAIL

New Haven, Nov. 19.—Charles Blunt 20 years old, a trusty, made his escape fro mthe New Haven county jail tonight and a hunt during the evening failed to locate him. It was the first escape since Sheriff James Geddes took charge of the institution.

Blunt, who said he came from Missouri, was sentenced to 20 days in jail on a theft charge on November 5, the court also fining him $20 and $11.15 costs. As Blunt had been at the jail before and had always behaved himself, he was placed in the trusty class. This afternoon, he was at work handling freight shipments between the factory attached to the jail and the railroad freight house. He made several trips back and forth. Later in the afternoon, he asked the truck driver to make the return trip to the jail via Oak street as he wanted to see his wife, but the driver refused.

Returning to the jail shortly after five o'clock, Blunt was seen with the shipping gang in the jail yard. Fifteen minutes later, when the gang was lined up preparatory to being counted, it was discovered that Blunt was missing. It is thought that in the dusk he slipped out of the yard and disappeared.

NEW CONTROVERSY ARISES CONCERNING REPARATIONS

Over Question of Auditing and Disbursing Sums Collected on the Tax Recovery Acts—Agent-General Gilbert Has Informed the German Government That the Matter is Within the Jurisdiction of the Transfer Committee—The German Press Has Been Requested by the Government to Refrain From Commenting Upon the Issue.

Berlin, Nov. 19.—(By The A. P.)—German official circles steadfastly decline to comment on the controversy precipitated by Agent-General Gilbert's letter to Finance Minister Luther in which the reparations officials informed the German government of his decision to bring the question on auditing and disbursing sums collected on the tax recovery acts within the exclusive jurisdiction of the transfer committee.

The German press also has been requested by the government to refrain from discussing the issue, there being an apparent desire to protect the agent-general against any embarrassment resulting from the German participation in discussing now current in London, Paris, and elsewhere, regarding the effect of the continued practice of imposing the 26 per cent. levy.

Informal opinions obtained from German circles appeared to support the agent-general's contintion that the previous methods of collecting and allocating amounts resulting from the recovery acts are decidely inimical to the principle of the Dawes plan transfer system. German financial quarters further contend that the heavy amounts assessed under the recovery acts threaten to become a serious menace to the stability of German currency

While Mr. Gilbert's procedure is viewed primarily as being a step in the direction of safeguarding the authority of the transfer committee in its functions of collecting and transferring reparations funds, German export interests continue outspoken in their protest against the recovery principle generally. They hold that it constitutes an unwarranted discrimination against German commerce and materially restricts Germany's capacity to meet obligations imposed by the London protocol.

Formalities involved in expediting German exports under the recovery acts also are said to be the source of numerous petty annoyances, as they require recognition of consular formalities which cost time and fees. These fees mount to as much as 25 marks on bills of goods valued at only four or five times as much.

At its meeting on Nov. 28 the transfer committee will reach definite conclusions respecting the future treatmen of amounts collected under the recovery acts. Its action will have an important bearing on the further progress of negotiations now going on between Germany and various creditor states regarding commercial treaties.

The German minister of economics and finance are now in the midst of critical discussions with England, France, Belgium, Italy and other countries in connection with the conclusion of permanent trade pacts, and the fact that the present conferences are happening at the same time has made it difficult for the German government to mobilize the required number of experts.

In Berlin financial circles it is believed that Mr. Gilbert's move in asserting the exclusive jurisdiction of the transfer committee in dealing with funds collected under the recovery acts will directly bring the issue up for final disposition through an early conference of the reparation commission and the allied finance ministers who will determine the ultimate distribution of German payments.

OPIUM CONFERENCE HEARS THE AMERICAN PLAN

Geneva, Nov. 19.—(By the A. P.)—Following the presentation to the international opium conference today of the American plan for the control and ultimate eradication of the narcotic evil, Bishop Clarence H Brent of the American delegation delivered an address to the assemblage in explanation of the program offered. He said that the plan was submitted at this juncture in order that the delegates might have an opporunity "to study, criticise and amend the proposition it contains."

Bishop Brent emphasized that the American program was in the nature of "suggestions" and was an attempt to translate the ideals of the United States ino terms of national and international practice. Its purpose, he declared, was that "to which every signatory of The Hague convention is pledged—the ultimate suppression of the abuse of opium and cocaine and their derivatives, and the restriction of their production and manufacture within the requirements of medicine and science."

The speaker explained that the American program voiced the popular demand, as well as that of congress, and was supported by organizations representative of all of the United States.

"We lay our case before the convention without reserve and without ulterior motives," the bishop said, "there is no guile hidden beneath our service. If we are bold in our proposals we are also frank in the presentation of them. Our plan is one of preparation for action."

$1,000,000 SUIT AGAINST THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

New York, Nov. 19.—Existence of a 22-month-old $1,000,000 damage suit filed in the supreme court against the Pennsylvania Railroad and affiliated corporations, charging the illegal appropriation of plans which made possible the erection of the present 32-story Pennsylvania hotel, was revealed today.

The suit was filed in February, 1923, today the plaintiff, Edward L. Larkin, an architect and engineer, petitioned Justice Calvegan for an order permitting examination before trial of several defendants, a counter action, demanding a bill of particulars of Larkin, which was ordered by the court. Larkin's motion was taken under advisement.

Larkin's complaint recites that he approached President Samuel Rea and other Pennsylvania Railroad officials in 1915 with a proposal to lease the site of the Pennsylvania hotel, opposite the Pennsylvania Terminal, on which he planned to erect a 30-story building. The company's engineers assured him, he recites, that the network of train tunnels under the site would not permit th erection of a building more than twelve stories in height, as the weight of a larger structure would put too great a strain upon the tunnel-roof.

A short time later, his complaint continues, he called on President Rea and other road executives with plans for a 30-story building to be erected on a foundation specially devised by him to overcome the handicap. His plans were rejected, he continues, but erection of the 22-story hotel quickly followed. He contends that he investigated the hotel structure and ascertained that the foundation plan devised by him had been appropriated by the railroad's engineers.

His $1,000,000 claim is based on the contention that the site was enhanced in value through the erection of the hotel, made possible through use of plans devised by him.

Pierce of Winsted. The jury was out a total of 217 minutes retiring for the first time at 1.47 and returning at 3.30 with a verdict which Judge Maltbie refused to accept, due to technical omissions. Three minutes later at 3.33 the jury again retired, returning at 3.40 with another verdict which was not accepted. The verdict found in favor of the plaintiff Edwin Morin but failed to make compensation for personal injury. The jury withdrew for the third time at 3.43 and returned at 3.50 o'clock, allowing damages to the plaintiff to recover $93.10. Judge Maltbie thanked the members of the jury for their attention and discharged them for the remainder of the term. The plaintiff had brought suit to recover the sum of $300 for damages to the motorcycle and injuries to himself and loss of time through the accident. A counterclaim had been entered by the defendant for $1,000 for damage to his motorcycle and side car, injuries sustained by his wife and time lost in caring for her, at an expense of $65 a week. The evidence in the case had been heard during Tuesday's session of superior court. The arguments were started at 10.05 a. m. by Attorney Frank B. Munn, of Winsted, for the defendant in the original suit, followed by Attorney Samuel B. Harvey for Morin. The charge of the jury started at 11.45 and lasted fifty-five minutes. Judge Maltbie clearly defined the rights of both plaintiff and defendant.

Previous to the hearing of the arguments in the Morin-Pierce case it was announced that the two other cases, listed for Wednesday's session had been settled out of court. They were Roderick Miller vs Earl Rogers, a Killingly case concerning the sale of a stolen car by the defendant which was found to be the property of the plaintiff, and Herman Solderado vs James E. Meade over an automobile collision on Union street, this city, on the afternoon of July 7, 1923. In the latter case the defendant made a satisfactory settlement with the plaintiff. Smith of Canterbury, John F. Reed of Chaplin, Colon F. Merrell of Hampton, Fred E. Bitgood and Willard S. Danielson of Killingly, Elmer E. Battey and Charles D. West of Plainfield and Garfield R. While the jury was out, the bastardy case of Yvonne St. Rock vs Silver Kerouack, both of Wauregan, was taken up. April 26, of this year plaintiff gave birth to a female child that the defendant is the presenting the defendant yes Sabin S. Russell of and William L. King of d for the plaintiff was Charles E. Torrey of Putnam. The plaintiff called to the witness stand, stated that on the evening of Sunday, July 29, 1923, she had gone riding in company with Silver Kerouack, her sister and her sister's present husband, Mathieu Beauregard. Beauregard was driving his own car at the time and they had stopped near a schoolhouse on the Green Hollow road in the vicinity of Moosup. Beauregard and her sister had gotten out and had gone for a walk, remaining about half an hour. She and Kerouack remained in the back seat of the car. In the course of a few weeks she knew that she was in trouble and some thirty days later, when the suspicions of her mother were aroused, she told the latter the whole story. She made two attempts to tell Kerouack of her condition, once while they were riding and another time when she called to him as he passed her house. She alleged that he refused to listen to her although she warned him that what she had to tell him was serious and that it might be too late if he insisted on not listening to her story. She finally became fearful that if she did tell him he would leave town and she made no further mention of it. Character witnesses for the defense who testified to the good reputation of the defendant in his home town, as regards his moral standing were, Frank C. Leavans, foreman of the outside work of the Wauregan mills, in which department Kerouack is employed; Addison M. Tracy, a grocer and justice of the peace; Jerry A. Doyle, an acquaintance, Romeo Maynard, a baker, and Leon E. Doyle, a taxi driver and odose friend of defendant. Alexander St. Rock, father of the plaintiff told of bringing the suit against Kerouack on behalf of his daughter and bills contracted during the illness of the plaintiff, were introduced and accepted as exhibits. Mrs. Virginia St. Rock, mother of Yvonne St. Rock, related the incidents regarding her discovery of her daughter's plight. She was a witness on the occasion when her daughter had tried to tell Kerouack of her condition as he was passing the house. The plaintiff had been out of work about four months and one-half as the result of the child-birth and the estimated the expense of room and board at $7. The name of Wilfred— whom the plaintiff forsook for Kerouack was mentioned The toking of evidence for the day closed with a move by the defense to establish an alibi for Kerocack through Leon Doyle who testified that the defendant was in his company on July 29, the eventful Sunday involved in the case. Doyle said that he drove his taxicab to several nearby towns during the day and that Kerouack was continually with him, at times doing the driving, from 9.30 in the forenoon to 9.30 or later in the evening. The plaintiff's side had established the time of the ride to the schoolhouse as having started about 7 o'clock in the evening. At 4.25 court was adjourned until this (Thursday) morning.

The School Question was the subject of an interesting discourse, delivered by Superintendent of Schools Ebbert A. Case, at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club, Wednesday noon. During his talk Principal Case made several recommendations and to investigate these and report later, an educational committee was appointed, to comprise: Dr. Frank E. Guild, Samuel Chesbro, and Robert H. Fenton. President Dr. George E. Wilcox was in charge of the meeting. Three new members were elected, Dr. H. W. Ballou and Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones of Mansfield and Albert J. Fournier of this city. The necessity of an increase in the school space of the town, especially in view of a decided growth in the student population was one of the facts brought out in Superintendent Case's address. The Oaks Grammar and Windham High school are in the most acute condition according to Mr. Case. Mr. Berry states that he and his son Louis M. Berry were chopping wood in one of their lots near the Lindholm corner in Andover, Tuesday afternoon, when they heard gun shots. A double discharge was followed by the breaking off of several twigs on the tree on which the Berrys were working. The elder Berry investigated and finding three men, he cautioned them regarding the use of their guns. The men kept on shooting and Berry asked to see their licenses. One man showed his and it bore a New York address. A second man refused to produce his license and Berry suggested that all go to the home of Deputy Sheriff Allison L. ANNOUNCEMENTS

CLOVERDALE STORES HOLD BIRTHDAY SALE

Throughout New England this week Cloverdale Company stores are celebrating the 22nd anniversary of the opening of the first store of this great chain, now extending throughout the country and numbering more than 1,200, operating as the United States Stores System.

This chain now forms one of the important food distribution systems in the United States. The remarkable growth is attributable to the vision and able management of Alfred Preston Lee, who became President in 1904, two years after the opening of the original store in New England. To him fell the difficult task of shaping a policy that would make this chain one of the greatest in the country.

Two courses lay open. One, to feature price without much regard for quality; the other, to stress quality; and then by efficiency and economy of management, offer the goods at a rock bottom price. The huge volume of sales obtained as a result of the policy adopted, that of quality goods sold at a minimum profit, has proved the soundness of the Cloverdale principles of merchandising.

"The public co-operation has made this astonishing growth possible and will bring about the realization of the Cloverdale policy of expansion to the end that there will be no community so isolated as not to enjoy the benefits of a Cloverdale Store."

In this area local stores of this great system is located at: 157 Main street Norwich, Conn.

Breed Theater

It has often been said that there is nothing new under the cinema sun, but in The Silent Accuser, the Metro-Goldwyn production coming to the Breed theater today, Friday and Saturday, a promise has been made that an entirely new situation is presented in the development of the plot.

The novelty is made possible only through the astounding work of Peter the Great, the new police dog star of the picture. The story is frankly a melodrama, with an element of mystery to which the dog alone holds the key.

The picture has been produced on a scale that has come to be expected of all Metro-Goldwyn pictures, with beautiful photography sets and exterior scenes. At least two-thirds of the action takes place out of doors.

The cast is small, with the leading roles taken by only three people and a dog. Eleanor Boardman, who has made such a great success in the last year through her work in Wine of Youth, Sinners in Silk and Three Wise Fools, has one of the most interesting roles of her career. In some scenes of the pictures she is disguised as a boy. Raymond McKee, remembered for his work in Down to the Sea in Shins and Along Came Ruth, plays opposite Miss Boardman, and Earl Metcalfe plays an interesting character part.

It was the belief of Chester M. Franklin, the director, that with three people and a dog he could make a thoroughly entertaining picture, and he has succeeded. Mr. Franklin himself, together with Frank O'Connor, his assistant director, wrote the scenario of the picture, which was based on the story by Jack Boyle.

William Duncan in the last chapter of The Fast Express, Neva Gerber and Edmund Cobb in the opening chapter of Days of 49, the Pathe news and pictures of the Armistice day parade make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway Theater

A show that is just chock full of good things, especially comedy: that is what you'll see at the Broadway today, Friday and Saturday.

It's a big double show headed by B. F. Keith vaudeville which is as follows.

Buddy New presents Buddy, Dot and Grace in Around the Town, consisting of fine songs and eccentric dancing.

Harry Keene and Katie Williams presenting a comedy skit entitled A Roadside Flirtation.

If you like Scotch you will like Sandy Shaw, the celebrated Scotch comedian in his own repertoire.

Ryan and Marr offer songs, steps and smiles.

Ajax and Co., present a sensational novelty.

Jacqueline Logan, last seen with Rod La Rocque in the Paramount picture, Code of the Sea, returns to the screen at the Broadway theater today in the leading woman's role in support of Richard Dix in his first Paramount starring picture, Manhattan.

The production is an adaptation of Jeffery Farnol's popular novel, The Definite Object, a story of New York's gang life, laid in Hell's Kitchen.

Broadway Theater

Gloria Swanson adds a new nationality to her long list of characterizations in Wages of Virtue, her new Paramount picture. For the first time in her career she plays an Italian girl, Carmelita, a product of the slums of Naples who becomes the toast of the Foreign Legion in Algiers. Wages of Virtue was adapted for the screen by Forrest Halsey from the novel of the same name by Percival Wren.

Wages of Virtue comes to the Broadway theater on Sunday.

Ben Lyon (courtesy of First National Pictures) plays opposite the star in the leading man's role. Norman Trevor and Ivan Linow also have excellent supporting roles. Others in the cast include Joe Moore, brother of Tom, Matt, and Owen; Armand Cortez, Adrienne d'Ambricourt and Paul Panzer.

Allan Dwan directed the picture. Percival Wren is the author of the novel, and Forest Halsey made the screen adapation.

Elsie Ferguson Coming to Lyceum Theatre Saturday Night in Carnival.

In the course of a theatrical season, no player coming to us is more certain of an eager, warm and enthusiastic welcome than Elsie Ferguson. The announcement, therefore, of her coming appearance, for one special performance only, at the Lyceum theatre, Saturday evening, is extremely welcome.

Earlier performances, on the occasion of previous visits of delightful memory have earned for this most gifted and charming of our younger stars a firm and unchanging place in the esteem of discriminating playgoers and a staunch following in New London, numerous in number and fervent in admiring loyalty.

Miss Ferguson will be seen in Ferenc Molna's newest play, Carnival, the event marking the American premiere of this newest work from the pen of Dungarian dramatist.

The Charles Frohman company has surrounded Miss Ferguson with a most distinguished and capable supporting company including Tom Nesbitt, Madeline Delmar, Stanley Logan, Burton Churchill, Nicholas Joy, Franklyn Fox, Leo C. Carroll, Lucy Brewer, Mildred Wall, Edith Harding Brown, Mignon O'Doherty, Basil Hanbury and others.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Charles B. Montgomery, who is nominally a democrat, but has supported republican candidates and during the late but unlamented election was whooping things up for the progressives has gone and turned lawyer. Oneco saw him in a new role this week. He appeared as counsel for two accused who were before a justice's court held in the town of Sterling to try some Oneco cases, for alleged violation of the liquor laws.

These cases were the results of raids made during the storm an inception of the cold wave of Sunday night, by Draper Sheriff C. E. Ayer of this town, Deputy Sheriff Tillinghast of Central Village, County Investigator W. E. Jackson and Federal Officers William Congdon and Stanton Briggs of Willimantic and Constable Dyer Russell of Moosup.

This squad of officers visited the place of Theresa Callotti and seized a quantity of intoxicants. It was the first successful raid ever made at the Calotti woman's place. In another raid at the Nathan Carr place the officers brought away a jar containing about a half pint of some fluid.

When the cases were tried Justice Torrey was brought over into the town of Sterling from Plainfield to hear them. Benjamin Douglas acting as grand juror and Mr. Montgomery as counsel for Mrs. Calotti and Mr. Carr.

Counsel for the accused, though not a member of the bar, should do well in defending such cases. Mrs. Calotti came through with a fine of $25 and costs, on account of keeping with intent to sell. Carr was acquitted after various witnesses failed to testify as to the nature of the liquid found in the jug at his place and after various interested personages declined an invitation to sample it. One concerned averred that it was cold tea.

The late fall raiding season is now hitting its stride in towns in eastern Windham county. Very little has been heard of liquor raids for several months past hereabouts, but the new crop of prospects appears to be about ready for plucking; at least the renewed activities would indicate this to be the case.

John H. Corbett, secretary of the Windham County Y. M. C. A., expressed his pleasure over the success of a recent meeting at Brooklyn. Hugh D. Maydole of New York, member of the International Committee Y. M. C. A. secretaries, was the principal speaker of the evening. He gave an interesting account of the work of the County Y. M. C. A. organizations throughout the country. He pointed out the importance of committee service and told how the committee men can help the Y. M. C. A. of greatest service to the men and boys of a town and to rural communities.

Sisters of Brooklyn grange served the excellent supper that preceded the meeting. Twenty members of the County "Y" committee and their wives enjoyed the chicken pie and other things in the repast and found much pleasure in the programme of entertainment prepared for their pleasure.

State Highway Commissioner John Macdonald, press despatches state, will suggest to the legislature-elect a plan for secondary state-aid highways in Connecticut, to relieve the congestion on the present trunk lines.

As applied to this vicinity, one may romance about the future a bit. A state-aid highway between Danielson and Central Village and Moosup via the Green Hollow road, a joint proposition for Killingly and Plainfield, opening as an improved route one of the oldest and most used country highways in the territory and one that runs through picturesque country. An improved route between Danielson and Goodyear either via Maple street or Mechanic, North and Maple streets. A rout through Franklin street at Main over Christian Hill and the old Furnace to Connect with the Danielson-Providence route near South Killingly, thus reopening to general travel what was for a hundred years part of a famous stage coach line, as is about all the Danielson-Providence route now in use. A route from the foot of Dark Lantern hill to East Killingly, to accommodate the great amount of travel out of that section to the Danielson-Providence route. A route from South Killingly to North Sterling, a proposition for the towns of Killingly and Sterling. A route from Brooklyn to Pomfret via the Putnam farm, this route long talked of to be a section of trunk line, but never improved.

That's something of a programme, especially for the town of Killingly. One is not likely to see it all carried out within the next five years, but it is not unlikely that a good beginning on it will have been made before that time elapses. More improved highways are an essential and they are quite certain to come.

Of special local interest is the fact that the United States supreme court has within a few days heard arguments in a Massachusetts case arising over the effort of a state to control the inter-state operation of motor busses engaged in passenger carrying operations. Briefly, the contention set up by counsel for the operators of the bus lines that such traffic should be subject to federal control, it being inter-state traffic and that state governments should not have the ultimate say as to whether such lines should operate, excepting as to exacting motor vehicle registration fees and possibly as to making insurance of passengers obligatory, as is now the case in a number of states.

Danielson's interest in the controversy arises through the fact that a similar case originated in this town during the summer when the operator of a bus on a new line running from Providence to Hartford, via Danielson, was arrested and presented in the Killingly town court for a technical violation of the motor vehicle laws. The Providence-Hartford line ceased operating for a time, but eventually resumed its daily service and now has two busses running. In the meantime the Killingly case has somnolent, pending the decision of the supreme court of the United States in the similar case just argued before it.

Borough people can put a dollar where it will do great good by subscribing to membership in the Red Cross annual roll call drive, under way in Danielson this week. This year's effort, if the workers can make it so, is intended to be the most successful since the close of the war. Helping the Red Cross incidentally helps the Civic Federation.

The temperature registered was 2 degrees above zero, at Woodward's, early Wednesday morning, the lowest point touched since the cold wave developed Sunday night. On the two preceding mornings the minimum here was 4 degrees above. The three days are believed to be the coldest at this period in November in the past 50 years. And it hasn't rained yet.

The mid-week service to be held in the vestry of the Baptist church this (Thursday) evening, will be conducted by the Help-One-Another class of the Sunday school. An unusual programme has been arranged including orchestra selections, also solos by Mrs. C. Alton Frost of Boston.

The story of the $40,000 necklace that appeared in this column, Wednesday morning, has brought to light an equally interesting tale. Like the necklace story, the Danielson man who figured in it insists that his name shall not be used. However, no man in Danielson is more veracious or of better standing.

A few years since, on a night when he was away from Danielson concerned with his business affairs he met a casual acquaintance who was brain weary from working on a model for a mechanic's wrench. It was the aim and the object of the inventor to produce a wrench that would take at once a firm hold on either a square or a round object without any complicated adjustment—a sort of snap-unto-quick and rise-like proposition.

The Danielson man, who has something of a bent for mechanics, studied the model for a time—and then an idea filtered through his brain. That vision was during the evening transformed into a new wood model, solely with the aid of a pocket knife. The problem had been solved.

A year passed and the men did not meet again, this at the time appearing strange to the Danielson man. Another six months slipped by, when, on a day when the local man was in a Connecticut city, he happened to glance into a show window of a hardware store and saw a steel wrench exactly like the model he had whittled out of wood for his friend. He entered and asked to see one. Stamped on the wrench was the patent rights in the name of his friend. Mr. Danielson Man has since ascertained that his friend's profit on the device has touched $40,000, and the revenue still is coming in.

The inventor always shuns to talk about the wrench with the Danielson man nowadays and even avoids contact with him, whenever possible. Almost anyone could guess the reason why. It so happens that the Danielson man is well supplied with worldly goods, so de harbors no sense of lost wealth through one of the little breaks of fate.

This (Thursday) afternoon when the members of Sarah William Danielson chapter, D. A. R., meet with Miss M. J. Mendell of Broad street the speaker is to be Miss Katherine Finnegan of New Haven, representing the state board of education. The speaker's subject will be Americanization.

Chief John McFarland does not think much that's favorable of people who drop bottles in the streets, accidentally or otherwise, and leave them there. This applies to milk and liquor bottles; in fact, to any old kind of a bottle. Most of these bottles are broken. They are a menace. Chief McFarland would like this sort of negligence to cease.

"Build a fire under it" was the laconic advice of one motorist to another whose car had frozen on the road and was as useless for the time being as a radio tube in place of a glass eye. Evidently all drivers did not gain from the experience of those whose cars were frozen Sunday night. The near-zero weather again Wednesday morning caught another flock of them.

Chancing what might have been very serious consequences, numbers of young people here and hereabouts got out their ice skates and used them on the glistening surfaces of small ponds in this neighborhood Wednesday—the earliest skating date in many years in this territory.

The Danielson inn is again under the management of Mrs. Mary Creighton, with Walter W. Murphy in charge. The inn invites your patronage. Comfortable rooms by the day or week. Meals American or European plan. Courteous and efficient service.—adv.

John B. Gerson of Fall River was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Wednesday.

A beautiful, red sunset Wednesday seemed to guarantee that it would not be over 15 below zero this morning; but one never can tell.

PUTNAM

Alexander Gilman, president of the chamber of commerce, has named the following as the executive committee of Putnam's Come-Back day to be held Friday and Saturday, Dec. 5th and 6th: E. L. Prince, Katherine Byrne, Alvin Letellair, Charles Seder and Willis Carroll.

The Putnam-made products committee consists of F. L. Prince, Leonard Mellor, superintendent of the National Rosa Manufacturing Co., and H. H. Ellis, head of the state trade school of this city.

No effort will be spared to make it an interesting and impressive event. Through the courtesy of Captain J. J. McGarry, commander of Headquarters Co of the 43rd Division, National Guard, the state armory has been secured for the exhibit of the varied line of manufactured products that Putnam turns out, and for the Radio Show that is to be given by the newly formed Putnam Radio Dealers association. The use of the armory is given without cost to the committee.

Even to the average citizen of Putnam, local manufactured products seem to consist of what is woven in the textile mills but there is a surprisingly large number of other articles made in this city, quite a few of which have a national reputation. At the chamber of commerce meeting C. A. Elliott made the statement that a few days ago he brought home from Worcester a metal contrivance, weighing nearly twenty pounds which he had wanted for a long time. On examination he found on it the stamp, "Made by The Foundry and Machine Co., of Putnam, Conn.

Jacob Alpert, one of the lessees and manager of the Bradley and Victory theaters, is appointed a member of every committee, not a consulting member, but an active, working one. The spirit of enthusiasm displayed by local business men is very gratifying, but it is the same spirit with which they met the appalling disasters of the past six months. The falling off in the textile market, general throughout the country, was intensified here by the failure of the Manhasset Mfg. Co., the largest of the local textile mills. This was followed by the shut-down of the Putnam Manufacturing company, which has not turned a wheel for six months. Then came the biggest financial blow in the history of the city, the failure of the First National bank with an estimated loss of $700,000. In the face of all this the business men kent their heads, looked the future squarely in the face, paid their bills, organized two commercial banks in the place of the one that was wrecked, and are now joining in a project that will show the entire community of which Putnam is the trading center, that there is nothing the matter with Putnam!

Henry J. Steinberg, of Webster, formerly a resident of Putnam and lessee and manager of the Bradley theater here, has declared in a Webster court that he is penniless, instead of being worth $100,000 or more, as he was commonly reputed to be. Putnam people have heard of his real estate operations, of his purchase of one theater and his erection of another, of the organization by him of a textile company, and the general belief existed that he was far along on the road to wealth. According to his sworn statement, he does not own any property and has no money. He gave the following list of properties that are in his name and which he was supposed to own, but all of which, he said, are under attachment or are mortgaged to the full extent of their value:

Stock in the Webster Dye and Yarn company to the extent of 1,093 shares listed at $100 par value; 240 shares in the Steinberg Theater company; six shares in the Commonwealth Amusement company, three house lots in Worcester assessed at $600 each, one two-apartment house under construction, valued at $7,800, and other minor property. Suit was brought against him by J. D. Greenburg of Boston for the collection of overdue notes. He admitted in court that he had recently taken a poor debtor's oath, in which he declared that he had not more than $20 in cash or property. He has no banking account, having drawn a check recently for the balance that was in his name, to pay for necessities.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Danforth and daughter, Miss Florence Danforth of Holyoke, Mass., spent Sunday with friends in the city. Mr. Danforth was formerly agent of the New Haven road at Putnam but now is agent for the same railroad at Holyoke, Mass.

The smallness of the world we live in was demonstrated by the following letter just received by James H. Rafferty, veteran insurance agent, of this city, from J. H. Rafferty, of the same company, at Fresno, Calif.:

"Dear Mr. Rafferty: I noticed your name in the October issue of The Intelligencer (a magazine issued by the company) as having completed 35 years of service with the Metropolitan. Although we have never met it seems from the similarity of our names, if for no other reason, that we should be friends.

"Please accept my hearty congratulations on such a splendid achievement, the completion of such a long term of service with a great company.

"Very truly yours,
"J. H. RAFFERTY,
Manager Fresno Office, Metropolitan Life Ins. Co.

Putnam people will be interested in the following despatch from New Britain, as Rev. Fr. McCann was a former resident, a graduate of Putnam High school, a nephew of Mrs. Catherine Dolan, of Chapman street:

"Young people should save something for the church and should not put bad money in the collection box, as had been done, for lead nickels and Chinese pennies have no value and do not help pay church expenses." Rev. Walter A. McCrann pointed out that the young people have plenty of money to spend for clothes and said that he thought there would be more marriages in the parish if there were fewer $150 fur coats worn by the young women, which frighten the marriageable men, whose pay may be only $26 a week. He pointed out that the young people must take the places of the older people who were dying, as supporters of the church."

ARCANUM CLUB AUCTION WITH REMARKABLE SCORE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Nov. 19.—At the Arcanum club, Tuesday evening, a game of auction whist was played with probably as remarkable a score as was ever made in Putnam, New England, or anywhere. George W. Gilpatric and Richard Whalen, partners, scored the following points in the first four hands played: first hand 4, second hand 5, third hand 6, fourth hand 7, a total of 22 points in four successive hands, and with an increase of one point in each hand. Their opponents were James H. Rafferty, president of the Arcanum club, and Henry J. Lyons, manager of the local office of the S. N. E. Telephone company, both good whist players. "No trumps" hands are not played at the club which makes the score all the more remarkable, and one that is probably not equalled in the annals of the game.

He said he brought home a piece of meat weighing eleven pounds, that he did not throw it at Mrs. Cunningham, but that it slipped from his hands falling in a chair. He admitted that he might have used abusive language, but that it was not his intent in doing there. He claims to be part owner of the property with Mrs. Cunningham and it was the only home he had. The court stated as there was much trouble at his home, it would be advisable for one party to stay on the property to the interest of the other. The case was continued until Wednesday evening, when Mrs. Cunningham who was ill was expected to be present and testify. The court suggested that each party come prepared with figures showing the interest of each in the property.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

Why You Need Iron—

To Make You Strong and "Brainy" and Put the Power Into Your Blood To Overcome Disease Germs

The food you eat contains carbon. When your food is digested it is absorbed from the intestines into the blood. When the carbon in your food comes in contact with the oxygen carried by the iron in your blood, the carbon and oxygen unite and by so doing they give off tremendous energy, thereby giving you great force, strength and endurance. Without iron your blood carries no oxygen and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food, so that what you eat does you no good—you do not get any strength from it—it is like putting coal into a stove without a fire. You cannot get any heat unless the coal unites with the fire.

The strongest weapon with which to prevent and overcome colds, pneumonia, kidney trouble, rheumatism, nervous prostration, in fact almost any disease or disease germs is plenty of good rich, pure blood, strength, energy and endurance and the greatest energy carrier in the body is organic iron, not metallic iron which people usually take, but organic iron like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, and like the iron contained in what is known as organic Nuxated Iron, which may be had from almost any druggist. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength, energy and endurance of weak, nervous, rundown folks in two weeks' time.

Impoverished blood corpuscles highly magnified.

Healthy blood corpuscles highly magnified

It has been used and highly recommended by former United States Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts, many physicians and prominent men. Millions of people are now using it annually. Satisfactory results are guaranteed or the manufacturers will refund your money. Sold by all druggists in tablet form only.

LIFTING THE BAN.

Action regarding the lifting of the ban on the hunting season in at least three of the New England states varies according to conditions. Connecticut and Vermont have permitted the resumption of the hunting, but in Massachusetts the prohibition of hunting is still effective.

In the western part of Connecticut and in Vermont there was a rainfall which turned to snow Sunday night. It was regarded as being sufficient to wet down the leaves and underbrush of the woodlands so that hunters could be permitted to take advantage of the open season otherwise existing at this time. In the eastern part of this state there was but a slight shower, not what might be called a soaking rain, and no snow. The high wind that followed quickly overcame the moistening effect of such rain as did fall.

The same rain and the same snow may have hit the western part of Massachusetts, but it did not cover that state and the game commission of that state found it inadvisable to lift the ban on hunting.

That the hunters are rejoicing over the fact that the hunting season is not to be lost entirely can be taken for granted. They must realize, however, that there has been much more conservation of game, and will probably admit that some fires have not occurred which might otherwise have resulted. Just how many of the fires are due to the fellow with the gun may differ in accord with who makes the estimates, but there cannot fail to be impressed upon the hunter, whether he is an old hunter, a new [illegible] one in between, that much depends upon him as to where the [illegible] is placed for woodland fires. [illegible] is by no means the only human [illegible] that could be responsible, and it may be that many observe quite as much care as if they were at home, but the lifting of the ban permits the hunter to justify the claim that the blame doesn't rest upon him for destructive fires. It is a time when all should be exceedingly careful in the woods.

STOPPING AT CROSSINGS.

The conference of governors is taking place this year in Florida. Just what the actual accomplishments of such gatherings are there may be no definite way of determining. They are nevertheless in a way to discuss problems which are more or less common to all the commonwealths. They are due to present their difficulties, learn how the various states are proceeding in order to deal with conditions and possibly get help from the good and bad results which have developed from the adoption of various laws and the introduction of different methods in the many states.

Like the preventive measures of various kinds, it may be impossible to put the finger on just what has actually been accomplished but it is confidently believed that good comes from these sessions.

In connection with the problem of railroad crossings and the large death toll that is recorded there, Governor Branch of Indiana told the governors in Florida that little less serious than the way in which lives are being snuffed out by autos is the question of grade crossing disasters, and that he had about concluded to recommend to the legislature of his state that authority be given the public service commission to designate certain crossings as dangerous, and at such crossings vehicular traffic would be required to stop.

This is action which has been taken by a few states already, and it is action that calls upon the users of the highway to do something for their own protection besides trusting to luck. Every state recognizes the dangers of the railroad crossings and for the most part auto drivers do, but there are those who seem unwilling to give up a minute's time to insure safety. Possibly the law requiring vehicles to stop would not be respected by the small percentage of those who figure in such accidents but if it didn't it would simply emphasize the fact as to where the responsibility for crossing fatalities lies.

THE BUDGET SYSTEM.

With full justification did Budget Director Lord direct attention to the saving that had been effected in the conduct of the federal government in his recent address in New York.

After having floundered about for years with no plan at all of making government income and expenditures meet, and having done the business of the country in such a haphazard manner that there was no attempt to cut the garment according to the cloth, this government adopted a budget system. It was a determination to run the country in the same economical and efficient manner as a corporation would conduct its affairs. It was a long needed change and too much emphasis cannot be laid upon what has been accomplished by it.
